Grace and simplicity are essential qualities in the frocks of the young girl and every mother who fashions her daughter's gowns appreciates how difficult the realization of this often proves. A dress which requires no great amount of skill or experience to fashion and which nevertheless appears smart and attractive is shown. The waist has a fanciful yoke as the distinctive feature with two broad tucks at either side below. The closing is effected beneath the last tuck at the side and on the shoulder, while the sleeves are to be finished full length or shorter as desired. The skirt is a seven gored one laid in pleats and stitched in double box box pleats at the front and back. Mohair is an excellent material for such a dress as it sheds dust and does not quickly show wear while Henrietta, rajah, pongee, linen, crash or madras might be used. For the medium size 8 1-8 yards of 34 inch goods are needed.

LOCALS BEAT CAMPBELLFORD

Interesting Cricket Match at Nicholls Oval Yesterday

The Campbellford cricket team came to Peterborough yesterday and played the local eleven at Nicholls Oval. The match was an exceedingly interesting one and was won by the home team, the score being 86 runs to 84 runs. Peterborough had considerable to spare in their second innings, five men not having to go to bat. Hill practically won the game for Peterborough in the second innings when he was responsible for 28 runs. Gordon Campbell also did well in this period, scoring 14 runs, while A. Campbell scored 12. These, with Edwards' 5, gave Peterborough a lead of 2, and it was not necessary to continue. The Campbellford team was a strong, well-balanced organization, nearly every man taking part in the scoring.

The match was witnessed by a large number of spectators and good plays on either side were liberally applauded.

The score by innings was as follows:—

FLIES AS DISEASE BEARERS

The Common House Variety Are a Menace to Health.

The United States Department of Agriculture has started a crusade against the common house fly and is carrying on extensive experiments as to the best way of banishing it from the abodes of man. The fly has been found to be not only a nuisance, but a menace to man's health. It's hairy body carries both disease and death. Many epidemics which sweep over communities in the hot season have been traced to the fly. Having its origin in filth it brings with it the bacteria which breed in filth. And as it moves about, now crawling over refuse, now over the food on the table, flying from the lips of the sick to the lips of the healthy: it is said to be more dangerous to modern society than were the wild beasts to primitive man.

The high mortality among the children in the congested districts of a city, where families are closely crowded together, where refuse accumulates fast, where food is often kept in living rooms is due to a large degree, so scientists now say, to the fly. Infant diseases chiefly prevail in the hot season, when the flies abound. Dr. J. T. C. Nash, in The Journal of the Royal Sanitary Institute, giving his experience as an English health officer, says that the fly is responsible for the death of many children, because of polluting the milk which they drink.

"It is a matter that has been entirely overlooked," said Dr. C. O. Probst, recently, "but we now know that the common house fly is an agent of importance in carrying the germs of typhoid fever. It was formerly believed that the germs were only carried in water, milk and other liquid food. Flies both breed and feed in places where the germs are to be found and then flying into our houses, no doubt often carry the germs and deposit them on our food.

Polson Iron Works Excursion Brought in 400 People Today

Committee Delighted with the Outing and the Trip over the Lift Lock—City Should Provide a Pavilion at the Park—Many More Excursions Would Come if Looked After.

At twenty minutes after ten o'clock this morning the special C.P.R. train with the Polson Iron Works excursion from Toronto on board, arrived at the depot. There were nearly 400 people on the train, and this is an exceptionally big crowd when it is remembered that there is a strike on at the works in Toronto, which undoubtedly kept at least 200 persons from coming. The special left the Union station at eight o'clock this morning and made a splendid run to Peterborough, which was greatly appreciated by the committee.

Upon the arrival of the train the crowd divided at the station, about 200 took the steamer Otonabee over the lift lock, arriving back at twelve o'clock for dinner. The others came on up to to visit friends and see the city. This afternoon the picnic went to Jackson's Park, where the chief feature was the baseball match between the married and single men of the works.

Speaking with one of the committee, the Review was informed that those in charge of the excursion were delighted with their trip. Very few of them had seen the lift lock and they were glad of the opportunity to go over it in a steamer. Continuing, he said:—"Peterborough Council should awaken to the fact that the city is losing a great big plumb for no othr reason than that they donot realize the attractiveness of the place, and made no pretense to cater to the public. Dozens of excursions from Toronto could be run down every summer and everybody would bring a crowd. The parks, the boat, the lift lock and the city itself are inducements which very few places have but the council is doing nothing. They are not advertising in outside cities and they will not help the excursions that do come. The people want to come here, and they would like to make a second trip. I might mention one thing that is lacking, and it would cost very little to rectify it. At Jackson Park there is no pavilion, for dance hall, and the excursionists miss the dancing very much. Then in case of a storm, such as a week ago, there is nothing for the people to do but get soaked. The nasty weather last week and the thorough wetting that so many got had a bad effect upon the excursion today. Even with the lack of modern accommodation, we all like Peterborough, and always have a good time here, but we would like to see the council pay a little more attention to us."

Lindsay People Had Baskets Stolen at Jackson Park

The visitors at Jackson Park yesterday from Lindsay had a rather unpleasant experience. Several baskets containing provisions were put in an apparently safe place until required, but no one was left in charge. When Rev. C. H. Marsh, rector of St. Paul's church and several of his parishioners, young and old, went to get their "grubbs" it was discovered that it had mysteriously disappeared. Several bad boys are alleged to have stolen it, and scattered pie plates over a portion of the park. The visitors would have to have gone hungry, had not some Peterborough ladies, who were having a picnic there, came to the relief of the famished excursionists, and generously handed over their supplies — an act of kindness, which was greatly appreciated by the visiting Lindsayites.

FLOWING WELL WAS DISCOVERED

A flowing well is something unusual in this section of the country, but one was struck by Mr. George B. Johnson last week while digging for water on his premises. After digging down about thirteen feet a vein of water was struck, which soon filled the well and flowed over the top. He had purchased a windmill which he intended erecting to pump water, but thinks he has no use for it now.—Stirling News-Argus.

CROPS ARE LATE IN NORTH WEST

In the interview with Mr. Harry Long published yesterday, the Review stated that the crops would soon be ready for harvesting. This might be a little misleading. While three or four weeks is soon, some might be led to believe that he meant a few days or a week. As a matter of fact the crops are not nearly so far advanced in the west as here and it will be late before the binders and threshers can get busy.

Canada Has no Rival in Variety and Abundance of Small Game

Acknowledged to be a Veritable Paradise for Nimrods—The Different Species of Small Game Found in the Various Provinces—Illustrations Showing Haunts of the Feathered Tribes in Their Native Element

In the variety and abundance of sport obtainable, at a minimum expense and trouble, Canada has no rival, and is now acknowledged to be the best game country in the world.

It so happens that the best game districts of the Dominion are either in the immediate vicinity of, or at no great distance from, the Canadian Pacific Railway. Newfoundland is now brought within six hours' steam of the Canadian railways, and in the States adjacent to Canada the Canadian Pacific railway and its connecting lines traverse the best fields for sport. The heart of the moose, caribou and deer country of New Brunswick, and of Eastern and Northern Quebec is penetrated—lands which are not only famed for their big game, but which are inhabited by many species of small game.

Grouse

For the greater part of the way between St. John, N.B., and Vancouver, on the Pacific, the Canadian Pacific railway passes through territory from which in season, no sportsman, however untried he may be, should return empty handed. There is necessarily considerable difference between the resources of one field and those of another. A particular locality may be more promising for certain kinds of game than the rest—one well streaked with trout streams, but affording less excellent bass fishing; one unsurpassed for wild fowl but not equal to others for grouse; but there are some which hold many species of game, and will well repay the organization of a camping party. Some sportsmen too, are not content to "rough it," however richly they may be rewarded, but require all the accessories of civilization reasonably obtainable; others regard the camp the occasional inconveniences, and the complete change in mode of life as additional attractions to the search for and the securing of their game.

At Rice Lake

Every sportsman should be familiar with the game laws of the province or state he intends to fish or hunt in, and to assist him in observing the law the Canadian Pacific Railway publishes for free distribution, a booklet called "Open Season for Fish and Game." Ask any agent for it.

SMALL GAME.

Foxes, rabbits, hares, mink, fisher, marten, sable, otter, beaver, muskrat and wolverine, and all other small game, are plentiful throughout Canada, but must be hunted in accordance with the game laws in force in each province. Most of the small fur-bearing animals are trapped by the professional hunter, and are not usually sought for by the sportsman. The large amount of fur exported from the Dominion of Canada is sufficient evidence of the abundance of game of all kinds, both small and large.

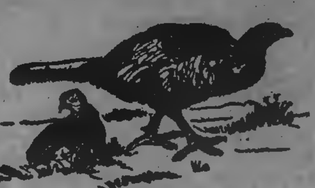
Duck Shooting

BIRD SHOOTING.

The Canadian Pacific railway has opened up a new world to the sportsman for the prairies of Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta are the home of myriads of water fowl and feathered game of all kinds.

The sharp-tailed grouse of the Canadian prairies is a splendid representative of the large grouse family; he is a big, thick-set, heavy bird, lighter in color than the ruffed grouse; his back is a pretty chocolate with black feather-bars, the under parts are pure white, each feather with an arrow-head of black. He goes in covies the earlier part of the season, but later on packs in large flocks till the spring-time, when the birds separate again for mating and nesting. Many parts of the Manitoba, Assiniboia, Saskatchewan and Alberta prairies are rolling and studded with bluffs; this makes a prettier landscape than a monotonous level prairie, and a much better shooting country. A bluff is a patch of small, light bush composed of poplar and low scrub, and may be anything in size from a few yards to several acres in extent. The birds, when flushed on the open prairies, or the stubble, fly straight to a bluff; then one gun, with dog going inside, and the other two, if there be three guns, which are not too many, walking on either side of the outside, the birds are caught as they fly out of cover. The inside gun if his dog be steady, sees his work; and always making sure which his companions are, often bags his bird before it leaves the bluff. This habit of taking to cover gives a pleasant variety to the shooting, which no other grouse gives.

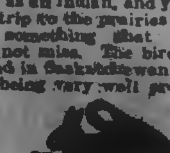
The shooting waggon is an important adjunct to the outfit of the prairie sportsman. This should be a team and a roomy democrat waggon, with plenty of loose hay in the bottom for the comfort of the dogs and for warmth for your own feet in the early morning cool drives out and evenings home. Next to the rig is your driver. There are good shooting waggon drivers, and there are shooting waggon drivers that are no good. If you can light upon a boy who would rather follow a man all day who has a gun than do anything else, that is the one you want to fasten on to. He knows the whole country, can drive you anywhere, and is never lost; you leave the rig, and give him instructions as to which way you intend working, and you may rest assured that when your bag gets heavy, and you want the waggon to unload your birds into it, you will find it just where you expected it. Each trip you make to your waggon he has some news to tell you; some one has been along and told him where there are lots of birds; or he has marked birds down, and directs you to a yard where they are. He makes friends with the dogs, and those left in the waggon for spells of rest are as safe as though you were there yourself. When the day's shoot is over and everything packed away, and you are in the waggon, shooters and dogs, and start for home, you do not know to a few the size of your bag; but the boy can tell you; he is not quick at school maybe, but he can and does keep accurate account of the game bag, and tells you correctly what it is.



The Common Pheasant

The pinnated grouse has been making his way up north into the Canadian Northwest, and in a day's shoot several may help to fill the bag. This bird does not take to the bluffs as does the sharp-tail, but remains in the open; you lose the variety which you get with the sharp-tail in the bluffs; but, like all the family, the pinnated is a fine bird. The bracing September atmosphere is most invigorating and health-giving, and after three or four weeks' sport one feels as little as an Indian, and years younger. A trip to the prairies in September is something that sportsmen should not miss. The birds in Manitoba and in Saskatchewan and Alberta are being very well protected, 25 is the limit per diem for each gun, and sale and exportation are prohibited.

The Canadian Wild Goose



It is but a few years since the Canadian West was settled, and wheat was grown there. The grouse knew nothing of cereals, and had to depend entirely upon the seeds and berries which were indigenous to the prairie. The change of surroundings soon brought about a change in the habits of these birds. They were not long in cultivating a taste for this grain, wheat for preference, which was being grown; and mornings and evenings the stubbles are the most likely places to find them. If the season for wheat has been good, and the straw long, and stubble left long enough to afford a good cover, a brace of well-trained dogs get fine opportunities for doing work which gladdens the heart of the sportsman who knows what good dog work is. It is not altogether the size of the bag by which the sportsman's pleasure is measured; there are many other things which contribute.

But the reader unacquainted with the country or the habits of Canadian game may ask: Wherein lies the special superiority of the Canadian prairies, and why is it better than any other region?

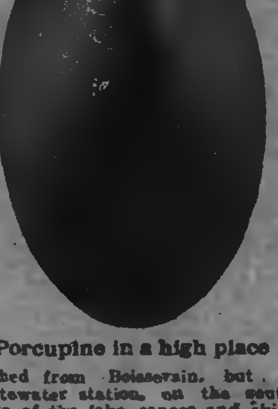
The answer is easily found. In the first place, these rolling, grassy areas of rich prairie land, intersected with an endless succession of lakes and sloughs and swales, are now, as they have been for ages in the past, the spring and autumn haunts of the migratory water-fowl, that every spring leave the drowned lands, lagoons and rice fields of the south and wing their long way over states and provinces league after league, until they have gained the lonely haunts in the north, where they breed. These lakes, streams and marshes are favorite feeding places of wild fowl, and they break the vast expanses of grass everywhere. There is practically inexhaustible supply of food, and consequently the birds return year after year to the same points.

Several species of grouse may be killed, including the prairie chicken, pinnated grouse, ruffed grouse, Canada grouse, ptarmigan and willow grouse, in the northern part of Western Canada, and the blue grouse, cock of the mountains, and Franklin's grouse in British Columbia.

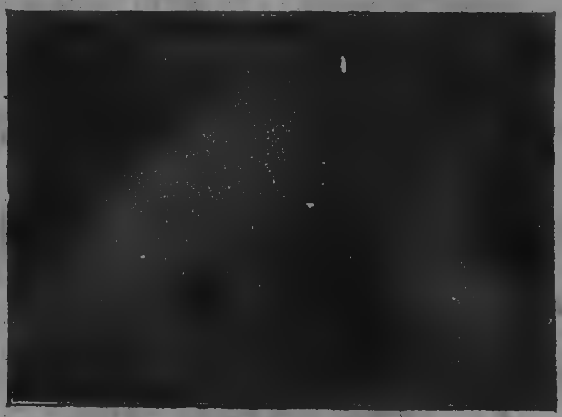
Among the water fowl are the trumpeter and whistling swans, the Canada goose, Ross goose, lesser snow goose, and Hutchins' goose; the Canada goose and the snow goose being the most numerous. The mallard, black duck, canvas-back, redhead, pintail, gadwall, wood-duck, widgeon, green-winged, blue-winged and cinnamon teal, spoon-bill, shoveller, golden eye, buffle-head, blue-bill, snipe, golden-plover and fifteen varieties of the same family, great flocks of curlew, and many waders of lesser importance are found. About every marshy pool the bittern and heron will be seen, and in addition to these hundreds of cormorants, pelican, sandhill cranes, coot, rail, etc.

And now to point out a few of the many places where the game can be easily got at.

Winnipeg is an excellent centre from which to start. A good point is Whitewater Lake, in Southern Manitoba, reached from Winnipeg by a short trip over the Napinka section of the Canadian Pacific. Here "chickens," snipe and plover are found in any numbers, and there are thousands of geese, duck, crane, and other water fowl. The east end of the lake is reached from Boissevain, but at Whitewater station, on the south shore of the lake, canoes and skiffs may be hired, and the facilities there provided enable the sportsman to obtain capital flight shooting when geese are going out to feed, and also to get to the favorite haunts of the canvas-back. Some great bags have been taken on the Whitewater. Killarney Lake, as well as Pelican Lake, a little north-east thereof, are excellent spots, while on Rock Lake, near Clearwater and Swan Lake, adjacent to Pilot Mound, good bags are the rule and not the exception. North of Rock Lake are the Tiger Hills in the Pembina mountains, haunted by elk, mule, deer and black bear, it also being a good locality for grouse, as well as for geese and ducks. Jackfish and mullet are plentiful in all the lakes, the former ranging from half-a-pound to 22 pounds. Camp outfit must be taken, but the sport will well repay all trouble, as ample occupation can be found for both rifle and shotgun, chicken and ruffed grouse being especially plentiful throughout the whole southwest of the province.



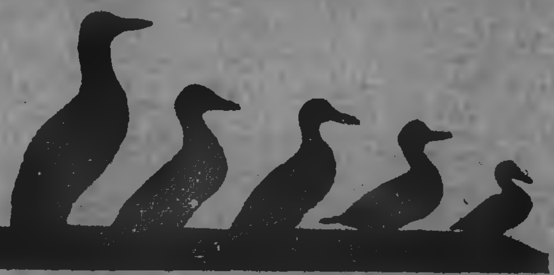
Porcupine in a high place



Rabbits

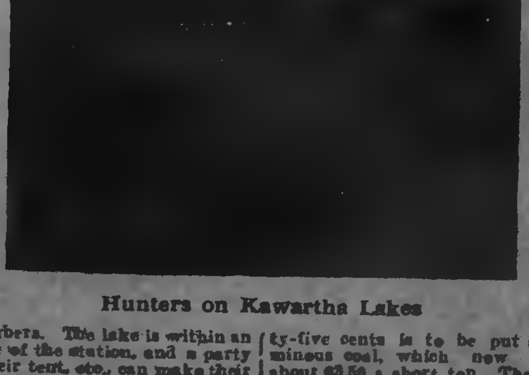
Lake Winnipeg offers still stronger inducements. You go from Winnipeg via Canadian Pacific railway to Winnipeg Beach, a distance of fifty miles. The great marshes about the mouth of Red River extend for miles, and from one of the most extensive duck grounds in the Northwest and they actually swarm with all kinds of waterfowl in the season. Here the sportsman can shoot till his gun gets too hot to hold, and providing he hold straight, kill enormous bags of choice duck.

One of the best shooting points in the Province of Manitoba is Whitewater Lake, reached by Canadian Pacific railway. Anyone who has enjoyed the proverbial hospitality of a Manitoba farmer has been almost certain to have heard the story of his homestead, and how he had secured in it the choicest little garden spot in the whole province. That this conviction is shared by his wife and children is attested by their beaming countenances, approving his recital of its beauties and natural qualities, while his simple eloquence and gratitude for this glorious heritage remind you of the "Cotter's Saturday Night." And so it is with sportsmen who have once tasted the pleasures of Manitoba's lakes, woods and prairies. "Whitewater Lake!" the sportsman's dream! the fall feeding and fall stopping place for the myriads of waterfowl that come down from their breeding grounds in the far north and stay here long enough to get fat on celery, wild rice and Manitoba No. 1 hard wheat.



Some Types of Water Fowl

Oak Lake is another place where geese, duck and plover may be secured in numbers. The lake is within an easy drive of the station, and a party taking their tent, etc., can make their camp, and have time to place themselves for the evening's flight shooting. At the east side of the lake there is good camping ground right in the line of flight, and on the north side the geese leave the lake in large numbers to feed in the neighboring wheat fields.



Hunters on Kawartha Lakes

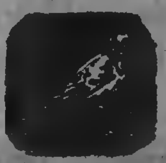
In Saskatchewan and Alberta, on the "Soo" branch line from Pasqua, ground which has seldom been shot over, ducks, geese and plover are in myriads.

In the Dirt Hills, about 20 miles south of Regina, wild fowl are fairly plentiful, and in the district about Regina there are innumerable opportunities for bags of duck and chicken, and nearly all the species of plover.

The "Mecca" of goose shooting is reached on the south side of Buffalo Lake, about twenty miles north of Moose Jaw; wild geese in countless thousands come down from their feeding grounds in the Arctic circle in the months of September and October, and remain there until they take their departure for the south when ice begins to form on the lake. The country to the south of the lake is well settled, and the wheat stubble field affords excellent feeding ground. Proper hides dug in the stubble fields in the line of the flight of the geese and decoys set out will afford the finest goose shooting the keenest sportsman can imagine.

Rush Lake, Reed Lake, and Chaplin Lake, a few miles from the main line of the Canadian Pacific railway, are fine points for geese, duck and other waterfowl, where large bags can surely be made.

At Calgary, in sight of the Rockies, superb sport may be enjoyed with the grouse among the brushy foothills of the Rockies. Good shooting will be found within easy driving distance of that city. Near Golden, B.C., the lagoons on each side of the steamboat channel swarm with duck, geese and swan—in fact, they are the favorite breeding grounds of waterfowl and, excellent sport may be had.



Ontario, Quebec, Nova Scotia, and British Columbia each have hundreds of good places where excellent bird shooting may be enjoyed.

COAL GOES UP

Price to be Raised Twenty-Five Cents a Ton in Philadelphia.

Philadelphia, July 27.—The retail prices of coal of all kinds will be raised 25 cents a ton in this city on September 1. On that date domestic sizes of anthracite will cost $7 a ton, pea coal, $4.75, and smaller steam sizes $3.25 to $3.50. Twenty-five cents is to be put on bituminous coal, which now sells at about $3.50 a short ton. The increase was announced as a result of an investigation made by a committee of the local coal exchange. The report of the committee says that the increase is recommended because wages and salaries have been materially increased and other items of expense that enter into the conduct of the retail coal business have also risen.

A CHIC LITTLE DRESS.

Some Timely Suggestions Giving Directions in the Leading Styles and the Best Materials to be Used

A Simple Bib.

Attractive bibs for the baby may be easily and quickly made from heavy white linen or pique, finished with a buttonhole edge and worked with a simple design in eyelet embroidery.

A pretty scallop may be drawn by using the edge of a small spool of cotton, about No. 100, for a guide. It may either be plain, traced both on under and outer edge, or the latter can be subdivided into three tiny scallops to make a slightly more elaborate edge. Pad this with darning cotton and buttonhole in a fine mercerized cotton.

Becoming Mourning.

Fashions in mourning have undergone a very great change since the wonderful improvements that have been made in crape. In the first place, it has been successfully waterproofed and is no longer expensive wear. Then the soft finish crape is particularly well adapted to the picturesque and artistic gowns of the present day. Instead of the gowns being trimmed with folds and volants of crape this season entire empire and empress gowns will be worn of this soft and graceful crape.

The plastron which adorns the front is of unique and attractive shape and affords opportunity for effective trimming. The skirt is a straight side-pleated one joined to the waist. For the medium size 3 yards of 44 inch material are needed.

4156.—A RUSSIAN BLOUSE SUIT FOR THE LAD.

Never was there a mode more becoming and practical for the small boy than the Russian suit with its long blouse loosely belted at the waist and generous knickers which give him plenty of room for sport of all sorts. The suit sketched is especially pleasing for its tucks in panel effect, front and back, and the tucks which retain the fulness of the sleeve instead of the usual cuff. A standing collar which is not too high for comfort and closes at the side finishes the neck and does away with the Eton collar of linen which needs such frequent changing. The knickerbockers are without a fly and very easily made. Serge or the usual tub fabrics may serve, the medium requiring 2 1-8 yards of 54 inch material.

6721.—A SHIRT BLOUSE OF SMART LINES.

Now that the shirt blouse is so necessary to every woman and girl, the designs for this garment must be as varied as possible. The yoke appears in back and two groups of tucks lend further adornment and tapering lines. Together with the long sleeves, those of three-quarter length are also provided for and may be finished with natty little cuffs of the same or a contrasting material. While simple, the waist is one of undeniably good style and for wear with the suit or odd skirt will prove most fetching. Any seasonable fabric may develop it. NECESSARY FOR HOLIDAY OUTINGS

The shirt blouse and walking skirt have yet to find their peers for general knockabout wear and the woman who desires an outfit for use during the coming weeks will find the accompanying models both chic and practical. The skirt blouse is double-breasted and laid in small box pleats, which lend shapeliness and style. The removable shield may be worn or not as desired, while a choice of long or short sleeves is provided for. It may be of the material of the waist or of any clothor seasonable worsted. The waist calls for 3 3-4 yards of 36 inch material in the medium size and the skirt 5 1-2 yards 44 inches wide.

that pride might have to do with the stand Dan took in the matter.

He was wonderfully gentle and affectionate, with a quaint, unworldly simplicity that was rather pathetic. His one anxiety was to please Dan, but in spite of this anxiety once a conviction took possession of him he clung to it with unshaken tenacity in the face of every argument his son could bring to bear.

Under the inspiration of his newly acquired freedom he developed in unexpected ways. As soon as he felt that his place in the shops was secure and that he was not to be interfered with he joined the church. Its services occupied most of his spare time. Every Thursday night found him at prayer meeting. Twice each Sunday he went to church, and by missing his dinner he managed to take part in the Sunday school exercises. A social threw him into a flutter of pleased expectancy. Not content with what his church offered, irrespective of creed, he joined every society in the place of a religious or temperance nature and was a zealous and active worker among such of the heathen as flourished in Antioch. There was a stern Old Testament flavor to his faith. He would have dragged the erring from their peril by main strength and have regulated their morals by legal enactments. Those of the men with whom he came in contact in the shops treated him with the utmost respect partly on his own account and partly because of Dan.

Half of all he earned he gave to the church. The remainder of his slender income he divided again into two equal parts. One of these he used for his personal needs, the other disappeared mysteriously. He was putting it by for Dannie.

It was a disappointment to him that his son took only the most casual interest in religious matters. He comforted himself, however, with the remembrance that at his age his own interest had been merely traditional. It was only after his great trouble that the awakening came. He was quite certain Dannie would experience this awakening, too, some day.

It was a hot, breathless morning in May. The machinery in the shops droned on and on, with the lazy, softened hum of revolving wheels or the swish of swiftly passing belts. A freight was cutting out cars in the yards. It was rather noisy and bumped discordantly in and out of the sidings.

Dan Oakley was the sole tenant of the office, but presently McClintock wandered in from the hot out of doors to talk over certain repairs he wished undertaken in the shops. He was a typical American mechanic, and Oakley liked him, as he always liked the man who knew his business and earned his pay.

They discussed the repairs, and then Oakley asked, "How's my father getting along, Milt?"

"Oh, all right! He's a little slow, that's all."

"What's he on now?"

"Those blue line cars that came in last month."

"There isn't much in that batch. I had to figure close to get the work. Keep the men moving."

"They are about done. I'll put the painters on the job tomorrow."

"That's good."

McClintock went over to the water cooler in the corner and filled a stemless tumbler with ice water.

"We'll be ready to send them up to Buckhorn the last of next week. Is there anything else in sight?"

He gulped down the water at a single swallow.

"No, not at present, but there are one or two pretty fair orders coming in next month that I was lucky enough to pick up in Chicago. Isn't there any work of our own we can go at while things are slack?"

"Lots of it," wiping his hands on the legs of his greasy overalls. "All our day coaches need paint and some want new upholstery."

"We'd better go at that, then."

"All right. I'll take a look at the cars in the yards and see what I can put out in place of those we call in. There's no use talking, Mr. Oakley, you've done big things for the shops," he added.

"Well, I am getting some work for them, and while there isn't much profit in it, perhaps, it's a great deal better than being idle."

"Just a whole lot," agreed McClintock.

"I think I can pick up contracts enough to keep us busy through the summer. I understand you've always had to shut down."

"Yes, or half time," disgustedly.

"I guess we can worry through without that; at any rate, I want to," observed Oakley.

"I'll go see how I can manage about our own repairs," said McClintock.

He went out, and from the window Oakley saw him with a bunch of keys in his hand going in the direction of a line of battered day coaches on one of the sidings. The door opened again almost immediately to admit Griff Ryder. This was almost the last person in Antioch from whom Dan was expecting a call. The editor's cordiality as he greeted him made him instantly suspect that some favor was wanted. Most people who came to the office wanted favors. Usually it was either a pass or a concession on freight.

As a rule, Kerr met all such applicants. His manner fitted him for just such interviews, and he had no gift for popularity, which suffered in consequence.

Ryder pushed a chair over beside Oakley's and seated himself. By sliding well down on his spine he managed to reach the low sill of the window with his feet. He seemed to admire the effect, for he studied them in silence for a moment.

"There's a little matter I want to speak to you about, Oakley. I've been intending to run in for the past week, but I have been so busy I couldn't."

Oakley nodded for him to go on.

"In the first place, I'd like to feel that you were for Kenyon. You can be of a great deal of use to us this election. It's going to be close, and Kenyon's a pretty decent sort of a chap to have come out of these parts. You ought to take an interest in seeing him re-elected."

Oakley surmised that this was the merest flattery intended to tickle his vanity. He answered promptly that he didn't feel the slightest interest in politics one way or the other.

"Well, but one good fellow ought to wish to see another good fellow get what he's after, and you can help us if you've a mind to. But this isn't what I've come for. It's about Hoadley."

"What about Hoadley?" quickly.

"He's got the idea that his days with the Huckleberry are about numbered."

"I haven't said so."

"I know you haven't."

"Then what is he kicking about? When he's to go he'll hear of it from me."

"But, just the same, it's in the air that there's to be a shakeup and that a number of men, and Hoadley among them, are going to be laid off. Now, he's another good fellow, and he's a friend of mine, and I told him I'd come in and fix it up with you."

"I don't think you can fix it up with me, Mr. Ryder. Just the same, I'd like to know how this got out."

"Then there is to be a shakeup?"

Oakley bit his lips. "You seem to take it for granted there is to be."

"I guess there's something back of the rumor."

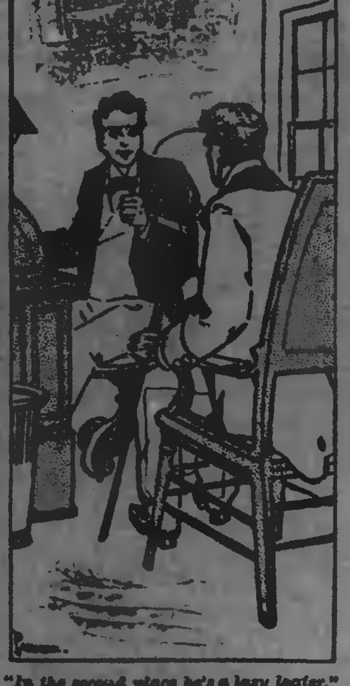
"I may as well tell you why Hoadley's got to go."

"Oh, he's to go then? I thought my information was correct."

"In the first place he's not needed, and in the second place he's a lazy loafer. The road must earn its keep. General Cornish is sick of putting his hand in his pocket every six months to keep it out of bankruptcy. You are enough of a business man to know he won't stand that sort of thing forever. Of course I am sorry for Hoadley if he needs the money, but some one's got to suffer, and he happens to be the one. I'll take on his work myself. I can do it, and that's a salary saved. I haven't any personal feeling in the matter. The fact that I don't like him, as it happens, has nothing to do with it. If he were my own brother he'd have to get out."

"I can't see that one man more or less is going to make such a difference, Oakley," Ryder urged, with what he intended should be an air of frank good fellowship.

"Can't you?" with chilly dignity. Oakley was slow to anger, but he had always fought stubbornly for what he felt was due him, and he wished the editor to understand that the management of the B. and A. was distinctly not his province.



"In the second place he's a lazy loafer."

Ryder's eyes were half closed, and only a narrow slit of color showed between the lids.

"I am very much afraid we won't hit it off. I begin to see we aren't going to get on. I want you to keep Hoadley as a personal favor to me. Just wait until I finish. If you are going in for reform I may have it in my power to be of some service to you. You will need some backing here, and even a country newspaper can manufacture public sentiment. Now if we aren't to be friends you will find me on the other side and working just as hard against you as I am willing to work for you if you let Hoadley stay."

Oakley jumped up.

"I don't allow anybody to talk like that to me. I am running this for Cornish. They are his interests, not mine, and you can start in and manufacture all the public sentiment you please." Then he cooled down a bit and felt ashamed of himself for the outburst.

"I am not going to be unfair to any one if I can help it. But if the road's earnings don't meet the operating expenses the general will sell it to the M. and W. Do you understand what that means? It will knock Antioch higher than a kite, for the shops will be closed. I guess when all hands get that through their heads they will take it easier."

"That's just the point I made. Who is going to enlighten them if it isn't me? I don't suppose you will care to go around telling everybody what a fine fellow you are and how thankful they should be that you have stopped their wages. We can work double, Oakley. I want Hoadley kept because he's promised me his influence for Kenyon if I'd exert myself in his behalf. He's of importance up at the Junction. Of course we know he's a drunken beast, but that's got nothing to do with it."

"I am sorry, but he's got to go," said Oakley doggedly. "A one horse railroad can't carry dead timber."

"Very well." And Ryder pulled in his legs and rose slowly from his chair. "If you can't and won't see it as I do it's your lookout."

Oakley laughed shortly.

"I guess I'll be able to meet the situation, Mr. Ryder."

He scouted the idea that Ryder with his little country newspaper could either help or harm him.

CHAPTER VII.

DR. EMORY and Dan were standing on the street corner before the hotel. Oakley had just come uptown from the office. He was full of awkward excuses and apologies, but Dr. Emory cut them short.

"I suppose I've a right to be angry at the way you've avoided us, but I'm not. On the contrary, I'm going to take you home to dinner with me."

If Dan had consulted his preferences in the matter, he would have begged off, but he felt he couldn't without giving offense, so he allowed the doctor to lead him away, but he didn't appear as pleased or as grateful as he should have been at this temporary release from the low diet of the American House.

Miss Emory was waiting for her father on the porch. An errand of hers had taken him downtown.

She seemed surprised to see Oakley, but was graciously disposed toward him. While he fell short of her standards, he was decidedly superior to the local youth with whom she had at first been inclined to class him. Truth to tell, the local youth fought rather shy of the doctor's beautiful daughter. Mr. Burt Smith, the gentlemanly druggist and acknowledged social leader, who was much sought after by the most exclusive circles in such centers of fashion as Buckhorn and Harrison, had been so chilled by her manner when, meeting her on the street, he had attempted to revive an acquaintance which dated back to their childhood that he was a mental wreck for days afterward and had hardly dared trust himself to fill even the simplest prescription.

Dr. Emory excused himself and went into the house. Dan made himself comfortable on the steps at Miss Emory's side. In the very nearness there was something luxurious and satisfying. He was silent, because he feared the antagonism of speech.

"I was with friends of yours this afternoon, Mr. Oakley," she said by way of starting the conversation.

"Friends of mine here?"

"Yes; the Joyces."

"I must go around and see them. They have been very kind to my father," said Dan, with hearty good will.

"How long is your father to remain in Antioch, Mr. Oakley?" inquired Constance.

"As long as I remain, I suppose. There are only the two of us, you know."

"What does he find to do here?"

"Oh," laughed Dan, "he finds plenty to do. His energy is something dreadful. Then, too, he's employed at the shops. That keeps him pretty busy, you see."

But Miss Emory hadn't known this before. She elevated her eyebrows in mild surprise. She was not sure she understood.

"I didn't know that he was one of the officers of the road," with deceptive indifference.

"He's not. He's a cabinetmaker," explained the literal Oakley, to whom a cabinetmaker was quite as respectable as any one else. There was a brief pause, while Constance turned this over in her mind. It struck her as very singular that Oakley's father should be one of the hands. Perhaps she credited him with a sensitiveness of which he was entirely innocent.

She rested her chin in her hands and gazed out into the dusty street.

"Isn't it infinitely pathetic to think of that poor little man and his work?" going back to Joyce. "Do you know, I could have cried? And his wife's faith, it is sublime, even if it is mistaken." She laughed in a dreary fashion.

FLIES AS DISEASE BEARERS

The Common House Variety Are a Menace to Health.

The United States Department of Agriculture has started a crusade against the common house fly and is carrying on extensive experiments as to the best way of banishing it from the abodes of man. The fly has been found to be not only a nuisance, but a menace to man's health. It's hairy body carries both disease and death. Many epidemics which sweep over communities in the hot season have been traced to the fly. Having its origin in filth it brings with it the bacteria which breed in filth. And as it moves about, now crawling over refuse, now over the food on the table, flying from the lips of the sick to the lips of the healthy: it is said to be more dangerous to modern society than were the wild beasts to primitive man.

The high mortality among the children in the congested districts of a city, where families are closely crowded together, where refuse accumulates fast, where food is often kept in living rooms is due to a large degree, so scientists now say, to the fly. Infant diseases chiefly prevail in the hot season, when the flies abound. Dr. J. T. C. Nash, in The Journal of the Royal Sanitary Institute, giving his experience as an English health officer, says that the fly is responsible for the death of many children, because of polluting the milk which they drink.

"It is a matter that has been entirely overlooked," said Dr. C. O. Probst, recently, "but we now know that the common house fly is an agent of importance in carrying the germs of typhoid fever. It was formerly believed that the germs were only carried in water, milk and other liquid food. Flies both breed and feed in places where the germs are to be found and then flying into our houses, no doubt often carry the germs and deposit them on our food.

FLOWING WELL WAS DISCOVERED

A flowing well is something unusual in this section of the country, but one was struck by Mr. George B. Johnson last week while digging for water on his premises. After digging down about thirteen feet a vein of water was struck, which soon filled the well and flowed over the top. He had purchased a windmill which he intended erecting to pump water, but thinks he has no use for it now.—Stirling News-Argus.

How Cheap Electric Power Helps to Build Up Cities

In conversation with the Cobourg World, Mr. Culverwell, managing director of the Northumberland-Durham Power Company, gave some interesting information in regard to the value of electric power in relation to the future progress of the lakefront counties, says the Belleville Intelligencer.

Said he, "The president of one of the biggest Canadian banks has stated that electric power transmitted from water means a dividend to the manufacturer."

"Now," said Mr. Culverwell, that idea is still further emphasized when a well-known manufacturer on the lake front has stated to me in writing that his three hundred horse power costs him forty-eight dollars per horse power yearly and then only using it ten hours a day. Here means a saving of over $125,000; for the Northumberland-Durham Power Co., will by cutting his present cost half, make that saying to this manufacturer.

"But it must not be forgotten that some of the smallest users of power pay over one hundred dollars per horse-power per year for steam power. Think what electric power means to these men!

"To the property owner electric power means building up of the old lakefront towns. What is being done in other towns by electric power can be repeated when power is transmitted from the Trent river. Look at Peterborough's prosperity and that town has not the water transportation either. See the immense American industries that have been gathered in Hamilton. Again, see what was sleepy old Welland — an overgrown village, now rapidly being changed into a properous city, where farms are being transformed into city manufacturing and residential lots, and sold too, and being built upon.

"I heard a useful story told of a progressive American manufacturer, who visited a lakefront city recently, noted for its historic associations. After hearing a resident dilate upon the past glories of the city, our genial American friend, remarked, "Well now, over here, you people seem to go in for glory, but where I come from we go in for power."

"However, when the district begins to realize that five of the largest manufacturers, in Belleville, Port Hope and Cobourg, etc., are taking an active part in the organization of the Lakefront Counties Power Development Co., then the property owners generally, will assist also.

"It will be noticed that the company has always overcome all difficulties it has encountered," said the managing director, and he added, "Past successes should augur future successes."

The contents of the vat, which are valued at £600, are to be run off as waste.

Skin Disease is Blood Disease

"Fruit-a-tives" clean the blood of all impurities and clear the Complexion.

Pimples and Blotches—Redness—Boils—Eczema and other inflammations of the skin—mean Impure Blood.

A person with a bad complexion always suffers from poor digestion — non-action of the bowels (or Constipation) and often the kidneys are weak.

These unhealthy organs cannot rid the system of the waste matter. It is this waste—taken up by the blood and carried to the skin—that ruins the complexion.

"Fruit-a-tives" cure all skin troubles because they cure the kidneys and bowels.

"Fruit-a-tives" cause the eliminating organs to do their proper share of the work of ridding the system of waste. This purifies the blood — and instantly the pimples and blotches disappear, and the complexion clears. "Fruit-a-tives" cure skin troubles when everything else fails.

"Fruit-a-tives" are fruit juices, intensified, and combined with valuable tonics and antiseptics.

"Fruit-a-tives" are a wonderful cure for Pimples and Blotches on the skin.

They are without doubt the greatest blood purifier in the world. 50c. a box—6 for $2.50. At all druggists.

CHAPTER IV.

THE next morning Oakley saw General Cornish off on the 7:15 train, and then went back to his hotel for breakfast. Afterward, on his way to the office, he mailed a check to Ezra Hart for his father. The money was intended to meet his expenses in coming west.

He was very busy all that day making out his new schedules and in figuring the cuts and just what they would amount to. He approached his task with a certain reluctance, for it was as unpleasant to him personally as it was necessary to the future of the road, and he knew that no halfway measure would suffice. He must cut, as a surgeon cuts, to save. By lopping away a man here and there, giving his work to some other man or dividing it up among two or three men, he managed to peel off $2,000 on the year. He counted that a very fair day's work.

He would start his reform with no particular aggressiveness. He would retire the men he intended to dismiss from the road one at a time. He hoped they would take the hint and hunt other positions. At any rate, they could not get back until he was ready to take them back, as Cornish had assured him he would not be interfered with. He concluded not to hand the notices and orders to Miss Walton, the typewriter, to copy. She might let drop some word that would give his victims an inkling of what was in store for them. He knew there were unpleasant scenes ahead of him, but there was no need to anticipate. When at last his figures for the cuts were complete he would have been grateful for some one with whom to discuss the situation. All at once his responsibilities seemed rather heavier than he had bargained for.

There were only two men in the office besides himself—Philip Kerr, the treasurer, and Byron Holt, his assistant. They were both busy with the payroll, as it was the 6th of the month, and they commenced to pay off in the shops on the 10th.

He had little or no use for Kerr, who still showed where he dared in small things his displeasure that an outsider had been appointed manager of the road. He had counted on the place for himself for a number of years, but a succession of managers had come and gone apparently without its ever having occurred to General Cornish that an excellent executive was literally spoiling in the big, bare general offices of the line.

This singular indifference on the part of Cornish to his real interests had soured a disposition that at its best had more of acid in it than anything else. As there was no way in which he could make his resentment known to the general, even if he had deemed such a course expedient, he took it out of Oakley and kept his feeling for him on ice. Meanwhile he bided his time, hoping for Oakley's downfall and his own eventful recognition.

With the assistant treasurer Dan's relations were entirely cordial. Holt was a much younger man than Kerr, as frank and open as the other was secret and reserved. When the 6 o'clock whistle blew he glanced up from his work and said:

"I wish you'd wait a moment, Holt. I want to see you."

Kerr had already gone home, and Miss Walton was adjusting her hat before a bit of a mirror that hung on the wall back of her desk. "All right," responded Holt cheerfully.

"Just draw up your chair," said Oakley, handing his papers to him. At first Holt did not understand; then he began to whistle softly and fell to checking off the various cuts with his forefinger.

"What do you think of the job, Byron?" inquired Oakley.

"Well, I'm glad I don't get laid off, that's sure. Say, just bear in mind that I'm going to be married this summer."

"You needn't worry; only I didn't know that."

"Well, please don't forget it, Mr. Oakley."

Holt ran over the cuts again. Then he asked:

"Who's going to stand for this? You or the old man? I hear he was in town last night."

"I stand for it, but of course he approves."

"I'll bet he approves," and the assistant treasurer grinned. "This is the sort of thing that suits him right down to the ground."

"How about the hands? Do you know if they are members of any union?"

"No, but there'll be lively times ahead for you. They are a great lot of kickers here."

"Wait until I get through. I haven't touched the shops yet. That's to come later. I'll skin closer before I'm done." Oakley got up and lit his pipe. "The plant must make some sort of a showing. We can't continue at the rate we have been going. I suppose you know what sort of shape it would leave the town in if the shops were closed."

"Very poor shape, I should say. Why, it's the money that goes in and out of this office twice a month that keeps the town alive. It couldn't exist a day without that."

"Then it behooves us to see to it that nothing happens to the shops or road. I am sorry for the men I am laying off, but it can't be helped."

"I see you are going to chuck Hoadley out of his good thing at the Junction. If he was half white he'd a gone long ago. He must lay awake nights figuring how he can keep decently busy."

"How do you think it's going to work?"

"Oh, it will work all right, because it has to, but they'll all be cussing you," with great good humor. "What's the matter anyhow? Did the old man throw a fit at the size of the payroll?"

"Not exactly, but he came down here with his mind made up to sell the road to the M. and W."

"You don't say so!"

"I talked him out of that, but we must make a showing, for he's good and tired and may dump the whole business any day."

"Well, if he does that there'll be no marrying or giving in marriage for me this summer. It will be just like a Shaker settlement where I am concerned."

Dan laughed. "Oh, you'd be all right, Holt. You'd get something else or the M. and W. would keep you on."

"I don't know about that. A new management generally means a clean sweep all round, and my berth's a pretty good one."

In some manner a rumor of the changes Oakley proposed making did get abroad, and he was promptly made aware that his popularity in Antioch was a thing of the past. He was regarded as an oppressor from whom some elaborate and wanton tyranny might be expected. While General Cornish suffered their inefficiency, his easy going predecessors had been content to draw their salaries and let it go at that, a line of conduct which Antioch held to be entirely proper. This new man, however, was clearly an upstart, cursed with an insane and destructive ambition to earn money for the road. Suppose it did not pay. Cornish could go down into his pocket for the difference, just as he had always done.

What the town did not know and what it would not have believed even if it had been told was that the general had been on the point of selling, a change that would have brought hardship to every one. The majority of the men in the shops owned their own homes, and these homes represented the savings of years. The sudden exodus of two or three hundred families meant of necessity widespread ruin. Those who were forced to go away would have to sacrifice everything they possessed to get away, while those who remained would be scarcely better off. But Antioch never considered such a radical move as even remotely possible. It counted the shops a fixture. They had always been there, and for this sufficient reason they would always remain.

The days wore on, one very like another, with their spring heat and lethargy. Occasionally Oakley saw Miss Emory on the street to bow to, but not to speak with. While he was grateful for these escapes he found himself thinking of her very often. He fancied—and he was not far wrong—that she was finding Antioch very dull. He wondered, too, if she was seeing much of Ryder. He imagined that she was, and here again he was not far wrong. Now and then he was seized with what he felt to be a weak desire to call, but he always thought better of it in time and was always grateful he had not succumbed to the impulse. But her mere presence in Antioch seemed to make him dissatisfied and resentful of its limitations. Ordinarily he was not critical of his surroundings. Until she came, that he was without companionship and that the town was given over to a deadly inertia which expressed itself in the collapsed ambition of nearly every man and woman he knew had scarcely affected him, beyond giving him a sense of mild wonder.

He had heard nothing of his father, and in the pressure of his work and freshened interest in the fortunes of the Huckleberry had hardly given him a second thought. He felt that since he had sent money to him he was in a measure relieved of all further responsibility. If his father did not wish to come to him, that was his own affair. He had placed no obstacle in his way.

CHAPTER V.

LATE one afternoon, as Oakley sat at his desk in the broad streak of yellow light that the sun sent in through the west windows, he heard a step on the narrow board walk that ran between the building and the tracks. The last shrill shriek of No. 7, as usual, half an hour late, had just died out in the distance, and the informal committee of town loafers which met each train was plodding up Main street to the postoffice in solemn silence.

He glanced around as the door into the yards opened. He saw a tall, gaunt man of sixty-five, a little stoop shouldered and carrying his weight heavily and solidly. His large head was sunk between broad shoulders. It was covered by a wonderful growth of iron gray hair. The face was clean shaven and had the look of a placid mask. There was a curious repose in the man's attitude as he stood with a big hand—the hand of an artisan—resting loosely on the knob of the door.

"Is it you, Dannie?"

The smile that accompanied the words was at once anxious, hesitating and inquiring. He closed the door with awkward care and, coming a step nearer, put out his hand. Oakley, breathing hard, rode hastily from his chair and stood leaning against the corner of his desk, as if he needed its support. He was white to the lips.

There was a long pause while the two men looked into each other's eyes.

"Don't you know me, Dannie?" wistfully. Dan said nothing, but he extended his hand, and his father's fingers closed about it with a mighty pressure. Then quite abruptly Roger Oakley turned and walked over to the window. Once more there was absolute silence in the room save for the ticking of the clock and the buzzing of a solitary fly high up on the ceiling.

The old convict was the first to break the tense stillness.

"I had about made up my mind I should never see you again, Dannie. When your mother died and you came west it sort of wiped out the little there was between me and the living. In fact, I really didn't know you would care to see me, and when Hart told me you wished me to come to you and had sent the money I could hardly believe it."

Here the words failed him utterly. He turned slowly and looked into his son's face long and lovingly. "I've thought of you as a little boy for all these years, Dannie, as no higher than that," dropping his hand to his hip. "And here you are a man grown. But you got your mother's look. I'd have known you by it among a thousand."

If Dan had felt any fear of his father it had left him the instant he entered the room. Whatever he might have done, whatever he might have been, there was no question as to the manner of man he had become. He stepped to his son's side and took his hand in one of his own.

"You've made a man of yourself. I can see that. What do you do here for a living?"

Dan laughed queerly.

"I am the general manager of the railroad, father," nodding toward the station and the yards. "But it's not much to brag about. It's only a one horse line," he added.

"No, you don't mean it, Dannie?" And he could see that his father was profoundly impressed. He put up his free hand and gently patted Dan's head as though he were indeed the little boy he remembered.

"Did you have an easy trip west, father?" Oakley asked. "You must be tired."

"Not a bit, Dannie. It was wonderful. I'd been shut off from it all for more than twenty years, and each mile was taking me nearer you."

The warm yellow light was beginning to fade from the room. It was growing late.

"I guess we'd better go uptown to the hotel and have our supper. Where is your trunk? At the station?"

"I've got nothing but a bundle. It's at the door."

Dan locked his desk, and they left the office.

"Is it all yours?" Roger Oakley asked, pausing as they crossed the yards to glance up and down the curving tracks.

"It's part of the property I manage. It belongs to General Cornish, who holds most of the stock."

"And the train I came on, Dannie—who owned that?"

"At Buckhorn Junction, where you changed cars for the last time, you caught our local express. It runs through to a place called Harrison—the terminus of the line. This is only a branch road, you know."

But the explanation was lost on his father. His son's relation to the road was a magnificent fact which he pondered with simple pleasure.

After their supper at the hotel they went upstairs. Roger Oakley had been given a room next his son's. It was the same room General Cornish had occupied when he was in Antioch.

"Would you like to put away your things now?" asked Dan as he placed his father's bundle, which he had carried uptown from the office, on the bed.

"I'll do that by and by. There ain't much there—just a few little things I've managed to keep or that have been given me."

Dan pushed two chairs before an open window that overlooked the square. His father had taken a huge blackened meerschaum from its case and was carefully filling it from a leather pouch.

"You don't mind if I light my pipe?" he inquired.

"Not a bit. I've one in my pocket, but it's not nearly as fine as yours."

"Our warden gave it to me one Christmas, and I've smoked it ever since. He was a very good man, Dannie. It's the old warden I'm speaking of, not Kenyon, the new one, though he's a good man too."

Dan wondered where he had heard the name of Kenyon before; then he remembered—it was at the Emorys'.

"Try some of my tobacco, Dannie," passing the pouch.

For a time the two men sat in silence, blowing clouds of white smoke out into the night.

Roger Oakley hitched his chair nearer his son's and rested a heavy hand on his knee. "I like it here," he said.

"Do you? I am glad."

"What will be the chances of my finding work? You know I'm a cabinetmaker by trade."

"There's no need of your working, so don't worry about that."

"But I must work, Dannie. I ain't used to sitting still and doing nothing."

"Well," said Oakley, willing to humor him, "there are the car shops."

"Can you get me in?"

"Oh, yes, when you are ready to start. I'll have McClintock, the master mechanic, find something in your line for you to do."

"I'll need to get a kit of tools."

"I guess McClintock can arrange that too. I'll see him about it when you are ready."

"Then that's settled. I'll begin in the morning," with quiet determination.

"But don't you want to look around first?"

"I'll have my Sundays for that." And Dan saw that there was no use in arguing the point with him. He was bent on having his own way.

The old convict filled his lungs with a deep, free breath. "Yes, I'm going to like it. I always did like a small town anyhow. Tell me about yourself, Dannie. How do you happen to be here?"

Dan roused himself. "I don't know. It's chance, I suppose. After mother's death"—

"Twenty years ago last March," breaking in upon him softly; then, nodding at the starlit heavens: "She's up yonder now watching us. Nothing's hidden or secret. It's all plain to her."

"Do you really think that, father?"

"I know it, Dannie." And his tone was one of settled conviction.

Dan had already discovered that his father was deeply religious. It was a faith the like of which had not descended to his own day and generation.

"Well, I had it rather hard for awhile," going back to his story.

"Yes," with keen sympathy. "You were nothing but a little boy."

"Finally I was lucky enough to get a place as a newsboy on a train. I sold papers until I was sixteen and then began braking. I wanted to be an engineer, but I guess my ability lay in another direction. At any rate, they took me off the road and gave me an office position instead. I got to be a division superintendent, and then I met General Cornish. He is one of the directors of the line I was with at the time. Three months ago he made me an offer to take hold here, and so here I am."

"And you've never been back home, Dannie?"

"Never once. I've wanted to go, but I couldn't."

He hoped his father would understand.

"Well, there ain't much to take you there but her grave. I wish she might have lived. You'd have been a great happiness to her, and she got very little happiness for her portion any way you look at it. We were only just married when the war came, and I was gone four years. Then there was about eleven years when we were getting on nicely. We had money put by, and owned our own home. Can you remember it, Dannie, the old brick place on the corner across from the postoffice? A new Methodist church stands there now. It was sold to get money for my lawyer when the big trouble came. Afterward, when everything was spent, she must have found it very hard to make a living for herself and you."

"She did," said Dan gently. "But she managed somehow to keep a roof over our heads."

"When the law sets out to punish it doesn't stop with the guilty only. When I went to her grave and saw there were flowers growing on it and that it was being cared for it told me what you were. She was a very brave woman, Dannie. You know that was an awful thing about Sharp."

"Don't you know me, Dannie?"

Dan turned toward him quickly.

"Why do you speak of it? It's all past now."

"I'd sort of like to tell you about it."

There was a long pause, and he continued:

"Sharp and I had been enemies for a long time. It started back before the war, when he wanted to marry your mother. We both enlisted in the same regiment, and somehow the trouble kept alive. He was a bit of a bully, and I was counted a handy man with my fists too. The regiment was always trying to get us into the ring together, but we knew it was dangerous. We had sense enough for that. I won't say he would have done it, but I never felt safe when there was a fight on in all those four years. It's easy enough to shoot the man in front of you and no one be the wiser. Many a score's been settled that way. When we got home again we didn't get along any better. He was a drinking man and had no control over himself when liquor got the best of him. I did my share in keeping the feud alive. What he said of me and what I said of him generally reached both of us in time, as you can fancy.

"At last, when I joined the church, I concluded it wasn't right to hate a man the way I hated Sharp, for, you see, he'd never really done anything to me.

"One day I stopped in at the smithy—he was a blacksmith—to have a talk with him and see if we couldn't patch it up somehow and be friends. It was a Saturday afternoon, and he'd been drinking more than was good for him.

"I hadn't hardly got the first words out when he came at me with a big sledge in his hand, all in a rage and swearing he'd have my life. I pushed him off and started for the door. I saw it was no use to try to reason with him, but he came at me again, and this time he struck me with his sledge. It did no harm, though it hurt, and I pushed him out of my way and backed off toward the door. The lock was caught, and before I could open it he was within striking distance again and I had to turn to defend myself. I snatched up a bar of iron perhaps a foot long. I had kept my temper down until then, but the moment I had a weapon in my hand it got clean away from me, and in an instant I was fighting—just as he was fighting—to kill."

Roger Oakley had told the story of the murder in a hard, emotionless voice, but Dan saw in the half light that his face was pale and drawn. Dan found it difficult to associate the thought of violence with the man at his side, whose whole manner spoke of an unusual restraint and control. That he had killed a man, even in self defense, seemed preposterous and inconceivable.

There was a part of the story Roger Oakley could not tell and which his son had no desire to hear.

"People said afterward that I'd gone there purposely to pick a quarrel with Sharp, and his helper, who, it seems, was in the yard back of the smithy setting a wagon tire, swore he saw me through a window as I entered and that I struck the first blow. He may have seen only the end of it and really believed I did begin it, but that's a sample of how things got twisted. Nobody believed my motive was what I said it was. The jury found me guilty of murder, and the judge gave me a life sentence. A good deal of a fuss was made over what I did at the fire last winter. Hart told me he'd sent you the papers."

"Some ladies who were interested in mission work at the prison took the matter up and got me my pardon. It's a fearful and a wicked thing for a man to lose his temper, Dannie. At first I was bitter against every one who had a hand in sending me to prison, but I've put that all from my heart. It was right I should be punished."

He rose from his chair, striking the ashes from his pipe.

"Ain't it very late, Dannie? I'll just put away my things, and then we can go to bed. I didn't mean to keep you up."

Oakley watched his precise and orderly arrangement of his few belongings. He could see that it was a part of the prison discipline under which he had lived for almost a quarter of a century. When the contents of his bundle were disposed of to his satisfaction he put on a pair of steel rimmed spectacles with large, round glasses and took up a well thumbed Bible, which he had placed at one side.

"I hope you haven't forgotten this book, Dannie," tapping it softly with a heavy forefinger.

CHAPTER VI.

ROGER OAKLEY went to work in the car shops the day following his arrival in Antioch.

Dan sought to dissuade him, but he was stubbornness itself, and the latter realized that the only thing to do was to let him alone and not seek to control him.

After all, if he would be happier at work, it was no one's affair but his own.

It never occurred to the old convict

Hilliard Farm House as Home For the Children's Aid Society

The Whole House and an Acre of Land Would Make an Ideal Shelter--Beautiful Surroundings, Lots of Room and Handy to Street Railway.

In all probability one of the questions to come before the Council to-night will be the new home for the Children's Aid Society. The present one, ex-Mayor Best's property, which has been occupied for the past ten years, will soon have to be vacated. To secure another place is not an easy matter, as the Shelter has been accustomed to every modern convenience for so long. But several sites have been thought of, among which and probably the most popular, is the large house on the Hilliard farm. This place is situated on the brow of the hill about a hundred and fifty yards from the end of the street railway line on Water street. It overlooks the Otonabee river above the Auburn dam, which presents a most picturesque view. The location is a healthy one and the air is pure and cool while the surroundings are most inviting. It is in close proximity to the street railway, and altogether it is an ideal spot for a home for the Children's Aid Society.

The general idea is that the city Council will request the City Trust Commission to rent to the Children's Aid Society the building and about an acre of land. The rent, of course, will be a nominal sum and hardly worth considering, it being more of a legal affair than anything else. The house is a fine large one, situated on the side of the hill and among a large number of beautiful shade trees. There are two verandahs, one in front overlooking the river, and one at the north side. The building is two stories high, and was recently made a double house instead of a single, the idea being to rent it to two families, and thus increase the city's revenue. But for a Children's Shelter the whole house would be excellent. Down stairs there are four large rooms in the front half, and three good-sized rooms in the back half. Upstairs there are five bedrooms, four large ones, and a small, dark one, which could be used as a general ward room. In the back half there are four good big bedrooms, making a total of seven rooms downstairs and nine upstairs. Then there is a very large woodshed at the back.

The front half of the house is in good repair, and the present tenants, who have a lease for a year from last April, have had most of the rooms freshly papered. The back half would, of course, have to be fixed up considerably. New floors are needed, some of the partitions would have to come down and new ones put up, and a lot of painting and papering is required. This the council would hardly be expected to do, as the Society has $1,200 for such a purpose.

The grounds surrounding the house are beautiful and a better place could not be selected. There is a fine garden just back of the house, and then a steep hill leading down to a good sized vineyard. There are also several fruit trees scattered throughout the garden. The children would soon be made perfectly at home at this place, and would thoroughly enjoy their life there, while the influences of the neighborhood would be good, and the task of Mr and Mrs. Henry would be made easier.

Half of the house would be of very little use to the children, as the back half, which has been mentioned by a few, is smaller than the present Shelter, and it is none too large. Then the children in the Shelter would be a source of annoyance to the tenants of the front half, and vice versa, so that the Children's Aid Society would not care to accept half. The whole house, and an acre of land would be a splendid home, and the Council should consider it seriously.

A GOOD COMPANY RESULT

Copy. Port Perry, Ont., April 15th, 1905.

My Dear Sir—

I yesterday received Bonus Addition Certificate from the Canada Life Assurance Company, amounting to the handsome sum of $982.65, being the profits on my $4,000 policy, and in writing you at the present time, I wish to express my gratification in having nearly $1,000 more insurance than when I took out the policy in 1889.

With only three more payments to make, I find the Limited Payment Life Policy ever so much more satisfactory than any other, as under my policy all the premiums will be paid while I am yet under forty years o age, and I have an insurance in the Canada Life, which will be largely increased in amount, and particularly so, as life expectancy is nearly thirty years.

I think I have a right to feel pleased with the result of my insurance and investment in the Canada Life.

With best wishes
Yours truly,
W. G. MONET

William Haywood Acquitted; The Jury Was Out All Night

Not Guilty of the Murder of Steunenberg Says Jury.

Judge's Charge In His Favor—Verdict After Twenty-One Hours Deliberation—Eight for Acquittal on First Poll — Doubt Cast on Orchard's Story—Haywood Thanks the Jurors and Is Discharged.

Boise, Idaho, July 29.—William D. Haywood, secretary-treasurer of the Western Federation of Miners is not guilty of the murder of Governor Frank Steunenberg.

The verdict of the jury was rendered at 7.58 a.m. yesterday, after an all-night session.

The court proceedings were very brief. After he had taken his seat on the bench Judge Wood said:

"Gentlemen of the jury, have you agreed upon a verdict?"

"We have," said Thomas B. Gess, juror number one, who had been elected foreman.

He handed an envelope to the judge, who handed it to the clerk, who read the verdict.

The prisoner's attorneys jumped to their feet and slapped Haywood on the back and all tried to grasp his hands at once.

Judge Wood ordered Haywoods' discharge. and said that at 10 a.m. today he would fix the time for the trials of Moyer and Pettibone.

Thanked the Jurors.

The jury stood deadlocked at 10 to 2 most of the night and ballots were taken at frequent intervals. On the very first ballot taken after the jury retired, the vote was eight for not guilty, three for murder and one undecided. Then the undecided man went over to the majority. One by one the members of the minority were won over until just before daybreak an agreement was reached.

The first intimation that a verdict had been reached came shortly after 7 o'clock and word immediately was sent to the attorneys and the newspaper correspondents that the jury was about to come in. Judge Wood was the first to reach the court-room, and he was followed quickly by the attorneys. At 7.45 Haywood was brought in and took his seat by the side of his counsel. A minute later the jury filed in and a few minutes later the verdict was rendered.

Governor Gooding was in the court-room when the verdict was rendered. He had nothing to say and left in company with James W. Hawley, leading counsel for the state.

Haywood thanked each one of the jurors in turn and told them if they came to Denver there would be a warm reception for them at the Haywood home.

E. F. Richardson of counsel for the defence said: "We have had a fair trial. Idaho may indeed be proud of herself."

It was four minutes past 11 o'clock Saturday morning when the jury, after receiving instructions, which were said by many to favor the defendant, retired to deliberate.

When the luncheon and the dinner hours arrived, the jurors, many of them well along to 70 years of age, were escorted to the house, where they have made their home since the trial commenced.

The court proceedings were over, the prisoner was discharge and the jury dismissed in less than three minutes.

Leaving the court-room with Attorney Nugent, Haywood walked to the jail portion of the building, shaking hands as he went with guards, employes and friends. He bade farewell to Moyer, who, when he heard the verdict, said: "That's good," and to Pettibone, whom Darrow described to the jury as a "sort of 'Happy Hooligan,' and who called, "give my regards to Broadway." Then he walked to St. Luke's Hospital and rushed into his mother's room. Next Haywood went to the little cottage where his wife and daughters have been staying. He had to enquire his way. Once home, Hayward said: "I want to thank the people of Boise for their kindness to my wife, my mother, my family and my friends."

There has been widespread sympathy for Mrs. Carruthers, Senator Borah, when first apprised of the verdict, said: "I feel glad for Haywood's mother."

The verdict was received in Boise with general surprise. Expectation was that there would be a disagreement.

Samuel D. Gilman, the last juryman to be won over to the defence, declared that a majrity of the jurors seemed convinced that the general tone of the court's instructions indicated that the defendant should be freed.

James Robertson, the good-natured Scotchman at whose house in Boise Governor Steunenberg boarded for more than two years, said: "I could not reconcile myself to voting any other way than with the defence from the very first, and I think that under the law and the evidence there was nothing else for us to do. There was some talk of a compromise on a second degree verdict, but it had to be acquittal or I would have stayed there forever."

Gen. Schilder has been given a minor appointment in the provinces. He has been succeeded by Gen. Zuboff, formerly attached to the general staff.

Imprisonment for Life.

Bialystoke, Russia, July 29.—The District Court on Saturday handed down sentences in the cases of the men placed on trial for complicity in the anti-Jewish attacks here during the month of June, 1906. The trial of these individuals has been postponed many times.

Wm. Burgess of Niagara Falls, Ont., was killed by falling over the cliff at the Gorge.

CONEY ISLAND ABLAZE

Steeplechase Park and Twenty Hotels Wiped Out.

Damage Totals Million Dollars—Seven Blocks Entirely Destroyed — Three Persons Injured, One Fatally—Wind Fanned the Flames—Other Buildings Had Narrow Escape—Outbreak Started In Cave of Winds

New York, July 29.—Coney Island, the playground of New York's millions, was visited by a disastrous fire early yesterday and seven blocks in the amusement zone were completely destroyed.

Tilyou's Steeplechase Park, and nearly 20 small hotels were wiped out, and for a time the flames threatened Luna Park and Dreamland and the scores of smaller places which fringe the water's edge for a mile.

A lucky shift of the wind to seaward aided the firemen and probably saved the whole picturesque area, but not until a million dollars damage had been done.

Three persons were injured, one of them, Gottfried Messerli, a fireman, probably fatally.

Only the advance guard of the 300,000 people who flocked to Coney Island yesterday saw the fire, but the thrilling tales of the fearless rescue of Sam Dora, the armless and legless man, and the flight of Francesco, the fire eater, when the alarm was sounded, were told and retold along noisy Surf avenue and in the less particular Bowery.

Coney Island has had four big fires in the last ten years, the last previous one being in 1903. "The Steeplechase" on that occasion being swept out as it was yesterday.

"The Island," as New Yorkers familiarly call it, was just turning in for its early morning nap—the only sleep it ever gets— and the last thin line of Saturday night merrymakers were swinging gaily, if somewhat uncertainly up Surf avenue, when Geo. Frost, a watchman at Steeplechase Park, spied a wavering trail of smoke coming from the "Cave of the Winds," one of the many shows in the park.

Scarcely had Frost bestirred himself when a flash of flame shot out of the maw of the cave and lighted up the place with a wierd glare. A patrolman heard the cry of "fire," for that shout at Coney Island is an ominous one—and alarm after alarm was rung in until the fourth had been sounded, bringing scores of engines and hosecarts to fight the flames now being borne along by the smart west wind.

The inflammable character-wood staff and papier mache of the constructive material of the many attractions, made fine food for the flames.

Fire Commissioner Lantry, seeing that nothing could be saved in the park, ordered that all efforts be concentrated on the east side of the burning blocks to keep the fire from reaching the flimsy buildings in the Bowery, and thus reaching Dreamland and Luna Park. The firemen were massed at the entrance of the Bowery and, although a Japanese skating rink, a small dance hall and a restaurant were destroyed there, the fire was checked.

ILLEGAL DIVORCE.

British Columbia Has Raised Question of Provincial Powers.

Vancouver, July 29.—The Minister of Justice will be asked to take part in arguing the question raised here as to the powers of the provincial court in matters of divorce. The point is whether the B.N.A. Act, which includes marriage and divorce among the exclusive powers of the Dominion Parliament, did not sweep away the rights of the courts in this province, and Nova Scotia, which alone of the provinces have divorce courts.

Both have exercised this power until now unquestioned, since pre-confederation days, and British Columbia since 1857, when the then colony adopted this law of England.

Justice Clement, formerly of Toronto, raised the question in a local case. A stated case is likely to go to the Privy Council. If the two provinces have not this power, Ottawa would have to pass an enabling act to validate all the illegal divorces decrees of both provinces.

Suicides With Gas.

Stratford, July 29.—While brooding over his wife's death, William Donaldson, aged 44, committed suicide during Saturday night by inhaling gas. Yesterday morning he was sitting beside the gas range with a gas tube in his hand, and dead. For some months he had been carefully watched, as it was feared that in his state of mental derangement he would attempt his life. Deceased was for 28 years an employe of the Grand Trunk shops, and is survived by two children. This latter case makes four suicides in Stratford inside of three weeks.

Stole Kier Hardie's Vest.

Winnipeg, July 29.—While Kier Hardie, M.P., was addressing a Socialist meeting on Friday night, in the Central Congregational Church, his vest was stolen from the ante-room.

Mr. Hardie was not feeling in good health when he left Saturday evening for Calgary.

Trapped Himself.

Binks Siding, July 29.—While rifling the trunk of J. M. McCully, secret service man with the T. & N. O. engineering staff here, Alex. Garnier, a French-Canadian cook, found a pair of handcuffs, tried them on and promptly handcuffed himself.

Sir Charles at the Ranges.

Ottawa, July 29.—Sir Charles Ross was at Rockliffe ranges on Saturday. He shot over the 900 yards range and made 49 out of a possible 50 with a Ross rifle. A gale was blowing.

Montreal is to have a new jail costing $1,250,000, to be built at Back River.

Douks to Be Arrested.

Winnipeg, July 29.—The wandering Doukhobors who left Swan River some two weeks ago, about 300 miles northwest of Winnipeg, arrived in the neighborhood of the city last night.

Hundreds of people drove out to Portage avenue to meet them.

Mayor Ashdown has issued orders to have them arrested as vagrants as soon as they reach the city.

Overcome by Gas.

New York, July 29.—One person was killed and six others overcome by gas from a fumigating preparation in a summer cottage in the Borough of Queens' Saturday night.

The only other occupant of the cottage was partly overcome, but managed to stagger to the street and procure assistance.

Bought For $200,000.

Montreal, July 29.—Dave Russell confirms the report that the Conservative party, through John McKane, has purchased The St. John Telegraph and Times. The price paid is $200,000.

May Repeal Scott Act.

Ottawa, July 29.—A vote for the repeal of the Scott Act will be taken in Cape Breton on Aug. 15.

Shipments of gold to Canada this week total $1,500,000.

Another Disaster on Lake; Big Steamer Prey to Flames

Nine Women and Children Meet Death by Drowning.

"Frontenac" Destroyed by Fire on Lake Cayuga—Flames Broke Out in Engine Room—Gallant Conduct of Captain and Crew—Passengers Were Either Swept Overboard, or Jumped In Terror.

Auburn, N.Y., July 29.—The steamboat Frontenac was burned and beached opposite Farley's Point, on Lake Cayuga, yesterday, and nine lives were lost. The unfortunates were all women and children passengers, and all were drowned. Several other passengers were severely burned before the boat could be beached. She lies burned and blackened in seven feet of water. The bodies of the victims have been recovered, and the injured are being cared for at the homes of persons near the scene of the wreck.

The steamer Frontenac, an old side-wheeler double-deck craft, which had plied between Ithaca and Cayuga, on Lake Cayuga, for the past 23 years, left the former place yesterday afternoon for the upper lake points, carrying 5 passengers and a crew of 12 men.

In mid-lake fire broke out in the engine-room. Fanned by a stiff northeast wind, it spread quickly to the after section of the boat. The crew behaved bravely and fought the flames at first. Then seeing that nothing could save the boat, they turned all their attention to the passengers. Life-preservers were put on everyone who could be found in the short time given, but despite their efforts nine women and children perished. Captain Brown directed this work, and was the last to leave the burning boat.

The strong contrast with the coolness and courage of the crew was the panic, and, in some instances, cowardice, of many of the men passengers. In their efforts to save themselves, they seriously impeded the work of the crew and endangered the lives of everyone on the steamer. This is according to the statements of the crew.

It is not known how the nine women and children were thrown into the water. It is thought, however, that in terror they either jumped into the water as the boat neared the shore, or were forced overboard in the rush to get into the boats that put off. The bodies were recovered near shore.

New Battleship Launched.

The Temeraire, the third ship of this class, will be launched the latter part of August.

REVIVE TREATY OF 1871.

Britain Hopes It Will Be Basis For New Agreement.

The Hague, July 29.—At the session of the committee on maritime warfare, Count Tornielli, who presided, announced the intention of Great Britain to submit to the peace conference the Anglo-American treaty signed in Washington, May 8, 1871, regarding treatment of belligerent ships in neutral ports and waters, in the hope that the other powers would adhere to this treaty and an international agreement thus be reached.

The committee, before which the collection of public and private debts was under consideration, was in session for two hours Saturday, and then voted in favor of the American proposal in the premises, which provides for the concluding of an agreement in which there shall be introduced "some limitations in the use of force for the collection of contractural, public and ordinary debts."

Sir Edward Fry recognized the difficulty which international arbitration presented. Nevertheless, he added, the British delegation had associated itself with the American and Portuguese proposals. England, Sir Edward proceeded to show, had always practiced arbitration, and in 1906 had signed treaties of this nature with ten powers. The result of this practice, he continued, had not always been conclusive, but England believed that the moment had come for the conscience of the civilized world finally to find expression in this way.

STRATHCONA ADVISES C.P.R.

Favors All-Red Route and Would Have the Railway Help.

Montreal, July 29.—The members of Parliament who have interviewed Sir Wilfrid Laurier since the Premier's arrival in Canada, and R. Bickerdike, M.P., is of the number, do not hesitate to say that Lord Strathcona's coming visit to this country has a great deal to do with the question of the "all-red" line.

It is said, in fact, on the best of authority that Lord Strathcona will use every effort to induce Sir Thomas Shaughnessy to not only abandon the strenuous opposition the C.P.R. has put up against the scheme, but will advise the Canadian Pacific to throw in their influence with the deal and tender for the Atlantic service. It is stated that Strathcona is ready to abandon the Irish connection and either take the British port of Liverpool or Southampton, but that most are agreed that Halifax shall be the Atlantic port all the year around.

The idea is for the Canadian Pacific to build three new boats for the Halifax route and place the Empresses of Britain and Ireland on the Pacific. The statement is, however, made that there is a plan to have the new Atlantic greyhounds come up the St. Lawrence in summer, but it is not presumed that this alternative will prevail.

KOREANS ATTACK JAPS.

Serious Conflict Repored—Troops on Patrol Duty.

Seoul, July 29.—Guards were placed along the railways in the country yesterday and regular bodies of troops are patrolling all parts of Seoul.

Korean troops and rioters in Kyongson have destroyed seven Japanese dwellings, injuring six persons and driving the Japanese to their boats.

Two of Marquis Ito's new appointees, the Minister of the Household and Keeper of the Seals, both in the Cabinet, have been ordered to reform the court and warned that if this is not accomplished within three months their appointments will be revoked.

This means putting a quietus on the activity of the former Emperor, who, as late as July 23, it is said, intrigued to send a commissioner to Germany.

Shot at Winnipeg.

Winnipeg, Man., July 29.—Dr. Clyn Smith, of St. Louis, Mo., lies in the General Hospital with a bullet wound in his neck, while the police are in search of the man who escaped being a murderer by the merest margin.

The doctor was invited by a man whom he met at the Strathcona Hotel to take a drive out on the Kildonan road. At a point some miles from the city the man suddenly placed a revolver against the doctor's forehead and pulled the trigger. There was no explosion, but a struggle began, and the revolver was discharged, the bullet passing through the doctor's neck. In the struggle the doctor got possession of the revolver, but, thinking he might be overcome by loss of blood, threw it away. His assailant escaped and Dr. Smith went to a farm house, where he had the wound dressed and was afterward taken to the hospital. Robbery is believed to have been the motive for the attack.

Grampian Launched.

London, July 29.—The twin screw Allan Liner Grampian was launched in the Clyde Saturday. She is 502 feet long, 60 feet broad, and of 10,000 gross tonnage. Till the Hesperian is ready next spring, the Grampian will be the fastest liner in the fleet. She carries 500 first and second, and 1,400 third-class passengers. Her maiden voyage to Montreal will probably be made in September next.

London Barbers Strike.

London, July 29.—At a meeting of the barbers, held yesterday, it was decided that the men refrain from reporting for work this morning.

The bosses are equally firm and the chances are of a long drawn out fight. The trouble is over wages.

Fireman's Fault.

St. Thomas, July 29.—Fred Calvert, the fireman injured in the explosion at Simcoe Friday, died Saturday.

In the opinion of the master mechanic, the accident was Calvert's fault. The boiler had run dry.

For the Sufferers.

London, Ont., July 29.—The band concert in aid of the Crystal Hall sufferers realized $385.

Two acres of land have been bought at Bowling Green for a plow works.

The new Winnipeg Stock Exchange was organized yesterday, and the seats are limited to 25.

TRAGEDY AT DEATH BED.

Man Shoots His Brothers and Sisters—One May Die.

Versailles, France, July 29.—Henry H. Huntington, son of Douglass St. George Huntington, former attache of the American embassy in Paris, was arrested here last night on the charge of shooting his two sisters and one of his brothers. The condition of the sisters was said to be serious.

The tragedy occurred at the bedside of the father, who was dying. Henry had returned to ask his father's forgiveness after having been estranged from his parents for some time past. Mr. Huntington, Sr., was suffering from pulmonary consumption, and as it was believed that he was near death a telegram was despatched to Henry to return. The latter hurried to the beside, around which were grouped the weeping wife, the daughters, Edith and Elizabeth, and the sons, Alonzo and Douglass.

Henry pleaded for forgiveness for the sorrow he had caused, and had received his father's blessing, when Douglass requested him to seek the pardon of his mother also. This Henry declined to do, and thereupon Alonzo asked him to leave the room.

According to the police, Henry drew out a revolver and fired at Alonzo. He then wheeled and shot both his sisters and his brother Huntington, and endeavored to make his escape. He was captured, however, by a guard who ran into the house to investigate the cause of the shooting.

Mr. Huntington, Sr., who is 60 years of age, survived the shock of the tragic scene, but at midnight was sinking rapidly and was not expected to survive the night. The sister, Elizabeth, is dying from a wound over the heart.

Prisoner Plotted Escape.

Galt, July 29.—That Malcolm MacDonald, the self-confessed perpetrator of bold burglaries on East Main street residences, is a desperate character is indicated by a 'phone message to Chief Gorman from Governor Cook of Berlin jail, stating that a plot had been discovered, hatched by this convict, to brain the governor and turnkey and set the prisoners at large. This plot was disclosed by one of the prisoners, and MacDonald was removed to a corridor by himself, where he will be kept till his removal to the Central Prison.

Public Opinion Lax.

London, July 29.—(C.A.P.)—Tennyson Smith, temperance advocate, who recently investigated local option and prohibition laws in Canada, asserts that both are a pronounced success, as the policy of prohibition, wherever adopted, is most beneficial, but the sentiment respecting the enforcement of the law is very lax, public opinion tolerating a state of affairs which would be impossible here.

FIRE INSURANCE

The most important point in Fire Insurance is the selection of a Company which offers absolute security. Experience in the recent conflagrations in Baltimore, Toronto and San Francisco shows that English and Scottish Companies stood the severe strain of these appalling losses better than any other, and proves that they are among the leading Companies of the world.

A Key for the Alarm Box will be found hanging in a small box, with glass front, adjoining the Alarm Box. Break the glass, remove the Key, and open the Box; pull the lever down, when the Alarm is at once transmitted to the Fire Hall, Pumping Station, and residences of the Firemen. Do not attempt to remove the Key from Box, as this can only be done by the use of a small Relieving Key.

Street Railway Men Had Outing

Spent Sunday at Idyl Wyld and Enjoyed the Trip

A number of the street railway men took a small yacht and ran down the river to Rice Lake yesterday and spent the day at Idyl Wyld. The boys thoroughly enjoyed the outing. The cool breezes from the lake and the shade of the trees in the park made a great contrast to the steady, oppressive heat in the city. They had dinner and supper at the hotel, and speak very highly of it. They had good meals and lots to eat, and as they were all hungry they appreciated it.

ACROSTIC POINTERS

The fact that the Printers' Picnic on Civic Holiday, Aug. 12th, is being held at Idyl Wyld, not far from the Indian village of Hiawatha, has recalled to the mind of the staff poet of the Review the following well known lines from Longfellow's beautiful Indian legend "Hiawatha."

Take me to the Printers' Picnic
On the holiday called civic.
My best dress I'll wear on that day.

Beautifully made of muslin;
Everybody will be going
Going to the Printers picnic;
Leave me not behind, O dear one.
Else my heart might break of yearning;
Yearning for the day's enjoyment.

Cavendish Lumber Co. of Lakefield Lost $38,000 by Fire Saturday

Blaze Started in Lath Pile About 800 Yards From the Mill and the Wind Swept the Flames Down Through the Yard at a Terrific Rate--Men Fought Bravely and Checked the Flames--Peterborough Engine and Brigade Went to Co's. Assistance--Nearly 1,500,000 Feet of Lumber Was Destroyed--Covered by Insurance.

Excitement ran high in the village of Lakefield for several hours Saturday afternoon and evening while the south yards of the Cavendish Lumber Company, Limited, were being consumed by a fire, that in the early stages looked to be beyond the control of the best fire brigade in the country. So excited were many persons that they sent out reports to Peterborough that the whole village was doomed. But fortunately their stories were groundless as at no time was the village in danger or any building except the factory of the Lakefield Cement Works, and it has all solid cement walls and a tin roof.

Nevertheless, it was a big fire, the largest Lakefield has seen for the past twenty-four or twenty-five years, when the Strickland Lumber yards were burned and the fire among the business blocks and dwellings on Queen street, about nineteen years ago. The damage as a result of the blaze will amount to about $38,000, the estimated value of between a million and a million and a half feet of lumber and lath. Other than the lumber piles and the several railway sidings in the yard no damage was done.

The fire started about a quarter after four o'clock in a pile of lath in the north end of the south yard, and some 700 or 800 yards from the burner at the mills. A high wind was blowing from the north, which fanned the blaze into sheets of flame which shot into the air from fifty to sixty feet and which ran south licking up lumber pile after lumber pile at such a rate that the whole yard appeared to be doomed for over an hour and a half. The blaze presented at once a most picturesque and awful spectacle, while the heat was so intense that it was impossible to get within a hundred yards of the burning piles, and it was hard to tell where to start to fight the flames. For a time the people were at a loss to know what to do and hundreds stood at a distance and looked upon the roaring furnace with terror.

As soon as the fire was discovered an alarm was at once sounded. The 200 men belonging to the Cavendish Company and the several hundred men at the cement works, as well as hundreds of citizens were at the scene of the fire in a very few minutes. The lumber company ran out their 600 feet of hose and soon had a good stream playing on the flames, getting the water from the pumps in the mills. Then the Lakefield fire brigade arrived with the little engine and the hose reel, and another line of hose was laid at the south end of the fire. The engine, as usual, refused to work, and it was at least half an hour before any water could be pumped. In the meantime the two old washing machine pumps, owned by the company were put into commission and did fairly good work.

But the flames were gaining ground every minute. The strong wind was just the thing for carrying the fire along, and the small streams of water playing on it, were of little service. It was then that Manager L. J. Labell, of the Cavendish Lumber Co. sent a message to the Peterborough Lumber Co. to have the Peterborough fire engine sent up along with some of the firemen. In the meantime Messrs. Jas. Murdock and R. S. Bissell, foremen in the lumber yards, and Mr. William Cresswell, superintendent of the outside work, who had just arrived in the village with a force of men from the drives, organized brigades and directed the operations which finally stopped the wild progress of the flames.

The lumber jacks and the yard men are heroes when it comes down to hard work and a disregard for personal comfort. Under the leadership of the three men named the gangs moved down to about the middle of the yard and there worked like trojans with the water soaked blankets, the stream of water from the little engine and with buckets. They upset a couple of piles of lumber which formed a break and there they stood and played the hose right into the hottest flames. The heat was so great and the smoke so dense that ordinary men could not even approach the position occupied by several of the lumbermen.

The wind continued to blow and the flames roared as hard as ever, and for a long time it was a stubborn fight and it looked as if the men would surely be driven back and the fire would continue its course. But the boys stood their ground and wonderful though it seems they conquered. The fire was stopped and the south half of the yards were saved, although the flames flared up several times afterwards and threatened the adjoining piles, but about six o'clock the greatest danger was over and only heaps of flames and ashes were to be seen.

At the north end of the yard, another gang of stalwarts labored just as hard and did just as good work in preventing the flames creeping back towards the building or any of the buildings, and they were also successful in saving three big piles of lumber. Every man deserves great credit. The Cavendish people were, of course, the most effective workers as many of them had been through big fires before and knew how to do effective work. The firemen of the village who manned the little engine were of great assistance and once they got the thing to go did great work. All the men in the cement works did good service and prevented the flames catching onto those buildings and also helped to break the progress of the fire towards the south.

THE CITY BRIGADE.

The Peterborough Lumber Company received a telephone message about half-past four from Lakefield that the mills and yards were on fire and to have the Peterborough engine and brigade sent up at once. In the excitement an alarm was sent in from box 23, which is at the corner of Hunter and George streets. The firemen were all over at the sawdust pile but came back to the corner. Chief Rutherford, Ald. Johnston, and Mr. Linton, of the Peterborough Lumber Co. held a conference. As a result, Ald. Johnston consented to let the fire engine go and an order for a flat car and engine was at once sent to the G. T. R. station. But there is so much red tape connected with the Grand Trunk in such matters that it was half an hour before the flat car was placed. Then the engine was loaded and about twenty minutes past five the train pulled out of the station for Lakefield.

On board the train were Chief Rutherford, Sam Sharpe, Chas. Butcher, R. Hutchison, Wm. Tremaine, Wilt. Metherall, Sam Wainwright, W. Edwards, Art. Winger, F. Clancy, R. Hannah, L. Dayman, E. Grose, and A. J. Mitchell, all firemen, also Ald. Geo. E. Elliott, Geo. Stevenson, John Robinson, Jas. Bogue, Jas. Davidson, W. Doan and a Review representative.

GOOD RUN UP.

The engine made a good run up to the village, but had to stop some distance south of the fire where the engine was unloaded. One of the company's big teams was attached and pulled the machine up to about the centre of the fire. On the way up two accidents were narrowly averted. A culvert broke just as the hind wheels were passing over, and then when the engine was being placed on the river bank it was found that the bank was all sawdust and started to slide. The horses were whipped up and just got the engine off in time, or it would have gone into the river. It was taken a hundred yards further north where the land was firmer and there placed.

QUICK WORK.

From the time the engine touched the ground when Engineer Sam Wainwright lit the fire, until it was placed, just seven minutes elapsed and there were one hundred pounds of steam on. A couple of minutes later the engine was started and three big streams of water were thrown into burning piles. Wainwright managed his machine well and deserves great credit. It was only a few minutes after six o'clock when the engine was started and it kept pumping steadily for three hours and a half. There was not the slightest hitch at any time and hundreds of tons of water were poured into the blazing lumber.

The Peterborough firemen, while not there in time to help fight the main fire, did excellent service. Chief Rutherford quickly sized up the situation and he placed his men where they could work to the best advantage, and under his direction an acre of flames were soon turned into an acre of black smouldering ashes.

WAS WELL PLEASED.

Mr. Labell, manager of the Cavendish Lumber Company, was greatly pleased with the Peterborough fire brigade. He admired the rapid way they set to work and the effectiveness of their efforts, which would had they been able to get there half an hour sooner, resulted in saving several hundred thousand feet of lumber. He felt honored that the city allowed the chief of the brigade and so many men to go up with the engine and to him it showed the city people were alive to the situation.

FIRE WAS OUT.

The big engine and the city brigade worked steadily without supper until nine o'clock, when the greater part of the fire was out. Then they divided into two forces, and had supper and returned to work until half past nine when the engine was shut down and the boys started to get ready for home. This was no snap as it was after twelve o'clock before the engine was loaded and the train started for Peterborough, and it was about two o'clock when the firemen got the engine back to the fire hall.

LOSS ABOUT $38,000.

The management of the company estimated the loss of lumber at from 1,000,000 to 1,500,000 feet valued at about $38,000. It is all covered by insurance, the Liverpool, the Mercantile, the Scots Union and National and the Manitoba Insurance Companies. Besides the company's lumber which was cut this year, there were 282,000 feet of last year's cut, belonging to the Skillings, Whitneys and Barnes Lumber Co. of Ogdensburg, N.Y. This was also insured for about $8,000.

WAS IT INCENDIARY?

While it is generally supposed that the fire started from sparks from the burner at the mills, such is hardly reasonable. The burner is situated some seven hundred or eight hundred yards or more form the place where the blaze was first noticed in a pile of lath. That sparks could be carried that distance without being noticed by some one of the many men about the place is doubtful. Besides there was a man on duty all day watching for fire. It looks very much like the work of the fire bug, and while the management would not say that the fire had been started by some one who had a grudge against the company it was not denied that it was possible that some one did start the fire.

REPAIRING TRACKS.

Early Sunday morning a force of men were put to work, making repairs to the siding in the yard, which had been damaged by the heat. One siding was put into shape so that when the mill hands arrived this morning there was nothing to stop them going to work. Not an hour was lost in the mill.

The little engine which did such good service at Lakefield is the first steam fire engine, ever manufactured by the Waterous Engine Works of Brantford. It was made twenty-four years ago, and was sent direct from the factory to Lakefield where it was tested along with another engine. Chief Rutherford was asked to pass judgment on the two machines and he decided in favor of the Waterous. It has been in the Lakefield fire hall ever since although it is not often that it has to be taken out. It has been tested very seldom if ever, and that is why it is so hard to get started.

The "Sailor Boy" brand of canned goods are the best that are put up. They never fail to please. Try a few cans.

ON CHARGE OF PICKING POCKETS

Four Young Men are on Trial Before Judge Weller

C. H. Phelps, Henry Lewis, Ray Bradford and Harry Goldfarb, the four alleged pickpockets, came up before His Honor Judge Weller, this morning at 11 o'clock. A few weeks ago they were committed for trial by Magistrate Dumble on charges of picking pockets on June 25th. Crown attorney R. E. Wood conducted the prosecution and Messrs. F. D. Kerr and D. O'Connell appeared for the defence. The evidence of W. J. Hurl, of Young's Point, and P. C. Newhall was taken. At 1 o'clock the Court was adjourned until 3 o'clock, when the cross-examination began. The evidence given this morning was largely a repetition of that given by Mr. Hurl and Constable Newhall at the preliminary hearing in Police Court a few days ago, which has already appeared in the Review.

HOUSE PLANT WAS STOLEN

Valuable Plant and Flower Pot Taken From Brock St. Verandah

It looks as if there were some people in Peterborough who would steal anything that is not nailed down, and nailed down hard at that. Mr. Valentine Best who resides at 209 Brock-st., owned a fine specimen of a somewhat rare plant. It was contained in a handsome Chinese flower pot and in order that others besides his own household might enjoy the beauty of the plant, Mr. Best had it placed on the front verandah. It somewhat resembled a small spruce tree and was fair to look upon.

On Saturday night some contemptible thief stole the plant, flower pot and all and no doubt it is now blooming in quarters new. It was gone when the family arose Sunday morning and as they prized the plant highly their feelings towards the person or persons who stole it are not of the kindest.

WATER CAME UP FROM THE SEWER

Rather Novel Sight Caused People to Stop on George St.

As a result of the heavy downpour of rain this afternoon the sewers in many parts of the city were unable to carry off the water, and the streets were flooded in several places. Something went wrong with the sewer on Charlotte street, it apparently having become blocked near where it intersects with the trunk sewer on George street, and, although the water poured in at the manholes west of Bethune street, street, it was coming out again at a manhole just west of the bridge over the creek. There was a big pond on the street, and the water came gushing up in pailfuls. A ditch was made to the creek and it was drained off in that way.

what is to be done for people like that, whose lives are quite uncompensated?"

They were joined by the doctor, who had caught a part of what Constance said and divined the rest.

"You see only the pathos. Joyce is just as well off there as he would be anywhere else, and perhaps a little better. He makes a decent living with his pictures." As he spoke he crossed the porch and stood at her side, with his hand resting affectionately on her shoulder.

"I guess there's a larger justice in the world than we conceive," said Oakley.

"But not to know, to go on blindly doing something that is really very dreadful and never to know!"

She turned to Oakley.

"I am afraid I rather agree with your father. He seems happy enough, and he is doing work for which there is a demand."

"Would you be content to live here with no greater opportunity than he has?"

Oakley laughed and shook his head.

"No, but that's not the same. I'll pull the Huckleberry up and make it pay and then go in for something bigger."

"And if you can't make it pay?"

"I won't bother with it, then."

"But if you had to remain?"

Oakley gave her an incredulous smile.

"That couldn't be possible. I have done all sorts of things but stick in what I found to be undesirable berths, but of course business is not at all the same."

"But isn't it? Look at Mr. Ryder. He says that he is buried here in the pine woods, with no hope of ever getting back into the world, and I am sure he is able, and journalism is certainly a business, like anything else."

Oakley made no response to this. He didn't propose to criticise Ryder; but, all the same, he doubted his ability.

"Griff's frightfully lazy," remarked the doctor. "He prefers to settle down to an effortless sort of an existence rather than make a struggle."

"Don't you think Mr. Ryder extremely clever, Mr. Oakley?"

"I know him so slightly, Miss Emory, but no doubt he is."

Mrs. Emory appeared in the doorway, placid and smiling.

"Constance, you and Mr. Oakley come on in; dinner's ready."

When Dan went home that night he told himself savagely that he would never go to the Emorys' again. The experience had been most unsatisfactory. In spite of Constance's evident disposition toward tolerance where he was concerned, she exasperated him. Her unconscious condescension was a bitter memory of which he could not rid himself. Certainly women must be petty, small souled creatures if she was at all representative of her sex. Yet in spite of his determination to avoid Constance, even at the risk of seeming rude, he found it required greater strength of will than he possessed to keep away from the Emorys.

He realized in the course of the next few weeks that a new stage in his development had been reached. Inspired by what he felt was a false but beautiful confidence in himself he called often, and as time wore on the frequency of these calls steadily increased. All this while he thought about Miss Emory a great deal and was sorry for her or admired her, according to his mood.

In Constance's attitude toward him there was a certain fickleness that he resented. Sometimes she was friendly and companionable, and then again she seemed to revive all her lingering prejudices and was utterly indifferent to him, and her indifference was the most complete thing of its kind he had ever encountered.

Naturally Dan and Ryder met very frequently, and when they met they clashed. It was not especially pleasant, of course, but Ryder was persistent and Oakley was dogged. Once he started in pursuit of an object he never gave up or owned that he was beaten. In some form he had accomplished everything he set out to do, and if the results had not always been just what he had anticipated he had at least had the satisfaction of bringing circumstances under his control. He endured the editor's sarcasms and occasionally retaliated with a vengeance so heavy as to leave Griff quivering with the smart of it.

Miss Emory found it difficult to maintain the peace between them, but she admired Dan's mode of warfare; it was so conclusive, and he showed such grim strength in his ability to look out for himself.

But Dan felt that he must suffer by any comparison with the editor. He had no genius for trifles, but rather a ponderous capacity. He had worked hard, with the single determination to win success. He had the practical man's contempt, born of his satisfied ignorance, for all useless things, and to his mind the useless things were those whose value it was impossible to reckon in dollars and cents.

He had been well content with himself, and now he felt that somehow he had lost his bearings. Why was it he had not known before that the mere strenuous climb, the mere earning of a salary, was not all of life? He even felt a sneaking envy of Ryder of which he was heartily ashamed.

Men fall in love differently. Some resist and hang back from the inevitable, not being sure of themselves, and some go headlong, never having any doubts. With characteristic singleness of purpose Dan went headlong, but of course he did not know what the trouble was until long after the facts in the case were patent to every one, and Antioch had lost interest in its speculations as to whether the doctor's daughter would take the editor or the general manager, for, as Mrs. Peppleton, the Emorys' nearest neighbor, sagely observed, she was "having her pick."

To Oakley Miss Emory seemed to accumulate dignity and reserve in the exact proportion that he lost them, but he was determined she should like him if she never did more than that.

She was just the least bit afraid of him. She knew he was not deficient in a proper pride and that he possessed plenty of self respect, but for all that he was not very dexterous. It amused her to lead him out and then to draw back and leave him to flounder out of some untenable position she had beguiled him into assuming.

She displayed undeniable skill in these maneuvers, and Dan was by turns savage and penitent. But she never gave him a chance to say what he wanted to say.

Ryder made his appeal to her vanity. It was a strong appeal. He was essentially presentable and companionable. She understood him, and they had much in common, but for all that her heart approved of Oakley. She felt his dominance. She realized that he was direct and simple and strong. Yet in her judgment of him she was not very generous. She could not understand, for instance, how it was that he had been willing to allow his father to go to work in the shops like one of the common hands. It seemed to her to argue such an awful poverty in the way of ideals.

She tried to stifle her growing liking for Oakley and her unwilling admiration for his strength and honesty and a certain native refinement. Unconsciously, perhaps, she had always associated qualities of this sort with position and wealth. She divined his lack of early opportunity and was alive to his many crudities of speech and manner, and he suffered, as he knew he must suffer, by comparison with the editor, but in spite of this Constance Emory knew deep down in her heart that he possessed solid and substantial merits of his own.

CHAPTER VIII.

KENYON came to town to remind his Antioch friends and supporters that presently he would be needing their votes. He was Ryder's guest for a week, and the Herald recorded his movements with painstaking accuracy and with what its editor secretly considered metropolitan enterprise. The great man had his official headquarters at the Herald office, a ramshackle two story building on the west side of the square. Here he was at home to the local politicians and to such of the general public as wished to meet him. The former smoked his cigars and talked incessantly of primaries, nominations and majorities—topics on which they appeared to be profoundly versed. Their distinguishing mark was their capacity for strong drink, which was far in excess of that of the ordinary citizen who took only a casual interest in politics.

Kenyon was a sloppily dressed man of forty-five, or thereabout, who preserved an air of rustic shrewdness. He was angular faced and smooth shaven and wore his hair rather long in a tangled mop. He was generally described in the party papers as "the picturesque statesman from old Hanover." He had served one term in congress. Prior to that, by way of apprenticeship, he had done a great deal of hard work and dirty work for his party. His fortunes had been built on the fortunes of a bigger and an abler man, who, after a fight which was already famous in the history of the state for its bitterness, had been elected governor, and Kenyon, having picked the winner, had gone to his reward. Just now he had a shrewd idea that the governor was anxious to unload him and that the party leaders were sharpening their knives for him. Their change of heart grew out of the fact that he had "dared to assert his independence," as he said, and had "played the sneak and broken his promises," as they said, in a little transaction which had been left to him to put through.

Personally Ryder counted him an unmitigated scamp, but the man's breezy vulgarity, his nerve and his infinite capacity to jolly tickled his fancy. He had so far freed himself of his habitual indifference that he was displaying an unheard of energy in promoting Kenyon's interest. Of course he expected to derive certain very substantial benefits from the alliance. The congressman had made him endless promises, and Ryder saw, or thought he saw, his way clear to leave Antioch in the near future. For two days he had been saying, "Mr. Brown, shake hands with Congressman Kenyon," or, "Mr. Jones, I want you to know Congressman Kenyon, the man we must keep at Washington."

He had marveled at the speed with which the statesman got down to first names. Mr. Kenyon said modestly when Griff commented on this that his methods were modern—they were certainly vulgar.

"I guess I'm going to give 'em a run for their money, Ryder. I can see I'm doing good work here. There's nothing like being on the ground yourself."

It was characteristic of him that he should ignore the work Ryder had done in his behalf.

"You are an inspiration, Sam. The people know their leader," said the editor genially, but with a touch of sarcasm that was lost on Kenyon, who took himself quite seriously.

"Yes, sir. They'd 'a' done me dirt," feelingly, "but I am on my own range now and ready to pull off my coat and fight for what's due me."

They were seated before the open door, which looked out upon the square. Kenyon was chewing nervously at the end of an unlit cigar which he held between his fingers. "When the nomination is made I guess the other fellow will discover I ain't been letting the grass grow in my path." He spat out over the doorsill into the street. "What's that you were just telling me about the Huckleberry?"

"This new manager of Cornish's is going to make the road pay, and he's going to do it from the pockets of the employees," said Ryder, with a disgruntled air, for the memory of his interview with Dan still rankled.

"That ain't bad either. You know the governor's pretty close to Cornish. The general was a big contributor to his campaign fund."

Ryder hitched his chair nearer his companion's.

"If there's a cut in wages at the shops, and I suppose that will be the next move, there's bound to be a lot of bad feeling."

"Well, don't forget we are for the people," remarked the congressman, and he winked slyly.

Ryder smiled cynically.

"I shan't. I have it in for the manager anyhow."

"What's wrong with him?"

"Oh, nothing, but a whole lot," answered Griff, with apparent indifference.

It was late in the afternoon, and the men from the car shops were beginning to straggle past, going in the direction of their various homes. Presently Roger Oakley strode heavily by, with his tin dinner pail on his arm. Otherwise there was nothing, either in his dress or appearance, to indicate that he was one of the hands. As he still lived at the hotel with Dan, he felt it necessary to exercise a certain care in the matter of dress. As he came into view the congressman swept him with a casual scrutiny; then, as the old man plodded on up the street with deliberate step, Kenyon rose from his chair and stood in the doorway gazing after him.

"What's the matter, Sam?" asked Ryder, struck by his friend's manner.

"Who was that old man who just went past?"

"That? Oh, that's the manager's father! Why?"

"Well, he looks most awfully like some one else, that's all." And he appeared to lose interest.

"No, he's old man Oakley. He works in the shops."

"Oakley?"

"Yes, that's his name. Why?" curiously.

"How long has he been here, anyhow?"

"A month perhaps; maybe longer. Do you know him?"

"I've seen him before. A cousin of mine, John Kenyon, is warden of a prison back in Massachusetts. It runs in the blood to hold office. I visited him last winter, and while I was there a fire broke out in the hospital ward, and that old man had a hand in saving the lives of two or three of the patients. The beggars came within an ace of losing their lives. I saw afterward by the papers that the governor had pardoned him."

Ryder jumped up with sudden alacrity.

"Do you remember the convict's full name?"

Kenyon meditated a moment; then he said:

"Roger Oakley."

The editor turned to the files of the Herald.

"I'll just look back and see if it's the same name. I've probably got it here among the personals, if I can only find it. What was he imprisoned for?" he added.

"He was serving a life sentence for murder, I think, John told me, but I won't be sure."

"The devil you say!" ejaculated Ryder. "Yes, Roger Oakley; the name's the same."

"I knew I couldn't be mistaken. I got a pretty good memory for names and faces. Curious, ain't it, that he should turn up here?"

Ryder smiled queerly as he dropped the Herald files back into the rack.

"His son is manager for Cornish here. He's the fellow I was telling you about."

Kenyon smiled too.

"I guess you won't have any more trouble with him. You've got him where you can hit him, and hit him hard, whenever you like."

CHAPTER IX.

IT was pay day in the car shops, and Oakley posted a number of notices in conspicuous places about the works. They announced a 10 per cent reduction in the wages of the men, the cut to go into effect immediately.

By and by McClintock came in from the yards. He was hot and perspiring, and his check shirt clung moistly to his powerful shoulders.

Oakley looked up inquiringly from the letter he was writing.

"Have you seen the notices?"

"Yes," nodding.

"Heard anything from the men yet?"

"Not a word."

McClintock returned to the yards. It was the noon hour, and in the shade of one of the sheds he found a number of the hands at lunch, who lived too far from the shops to go home to dinner.

"Say, Milt," said one of these, "have you tumbled to the notices, 10 per cent all round? You'll be having to go down in your sock for coin."

"It's there, all right," cheerfully.

"I knew when Cornish came down here there would be something drop shortly. I ain't never known it to fail. The old skinflint! I'll bet he ain't losing any money."

"You bet he ain't, not he," said a second, with a short laugh.

The first man, Branyon by name, bit carefully into the wedge shaped piece of pie he was holding in his hand. "If I was as rich as Cornish I'm hanged if I'd be such an infernal stiff! What good is his money doing him, anyhow?"

"What does the boss say, Milt?"

"That wages will go back as soon as he can put them back."

"Yes, they will! Like fun!" said Branyon sarcastically.

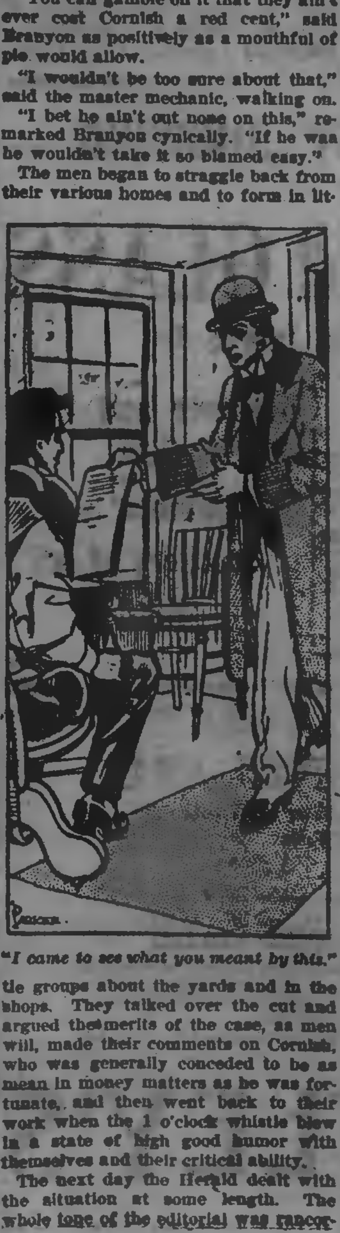
"You're a lot of kickers, you are," commented McClintock good naturedly. "You don't believe for one minute, do you, that the Huckleberry or the shops ever earned a dollar?"

"You can gamble on it that they ain't ever cost Cornish a red cent," said Branyon as positively as a mouthful of pie would allow.

"I wouldn't be too sure about that," said the master mechanic, walking on.

"I bet he ain't out none on this," remarked Branyon cynically. "If he was he wouldn't take it so blamed easy."

The men began to straggle back from their various homes and to form in little groups about the yards and in the shops. They talked over the cut and argued the merits of the case, as men will, made their comments on Cornish, who was generally conceded to be as mean in money matters as he was fortunate, and then went back to their work when the 1 o'clock whistle blew in a state of high good humor with themselves and their critical ability.



"I came to see what you meant by this."

The next day the Herald dealt with the situation at some length. The whole tone of the editorial was rancorous and bitter. It spoke of the parsimony of the new management, which had been instanced by a number of recent dismissals among men who had served the road long and faithfully and who deserved other and more considerate treatment. It declared that the cut was but the beginning of the troubles in store for the hands and characterized it as an attempt on the part of the new management to curry favor with Cornish, who was notoriously hostile to the best interests of labor. It wound up by regretting that the men were not organized, as proper organization would have enabled them to meet this move on the part of the management.

When Oakley read the obnoxious editorial his blood grew hot and his mood belligerent. It showed evident and unusual care in the preparation, and he guessed correctly that it had been written and put in type in readiness for the cut. It was a direct personal attack, too, for the expression "the new management," which was used over and over, could mean but the one thing.

Dan's first impulse was to hunt Ryder up and give him a sound thrashing, but his better sense told him that while this rational mode of expressing his indignation would have been excusable enough a few years back, when he was only a brakeman, as the manager of the Buckhorn and Antioch railroad it was necessary to pursue a more pacific policy.

He knew he could be made very unpopular if these attacks were persisted in. This he did not mind especially except as it would interfere with the carrying out of his plans and increase his difficulties. After thinking it over he concluded that he would better see Ryder and have a talk with him. It would do no harm, he argued, and it might do some good, provided, of course, that he could keep his temper.

He went directly to the Herald office and found Griff in and alone. When Dan strode into the office, looking rather warm, the latter turned a trifle pale, for he had his doubts about the manager's temper and no doubts at all about his muscular development, which was imposing.

"I came to see what you meant by this, Ryder," his caller said, and he held out the paper folded to the insulting article. Ryder assumed to examine it carefully, but he knew every word there.

"Oh, this? Oh, yes! The story of the reduction in wages down at the car shops. There! You can take it from under my nose. I can see quite clearly."

"Well?"

"Well," repeated Ryder after him, with exasperating composure. The editor was no stranger to intrusions of this sort, for his sarcasms were frequently personal. His manner varied to suit each individual case. When the wronged party stormed into the office, wrathful and loud lunged, he was generally willing to make prompt reparation, especially if the visitor had the advantage of physical preponderance on his side. When, however, the caller was uncertain and palpably in awe of him, as sometimes happened, he got no sort of satisfaction. With Oakley he pursued a middle course.

"Well?" he repeated.

"What do you mean by this?"

"I think it speaks for itself, don't you?"

"I went into this matter with you, and you know as well as I do why the men are cut. This"—striking the paper contemptuously with his open hand—"is the worst sort of rubbish, but it may serve to make the men feel that they are being wronged, and it is an attack on me."

"Did you notice that? I didn't know but it was too subtle for you."

He couldn't resist the gibe at Oakley's expense.

"Disguised, of course, but intended to give the men less confidence in me. Now, I'm not going to stand any more of this sort of thing!"

He was conscious he had brought his remarks to a decidedly lame conclusion.

Presentation to Miss Thompson

Given Valuable Steamer Trunk by Many of His Friends

Miss Birdie Thompson, who leaves for Toronto on Wednesday where she will be one of the party of eleven ladies starting out for London and Paris as the guests of the Toronto World, is not to be outdone by the representatives of Toronto. Some one in that city presented each of the six World winners with steamer trunks, and to-day a number of gentlemen of Peterborough, who had taken considerable interest in the contest here and had the satisfaction of seeing Miss Thompson stand second in point of votes among the ladies of the province, presented her with a handsome and valuable steamer trunk. The gift was made by the following gentlemen, accompanied by a note expressing their well wishes for a safe and pleasant trip for the recipient:—

W. Bunton, Geo. Graham, R. Denne, W. P. Wasson, W. Hillhouse, H. Morgan, H. Rush, T. J. McDonough, Dr. Marshal, Dr Wightman, T. Savigny, Geo Lenton, R. M. Glover, T. W. McDonough, G. N. Gordon, F. M. Best, W. R. G. Higgins, A. Laidlaw, J. F. Oles, T. Barrie, Thos. Hooper, Ed. Mahon, S. Oke, A. A. Fowler and O. G. Graham.

The Cottagers Are Complaining

About Careless Use of Fire Arms at Stony Lake

Several cottagers at Stony Lake are complaining of persons shooting in the vicinity of the cottages. It is very dangerous using firearms back there as there is always sure to be someone on the islands or crossing out paddling.

The other day Mrs. Lawrence Grahame had a narrow escape from being shot. A bullet went whizzing by her and an accident was narrowly averted.

It was only last summer that a lady stopping at Viamede was the victim of a random shot, from the effects of which she died some months after. The authorities should see that the practice is put a stop to at once or someone will be killed. Persons using firearms at the lakes seem to care very little or even think what damage might be done.

DIED

CLARKE.—At the Nicholls hospital, on Sunday, July 28th, Harriett Brown, wife of Mr. W. T. Clarke, of 74 Patterson street.

Board of Health to Meet Friday

No Quorum This Morning and the Milk Tests are Delayed Once More

The Board of Health was called to meet in the city clerk's office this morning at half past nine o'clock, but the members did not show up. The only ones there who had a vote were the chairman, Mr. Wm. Eynes, and Mayor McWilliams. The others present were Sanitary Inspector Ball and Medical Health Officer Dr. Bingham. The chief business to be taken up was receiving the reports of the Medical Health Officer on the milk tests and to authorize the publication of the same. The chairman waited around until nearly ten o'clock and then adjourned the meeting until Friday afternoon at two o'clock.

SHOULD NOTIFY THE ASSESSOR

Of all Changes of Ownership of Property—Important Notice

Mr. T. B. McGrath, assessor in Wards 3, 4 and 5, requests all those who since the last assessment was made, have either sold or bought properties in these wards, to notify him so that the owners name be correctly entered on the roll. If a name is once entered on the roll it will not be changed without an application to the Court of Revision. Therefore those who have sold or bought property within the last few months would save considerable delay and trouble by notifying the assessor, Box 714, Peterborough.

NEW POSITION FOR H. A. PEARSON

Appointed General Secretary of the Y.M.C.A. St. Catharines

Mr. H. A. Pearson, late secretary of the Y.M.C.A., Collingwood, is in the city on a visit. Mr. Pearson has just received the appointment of general secretary of the Y.M.C.A. at St. Catharines and will enter upon his duties at an early date. His many Peterborough friends are congratulating him on his good fortune.

Have Returned From Long Trip

Dr. and Mrs. Greer Had Most Enjoyable Visit to Pacific Coast

Dr and Mrs. T. Newton Greer returned on Saturday evening from seven week's enjoyable trip, in which they travelled between 7,000 or 8,000 miles. They visited Vancouver, Victoria, Seattle, Portland, San Francisco, Los Angeles, Colorado Springs, and Salt Lake City, returning by way of Chicago. They had a most pleasureable outing. Dr. Greer stated this morning that the prettiest cities visited were Vancouver and Los Angeles. He added that there was no place which he saw where he would rather reside than in Peterborough, which has unrivalled advantages. There is one respect in which this centre is behind much smaller places in the west and south, and that is the streets are not kept up as they should be. The main thoroughfares at least should be permanently paved. Even Regina, which is much smaller than Peterborough, is laying several miles of permanent roadways.

Cobourg Aggregation Won From Local Nine Saturday

Score Was 6—2 and the Visitors Had the Long End of the Game—Cobourg Was Stronger Than Expected

The Peterborough baseball team defeated at the hands of the Cobourg nine at Riverside Park on Saturday afternoon. The score was 6—2 and the majority of the 500 spectators were not highly pleased with the result. It was hardly expected that the Cobourg aggregation would trim the locals on their own browsing ground, but it was another case of the unexpected happening. The Cobourg management had apparently made a pilgrimage to Rochester and some more towns across the river and imported a few ball players to help them take a fall out of Peterborough, and with the aid given by the swatsmiths from across the lake they succeeded in rubbing it in some. Playing as they did on Saturday the visitors deserved to win and the locals do not begrudge them their victory. It can hardly be said that the Peterborough nine played as well as they some times this season. They were unable to hit the ball just when a safe rap meant runs and the errors made came at a time when perfect playing was necessary to prevent the visitors from scoring. The base running and coaching along the circuit was hardly what it might have been and it looked at times as if opportunities to do things were lost through failure to take a chance. The outfield played well and missed nothing that was anyway within reach.

The Cobourg aggregation played good ball all the way through and their fielding was about the best seen here this season. Time and again the locals pounded the ball out to the outfield, but frequently when a safe hit looked almost sure one of the fielders would manage to connect with the dropping sphere and hang onto it. They hammered the leather just when it was necessary and managed to place it in the field where it could not be reached in time.

Quinlan was on the firing line for Peterborough and pitched fine ball. He had six strike outs to his credit and held the visitors down to eight hits but they came in bunches and as a result were productive of considerable scoring. Burridge, although suffering from a severely scalded leg, did good work behind the plate, but his work with the hickory was not up to the usual standard. Corney Burns again led the batters with a single and a two baser while Quinlan also hammered the spheroid for two bags in the last innings. Callaghan and Graham had a nice single each, but the others although they connected with Downs curves, could not get the ball safe.

Downs, who did the mound duty for Cobourg was an importation for the day. There once was a chap named Downs, who pitched for Cobourg in days gone by, but the southpaw who did the twirling on Saturday, was merely wearing Downs' name and a Cobourg uniform. Mr. Southpaw is really Phelan of the New York American league team, and it is not likely that mail addressed to him at Cobourg would reach him. Burns, who held down the third sack for Cobourg and distinguished himself by a three baser was an importation and also Dwyer who performed creditably on the central sack. T. Bulger, the left fielder, was struck on the head by a swift ball in the last of the fourth innings and had to retire. He was replaced by Harcourt who went to right field, while J. Bulger went to the left garden.

It was good baseball all the way through although there were fifteen errors recorded and the crowd which numbered nearly five hundred had plenty to enthuse over. Peterborough got a run in the fifth and another in the ninth, while Cobourg got three in the sixth and another trio in the eighth. It looked at one time as if the locals might tie the score in the ninth, but it was not to be.

Up to the fifth innings there was no scoring. When Peterborough came to bat in this period, Quinlan reached first on Turpin's error, Flaherty went out Dwyer to Turpin, Burns made the second sack on another error by Turpin and when the first baseman let the ball get away from him when Cheatham was at bat Burns came home. Cheatham got to first on the error, stole second and was there when Burridge struck out. One run.

Jimmy Bulger was first up for Cobourg in the sixth and led off with a single and reached third on an error by Graham. Dwyer went out, Cheatham to Graham, and Floyd made first on Quinlan's error. Burns smashed out a three bagger and scored Bulger and Floyd. Harcourt fanned but Downs singled and scored Burns. Burge went out, Quinlan to Graham. Three runs.

Neither team did anything in the seventh, but in the eighth Cobourg corralled three more counters. Dwyer was first up and sent out a fly that Cheatham caught, Floyd and Burns both singled and Harcourt pounded the ball for two sacks and let in two runs. Then Downs repeated the trick and reached second while Harcourt careened home. Burge was hit by the pellet and took first but Dwyer was caught trying to steal third, and McKinnon went out, Quinlan to Graham. Three runs.

Burns, Connors and Haliburton went out in order in Peterborough's period at bat, and Turpin, Bulger and Dwyer did likewise in Cobourg's share of the ninth.

Callaghan led off for Peterborough in the ninth and went out, Burns to Turpin. Graham made first on an error by T. Burns, and went to third on a two base hit by Quinlan. Flaherty went out on a fly to the pitcher, but Burns raised the hopes of the fans by clouting the sphere for two bags, scoring Graham. Cheatham connected with the leather but failed to make first and the game was over.

Following was the summary,—

4163.—A PRETTY SHIRT WAIST DRESS.

Grace and simplicity are essential qualities in the frocks of the young girl and every mother who fashions her daughter's gowns appreciates how difficult the realization of this often proves. A dress which requires no great amount of skill or experience to fashion and which nevertheless appears smart and attractive is sketched. The waist has a fanciful yoke as its distinctive feature with two broad tucks at either side below. The closing if effected beneath the last tuck at the side and on the shoulder while the sleeves are to be finished full length or shorter as desired. The skirt is a seven gored one laid in pleats and stitched in double box pleats at the front and back. Mohair is an excellent material for such a dress as it sheds dust and does not quickly show wear while Henrietta, rajah, pongee, linen, crash or madras might be used. For the medium size, 5 1-8 yards of 44 inch goods are needed.

6800.—A DRESSY WAIST IN NET.

Every woman who touches so much as the hem of society life needs a dainty waist which she may don with the suit of another skirt and be presentable for any sort of afternoon or evening function. The woman of moderate means will find the simple waist of embroidered net or crepe de chine in some delicate color like champagne, pink or blue exceedingly becoming and very serviceable, not to mention its inexpensiveness. A suggestion for such a waist is shown but any number of variations may be added. The yoke which extends out a bit over the shoulders, giving that broad effect so much sought for this season, may be of tucked chiffon or silk or even tucked organdie with a simple lace galon as finishing. No other trimming material for the waist is needed except a girdle of velvet if desired.

PROMISED TO QUIT THE TOWN

Jas. Hardy Was Glad of a Chance to Get Out

Jas. Hardy, who was arrested last Wednesday on a charge of vagrancy and who was remanded until to-day, came up in police court today and was allowed to go by Acting-Magistrate Armstrong on condition that he get out of town at once.

"How long will it take you to get out of town," asked the Magistrate when all the evidence was in.

"Twenty minutes," replied the man in the prisoner's box, "and I'll go all right if you let me off."

The prisoner was then dismissed, and went out to inhale the fresh morning air.

Hardy was one of a trio of tough looking fellows who had the police put on their trail as a result of their suspicious actions at the corner of Charlotte and Park streets one night last week. Hardy was the only one of the gang who was captured.

Evidence was given by several persons who reside at the corner of Charlotte and Park streets.

Jos. Brennum said he saw the prisoner at the corner of Park and Charlotte streets last Monday night, first at 8.30, and later about 10.30 o'clock. As far as he knew Hardy was a stranger in town and had no home or employment here. When he saw him at 8.30 prisoner was sitting on the window sill of Bradshaw's grocery. When witness saw him at 10.30 prisoner was going out Charlotte street. He did not hear Hardy make any remarks.

Al. Adams told about being summoned to the corner of Charlotte and Park streets on Monday night, first at 8.30 o'clock and later about 10.30. The men had made good their escape on both occasions before the bluecoats arrived. On Tuesday, however, they again received word that Hardy was hanging around the corner of Charlotte and Park streets again and this time he was captured and placed behind the bars. He told the officer that his home was at Bobcaygeon, but that he had not been there for seven years. He also said that he had been working for a farmer named Payne about three miles out from the city. He had 45c on him when arrested.

A J. Warne, grocer, corner of Charlotte and Park streets, said Hardy was in his shop about 8.30 last Monday night and bought two plugs of tobacco. He was alone. After going out of the shop he crossed to the other side of the road and appeared to be acting suspiciously. Shortly afterwards two other rowdy looking fellows came along and asked witness "if that track would take them to North Bay," referring to the G.T.R. line which passes through Jackson Park. Witness telephoned for the police, but before the officers arrived the trio had disappeared. Hardy returned about 10.30, but disappeared out towards the boundary, although witness summoned the police and followed the vag until the boundary was reached. He showed up again on Tuesday and this time the police got him.

Mr. Armstrong allowed Hardy to go on condition that he get off town at once.

MARRIAGE MEDAL.

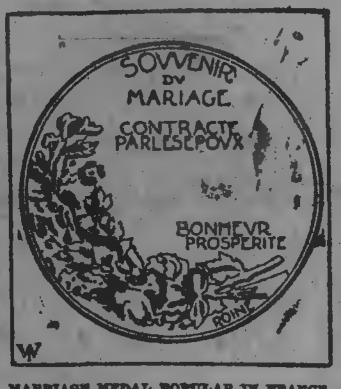
New in Vogue, It Is Done in Silver or Some Precious Metal.

Now it's the marriage medal.

It is not conferred by some society for the promotion of the conjugal tie.

Rather not. Indeed, those interested order the medals made. The groom gives the medal to the bride, or vice versa, or a friend may send it as a gift.

Of silver, about two inches in width, the marriage medal is a novelty worth considering if exquisitely done. It is a French idea, and the man who originated it was for years connected with the Paris mint. Classic figures, as a rule, adorn the medal, though special designs may be ordered showing the portraits of husband and wife. On the other side there is likely to be a laurel wreath, together with the words "Souvenir de Mariage," the date, the names of the contracting parties and then some good wish, such as "Prosperite," "Bonheur," or the like.



MARRIAGE MEDAL POPULAR IN FRANCE.

Next summer one may expect the engagement medal. Some girls might make an interesting collection of medals.

These will no doubt be wreathed with forgetmenots and adorned with cooing turtledoves hovering above a new nest.

E. J. Roine, who introduced the idea, also has a reputation for portraits on silver in relief. These range from the size of a quarter to large panels and plaques.

THE MONOGRAM FAD.

Everything That Can Show a Name Does So.

To the ultra fastidious the proclaiming of one's identity to the public by means of monograms on every article of apparel and adornment may appear in somewhat poor taste. It is the fashion of the moment, however, and, like other fads and fancies, may be modified or exaggerated at one's own discretion.

Everything that can show an embroidered name does so, and there are the daintiest designs for underwear, those in which flowers appear being most liked. Collars, chemisettes, gloves, the long chiffon scarfs, the draped veil, fan and even the undersleeves, when these are put into a band, are also inconspicuously lettered.

For the purse, card case and pocketbooks there are initials and monograms, as also larger ones for larger articles. These monograms are made in gold, silver, gun metal and enamel.

They have tiny prongs at the back with which to attach them to the article as desired, and at some places one may have one's own design made up by a trifling increase in expense. Many a gift this year consisted of a set of initials, three sizes—two of each—nicely put up in a leather case ready to be applied to desk pad, engagement book, traveling case or to any of the hundred and one articles for which they might be suitable.

Then there are the more expensive jeweled monograms, each letter consisting of solid stones. A beautiful effect is produced by one letter of turquoises, another of topazes and a third of brilliants.

Enameled letters are much less expensive and for general use prettier. A recent bride received as a gift a set of six initial plates. They were in script, the three letters being made of sterling silver intwined with tiny blue and white enameled forgetmenots with rhinestone centers.

Dimity For Little Miss.

Dimity, ever associated with the children's wardrobe, comes in especially pretty designs and colorings this season and made up in a simple model, with a lace tucker caressing the plump little neck, is an ideal frock for general warm weather wear.

It launders so well, too, and, though sheer, is really durable. A dainty little dress seen recently in a shop was of pink dimity with a tiny white figure. It had a full skirt taken into the belt, with groups of small side plaits, tucks and a hem being the finish on the bottom. The waist was a simple surplice, the front edges tucked as they met a V of fine nainsook insertion sewed together with veining. The belt was of fine nainsook beading threaded with black velvet, and the bands confining the puff sleeves corresponded.

In warm weather the small yoke could be removed, and the frock would be decidedly pretty and comfortable.

Learned by Experience.

That a glass bottle stopper which refuses to be loosened when ordinary methods are employed will yield readily if the neck of the bottle is held over the flame of a candle or match and turned until it is evenly heated.

In true art the hand, the head and the heart of man go together. But art is no recreation. It cannot be learned at spare moments nor pursued when we have nothing better to do.—Ruskin.

Two oil wells have been found on the J. Nelson farm in Tilbury west, that yield 200 barrels a day.

Amusing Story of a Young Married English Woman in the Police Court To-day--Friend Was a Clergyman Too.

Because she thought that a young man who accosted her at the C.P.R. Station on Tuesday, July 2nd, and asked her to go for a walk, was a former school friend of hers in merry England and had also came to Canada on the same boat with her a few weeks ago, Mrs. Perry, a young married English woman, accompanied the kind gentleman, and they strolled down the track and then along a street until they came to the street west of the exhibition grounds, where, Mrs. Perry asserts the man threw her down, after making an indecent proposition to her and endeavored to assault her. She beat him off and ran away, but had one of the sleeves torn out of her coat in attempting to do so. Later she recognized a person on the street, whom she thought was the friend of her ramble, and summoning a police officer she had him taken into custody. But it was a case of mistaken identity.

The case came up in police court this morning and created considerable amusement for everybody except Mrs. Perry. The young man who was arrested was employed by a local contractor and was able to prove conclusively that he was at work at the time. Mrs. Perry was out walking with her new found friend.

Mrs. Perry stated in the witness box that she had gone to the C.P.R. station on July 2nd, to meet some friends who were coming in on the noon train. While sitting on the platform about eleven o'clock a young man came up and spoke to her and asked her to go for a walk. Thinking that he was an old school friend of hers from England and that he had also come across on the same boat as she did, Mrs. Perry consented to go for a stroll and they walked down the track and then along a street until they reached a thoroughfare on the north side of the exhibition grounds. Here her companion threw her down and attempted to assault her, but she struggled and shouted and he was not able to accomplish his purpose. In attempting to get away she had one of the sleeves turn out of her coat. Witness stated that she went to Lakefield the same evening and did not come back to Peterborough for two weeks. After she had returned she noticed a young man standing in front of a restaurant whom she was sure was the one who had attempted to assault her, and after she had seen him around the street for a few days she had one of the police officers take him into custody, as he stood with some friends in front of a local hotel.

Mr. F. D. Kerr, who appeared for the prisoner, cross-examined the witness and elicited the information that the friend of her school days, whom she thought was the person who asked her to go for a walk on July 2nd, was a clergyman, "and a fine looking clergyman too," she added. She was of the opinion all the time she was walking with the fellow that he was her clergyman friend and only discovered her mistake when he started to use foul language and threw her down. She admitted that clergymen sometimes went to the bad, and that she wouldn't have gone to court with the matter, if she hadn't had the sleeve torn out of her coat.

The employer of the young man who was accused of the assault swore that the prisoner had been at work with him from 7 a.m. until 5 p.m. on July 2nd, and that it would have been impossible for him to have been at the C.P.R. station at the time specified by Mrs. Perry. His time card was produced in court to show that he had worked all day on July 2nd.

Another employee of the same contractor, swore that he had worked with the prisoner all day on July 2nd and the prisoner himself went into the box and gave similar evidence. The young man's employer and his fellow workmen, both were of the opinion that the accused did not look much like a clergyman.

City Clerk Armstrong, who presided at police court this morning, discharged the prisoner as it had been clearly proven that Mrs. Perry was mistaken and had picked out the wrong man.

CHEAPER EGGS AT THE GROCERS

Citizens Pay Much More on the Market—Grocers do Not Advertise

For some time the people of the city have been complaining about the high prices asked for butter and eggs on the Peterborough market. [illegible] a dozen [illegible] all season and the people paid it too. Last Saturday the market opened at twenty cents the market opened at 20c, but dropped to 19c. and a few to 18c. Even at those prices the people are paying too much, and are paying more than they are asked at the stores. For more than two weeks the ruling price at the stores have been 17c and 18c., and yet the citizens go to market and pay 20c to 22c., and thus encourage the farmers to keep the price on the local market as high or higher than it is on the Montreal or Toronto markets.

The grocers in the city are doing the best they can to keep the prices down. They buy in the country in large quantities and sell them at a cent or two less than the farmers ask. But the farmers get so much on the market that they will not sell to the grocers at any less, thus keeping the price up all around. A fair price for eggs during the spring, summer and early fall would be 15c., but not more than that, and the people should refuse to pay any more.

A well-known housewife said when spoken to, "How do we know that the stores are selling fresh eggs at 17c or 18c. I for one never see an advertisement in the paper from the grocers and I haven't time to run from one store to the other until I find those selling at the lowest price. I read the papers and am always watching for advertisements, but when the grocers do not advertise eggs at 17c or 18c I naturally suppose they are charging the same as the farmers."

New Gallery Will be Built at Once

Board of Managers of Knox Church Met Last Night

The Board of Managers of Knox church met last evening, and some very important business was transacted, in connection with the new gallery to be erected at the west end of the church. The meeting was presided over by Rev. Mr. Keith. The new gallery will be up-to-date and will be fitted up for Sunday school purposes. By a new device of folding doors, it can be divided into rooms for separate classes. There will be two rooms in the gallery and two underneath it. By means of these folding doors, the gallery can be made into one large room. It will be divided into rooms for Sunday school and opened up again for church service. As the congregation of Knox church is on the increase this gallery will be a great addition to the seating capacity of the church. Mr. J. F. Morrison has charge of the building of the gallery and tenders for its construction will be asked for in a few days.

Rev. Mr. and Mrs. Keith and family left last night on the midnight for Smith's Falls, where they will spend a month's vacation. During Mr. Keith's absence the pulpit will be occupied by good preachers. Rev. Orr Burnett of Almonte, will preach at both services next Sunday. Rev. Percy Thornton, B. A., of Toronto, will preach on August 11th, Rev. W. Johnson of Millbrook, on August 18th, and Rev. Mr. Bradley, B. A. of Berlin, will take the services on August 25th.

AN ENJOYABLE CONCERT GIVEN

At Pavilion in Chemong Park and Was Followed by a Dance

A most enjoyable concert was given in the pavilion at Chemong Park, last night, under the auspices of the Park Association. It was the first musical affair given this year, and it was greatly appreciated. The cottagers turned out en masse and several from the city were also present, so that the pavilion was well filled. It was an informal affair and was thus enjoyed all the more. Mr. Walter S. Davidson, as chairman of the programme committee, fulfilled his duties very satisfactorily, and at the close of the programme, delighted the audience by announcing that a little dance would be held. Those taking part in the programme were as follows,—

Instrumental duet—Mrs. McClennan and Miss Tully.

Vocal Solo—Mr. H. W. Marchet.

Vocal Solo—Miss Saunders of Toronto.

Piano Solo—Miss Hayes.

Recitation—Mrs. Hopwood.

Recitation—Mr. W. S. Davidson.

Piano Solo—Mrs. Alguire.

Vocal Solo—Mr. Hague Sawers.

The majority of those at the concert remained for the dance and a very jolly time was spent for a couple of hours. The music was furnished by Mrs. McClennan, Mrs. Dunn, Mrs. Alguire and Miss Saunders. Everyone hopes that two or three more such evenings will be provided before the season closes.

Dancing Pavilion is Wanted For Excursions to Jackson Park

Would Also be Serviceable in Case of Stormy Weather —City is Not Advertised and Many Excursions are Lost—Advice From Toronto People.

Some days ago one of the committee in charge of the Polson Iron Works excursion to Peterborough threw out a suggestion which might well be acted upon. He drew attention to the fact that this city, which is naturally so well provided with attractive places for excursions, lacks the few essentials which make a place popular. One of these is a pavilion in the park. There is no such building in any park in the city and there is no protection for the people in case of a storm. If it comes on a rain while a picnic is at the park the people have to stand out and get wet.

There is no provision in the city for dancing, and that is one of the big features which every excursion that leaves an up-to-date town or city. The Polson people missed it very much, and the committee, as well as the majority of those who came down, were surprised to find none here. The Oddfellows missed the pavilion the week before when they had to stand out in the rain all afternoon. That unfortunate circumstance alone did the city, as an excursion town, a great deal of harm.

In some ways Peterborough is still a village, and the people have yet some small-town ideas. The council is as much to blame and even more so than any individual. The erection of a good-sized pavilion and dance hall at Jackson Park, or any other park, would be a great drawing card for the city. Outsiders would appreciate it very much and the expense of putting it up would not be very much. Not only would the excursionists appreciate it, but large numbers of local citizens would make use of it for dancing, and in time of a storm.

ADVERTISE THE CITY.

Peterborough is also lacking in advertising. Not one circular, card, booklet, or anything else has been issued for the purpose of advertising the many attractions of the city. No one outside of Peterborough knows that there is such a place on the map, so far as advertising literature is concerned. The council last year and this year made an appropriation for the purpose of issuing a book with the advantages of the place brought out, but as yet nothing has been done. Those who were in the city on Saturday stated that many excursions from Toronto could be brought here if the people there had some means of learning of the city's attractions.

During the summer vacation and the fall the manufacturers committee who have charge of the publicity end of the city's business, might give a little of its attention to preparing literature for next year's business, and the council might take up the question of erecting a pavilion in the park.

Society is $250 a Year, Not $75 as Was Mentioned at the Council Meeting

The County Grant to the Children's Aid Society is $250.00, the city's is $200.00. The City Council approached the Shelter proposition in a public spirited manner last evening and it is hoped that the poor children will have in the near future a comfortable home. After all it is really with the children that the City and County Councils have [illegible] deal and the public will readily [illegible] the Council's [illegible]

TOO TIRED TO STIR!

ARE YOU ONE OF THE

WEAK WOMEN

To Become Bright, Happy and Healthy?—Use Ferrozone.

Modern life makes demands on every woman's strength that seem impossible to meet. Only the robust and strong can stand the strain. The weak, with their delicately balanced organisms, must fail. Blood gets thin, it's innutritious. Nerves go to smash, vitality declines, and then follows misery and suffering caused by interference with certain functions upon which the very existence of every female depends.

Don't let your condition grow worse. Check the decline of vital force before it is too late! The one sure remedy is Ferrozone—not a temporary stimulant—but an uplifting nutritive tonic that contains the kind of building material a weak body requires.

FERROZONE revitalizes the system by putting new life into the blood. Not only does it nourish the ordinary blood supply—it does more, it makes new blood, the rich, red kind that denotes health.

Energy is reinforced, strength is steadily and surely rebuilt. Keen appetite, strong nerves, more restful sleep, buoyant feelings, all tell of the enormous good Ferrozone invariably accomplishes. For restoring the weak, the pale, the despondent, there is no treatment so instant and permanent in effect as Ferrozone. A trial proves this. Won't you use Ferrozone yourself? It will surely make you well—its effect is instant.

BUILT UP HER STRENGTH

Mrs. M. E. Etherington, a well known merchant's wife, of Troy, writes: "I am quite willing to give a public testimonial for Ferrozone, believing it to be a tonic of superior excellence, and one that will rapidly build up strength and supply new energy to anyone not feeling well. Last Spring I was in a very poor condition of health. I was nervous, felt tired and completely worn out. No doubt it is quite a common complaint with ladies of my age, but I placed great reliance in Ferrozone, and took it for several weeks. It made me quite strong, and, in fact, I have been in better health ever since. I can heartily recommend Ferrozone."

Ferrozone Assures Good Health!

Score of Lives Are Lost; Awful Tragedy is Recorded

New York Tenement Proves an Awful Death Trap.

Majority of the Victims Were Women and Children — Fire Followed an Explosion — Many Suffered Mortal Injury in Wild Panic—The Stronger Survived in the Wild Scramble For Escape.

New York, July 30.—After an all-night search of the ruins of the six-storey tenement at No. 222 Christie street, which was burned shortly after midnight, the police announced that there were twenty victims of the fire.

The bodies of the dead were found in all sorts of unexpected places, to which persons had fled after the fire broke out. Almost all of the bodies were burned beyond recognition, many to such an extent that it was impossible to distinguish the sex. A majority of the victims, the police believed, were women and children.

The burned building was one of those old-fashioned tenements common to the east side, with a store on the ground floor and the apartments upstairs crowded with tenants, mainly Italians.

The fire started in the store and swept through the building with such rapidity that a fifth of the 100 tenants in the place met a horrible death.

Another score, though they escaped with their lives, were more or less burned or otherwise injured.

A passer-by was attracted by the explosion, which apparently occurred on the basement floor. As he turned toward the building the whole front, with its flimsy fire-escapes, fell into the street and from the sagging floors a score of half awakened persons dropped into the street.

Many of these were badly hurt, but they proved to be the more fortunate of the tenants, for in another moment the building was wrapped in flames and the cries of the persons burning to death rent the air.

In the wild panic that followed many suffered mortal injury. The police and firemen, who soon reached the scene, attempted to take the imperilled tenants from the side and rear windows, but few who were free to act did not wait for assistance, but jumped into the street.

Several who sought escape by a rear stairway were driven back by choking smoke. Some of these made their way through the fire to other exits, but more fell, overcome in the hall, to be dragged out insensible.

Of the dead and dying the larger part were women and children. In the mad scramble for exit and safety, the stronger in most cases survived.

The flames were not controlled until the building was practically in ashes, when the search for the bodies began.

SOCIETY IN TERRIBLE STATE.

British Press Comments Upon the Haywood Trial.

London, July 30.—Commenting on the result of the trial of William D. Haywood at Boise, The Chronicle yesterday says:

"The state of society revealed by the trial is more terrible than any civil war, because it is more treacherous and is likely to be more lasting. From beginning to end it reveals a condition of brutal rapacity, confronted with savage, despairing violence, a condition that gives American boasted 'civilization' a very dubious look."

The Daily News says: "From the outset the question has been complicated by the fierce prejudices of a kind of smoldering class war. The whole movement, both in the revelations of the trial and its accompaniments in public excitement, has illustrated the insecurity of authority in America and the profound skepticism concerning the indentity of law and justice."

Both editorials refer to President Roosevelt's "undesirable citizens" statement.

The News calls it one of his frequent public indiscretions, and The Chronicle predicts that it will cost him dear.

Bryan is Glad.

Peoria, Ills., July 30.—W. J. Bryan is quoted as follows on the Haywood verdict:

"I am glad to learn of the verdict and that it was not guilty. I watched the trial and did not see how any one could be found guilty on Orchard's testimony. Every crime he charged was one he himself suggested, and it was shown he was in communication with the mine owners and attempting to induce the defendants to engage in crime.

"The manner in which the prisoners were taken from Colorado was hardly in keeping a fair prosecution."

Rubbing It In.

Oyster Bay, N.Y., July 30.—Without comment President Roosevelt made public this telegram received by him yesterday referring to the verdict in the Haywood murder trial:

"New York, July 28, 1907.
"President Roosevelt:
"Undesirable citizens victorious. Rejoice.
(Signed) "Emma Goldman, Alexander Berkman, Hippolite Havel."

TRIED TO WRECK TRAIN.

Fishplates and Spikes Drawn From a Curve on the C.N.O.

Port Arthur, July 30.—An attempt was made Sunday to wreck the Canadian Northern express.

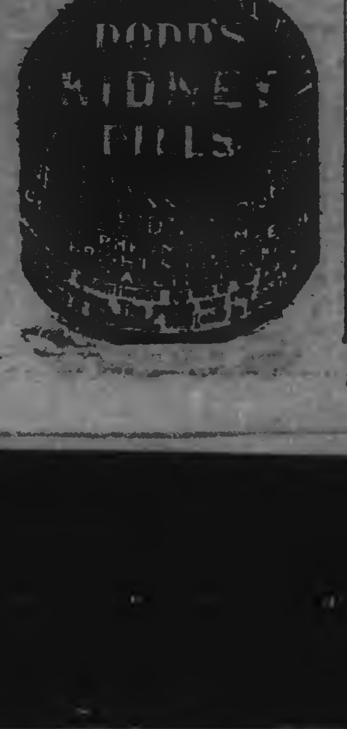
When a freight train, west bound, reached the forty-three-mile post, it was noticed that the track had been tampered with, and the train was stopped.

At the curve the fishplates and spikes had been withdrawn, and there was nothing holding the rails.

The place where it had evidently been decided to wreck the train is one of the most dangerous on the road. It is at the bottom of a hill, and there is a sharp curve.

The train would have been hurled some distance into the river, and very few would have escaped.

Detectives have been sent out to investigate the affair.



Smuggled Clothes Seized.

Montreal, July 30.—An extensive business has been carried on smuggling clothing from Montreal into the United States, Portland being the line largely used to ship the goods. Frank Johnson, a United States officer, has to a large extent broken up the business, having seized about $25,000 worth of goods and arrested a Pullman conductor, who was alleged to be concerned.

The goods were hidden in the boxes under the Pullman seats. Seizures have been going on for some time. Many people in the United States have been getting their clothes here, as it is claimed they can do better in values than at home.

Warrants are out for the arrest of at least a dozen Montreal tailors, which, however, cannot be executed unless they go to the United States.

C.P.R. Inspection.

Toronto, July 30.—Sir Thomas Shaughnessy and a party of C.P.R. officials, including General Manager Leonard, Superintendent Osborne and Divisional Superintendent Everett, are making a tour of inspection over the company's lines in Ontario this week. They left by special train yesterday morning for Muskoka and go west to-day as far as Windsor. Their next visit will be to Guelph and Goderich division, which they will inspect to the end of the line.

The Deadly Auto.

North Attleboro, Mass., July 30.—An automobile owned by Louis D. Barrows, and containing also Mrs. Florence Murray, Dr. Thomas Ford, and Mrs. Howard Black, crashed into an iron bridge last Saturday night, instantly killing Mrs. Murray and seriously injuring Ford.

CAID MACLEAN IN DANGER.

His Position Is More Precarious Now Than Ever.

Tangier, July 30.—The Shereefian troops Saturday attacked villages belonging to the Kmass tribe, in whose territory the bandit Raisuli holds Caid Sir Harry MacLean prisoner. The troops burned and looted the villages, killing many of the inhabitants and taking a large number of prisoners. The Government forces were completely victorious, but as the battle was fought within six hours' journey of where Caid MacLean is believed to be located, his position is regarded as more precarious than ever.

Having reached the walled town of Sheshuan on Saturday, the heads of the Kmass villages met Bouchta and offered to discuss with him terms for the release of Caid MacLean. The Government officials declined to discuss this matter and demanded the surrender forthwith of Raisuli.

He then burned the villages, occupied Sheshuan and beheaded the rebels who had been killed in the fight.

CORTEGE OF SIX HEARSES.

Toronto Junction Mourns at the Biers of Nine Young Men.

Toronto Junction, July 30.—Places of business and industry were closed; heavy crepe draped the buildings on the principal streets, and flags floated at half-mast on the public buildings yesterday during the funerals of Frank Kyle, Leonard and Frank Daly, John Irving, Walter Dundin and Reginald Miller, six of the nine young men who were drowned in Humber Bay on Friday morning last.

A joint service was held in Victoria Presbyterian Church. The funeral was of public character, attended by representatives of the different municipal bodies, and hundreds followed the hearses which conveyed the deceased from the homes of their parents to the church and thence to their last resting-place. The streets through which the solemn cortege wended its way were lined with people bowed in reverence as the procession passed.

At Petawawa Camp.

Petawawa Camp, July 30—The British light artillerymen opened the competition yesterday morning in composite battery firing. Direct and indirect methods were used with good results, the most effective work being done at 3,200 and 3,000 yards respectively. The heavy artillery competition takes place to-day.

No official scores will be given out until all shooting is concluded.

Lord Stradbrooke and Countess Stradbrooke watched the manoeuvres yesterday morning.

The British team was commanded by Capt. Davies with Capts. Flowers and McHugh in charge of the subsections.

Actress, Despondent, Suicides.

Colorado Springs, Col., July 30.—The body of Miss Laura Matthews of New York City was found lying in a lane near Ivy Wild yesterday with a bullet hole in her head. Developments indicate suicide. Miss Matthews was a well-known musical comedy actress, 19 years old.

It is said she was engaged to a wealthy Chicagoian and was despondent because of his failure to fulfill his promise of marriage.

Admits Forgery.

Kenton, Ohio, July 30.—Thomas Black, the most prominent lawyer in the city, a leading Republican politician and mayor for two terms, gave himself up to the sheriff yesterday acknowledging the forgery of $28,000.

His operations extend, he says, over a period of nine years.

Mrs Susanna Willows, aged 89, was found dead in bed at the home of her son near Tempo, Ont.

Contention is at an End; Better Relations Now Exist

New Commercial Treaty Between Russia and Japan.

No Provision Made For Tariff Agreement—Favored Nation Clause to Be Applied—Liberal Concessions to Japanese Fishing, and They May Control—Fisheries Convention to Last for 12 Years.

St. Petersburg, July 30.—The signing yesterday at the Foreign Office here of the treaties of commerce, navigation and fisheries between Russia and Japan will be followed shortly by the publication of a political entente wiping out the last traces of the contentions and hostilities arising from the late war.

The Foreign Office yesterday confirmed the despatch to the Associated Press from Tokio on this matter, and admitted officially that a general political agreement between the two states was in course of preparation, that the negotiations to this end had almost reached their conclusion, and that the signatures would be affixed to this document within a few days.

This entente is conceived along the same general lines as the recent similar agreement between France and Japan. Under its terms Russia and Japan will mutually guarantee their rights and territory.

The negotiations looking to this entente have been conducted with complete secrecy because of the Japanese dislike of publicity, but it was learned yesterday that Foreign Minister Iswolsky's desire to settle pending questions in the Far East and inaugurate a new policy of peaceful colonisation and development in the Rusian provinces bordering on the Pacific was met in a spirit of moderation and conciliation on the part of Japan which enabled satisfactory progress to be made, and assured a successful outcome. The relations between Russia and Japan are on such a satisfactory basis that the recent occurrences in Korea exercised no influence upon them.

New Commercial Treaty.

The commercial treaty between the two countries is of a temporary nature. It expires in 1911. No provision is made for a tariff agreement, but the two powers agree mutually to apply the most favored nation clause. They stipulate further that the subjects of each shall enjoy equality under the law and equal commercial opportunity without hindrance or discrimination, and that neither shall be subject to special imposts. The most important feature of this convention consists of an article excluding Kwangtung Province from the provisions of the treaty.

The fisheries convention is to last for twelve years. There has been much dissatisfaction over the question of fishing rights. The convention embraces the Okhotsk, Yellow Sea and Behring Strait areas. It includes all sea animals except the sea otter.

Russia makes unusually liberal concessions to Japanese fishing on the Russian coast and the Amur River, and it is claimed that under these privileges Japan will dominate the fisheries of the Pacific.

Japs Will Control.

The Japanese are to pay the same taxes as Russians, and the export of fish to Japan is declared to be free from all export duty. The Japanese concessionaries are allowed to employ Japanese laborers along the coast, except at the mouth of the Amur River, where they are obliged to employ Russians.

In view of the cheap price of coolie labor it is believed that the Japanese will be able to become possessed of nearly all the fishing concessions.

A STATE OF TYRANNY

Lords Condemn the Government in the Congo.

Archbishop of Canterbury Regards It as Most Humiliating—Great Britain's Responsibility Emphasized—Another Convention Is Advocated—Lord Monkswell Uses Strong Words In Calling For the Papers.

London, July 30.—"The system of government in the Congo Independent State is one of unrestrained tyranny enforced by the lash and the bullet, by cruelty and by murder."

These words were spoken by Lord Monkswell, who raised the Congo question in the House of Lords yesterday, and moved for the papers. The attendance in the House was slight.

Lord Monkswell said that the Congo Government was a powerful engine of greed, which impudently and insolently violated the limitations and restrictions under which its rights over this territory had been granted. The speaker quoted authorities to support his statements, and added that an especial responsibility attached to Great Britain, because, except for her determined action, the King of Portugal and not the King of the Belgians, would at this moment have been the ruler of the Congo.

The Archbishop of Canterbury declared that the Congo was one of the most disheartening and humiliating of contemporary questions. He said it was a ghastly irony to read to-day the words of the address presented to King Leopold by the City of London in 1884, congratulating His Majesty upon his "bloodless victory." He declared the British Government should be regarded of the sense of responsibility of all Englishmen in this matter.

A general debate on the Congo question followed, and a number of bishops were among the speakers. The Earl of Mayo advocated another international convention in the matter of the Congo, and failing that, the appointment of more British consuls in the upper Congo. Lord Fitzmaurice, Under Secretary for Foreign Affairs, speaking for the Government, said they were not blind to the fact that this matter was surrounded with grave difficulties. The Government had asked the Congo state, he said, not to disregard the experiences of previous governments of native states, and had instanced the early history of British East India. The present system, the speaker said, was certain to have evil consequences.

Lord Fitzmaurice admitted that the House of Lords had a right to ask what progress had been made, but he said it was an international question, and if the House took any sudden, rash action, it would run the risk of injuring the cause it had at heart.

At the conclusion of Lord Fitzmaurice's address Lord Monkswell withdrew his motion.

Second Brother Drowned.

St. John, N.B., July 30.—George Smith, aged 25, a prosperous farmer, was drowned yesterday in the river near his home. He was a brother of Fred Smith, who a few weeks ago was burned to death in the fire which destroyed the river steamer Crystal Stream.

The drowning took place only a short distance from the scene of the fire. Smith, who was married only a few months, entered the water while overheated from working in the hay field, and took a cramp, sinking within a few feet of his brother, who, on shore, was unable to swim and could not help him.

Fatal Auto Accident.

Niagara Falls, N.Y., July 30.—In a collision at 10 o'clock last night, near the city line, between an automobile and a carriage, four persons were badly hurt.

Montreal Live Stock.

MONTREAL, July 29.—(Special.)—At the Montreal Stock Yards' West End Market the receipts of live stock for the week ending July 27 were 2959 cattle, 541 sheep and lambs, 2516 hogs and 707 calves, while the supplies for local consumption this morning were 1600 cattle, 300 sheep and lambs, 1250 hogs and 300 calves. The weak feeling which developed in the market for cattle a week ago has continued to be the main feature of the trade, and prices show a further decline of ¼c per lb, owing to continued liberal supplies, for which there is only a limited demand, as the consumption of beef during the months of July and August is comparatively small, as compared with the balance of the year, on account of so many consumers being out of town; and, as the weather is warmer, butchers will only buy sufficient to fill actual requirements. There was no demand from exporters this morning. A cable received from Liverpool on Saturday reported trade slow, with prices unchanged from a week ago. During the early part of the day local jobbers bought some fair-sized lots, but after they had filled their wants trade became quiet and draggy, as the butchers were not disposed to operate freely. Choice beeves sold at 5½c to 5¾c; good at 4¾c to 5c; fair at 4½c to 4¾c, and lower grades at 3c to 4c per lb. A steady feeling prevailed in the market for hogs, and prices show no change, compared with those paid last Wednesday. Supplies were fair, for which the demand from local packers and dealers was fairly good, with sales of selected lots at $7.12½ to $7.37½ per 100 lbs., weighed off cars.

A fairly active trade was done in sheep, lambs and calves. The offerings were moderate, for which the demand was good, and prices show no change from a week ago. Sheep sold at 4c per lb.; lambs at $4 to $6, and calves at $3 to $4.50 each.

Is There Another Cobalt Located In the Locality of Stony Lake?

Well Defined Mineral Vein Discovered on the Farm of Wm. Windsor, About Two Miles From Burleigh Falls—Is it Silver or Nickel? Sample Has Been Sent to Toronto to be Tested—Great Excitement Prevails

Great excitement prevails among the farmers around Stony Lake and among the cottagers at that well-known summer resort region, on account of the discovery of a rich mineral vein on the farm of William Windsor, who resides on lot 4, in the third concession of Burleigh township.

Although the find was made several days ago, the news was kept quiet and it is only this week, that the farmers in the surrounding country and the people who are summering at the lakes, heard of the discovery but the news is now spreading rapidly and great interest has been aroused.

Has another Cobalt been discovered? Are the nickel riches of Sudbury imbedded in the rocks of Burleigh? These are questions that are being asked and discussed by those who have heard of the discovery. A sample of the mineral discovered has been sent to the School of Mines at Toronto, where it is being tested and word as to its value is expected in a day or so.

WELL-DEFINED VEIN.

The discovery consists of a well-defined vein of mineral ore, and was made by Mr. Windsor, the owner of the farm a few days ago. The vein is well-defined and is about fourteen inches in width. It is lying on the surface and extends for several hundred feet, finally disappearing under the rocks. It has not yet been ascertained, how deep the vein runs but from a cursory examination it would appear that it went down a considerable distance. The formation of the vein is distinctly mineral. The ore has the bright appearance of silver and is almost pure, the percentage of rock being very small.

IS IT SILVER?

It was at first thought that a discovery of silver had been made, but the majority of those who have seen the vein state that it is more likely nickel. However, it may be silver, and nothing will be definitely known until the result of the test at Toronto is heard.

PETERBOROUGH MAN THERE.

A prominent Peterborough gentleman, who has a cottage at Stony Lake, visited Windsor's farm yesterday and saw the mineral vein. He was spending Sunday at his cottage and having heard of the discovery decided to remain over on Monday and see for himself. In company with several others he visited the Windsor farm yesterday and saw the vein that had been discovered. When seen by the Review today the gentleman in question stated that he had little doubt but that the discovery was of considerable value. He did not think that the mineral was silver, but was of the opinion that it was nickel. A piece of silver ore when hammered will flatten out. The ore discovered on Mr. Windsor's farm is of a mere brittle nature, and breaks when subjected to heavy pressure. It is said by those who are qualified to know that it is likely it is nickel that has been discovered. Whatever it is it appears to be there in large quantities and even if it is only nickel the discovery is of great value for nickel is a valuable mineral especially when found in large quantities.

LOCATION OF THE FARM.

Nearly everyone who summers at Stony Lake knows where the Windsor farm is. It is located on the northwestern shore of the lake between Juniper and Burleigh Falls, being about two miles distant from the latter place. The land is very rocky and the owner has to keep hustling to make a livelihood.

NEAR THE LAKE.

The vein that has been located is not far from the shore of the lake and can be reached quite readily. The spot is being visited by many persons who are found to increase in numbers as the news of the find spreads.

ARE THEY RIGHT?

Many people have always held that there were minerals in the rocks in the north of Peterborough county and their contention has been strengthened in recent years by the discoveries at Cobalt and other points in Northern Ontario. The rock formation in the northern portion of Peterborough county is much the same as that at Cobalt and other points in the northern part of the province.

Is the long cherished hope that there is something more than rocks and water in the northern townships about to be realized?

Walked From Chemony in One Hour and Three Minutes

They're getting after the Chemong-Peterborough walking record.

A few days ago the Best brothers made the distance in an hour and nineteen minutes, after taking it easy for the first part of the stretch, as they expected the bus would overtake them. The announcement of this feat set people talking, and much has been heard regarding what has been done and what was going to be done to the Chemong-Peterborough record.

This morning Sergeant-Major Brittain, who has a considerable reputation as a walker, made the distance from Chemong to the city in one hour and three minutes, which is a highly creditable record. He left the Chemong Hotel sharp at ten o'clock, and it was exactly three minutes after eleven when he reached the Peterborough post office. Mr. W. H. Hill and Mr. Brown, of the Chemong Hotel, followed the Sergt.-Major in a buggy and vouch for the authenticity of the time made. It was just eleven o'clock when the walker reached Central Park, and he made the distance from there to the post office in three minutes. The Sergeant-Major was lightly clad and wore ordinary running shoes. He has made the distance from Chemong to the city in one hour, and believes that he would have made an equally good record today if he had not left Chemong so soon after breakfast. His stomach was bothering him a little before the walk was completed.

The distance from Chemong to the city is about 8 miles, 300 yards, and that an hour and three minutes is a remarkably good record for the stretch.

Sergt.-Major Brittain will attempt to make the distance in one hour.

WEDDING BELLS

LORD—ALLEN

A quiet wedding was celebrated at St. Peter's cathedral this morning, at eight o'clock when Miss Margaret Allin of this city, daughter of the et Allin, daughter of the late John Allin, of this city, was united in marriage to Mr. Napoleon Lord, also of this city. The ceremony was performed by Rev. Father McColl. Miss Katie Allin, sister of the bride acted as bridesmaid, and Mr. Peter Lord assisted the groom.

Owing to the very recent bereavement in the bride's family, the wedding was very quiet.

JACKSON PARK IS VERY DIRTY

Aldermen Think Street Railway Should Keep it Clean After the Picnics

Ald Leary drew the attention of the city council to the fact that Jackson Park is frequently left in a very dirty condition after picnics. The excursionists were not blamed at all, because there are no refuse boxes or any place where scraps, papers, etc., could be put. But the alderman said he had been out there several times in the daytime, and the park was disgracefully dirty. It was felt by the council that the street railway company, who get the benefit of the park, and who receive the lion's share of the money spent by excursionists at the park, should keep the place clean and respectable.

It was pointed out that the city could not force the railway company to clean the place up as it was not mentioned in the agreement. But the trustees of the Nicholls estate could request it to be done. Then when the city is making a new arrangemnt with the railway company this could be taken into consideration.

Because a neighbor jocularly told him to eat some Paris green he had found, Geo. Plumbrook, at Cornwall, did so and died.

Early Session of Police Court

Several Minor Cases Before Magistrate Dumble This Morning

Magistrate Dumble was back in his place at the police court this morning and disposed of several cases which had come up before him.

For threatening to draw a knife with the intention of stabbing a man John Fritz was bound over to keep the peace and was committed to jail until such time as he can secure two securities who will promise that he will make no more threats. Arthur Cutgreave was the complainant, and stated that Fritz boarded at the same house as he did. Last night it appears that the two had some words and Fritz told Cutgreave that he would put a knife in him the first chance he got. "Ever since I went there, he has been trying to pick a row with me" said Fritz. It appears that Fritz has been doing all kinds of menial work, and Cutgreave was raising objection to him staying at the house. "You can't make threats like that in this country," said His Worship, "and you will go to jail until you get your sureties."

AN ASSAULT CASE.

Alfred Taylor was charged with assaulting Raymond Welsh. Mr. R. F. McWilliams appeared for Taylor and pleaded not guilty. These boys with a number of others were playing a game of ball. Taylor was catching behind the bat. There was some mud thrown, which hit young Taylor in the eye. He thought Welsh had thrown it at him, and he became angered and threw a stone at Welsh, striking him in the mouth. The case was dismissed, His Worship warning the boys that they should not throw stones, but should play the game without quarrelling.

CHARGE OF THEFT.

Two young girls were arraigned before His Worship this morning, charged with stealing some wearing apparel from the residence of Mr. Wm. Duncan, east city. One girl was allowed to go, there being no evidence against her, but the other one was locked up, the case being enlarged till tomorrow. She wept bitterly as she was placed in the cell.

FOUND PIECE OF HOT METAL

In His Dining Room This a. m. —S. J. Campbell's Novel Experience

Mr. S. J. Campbell, who resides at 257 Wolfe street, had a very novel experience at his home this morning about 8 o'clock. He was standing at the dining room window, which was opened and overlooking the G.T.R. tracks. While standing there a freight train came along and just as it passed Mr Campbell the cylinder head blew out with a crack like a gun. Mr. Campbell jumped back for an instant and the train went on for some distance. When he went to the breakfast table to partake of his morning meal he found on the floor a large V shaped piece of metal, which was still very hot and which evidently was part of the engine. But how it got into the house is a mystery. Mr Campbell did not see it pass him and it could not get in any other way. But it was there. Outside the house part of a wheel was thrown against the wall and a piece of shafting was lying in the yard.

SIX LUNGE IN QUICK ORDER

Two Fishermen Have Splendid Luck on the Otonabee

Six 'lunge in two hours is pretty fair fishing, and when it is taken into consideration that they were all good sized ones, the record is all the more creditable. Fred Dearborn, of Toronto, who is visiting friends in this locality, and David Johnson, of North Monaghan, went fishing in the Otonabee yesterday afternoon, and in about two hours pulled in six fine 'lunge, the total weight of the half dozen being over forty pounds. This fine catch was made near Hale's bridge, and, needless to say, the two gentlemen are greatly pleased with the fine sport. In addition to the six fish caught, one got away, and it is the opinion of the two fishermen that it was the biggest of the lot.

"The Otonabee for mine when it comes to fishing," remarked Mr Dearborn today.

Glen McDonald, of Fort Qu'Appelle, Sask., a student at Heidelberg, Germany, lost a hand in a chemical explosion.

Remodelling of Old City Hall

The chief object of the council meeting last night was not touched, viz., the consideration of the plans for the remodelling of the city hall. The drawings have been ready for some time, and it was proposed that the council should decide last night what to do with them. But so much time was taken up with routine business and in discussing other business that the aldermen would not stay until after midnight. Therefore, the building will remain as it is for some time, until the fall or winter anyway, when men are not so scarce and wages are lower.

BRITISH DELEGATES CRITICIZED

William T. Stead Declares They Have Not Done Their Duty.

London, July 30.—William T. Stead, editor of The Review of Reviews, who has been conducting a publication at The Hague devoted to peace conference matters, when interviewed on the progress of the peace conference, delivered a serious indictment against the British delegates. He said:

"Until last Saturday, when, under the pressure of angry protests, the British Government instructed its delegates to make a belated declaration of adhesion to the American plan of obligatory arbitration, nothing, in short, for anything the British people believed they had been sent to The Hague to do.

"Their action, and still more, their inaction has been the amazement and despair of all the friends of peace. I do not exaggerate in the least when I say that, as far as every principle the British Government is supposed to have at heart is concerned, it would have been far better to have had no delegates at all than the men who have shown skepticism where they ought to have shown enthusiasm; who have repelled where they ought to have attracted; who have been a wet blanket upon every aspiration of the peace crusaders, and who have succeeded in utterly destroying England's reputation as the leader of the peace-loving nations of the world.

"As members of a conference striving for peace ideals, they are about the most incompetent set of beings that ever achieved an unmitigated failure.

"Great Britain having abandoned her traditional position, the leadership has fallen into the hands of Germany and the United States, and we taught the Americans that the Germans are warmer friends and stouter allies than the British."

Britain and Germany Agree.

The Hague, July 30.—Great Britain and Germany have practically agreed on a proposition regarding the establishment of an international prize court under the terms of which the tribunal is made permanent and is to have fifteen judges.

There are still differences between Great Britain and Germany regarding the laws under which the prize court will operate.

JAPANESE NOT PLEASED.

Declare That Customs Regulations as Teas Are Too Stringent.

Ottawa, July 30.—Canada's new customs regulations making more stringent provisions against the importation of adulterated teas are not regarded favorably in Japan. Reporting on the subject to the Trade and Commerce Department, Alex. McLean, commercial agent in Yokohama says:

"It happens that the bulk of the teas exported from this country to Canada are described as low grade and it is mainly the low grade or cheap teas that are affected by the regulations in question.

"As they are regarded here, the regulations subject the exportation of tea to Canada to the delay involved in examination and testing, and possibly to chemical analysis, before the product can pass the customs and then to the delay is added the cost of return transportation in the case of such quantities as may be rejected.

"It is represented that the trade cannot be carried on under these conditions.

"At the present time shipment is actively going on, and the putting into force now of regulations, however salutory, not anticipated when the season's trade was being negotiated, may prove very embarrassing to exporter and importer alike."

To Colonize New Brunswick.

St. John, N.B., July 29.—With a view of keeping the young men of this province from emigrating to the west, and to encourage settlers on the large areas of crown lands in the northern part of the province, the New Brunswick Government have decided to establish a colonization branch of all of the existing departments of the Government.

Children Smother In Bin.

South Windsor, Conn., July 30.—Etta and Frank Prior, 10 years and 9 years old respectively, the children of Mr. and Mrs. Frank N. Prior, were found dead in a grain bin on the farm of Henry Pease, their grandfather, Sunday. They had hidden themselves there in play.

New System of Engines.

London, July 30.—The White Star Line announces that a new principle will be adopted in the new 14,000 ton steamship, which is being built by Harland & Wolffe for that company's Dominion service to Canada—a combination of turbines with reciprocating engines.

"Do Good," Says John D.

Cleveland, Ohio, July 30.—John D. Rockefeller told members of the Sunday school of the Euclid avenue Baptist Church Sunday that the great secret of success is "Get away from the butterfly pursuits of life and devote yourself to doing good to those around you."

A GOOD COMPANY RESULT

Copy. Port Perry, Ont., April 15th, 1905.

My Dear Sir—

I yesterday received Bonus Addition Certificate from the Canada Life Assurance Company, amounting to the handsome sum of $[illegible], being the profits on my $4,000 policy, and in writing you at the present time, I wish to express my gratification in having nearly $1,300 more insurance than when I took out the policy in 18[illegible].

With only three more payments to make, I find the Limited Payment Life Policy ever so much more satisfactory than any other, as under my policy all the premiums will be paid while I am yet under forty years of age, and I have an insurance in the Canada Life which will be largely increased in amount, and particularly so, as life expectancy is nearly thirty years.

[illegible] I am [illegible] pleased with the result of my insurance investment in the Canada Life.

With best wishes
Yours truly,
W. G. MOREY

System of Street Numbering In Force in Peterborough

Mayor McWilliams Proposes Some Changes in the System to Make it More Simple and Applicable to Short Streets—All Streets Will be Numbered the Same.

A system of simple, accurate numbering for the streets of the city is something of great importance to Peterborough, especially at this time when it is proposed to adopt the street delivery of mails. There is now existing a system which is excellent so far as it goes, and probably no town or city in Canada has as good. There are, however, some changes needed, and Mayor McWilliams has undertaken to prepare a paper on some of the changes he proposes. The matter was discussed at the Board of Works the other night and below will be found the Mayor's paper:—

MEMORANDUM RE STREET NUMBERING.

With the introduction of a mail delivery it becomes of great importance that the city should have a complete numbering of the houses and that the numbering should be done on some simple, easily-understood system and one that is capable of being extended beyond the present limits of the city without substantial change. Peterborough has at the present time a very good system of numbering; in fact there are few places in Canada which have as good a system, but it was laid out before the present outer parts of the city were developed, and in these outer parts there is a total lack of system. The proposal I made at the Board of Works meeting was that we should rectify this trouble and place the street numbering west of Park street and south of [illegible] street on a system that would [illegible], no matter how far out the city may go. To understand the proposed change it is necessary to understand the existing system.

The [illegible] of street numbering now in use was devised almost twenty years ago by, I am informed, Mr. William Langford and Mr. W. H. [illegible], then members of the Council, and [illegible] in a systematic way all the part of the town included in the original town plot, that is between [illegible] street and [illegible] street, and between [illegible] street and the [illegible]. [illegible] the result that all the streets running north and south [illegible] street at No. 400, [illegible] at No. 300, and [illegible] at No. 600. [illegible] street [illegible] at 400, etc. [illegible] at No. 100 and [illegible] street at No. 100 [illegible] three defects. Firstly it would [illegible] the street which is contrary to the general [illegible]; thirdly, the system [illegible]. The first two of these defects could not be remedied without upsetting the whole numbering and I do not think the advantage to be gained is worth the inconvenience that would be caused. The third defect is one that could easily be remedied and should be at the present time.

Queen street, for example, should begin at No. 300, at which all the streets from Simcoe street and Division street should begin at No. 300. On the whole, however, the system is an exceedingly good one and can be taken as the base from which to develop the system in the other portions of the city.

When Ashburnham joined the city and its streets were numbered a system was devised based on that in use in the town with some improvements. All streets running north and south from Hunter street east at No. 400, the [illegible] across the river and also from Moore street at No. 500. McFarlane street (the Norwood road) at 600, Rogers street at 300, and Maria street at 200. Similarly all the streets running east and west are numbered to begin at a line in the river parallel to Concession street, and number to the east, reaching Concession street at No. 200, Mark street at No. 100, and Rogers street at No. 150.

When Park street is crossed the numbers are continued or begun in such a way as to lose altogether the advantages of the system. Owing to the different angle of the western portion of the city streets like Sherbrooke, Charlotte, Hunter and McDonnel, which continue west of Park reach that point at different numbers, and as they are now numbered without any break there is no parallelism west of Park street. This may seem of little account at the present time but when it is remembered that if the city grows the time will come when the greater portion of it will lie west of Park street, it will be seen to be of importance that there should be a [illegible] system [illegible] which would be equally applicable not only [illegible] of the present boundary but [illegible] the city [illegible]. What I propose is that the streets running across Park street should make a break in the numbering so as to begin the westerly part at an even number say 400, and that all streets beginning at Park street should begin to number at 400. Keeping practically the same scale of frontage for number the Monaghan road would be reached at No. 600 and so all the streets that run parallel to the Monaghan road no subsequent change would be necessary.

In the southern portion of the city a similar system could easily be devised. If Lake street is to be preserved as the base and this cannot be changed without upsetting the numbering all over the city, then all streets south of Lake street must be numbered as George street south, Aylmer street south, etc. A glance at the map will show that all the southern portion of the township of Monaghan to the south is laid out on a regular system of park lots extending as far as Crawford's grove, and that with the same space per number and a slight adjustment between Lake street and Romaine street, a very simple system could be established. All streets crossing [illegible] Lake street should number so as to reach Romaine street at No. 100, [illegible] at No. 200, and [illegible] street [illegible] No. 300, when the city is extended to that line. West of Park street the same system as in the central part of the city would apply.

These changes would provide a regular and simple system throughout the city with the exception of the part [illegible] of Smith street, where the irregularity of the many surveys is [illegible] as to baffle almost any [illegible] as a system [illegible] of the numbering would make it to be of a very great and constant advantage everywhere [illegible].

WHAT IS BEING DONE?

To the Editor of the Review.

Sir,—Is anything being done to put the sewer at the King Edward School in shape for the opening of the school for the fall term. Seven teachers have been engaged and it is imperative that the school must be occupied in September. There is only five weeks to do what has to be done and whoever is responsible for its doing should get busy. The public will not stand for any more dilly-dallying by the City Council in connection with this important matter.

Is a building that cost several thousand dollars to remain vacant because the sewer is not working properly and no effort is being made to right it!

Yours,
CITIZEN.

Regular Session City Council Routine Business Put Through

Reports of Committees Were Read and Discussed—By-laws Passed—Deputations Were Heard—Ald Bradburn and McIntyre and the Carter's Shelter.

The last meeting of the City Council to be held until the regular meeting in September was held last night when a lot of routine business was put through. In addition, there were long arguments on matters that had been threshed out in committee, and a little excitement was created when Ald. Bradburn and Ald. McIntyre had a little tift over the carters' shelter.

DEPUTATIONS

Two deputations were heard, as follows:—

Mr. Hickey, Bethune street, said that the water in front of his place was very bad and he wanted the council to open a drain right through to the extreme north end so as to drain the water away. Next spring, if the water is as bad as it was last year he would have to build an addition to his cellar to keep it from caving in.—Referred to the Board of Works with power to act.

Mr. Pollock, of Concession street, requested that the waterworks be extended another block so as to give him some protection in case of fire. He has been paying taxes for 35 years, and during all that time he has had no fire protection.

It was explained that the Water Commissioners would not continue further than Haslitt street, unless the council placed a hydrant there.

Moved by Ald. Morgan and Ald. Elliott, that a second hydrant be placed on Concession street.

It was moved in amendment, that the matter be referred to the Fire, Water and Light Committee, with power to act.—Carried.

COMMITTEE REPORTS.

The following committees presented reports to the Council:—

Committee of the Whole, read by Ald. Phelan.

Fire, Water and Light Committee, read by Ald. Johnston.

Board of Works, read by Ald. Duncan.

Property Committee, read by Ald. McIntyre.

FINANCE COMMITTEE

The Finance Committee reported as follows:—

1. That the collector of taxes be paid $100 a year to cover the expense of his guarantee bond and postage.

2. That the City Treasurer be paid $1,600 a year from June 1st, 1907, on the same basis as at present, and that the question of having all assistance required employed by the council be taken up later.

3. That the salary of the City Clerk be increased $150 per annum from June 1st, 1907, and that the question of engaging assistance for his office be dealt with later.

5. That the annual membership fee of $15.00 be paid to the Ontario Municipal Association.

6. That the city assessors be paid $100 each on account of their salary for this year.

Ald. McIntyre wished to be placed on record as objecting to paying the city officials any increase in salary.

He moved, seconded by Ald. Morgan, that the three clauses referring to officials' salaries be struck out. Lost, only the mover and seconder voting for it.

Ald. Johnston moved that the telephone which Mr. Pakenham had placed in his own house be left there, and that the city pay for it. Seconded by Ald. McIntyre.—Lost.

Ald. Stevenson gave notice that in the near future he would bring up the matter of cutting out the naming of streets and number all of them. The system of naming the streets here was the opposite to that in any other city, and very confusing. It would be better to do away with street names altogether and number them all.

BY-LAWS.

The following bylaws were read and passed:—

Bylaw No. 1130 was a bylaw to confirm the increase in the salaries of the city clerk and city treasurer and tax collector.

Bylaw No. 1131 was a bylaw authorising the construction of granolithic walks.

Bylaw No. 1132 was a bylaw authorising the construction of sewers as local improvements.

Bylaw No. 1133 was a bylaw to grant $400 to the Industrial Exhibition.

Bylaw No. 1134 was a bylaw to aid the Colonial Weaving Co.

CARTERS' SHELTER.

Ald. Bradburn stated that he would like to know what progress was being made on the carters' shelter. He thought it was a shame to spend the money and not have the shelter used.

Ald. McIntyre at once became quite angry and called Ald. Bradburn a smart alec, who thought he would like to have a laugh at the Property Committee. He said that the Council would get value out of the shelter.

Some one else stated that the Council had passed a resolution asking the police commissioners to amend their bylaws so as the carters could be prosecuted if they used the streets for a stand. Ald. McIntyre then informed Ald. Bradburn what had been done.

Ald. Bradburn thanked the chairman of the Property Committee for his information.

GREAT LUCK OF FISHING PARTY

Caught 61 Bass in the Otonabee in One Week

One of the jolliest parties that have camped on the banks of the Otonabee river this summer returned home yesterday, after having spent a very pleasant week. The party, which consisted of Mr. and Mrs. John Butcher and family, East City, Mr. and Mrs. A. Miller and Master Eldred Kocher, of Rochester, N.Y.; Ald. Tovey, Mr. A. J. Tovey and Master Garney Tovey, were camped about eight miles down the river. They went down in Mr. Butcher's handsome gasoline launch, the "Wee-Wee" and spent their holiday, chiefly fishing. This party were probably the most fortunate of any as regards their luck with the trawling line. The total catch for the week was 61 bass, not mentioning the number of eels, and mud eels they caught, which of course they threw back into the water. Sixty-one bass caught in one week is not a common occurrence and the party are highly pleased with the result of their week's outing. The bass were all beauties and some of them weighed over four pounds.

Mr. Miller, like most Americans, is an enthusiastic angler and pulled in a large number of the finny tribe that were captured. Mr. Miller is so passionately fond of fishing that he sat out in his canoe through a heavy thunderstorm one afternoon, apparently caring more for the sport than the drenching he received. Needless to say the party had a very pleasant time and were still sorry to have to come back to the city.

The fishing in the Otonabee river this year is exceptionally good and is away ahead of many of the other haunts of the angler.

Bowel Troubles

Liver pills, cathartics, mineral waters, often make Constipation worse. They merely irritate the bowels and force them to move—stop taking purgatives and the bowels become "tight" again.

"Fruit-a-tives" are the one certain cure for Constipation because their action is upon the liver, "Fruit-a-tives" are a liver tonic. They stimulate the secretions of bile by the liver, this bile causes the bowels to move in the natural, regular way and completely cures Constipation.

"Fruit-a-tives are fruit juices with tonics and antiseptics added. In "Fruit-a-tives" one atom of bitter replaces one atom of sweet in the fruit juices, forming a new compound which is many times more active, medicinally, than the fruit juices could possibly be. 50c. a box—$2.50 for 6 boxes. Lost Big Roll In White Lake

American Visitor is Shy $200—Dropped Out of His Pocket

A few days ago an American visitor at Stony Lake had the misfortune to lose a roll of bills amounting to $200. He was staying at one of the boarding houses on the lake, and as he was going fishing, he thought the safest place for his money was in his own pocket. He paddled off to Gilchrist Bay and then made a short portage to Indian River, and after paddling half a mile came to White Lake, which is noted for its good fishing. He with his friends trowled around the shallow waters of the lake for some time, when he suddenly discovered that his money was gone. How it got out of his pocket is a mystery, and he could not even guess where it could be. The lake was searched, but without success, and the little party returned to their cottage, where they told of the big loss. A party of tourists was soon gathered together and hunted in the rain for the money. All hope of finding it was given up, and the American guest will have to work for another month or two to get square with himself again.

The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages and that is Catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure now known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. Little Boys in Victoria Park

On Band Nights Interfere With the Musicians—Police Asked to Stop It

Members of the 57th Regiment Band are complaining about the small boys in Victoria Park on band nights. Every evening that a concert is given the boys are a constant source of annoyance to the members of the band and to the bandmaster. They run around the stand screaming at the top of their voices; they run up on the stand and strike the bandmaster from the rear; they poke the bandsmen and do other things which interfere with the musicians playing. Several times the bandmaster has had to stop and drive the little rowdies away. The band think it is the duty of the police to keep order, and several of the musicians state that so far this year they have not seen a blue coat around the stand once.

At Montreal on Monday 1,500 fountain pens were impounded by customs officers for non-payment of duty.

Pickpocket Case Adjourned Until Thursday Morning

Provincial Detective Greer and Detective Anderson, of the Toronto Police Force, Give Evidence—P. C. Newhall Again in the Witness Box.

The adjourned trial of the alleged pickpockets was resumed yesterday afternoon at three o'clock before His Honor Judge Weller. Considerable more evidence was taken which tended to make the case stronger against the prisoners. The evidence revealed quite a bit of new information concerning the past conduct but not as much as was anticipated. The defence objected to any evidence being taken concerning their past convictions before the four were convicted. A large crowd gathered to hear the trial and seemed to be deeply interested all through the afternoon. P. C. Newhall was cross-examined by Messrs. O'Connell and Kerr.

CHARLES MITCHELL.

Mr. Chas. Mitchell was the next witness. He is a conductor on the G.T.R. running from Toronto to Port Hope. He leaves Toronto at 7.55 in the morning. He identified Lewis, Goldfarb and Phelps, as being on the train that morning. Bradford was lying asleep. The train is due here at 11.40 and all three got off at Peterborough. On an average there is usually about 150 to 200 passengers on the train. He noticed the prisoners shortly after he left Toronto. Photographs of these men were shown to him about a week ago and he identified them. The circumstances that led to their identification were told by the conductor. He said that it was either Lewis or Goldfarb that had got a check and placed in his hat, and when asked for his fare by the conductor said, "You have taken my ticket." Mr. Mitchell said, "No, you have got that check from that man pointing to Phelps. The fare was then paid. That made the conductor suspicious of them.

DETECTIVE GREER.

Detective Greer next gave evidence. He was with the circus as a detective in several western cities. He was in Stratford and Woodstock. He saw all four prisoners in the latter place. The circus was there on June 20th. They registered at an hotel and Mr. Greer had a copy of the names and identified their writing. Counsel for the defence objected to this, but although he did not see prisoners write their names at the hotel, he could identify it. Witness interviewed the prisoners in the jail yesterday morning. At first Phelps was called out and spoken to. The detective went over a list of convictions and different charges to him. Phelps admitted being arrested but said not on those charges. Goldfarb said he had been arrested and said "Yes, you have all the charges." Then they went to Lewis who first admitted being arrested but denied having been charged with the charges read out. Bradford was next consulted and admitted the different charges. Witness to Mr. Kerr said he had cautioned the prisoners that they were not forced to answer his questions. He also said that he had the four write their names in the police station on July 3rd, and comparing it with the hotel register, the witness said that any school boy could tell that it was the same writing. The names registered were Phelps, Bradford, Vernier and Roene. The four skipped out without paying for their bed at Woodstock. Witness saw two of them buy tickets at Woodstock for Stratford, but when Mr. Greer got on the train they got off.

DETECTIVE ANDERSON.

Detective Anderson of the Toronto police force was the next witness. On the 3rd of July, measurements of the four by the Bertillion system were taken, and also photographs. These correspond with those made of them in cities in the United States, including, New York City, Buffalo, Washington and Detroit. The photographs taken here in the police station correspond with those of Goldfarb, Lewis and Bradford taken by the police department in New York City. Counsel for the defence objected to the evidence of the detective on the grounds that it should not be used before a conviction was made. His Honor considered that if they had admitted these charges then they could be used against them, but they had not. This evidence was considered not fair to accused and it was not taken.

P. C. NEWHALL.

P. C. Newhall was next called and Mr. O'Connell questioned him. Mr. O'Connell was looking through witness' note book, when Mr. Newhall raised objection to him looking at anything but what concerned the prisoners. Mr. O'Connell reviewed the evidence of the policeman as given in the morning, but the defence gained nothing as a result of the close examination. The only additional evidence was that while the witness was dressing in his disguise he left a gentleman to keep an eye on the four. The evidence was given over again in detail, and occupied a considerable length of time.

The court adjourned at six o'clock to resume again on Thursday morning at eleven o'clock.

Children's Aid Society's New Shelter Went to Committee

To be Taken Up With the City Trust Commission—Agricultural Society Gets Grant of $400—Change in Hunter Street Plan at Quaker Oats Mills—Two Years Term for Aldermen.

As far as the new home for the Children's Aid Society is concerned it will be taken up by the Property Committee and the City Trust Commission. It was discussed at some length by the committee of the whole council last night when most of the aldermen appeared to be in favor of the proposal of granting the new home for the society and the details will be worked out by the two bodies named. Several other matters were also taken up.

Members present—Mayor McWilliams, Ald. Duncan, Elliott, Wilson, Morgan, McIntyre, Stevenson, Leary, Morrow, Bradburn, Phelan, Johnston.

Mr. W. H. Denham, superintendent of the Quaker Oats Co., appeared before the committee of the whole in reference to a change in the bend in Hunter street, west of Hunter street bridge.

Mr. Denham showed a plan of Hunter street and the Quaker Oats building, which he had Mr. Cameron prepare. Hunter street starts to bend at their building and the bridge is in line with the south side of the street, and by the change the bridge would be on the north side of the street. What he wants is to bring the building parallel with Hunter street and proposed to give the city an equal strip of land on the south side of the street for a strip on the north side, so that hereafter the street will be defined differently. So far as any citizen could see there would be no difference. The city engineer will report on it and the committee of the whole will visit the site.

CHILDREN'S AID.

His Worship brought up the matter of providing a new home for the Children's Aid Society. He thought that it would be better for the council to do anything they intended to voluntary. The old Hilliard homestead had been mentioned as a home and he would like the aldermen to express their views on the matter.

Ald Leary said that he would like very much to see the Council rent the house and an acre of land for the shelter at, say, a $1.00 per year.

Ald. Morrow thought the aldermen had better take time to consider it. He also wanted to know what other cities and towns did in this matter.

The majority of the aldermen were in favor of the providing the Society with a shelter. It was pointed out that the city now grants $300 per year and it was suggested that the place be given and reduce the grant.

It was moved by Ald. Wilson and Ald Duncan that the Property Committee co-operate with the City Trust Commissioners in reference to conveying or leasing the property in question.—Carried.

After discussing the above motion for a little while nearly every alderman got a new idea and there were eight or nine different views, but finally the motion carried.

TWO YEARS FOR COUNCIL.

His Worship Mayor McWilliams asked if there were any member of the committee who desired the Ontario Municipal Association to take up. His Worship said he would like to have the convention take up the question of having the Municipal Act changed so that councils be elected for a term of two years, one-half retiring each year.

Moved by Ald. McIntyre and Ald. Wilson that the city delegates to the Ontario Municipal Convention in Toronto this year be instructed to support the desired change in the Municipal Act to make the term of the aldermen two years instead of one year, one half dropping out out each year.—Carried.

AGRICULTURAL GRANT.

Ald Leary, president of the Peterborough Agricultural Society, brought up the matter of a grant to the society. He said that for the past two years the Council had given $400 and this year he thought that the society should get $500.

Ald. Elliott and Ald. Wilson moved that the Council make a grant of $400.—Carried.

Ald Leary and Ald. Johnston moved that the grant be $500.

Ald Duncan moved that the chairman of the Property Committee be authorized to purchase receptacles for the council chamber and committee rooms.—Carried.

Ald. Wilson moved that the Fire, Water and Light Committee be authorised to place four arc lights on Brock street between St. Andrew's church and Aylmer street.

It was moved in amendment by Ald Phelan and Elliott that the matter be referred to the fire, water and light committee.

Ald. McIntyre said that in regard to the milk tests which had not yet been published, that he would suggest that the testing should be done at the creamery here.

Shipments of gold to Canada this week total $1,500,000.

The High Wind Caused Many Lively Upsets in Stony Lake

Three Young Men Had Exciting Experience—Others Also Had Escapes They Would Not Care to Repeat—Many Visitors at the Cottages Over Sunday—Hotels are Crowded.

Special to the Review.

Stony Lake, July 29.—The heavy wind blowing on the lakes Saturday and in fact for the past few days was a great temptation for several owning sail boats to go out for a sail. As a result many upsets were reported having taken place on Saturday. Fortunately no drowning accidents are recorded and those who upset got off with nothing more than a good ducking. A drowning accident was very narrowly averted as a result of one upset and there are three persons who are very grateful that they are alive. Two young men who were spending the day at Mr. A. L. Davis' cottage in company with a gentleman from Toronto, started out about four o'clock to have a sail in Mr. Davis' handsome sailing dinghy. Everything went along nicely and the craft was travelling at a very fast rate. When nearly opposite Miss Ray's island the wind dropped, but almost immediately a squall came up and in an instant the boat was blown over and the three occupants were thrown into the lake before they had time to realize what had happened them. Fortunately all three were good swimmers, but were greatly burdened down with their clothes. One of the men was caught under the boat and received a slight injury by the centre board flying up and striking him on the shin. After a few minutes struggle in the lake, the three climbed onto the bottom and there waited until assistance arrived. Workmen on Mr. Davis' cottage were witnesses of the upset and three of them hurried to get boats to row out and soon had all three safely landed on terra firma. Two women on a nearby island were frantic and were waving their hands and yelling vehemently. They thought sure that the men were drowned. The sailors all kept their senses and did not attempt to swim to shore, for although it was not so far away they would have soon become fatigued with the weight of their clothing. Other than a good ducking there was nothing serious happened to the trio.

Mr. C. Acton and a friend of his were enjoying a sail on Saturday afternoon and also were thrown into the lake. They held onto the boat until some persons came to their assistance and brought them safely to their island.

Hon. L. Grahame also proved to be a timely rescuer on Saturday and saved a party of three who were upset out of a skiff near "Kiluna," Mr. Grahame's island. This incident is an evidence of how terribly rough it was on Saturday.

Mr. Bob Aikens and two others, when returning from Crowe's Landing on Saturday morning were upset out of their canoe. The three had paddled to Crowe's Landing the day before to attend the tea given by the church up there. They slept under their canoe over night through a heavy thunderstorm, but did not get at all wet. On their return trip, owing to the height of the waves their boat was filled two or three times and they were forced to land and empty it. On one occasion it filled before they could land and they had to swim to shore.

All Stars Won From Park Nine

In a fast exhibition of ball at the Driving Park Saturday afternoon Jimmy Pilling's Stars defeated a picked team from the park by the score of 9—3. Ryan was on the slab for the losers and pitched fine ball but his support was not the best. On the other hand Dusty handed them out in fine style and should have had a shut out but for a few errors. Batteries, All Stars, Dusty and Hillier, Park Nine, Ryan, Mahoney and Menzies. Mr. Wm. E. Dixon gave general satisfaction as umpire.

6721.—A SHIRT BLOUSE OF SMART LINES.

Now that the shirt blouse is so necessary to every woman and girl, the designs for this garment must be as varied as possible. A waist which will not fail to please the particular woman has a stole yoke which is completed at each side with tucks of becoming depth. The yoke appears in back and two groups of tucks lend further adornment and tapering lines. Together with the long sleeves those of three-quarter length are also provided for and may be finished with natty little cuffs of the same or a contrasting material. While simple, the waist is one of undeniably good style and for wear with the suit of odd skirt will prove most fetching. Any seasonable fabric may develop it. The medium size calls for 3 3-8 yards of 27 inch material.

The price of this pattern is 10c.

Leave your order and ten cents at the REVIEW OFFICE and pattern will be sent you by mail

BETTER THAN SPANKING

Spanking does not cure children of bed-wetting. There is a constitutional cause for this trouble. Mrs. M. Summers, Box W. 62, Windsor, Ont., will send free to any mother her successful home treatment, with full instructions. Send no money but write her today if your children trouble you in this way. Don't blame the child, the chances are, it can't help it. This treatment also cures adults and aged people troubled with urine difficulties by day or night.

She Couldn't Understand.

He was describing the game.

"I thought I had a clear field," he said, "when suddenly he tackled me."

"What do you mean by that?" she asked.

"Why, in this case he caught me around the waist with both arms, and I couldn't make him let go."

"But why," she inquired, with a sigh, "why under those circumstances did you want to make him let go?" Then she added after a pause, "You men are queer creatures."—Chicago Post.

In the Ark.

"Shem," said Noah decisively, "training the animals is all right, but please don't trust too much to their intelligence. Awhile ago you sent one of the apes down to the hold for a bucket of coal, and just now"—

Shem snickered audibly.

—"I found him trying to scuttle the ark."—New York Press.

Bed of the Erie Canal Sank Doing Considerable Damage

Syracuse Buildings Damaged by Sudden Collapse.

Four Canal Boats Drawn Into Crack—Flour Mill Fell into the Water—Two Breweries Threatened With Demolition — Supporting Arches Near Centre of the City Gave Way—Many Narrow Escapes.

Syracuse, N.Y., July 31.—The arches of masonry which support the bed of the Erie Canal at a point near the centre of this city, where it passes over Onondaga Creek, gave way yesterday afternoon and four canal boats were drawn into the bed of the crack beneath, fifty feet of the wall of the three-storey Empire flouring mill were precipitated into the water and the Bartels and Greenway breweries, respectively on the north and south banks of the canal, were threatened with demolition.

The driver of the canal boat, Peter J. Roler, of Black River, noticed that the boat was moving too rapidly and hurriedly moored it to the canal bank. The rope snapped like so much thread.

Fred Race, the owner of the boat, brought his wife and eight-year-old daughter on deck, and when the boat neared a safe section of the wall, all jumped to shore.

Henry Race, 80 years old, father of the owner, was standing in the stern of the boat. Employes of the Standard Milling Co. seized him as the boat approached the vortex.

A man, two women and five children from other boats were also rescued in the nick of time.

The canal level at this point is five miles in length and Division Superintendent Thomas Wheeler immediately ordered the water drawn off.

All canal traffic is tied up and it will be several days at least before the damage can be repaired. The boats and cargoes are total losses.

TROOPS POUR INTO BELFAST.

Revolt of Police Makes Strike Problem More Serious.

Belfast, July 31.—That the authorities view seriously the local situation arising from the strike of the dock laborers for increased pay and shorter hours, which has been aggravated by the revolt of the police, who are demanding more pay because of the extreme work the strike entails, is evidenced by the arrival here yesterday of the first battalion of the Cameron Highlanders, with a Maxim gun and a detachment of cavalry.

In addition the 19th Hussars are now on their way into Belfast, and the Berkshire and Middlesex Regiments have been ordered to hold themselves in readiness to move at a moment's notice.

Special camp accommodations are being provided and it is expected that a total of 6,000 troops will be in Belfast within a few days.

At Cork the police are in full sympathy with the Belfast force and have asked the permission of the inspector-general to hold a public meeting.

Escapes From Hospital.

Barrie, July 31.—Simon Marshall of Lindsay, who was brought to Barrie Hospital by the Orillia police on Friday morning, suffering from pneumonia, disappeared from the institution at midnight. His own clothes had been put out of his reach, but he managed to secure a youth's coat and pants and made his escape through a window. He was wanted on suspicion of being implicated in the Algonquin Park fur smuggling case.

Dividing Estate Among Employes.

New York, July 31.—The will of John C. Wilson, who was shot in his office, by John Werner, directs that his business and $[illegible] personal estate be divided, share and share alike, between employes and Bernard J. McCann, the Bowery hatter, who had been a friend of the deceased for many years.

San Francisco, July 31.—Eugene Schmitz, the convicted mayor, has made appointments to fill the vacancies created by the forced resignations of fourteen members of the board of supervisors.

NOT GOING ON THE STAGE.

Evelyn Nesbitt Thaw Says She Will Study Music Instead.

New York, July 31.—Mrs. Evelyn Nesbitt Thaw gave an authoritative statement that she has no present intention of returning to the stage, but will devote her energies to the study of music. This statement was called out by a published report that Mrs. Thaw intended to take a leading role at a Broadway theatre.

The following signed statement was given by Harry K. Thaw at the Tombs:

"This story, like many others, is absolutely false and has been started, I believe, for one of two reasons, either to give a false impression of my wife's character and steadfastness, with cowardly intent of injuring us all, or simply to fill space."

Fortune by Forgery.

Canyon City, Col., July 31.—Chas. B. Hogge, alias Benton, who pleaded guilty to forging a cheque on a bank at Florence, Col., was sentenced to the penitentiary for ten to fourteen years. Hogge told the court that he had practiced forgery for 15 years, and had secured more than $750,000 during that time. He said his system was to secure introductions through preachers.

(2) That the G. T. R. be, and is hereby granted leave to appeal from this order to the Supreme Court of Canada upon the question whether that portion of section 3 of the aforesaid act of Parliament, which required that the fare or charge for each third-class passenger by any train on the railway of said company should not exceed one penny a mile traveled, and that at least one train having on it third-class carriages should run every day throughout the length of the line of the said railway now in force.

(3) That in the event of an appeal from this order being entered for hearing at the next ensuing sitting of the Supreme Court, this order do not take effect until after the final disposition of the said appeal, but in the event of such an appeal being entered on or before the commencement of the said sitting, this order shall then immediately take effect.

A statement from Montreal is to the effect that the G. T. R. will take advantage of the appeal clause in the order.

The results were: British 549 in field artillery and 507 in heavy; Canadians 524 in field and 598 in heavy.

The Canadian heavy artillery team yesterday morning made an excellent showing, surprising many by the accuracy with which they carried out the firing and manoeuvring. Major Leigh was battery commander in the direct firing, with Capt. McKinnon in command of the sections, and on direct firing, Capt. Ewing commanded, aided by Lieut. McGowan.

Lord Stradbrooke and Countess Stradbrooke were present, and along with the party was Major Tanaka, Japanese artillery attache to the embassy at Washington.

TO LIMIT JAP EMIGRATION.

Home Government Taking Steps to Apply Check.

Ottawa, July 31.—The Japanese Government has under consideration the further limitation of Japanese emigration, and as a means to this end, which is in pursuance of its own national policy, welcomes the proposed limitation of immigration of Japanese into this country.

The present arrangement is that not more than one passport per month will be issued for each of the 40 districts of Japan to those wishing to emigrate to Canada. This number has not been reached.

However, the difficulty in the anticipated large immigration to Canada from Honolulu, includes Japs who are United States citizens and over whom Japan has now no control. An arrangement will thus have to be come to with the United States Government.

FELT HE WAS CHEATED

Sir William Van Horne on the Stand at Sydney.

Says He Distrusted President Ross. Head of Dominion Coal and Dominion Steel—Sir William Declared He Could Not Trust the Coal Company to His Mercies — Believed Steel People Were Right.

Sydney, N. S., July 31.—The legal struggle between the two great corporations—the Dominion Steel and the Dominion Coal—to decide whether the Steel Company was justified in breaking its contract with the Coal Company, began yesterday. There was a large attendance in court. Judge Longley is presiding. Hon. Wallace Nesbitt, K.C., of Toronto, is leading counsel for the Steel Company, and H. A. Lovitt, K.C., of Halifax, for the Coal interests.

The feature of yesterday's evidence was that given by Sir William Van Horne, who, in telling of his connection with the companies, acknowledged that he distrusted President Ross (head of both companies).

"My feeling against Mr. Ross was caused by an old business transaction. Superficially we have been on friendly terms. I felt I had been cheated by Mr. Ross. The merits were all on my side," said Sir William. Trouble between them dated back eight years.

"I have been heart and soul with the Coal Company. My trouble with Mr. Ross made me feel I could not trust the Coal Company to the mercies of Mr. Ross.

"I was with the Steel people because I believe they were in the right. Before the contract we made enquiries as to the quality of the coal necessary for the making of [illegible]."

W. F. White, general manager of the National Trust, declared that consent had never been given to either of the contending companies for the cancellation of the contract.

F. P. Jones, general manager of the Steel Company since 1901, said that just prior to October, 1903, the date of the contract, [illegible] in the Phelan seam. So long as the Steel Company [illegible] the Coal Company there [illegible] mines known to be in the Phelan seam. The greater portion of the coal supplied before the contract came from these five. There was no official notice given to designate any particular seam. The coal at first was fairly well adapted for steel purposes. In the autumn of 1904, they sent coal which he refused because it was slack. About 50 [illegible] rejected and the Coal Company took them all back. Some coal that came designated as No. 2 run of mine, was not run of mine at all, but slack.

No Bail for Pettibone.

Boise, Idaho, July 31.—Formal application was made in the District Court yesterday to have George A. Pettibone admitted to bail. The bond is guaranteed by $25,000 cash on deposit by the Butte, Mont., local of the Western Federation of Miners.

HAS VIEWS OF ITS OWN.

Lord Tweedmouth Refers to Canada's Aid in Naval Defence.

London, July 31.—In the House of Lords, Lord Brassey called attention to the proceedings in the Imperial conference respecting naval questions, and said the country had heard with satisfaction the Government's assurance that the all-red route would receive careful consideration.

Lord Tweedmouth said he thought the conference had gone a long way towards coming to an arrangement with the colonies regarding naval defence. It was unfair to say the Home Government had been indifferent to the interests of the colonies. The case of Canada was different to the other colonies. Canada always refused to contribute directly to the cost of the navy, though now the Dominion had taken over certain harbors, which was a great service. He regretted, however, that the Canadian Government could not see its way to becoming more active in naval defence, but the Dominion had its own views and the line taken by the Home Government was as it should be, very much a matter of their own judgment as to what way the colonies should help.

In dealing with a general policy, Lord Tweedmouth said the Admiralty had in view a new and extended cruiser construction policy.

TEMPLE OF PEACE.

Foundation Stone of Carnegie Structure Laid at The Hague.

The Hague, July 31.—The foundation stone of the Andrew Carnegie Palace of Peace was laid yesterday afternoon at Zorgvliet, in the midst of the wooded park stretching from The Hague to Scheveningen, by M. Nelidoff, president of the second peace conference.

The inauguration of this monument which Mr. Carnegie is raising to commemorate and carry on the work of the international peace conferences was marked by considerable ceremony.

Practically all the delegates, a number of high court officials, the members of the states-general and delegations from numerous civic and municipal bodies were grouped around the stone which, when the structure is completed, will form the corner of the Grand Hall of Justice.

TWO WOMEN STRANGLED.

Both Crimes Were Evidently Committed by the Same Person.

New York, July 31.—At a late hour last night no arrests had been made in the cases of two women found strangled to death and whose bodies were discovered, one Monday night and the other early yesterday.

One woman, who was found dead with a necktie knotted around her throat in a boarding-house in Twenty-Second street, has been identified under several names. It seems probable that she is Mrs. Sophia Kehrer, wife of Jacob Kehrer of Buffalo. The police have discovered that she lived at different times in Brooklyn and Jersey City and had relatives living in Toronto.

The police have as yet found no clue as to the identity of a woman whose body was found in an areaway in East 18th street. They believe, however, that both crimes were committed by the same person, as both bodies were mutilated in the same manner.

Exporters.

There was little doing in export cattle, no good to choice loads being on sale. One load of 1300-lb. cattle was reported by Crawford & Hunnisett as being sold at $4.80. Thomas Cantlin sold one choice quality bull, 2200 lbs., fed by Farmer D. McGillicuddy of Kenilworth, at $4.80 per cwt.; but few bulls bring such a price.

Butchers.

Best loads of butchers offered sold at $4.50 to $4.75; fair quality $4.25 to $4.40; common mixed loads $3.50 to $3.75; cows $2.50 to $3.60; canners $1.50 to $2.25.

Feeders and Stockers.

There is little doing in feeders and stockers, while there was some enquiry for a few of good quality, but farmers seem to be generally too busy at the present time to pay any attention to the cattle market. Common stockers were quoted at $2.50 to $3 per cwt.; light feeders of good quality, 800 to 900 lbs. each, $3.00 to $3.25 per cwt.

Milch Cows.

Trade in milkers and springers was seemingly a little better, especially for the latter. Between 30 and 40 sold from $30 to $60 each, but few reached the latter figure, as will be seen by quotations of sales given.

Veal Calves.

Prices were about steady for veal calves, selling all the way from $3 to $6.25 per cwt.

Sheep and Lambs.

Export ewes sold at $4.50 per cwt.; butcher sheep of choice quality, many of which were yearlings, sold at $5 per cwt.; lambs sold at $6.50 to $7.50 per cwt., or 6½c to 7½c per lb.

Hogs.

The run of hogs was light. Mr. Harris quotes prices steady at $6.50 for selects, and $6.25 for lights and fats.

You have Not One Reason for Not Using Zutoo

Some people think that all headache cures are alike—that they all undermine the health, even if not perceived at the time of taking them.

Well, we'll admit that some cures do this, those, for example, which contain opium, morphine, antipyrene or chloral.

But this is no reason why you should not use Zutoo.

Zutoo Tablets do not contain one iota of any of the drugs above mentioned. They do not contain a single ingredient that does not come from Old Mother Earth herself.

One ingredient is soda—just old-fashioned soda that our grandmothers used to take to settle the stomach when they had sick headache.

There is not one ingredient in Zutoo tablets that is not approved by both the British and American Pharmacopoeias. And the world has no higher authority in medicine than these.

Your family physician, even if a personal friend, would approve of and prescribe every ingredient.

There is absolutely no reason why you should not use Zutoo.

If you suffer from headache there is every reason why you should.

Taken in time, two tablets will ward off a headache. Taken later, they will stop it in twenty minutes, and leave you feeling bright and well in both mind and body.

CARTERS BY-LAW WAS AMENDED

Can No Longer Use the Streets or Any Public Place as a Stand

A meeting of the Police Commissioners was held in the city clerk's office this morning, when all the members were present.

The most important matter taken up was the amendment to the carter's bylaw. The property committee some time ago furnished a carter's shelter. The carters refused to occupy it and the council requested the commissioners to amend their bylaw. As a result the carters in future are prohibited using any street or public place in the city as a stand. They will either have to furnish a stand and telephone at their own barn or use the carter's shelter.

The commission also took up several other little matters, including a grant of six weeks' leave of absence to P. C. Newhall, who is going to the Old Country this summer.

Harry Emmory, at Guelph, was fined $50 for assaulting Bridget McIvor.

Copper worth $400,000 is turned out of the Grandby smelter monthly.

Work on Trent Valley Canal Transferred to the Dominion

Ontario Government Hands Over the Locks and Dams—Dominion in Return May Increase its Reservoir System—Report of Minister of Public Works.

After several interviews between representatives of the Department of Railways and Canals, Canada, and representatives of the Ontario Government, a formal application was made on Jan. 6th, 1904, for the transfer to the Government of Canada, of the several drains owned by the Ontario Government on the head waters of the Trent Canal.

A scheme for an extensive reservoir system was contemplated by the Department of Railways and Canals, to ensure sufficient water supply at all seasons for the purposes of navigation, on the Trent Valley Canal. Negotiations were conducted between the officers of the Department of Railways and Canals, and the officers of the Department of Public Works, Ontario, when the terms of the proposed transfer were thoroughly gone into and the views of all parties interested were obtained and considered.

An agreement upon the terms of the transfer was finally reached between the Governments of the Dominion of Canada and the Province of Ontario, and an Order-in-Council was approved by His Honor, the Lieutenant-Governor, on the 22nd of July, 1905, transferring the works to the Dominion Government. A confirming order of the Privy Council was approved by His Excellency the Governor-General, on the 16th of February, 1906, assuming their control.

The following are the terms upon which the waters and works were transferred to the Department of Railways and Canals, Canada:—

1—That all the locks, dams, rights in waters and flooded lands and other works as shown by the hereto attached list and plan be transferred to the Dominion Government, represented by the Department of Railways and Canals, free of all cost.

2—That the Dominion Government will assume, operate and keep in good repair and condition for all time, the lock and three swing bridges at Lindsay, the lock at Balsam Lake and the lock and swing bridge at Young's Point, together with all minor works in connection with the maintenance and operation of the locks and swing bridges at Lindsay, Balsam Lake and Young's Point, relieving the Province from all expense and responsibility in connection therewith.

3—That the right of reservoir construction by the Dominion Government shall be exercisable on and limited to the following:—Gull River, Burn River, Squaw River, Nogie's Creek, Deer Bay Mississauga Creek, Eels Creek, and Jack's Creek, and the drainage areas of such rivers and creeks.

4—That the following dams shall be maintained for all time by the Dominion Government, subject as hereinafter provided:—

On Gull River Waters—Balsam Lake, Gull Lake, Horseshoe Lake, Hawk Lake, Paint Lake, Hall's Lake, Kennesis Lake, Redstone Lake, Eagle and Moose Lake, Oblong and Haliburton Lake, Percy Lake.

On Burnt River Waters—Kooklong Lake, Drag Lake, Loon Lake, Big Bear Lake, Otter Lake, Grace Lake, Farquar Lake.

On Nogie's Creek.—Swamp Lake.

On Mississauga Lake.—Gull Lake, Eagle Lake.

5.—That with regard to the smaller or other dams not being actually required by the Department for the proposed reservoir system, but now utilized for the flotation of logs, the Dominion Government shall not be required to maintain these dams except only for as long as they are of material use for the purpose of log flotation or log navigation.

6.—That the Dominion will pay to the Province at the rate of fifty cents per acre for any unpatented Provincial lands flooded through the construction of the proposed reservoirs, that compensation for the flooding of patented lands and for damage done to timber on patented lands or on unpatented lands under license to lumbermen and others, be a matter of agreement the Dominion Government and the owners or licensees of such lands or timber, and in the event of failure of such owners or licensees to agree with the Dominion Government regarding such compensation, then the matter shall be left to the determination of the Exchequer Court of Canada in the usual manner.

7.—That the Minister of Railways and Canals shall have the right at any time to rebuild and maintain dams at present existing, or at any time to construct and maintain dams in lieu thereof at other than the present sites for the same; to increase or decrease heights of all or any such dams; to determine the size and capacity of the openings therein, and the means of controlling the water supply thereat; and to construct or reconstruct, operate, and maintain the works necessary to the same; also, from time to time to build and maintain new dams wherever he may deem advisable for the proper carrying out of proposed reservoir system, and to maintain and operate the same.

8.—That all mines and minerals in unpatented Provincial lands, taken over and flooded in the course of construction of reservoirs, be reserved to the Province; and that all mines and minerals on patented lands are still to remain the property of the patentee until proper compensation be granted therefor, and all reasonable provision essential to the operation and working of the same be allowed, subject to the requirements of navigation of the Trent Canal.

9.—That the Dominion Government guarantees to the owners and lessees of timber lands tributary to the streams and lakes affected by this order, and to lumbermen now or hereafter operating on such streams and lakes, all rights they at present enjoy or are entitled to, by any law or statute now in force with regard to the use and enjoyment of rivers and streams, and also guarantee to the owners and lessees from time to time of any water power derived from such lakes and streams all rights they at present enjoy or are entitled to by virtue of any law or statute now in force and in the event of such rights being injuriously affected by the action of the Dominion Government their successors, assigns, employees, or representatives in connection with such waters and streams, then the owners and lessees of such timber lands, timber and water power, shall have the right to submit their claims to the Exchequer Court of Canada for adjudication and compensation in the usual manner.

Looks Poor for The Peach Crop

Niagara Fruit Belt Does Not Give Promise for a Big Yield

St Catharines, July 30.—City Clerk J Albert Pay, who is a well-known fruit man, says he was positive from personal observation and reports received that the peach crop this year would be more than half the size of that of last year. The cause of the immense destruction of fruit trees in the fruit belt was the very severe winter, which the trees, weakened as they were by the San Jose scale, were unable to stand. Peaches will be scarce for the next few years, until the new trees begin bearing.

Mr. Pay, as an illustration of the havoc being wrought by the San Jose scale, cited his own case. He does not go in very largely for peach growing, but a couple of years ago he had about 600 peaches. "To-day I have about a dozen left," said he. He, similar to other growers, kept spraying the trees, until the scale got ahead of him, and then the trees had to be put down.

"The outlook is decidedly bad in the fruit situation," went on Mr. Pay. "The only fruit that will be anything like a full crop is grapes. Plums will be fair, but pears will be decidedly scarce. Last year the canning factories were paying only 1 1-4 cents and 1 1-2 cents a pound for pears, but now they are skirmishing around offering to pay 2 1-2c. a pound for pears."

Speaking of tomatoes of which he is a large grower, Mr. Pay said that while the crop was looking fairly well, the very backward season will undoubtedly have a bad effect. Last year by this time thousands of baskets had been shipped away from here, whereas this year, hardly any had as yet gone. James Titterington, one of the principal tomato shippers, up to Friday last, had shipped 25 baskets, against about a thousand by that date a year ago.

NEW WHARF

Mr George Payne, of Lakefield, who has been appointed foreman on the construction of the new wharf at Wallace's Point, is now making preliminary arrangements for starting the work at an early date.

BASKETBALL

The basketball committee of the C. A. A. U. held a meeting in Hamilton Saturday in regard to changing the rules for 1907-08, and paid Hamilton a great compliment in inviting them to send a special representative to give their views of the rules as they now stand. Prof. Barton appointed John Chadwick to act for Hamilton and the players are much gratified with the changes that passed the committee and which have been recommended to the governing committee of the C. A. A. U. and will no doubt be accepted.

The main change will be with regard to penalty for a foul. As it now stands, a point is awarded to the opposite side making a foul, and the ball thrown up between the two players nearest at the time of foul. This gave the game too much into the hands of the officials, both in the umpiring and scoring, as in a fast and close game it is sometimes a question upon which the foul was called, and there have been several games where there have been disputes. As the rule now stands, it handicaps a Canadian team when playing the United States game, as Canadians are not so adept in shooting free throws for the lack of practice. There are several minor changes which make the rules near enough to the United States game for all practical purposes.

FOUR DRUNKS POLICE COURT

The case of Bella Campbell and Jane Turner, charged with stealing a night dress from the house of Mr. Wm. Duncan, East City, enlarged from yesterday, was disposed of this morning by Magistrate Dumble at the Police Court. Miss Turner pleaded not guilty and Miss Campbell admitted taking it, but thought it belonged to a previous servant. Mr. R. F. McWilliams appeared for the young ladies. After hearing the evidence His Worship said that Miss Campbell had taken the dress knowing it wasn't hers. The girls were allowed to go on suspended sentence.

FOUR INEBRIATES.

Four drunks who have previously appeared in police court were on deck this morning and looked the worse of a good spree.

Albert Long, you are charged with being found drunk on the 30th, said His Worship.

Two dollars to be paid forthwith was the fine, but Long had not the necessary.

The same charge was against Wm. Upford of Lakefield, who received a like punishment but he too was out of the necessary two-spot.

Hiram Long, brother of the first mentioned. He was not sure about being drunk. He didn't think he was. His case was enlarged until tomorrow.

Thos. Cleary was the last one to face the same music. "I am something like Mr. Long. I was neither drunk nor sober," said Cleary.

"You will have till tomorrow morning to think about it," said His Worship, and the four were taken downstairs.

Strathconas to Meet the Lillies

Fast Baseball Will be Seen at Riverside Saturday

On Saturday at Riverside, the Strathconas and Lillies will meet in the first of a series of three games for the senior championship of the city. This will give an opportunity to those who were barred from the Intermediate League to show how much damage they would have done had they played. Jimmie Pilling and Hillier will do the battery work for the Lillies, while Belleghem and Wilson will work for the Strathconas. These two batteries with the pick of the city behind them will be sure to put up a fast game.

Young Torontos Here on Monday

Local Fans Will See a Fast Lacrosse Match

Peterborough fans will have an opportunity of seeing a splendid game of lacrosse on Monday afternoon next when the Young Torontos meet the local twelve at Riverside Park. Jimmy Murphy's second aggregation gave the Peterborough team a bad drubbing at Rosedale at the beginning of the season but the local twelve will be much stronger when they meet the enemy at Riverside on Monday, and they are confident that they will take a heavy fall out of the visitors. The boys had a good practice on Monday night, and are in good shape to stand a hard game. The Young Torontos are one of the fastest teams in Ontario, and as a defeat in Peterborough would be fatal to their championship aspirations they will make a big endeavor to pull out a victory.

Peterborough is right in the championship running, as Beaverton is likely to be thrown out when the C.L.A. executive gets together again on Friday night.

It was a hard pill for the locals to swallow—that bad beating at Rosedale, and every man will go on the field prepared to win.

BASEBALL

CAMPBELLFORD WON.

Special to the Review.

Havelock, July 29.—A bunch of junior baseball players representing Campbellford and Havelock, crossed swords at the local park on Friday afternoon last at three o'clock. Although the Havelock team worked hard and made the brilliant plays of the day they were defeated by their Campbellford friends, who outdone them in having more practice. The score was 18-15.

The following is the list of those representing Havelock:—

Pitcher.—Allie Rose.
Catcher.—Chas. Robinson.
1st base.—Geo. Ritchie.
2nd Base.—E. Scott.
3rd Base.—E. Bennett.
Shortstop.—W. Rose.
C. Field.—A. Armstrong.
R. Field.—R. Webb.
L. Field.—Geo. Walton.

The return game will be played in Campbellford in the near future.

Commenting on last Saturday's game here, the Port Hope Guide says:

"It is a rather difficult matter to figure out the nine men who represented Cobourg on Saturday last. According to the line-up in the Peterborough papers, Downs was in the box. Leo Downs once did the twirling for Cobourg, but not last Saturday. A great baseball sport of Cobourg told us last evening that he didn't know the pitcher's name, but he was a dandy. It has been rumored that this southpaw is a Mr. Phaelan of the New York American League team, but as to the correctness of this we are not prepared to say. Dwyer who played first in Cobourg against Port Hope, held the second sack down, and T. Burns, of Rochester, played third. Cobourg, of course, were violating the rules of this league by playing Dwyer and Burns, and what their object was in playing the pitcher under an assumed name we cannot imagine. He struck out four men only and Peterborough hit him safely five times."

The Guide also has the following: "Peterborough plays in Cobourg next Saturday and the game should be a very interesting one, as our northern friends are likely to strengthen. It is rumored that Peterborough will run an excursion to Cobourg and no doubt they will be accompanied by a large contingent from Port Hope.

GOLF

PORT HOPE HERE.

A team from the Port Hope Golf Club arrived in the city this morning and are playing a match against the locals this afternoon. The following compose the visiting teams,—Messrs. T. S. E. Pepler, Rev. G. W. Sanderson, S. G. Swartz, S. S. Smith, Rev. L. Williams, R. Haultain, and Duke Pepler.

The Manager Of the B. & A.

By VAUGHAN KESTER

Copyright, 1901, by Harper & Brothers

"And I'll tell you one thing, Mr. Oakley. I'm editor of the Herald, and I don't allow any man to dictate to me what I shall print. That's a point I'll pass on for myself."

"You know the situation. You know that [illegible] will dispose of his interests here unless they can be made self-supporting, and, whether you like him or not, he stands as a special providence to the town."

"I only know what you have told me," sneeringly.

Oakley bit his lips. He saw it would have been better to have left Ryder alone. He felt his own weakness and his inability to force him against his will to be fair. He gulped down his anger and chagrin.

"I don't see what you can gain by stirring up this matter."

"Perhaps you don't."

"Am I to understand you are hostile to the road?"

"If that means you, yes. You haven't helped yourself by coming here as though you could bully me into your way of thinking. I didn't get much satisfaction from my call on you. You let me know you could attend to your own affairs, and I can attend to mine just as easily. I hope you appreciate that."

Dan turned on his heel and left the office, cursing himself for his stupidity in having given the editor an opportunity to get even.

CHAPTER X.

IN the course of the next few days Dan decided that there was no danger of trouble from the hands. Things settled back into their accustomed rut. He was only a little less popular, perhaps.

He was indebted to Clarence for the first warning he received as to what was in store for him.

It came about in this way. Clarence had retired to the yards, where, secure from observation, he was indulging in a quiet smoke, furtively keeping an eye open for McClintock, whose movements were uncertain, as he knew from sad experience.

A high board fence was in front of him, shutting off the yards from the lower end of the town. At his back was a freight car, back of that again were the interlacing tracks and beyond them a cornfield and Billup's Bush, with its inviting shade of sycamores and willows and its tempting swimming holes.

Suddenly he heard a scrambling on the opposite side of the fence, and ten brown fingers clutched the tops of the boards, then a battered straw hat came on a level with the fingers, at the same instant a bare foot and leg were thrown over the fence, and the owner of the battered straw hat swung himself into view. All this while a dog whined and yelped; then followed a vigorous scratching sound, and presently a small, dilapidated looking yellow cur squeezed itself beneath the fence. Clarence recognized the intruders. It was Brazyen's boy, Augustus, commonly called "Spide," because of his exceeding slimness and the length of his legs, and his dog Pink.

As soon as Brazyen's boy saw Clarence he balanced himself deftly on the top of the fence with one hand and shaded his eyes elaborately with the other. An amiable, if toothless, smile curled his lips. When he spoke it was with deep facetiousness.

"Hi, come out from behind that roll of paper!"

But Clarence said not a word. He puffed away at his cigarette, apparently oblivious of everything save the contentment it gave him, and as he puffed Spide's mouth worked and watered sympathetically. His secret admiration was tremendous. Here was Clarence in actual and undisturbed possession of a whole cigarette. He had to purchase his cigarettes in partnership with some other boy and go halves on the smoking of them. It made him feel cheap and common.

"Say, got one of them coffin tacks that ain't working?" he inquired. Clarence gazed off up the tracks, ignoring the question and the questioner. Spide's presence was balm to his soul. But as one of the office force of the Buckhorn and Antioch he felt a certain lofty reserve to be incumbent upon him. Besides, he and Spide had been engaged in a recent rivalry for Susie Poppleton's affections. It is true he had achieved a brilliant success over his rival, but that a mere schoolboy should have ventured to oppose him, a salaried man, had struck him as an unpardonable piece of impertinence for which there could be no excuse.

Spide, however, had taken the matter most philosophically. He had recognized that he could not hope to compete with a youth who possessed unlimited wealth, which he was willing to lay out on chewing gum and candy, his experience being that the sex was strictly mercenary and incapable of a disinterested love. Of course he had much admired Miss Poppleton. From the crown of her small dark head, with its tightly braided "pigtails," down to her trim little foot he had esteemed her as wholly adorable; but, after all, his affair of the heart had been an affair of the winter only. With the coming of summer he had found more serious things to think of. He was learning to swim and to chew tobacco. The mastering of these accomplishments pretty well occupied his time.

"Say," he repeated, "got another?"

Still Clarence blinked at the fierce sunlight which danced on the rails and said nothing. Spide slid skilfully down from his perch, but his manner had undergone a change.

"Who throwed that snipe away anyhow?" he asked disdainfully. Clarence turned his eyes slowly in his direction.

"Lookee here. You fellers got to keep out of these yards or I'll tell McClintock. First we know some of you kids will be getting run over, and then your folks will set up a lively howl. Get on out! It ain't no place for little boys!"

He put the cigarette between his lips and took a deep and tantalizing pull at it. Spide kept to his own side of the ditch that ran between the fence and the tracks.

"Huh!" with infinite scorn. "Who's a kid? You won't be happy till I come over there and lick you!"

"First thing I know you'll be stealing [illegible]!"

"My gosh! The Huckleberry 'd have to stop running if I swiped a coupling pin!"

Clarence had recourse to the cigarette, and again Spide was consumed with torturing jealousies. "Where did you shoot that snipe anyhow?" he inquired insultingly.

Once more Clarence allowed his glance to stray off up the tracks.

"For half a cent I'd come across and do what I say!" added Spide, stooping down to roll up his trousers leg and then easing an unelastic "gallus" that cut his shoulders. This elicited a short and contemptuous grunt from Clarence. He was well pleased with himself. He felt Spide's envy. It was sweet and satisfying.

"Say!" with sudden animation. "You fellers will be going around on your uppers in a day or so. I'll bet you'd give a heap to know what I know!"

"I wouldn't give a darned cent to know all you know or ever will know!" retorted Clarence promptly.

"Some people's easily upset here in the cupola," tapping his brimless covering. "I wouldn't want to give you brain fever. I don't hate you bad enough."

"Well, move on. You ain't wanted around here. It may get me into trouble if I'm seen fooling away my time on you."

"I hope it will," remarked Brazyen's boy, Augustus, with cordial ill will. He was literally bursting with the importance of the facts which he possessed, and Clarence's indifference gave him no opening.

"What will you bet there ain't a strike?"

"I ain't betting this morning," said Clarence blandly, "but if there is one we are ready for it. You bet the hands won't catch us napping. We are ready for 'em any time and all the time." This, delivered with a large air, impressed Spide exceedingly.

"Have you sent for the militia a'ready?" he asked anxiously.

"That's saying," noting the effect of his words, "I can't go blabbing about, telling what the road's up to, but we are awake, and the hands will get it in the neck if they tackle the boss."

To Clarence, Oakley was the most august person he had ever known. He religiously believed his position to be only second in point of importance and power to that of the president of the United States. He was wont to invest him with purely imaginary attributes and to lie about him at a great rate among his comrades, who were ready to credit any report touching a man who was reputed to be able to ride on the cars without a ticket. Human grandeur had no limits beyond this.

"There was a meeting last night. I bet you didn't know that," said Spide.

"I heard something of it. Was your father at the meeting, Spide?" he asked, dropping his tone of hostility for one of gracious familiarity. The urchin promptly crossed the ditch and stood at his side.

"Of course the old man was. You don't suppose he wouldn't be in it?"

"Oh, well, let 'em kick. You see the boss is ready for 'em," remarked Clarence indifferently. He wanted to know what Spide knew, but he didn't feel that he could afford to show any special interest. "Where you going—swimming?" he added.

"Yep." But Spide was not ready to drop the fascinating subject of the strike. He wished to astonish Clarence, who was altogether too knowing.

"The meeting was in the room over Jack Britt's saloon," he volunteered.

"I suppose you think we didn't know up at the office. We got our spies out. There ain't nothing the hands can do we ain't on to."

Spide wrote his initials in the soft bank of the ditch with his big toe while he meditated on what he could tell next.

"Well, sir, you'd 'a' been surprised if you'd 'a' been there."

"Was you there, Spide?"

"Yep."

"Oh, come off; you can't stuff me."

"I was, too, there. The old lady sent me down to fetch pap home. She was afraid he'd get full. Joe Stokes was there, and Lou Bentick and a whole slew of others, and Griff Ryder."

Clarence gasped with astonishment. "Why, he ain't one of the hands."

"Well, he's on their side."

"What you giving us?"

"Say, they are going to make a stiff kick on old man Oakley working in the shops. They got it in for him good and strong." He paused to weigh the effect of this and then went on rapidly: "He's done something. Ryder knows about it. He told my old man and Joe Stokes. They say he's got to get out. What's a convicted criminal anyhow?"

"What do you want to know that for, Spide?" questioned the artful Clarence, with great presence of mind.

"Well, that's what old man Oakley is. I heard Ryder say so myself, and pap and Joe Stokes just kicked themselves because they hadn't noticed it before, I suppose. My, but they were hot! Say, you'll see fun tomorrow. I should not be surprised if they sent you all a-kiting."

Clarence was swelling with the desire to tell Oakley what he had heard. He took the part of a pack of cigarettes from his pocket.

"Have one?" he said.

Spide promptly availed himself of his companion's liberality.

Matters Talked Of at Havelock

Night Restaurant is Needed in Railway Town—The Council and Cement Sidewalks

Special to the Review.

Havelock, July 30.—One of the signs of the growth of Havelock is the number of restaurants which have started business lately. A year ago there was no restaurants in Havelock at all, and no place where a railroader coming in hungry from a long trip could get a meal. Now there are three restaurants in this prosperous railroad town One is situated at the west end of the town under the management of Mrs. Wright. One is near the C.P.R. station by Mrs. Crawford, and one is in the Jeff's block, by Mrs. Weese, late of Peterborough. But what is needed most of all is all night restaurants, where a meal may be got at any hour of the night. Trainmen are coming in who have been on the road for a number of hours and whose lunch basket is empty, and how they would welcome a place where they could be served with a first-class meal before betaking themselves to their beds.

The hay crop in this district is very scanty but the grain is reported to be progressing very favorably since the recent rains.

The town council started off this spring with a great deal of talk over cement sidewalks, as if they really meant to lay some more. They as much as decided to lay them by general tax and yet we see no signs of any more walks nor do we hear any more discussions on the matter. They are at present laying plank sidewalks on several side streets in Havelock. Why do they not replace the plank sidewalk on the principal streets to the back streets and lay cement walks in their place. The way they laid what is already in town by frontage tax would work all right now by the way the taxpayers are talking for they would be willing to pay their share to have them laid in front of their residences.

FELL OFF TRAIN.

Mrs. M. McNichall of town, who was on the excursion to St. Anne de Beaupre, took a dizzy spell and fell out of a window and broke her leg above the knee.

Let me away to the spot on the river,
On Otonabee's shores—I mean Idyl Wyld;
Rare are its beauties, there the waves quiver,
'Neath the murmuring trees I'll romp free as

Free as the waves on the breast of old ocean,
Regions of bliss, how I long to be there;
And soon may I gratify yearnings of fancy—
Near draws the day of the Printers' affair;
Keep it in mind—August 12th—and be there.

Could Not Tear Themselves Away

Two Young Men Stayed on Train too Long to Say Goodbye

An amusing story is going the rounds today about two young men whose ardent devotion to two young ladies cost them the price of a return ticket to Millbrook last night. Behind it all there is a pretty little story, with a flavor of romance attached. A few days ago two young ladies from Rochester, N.Y., who are summering at Millbrook, came to Peterborough to spend a short time with friends. Among the acquaintances they made here were two young men, brothers by the way, and so many were the charms of the fair daughters of the republic that the two brothers became ardent admirers of the visitors from across the lake. Their advances were not discouraged either and the quartette became great friends. But all happy hours must end on this side of the great divide and to these four young people the end came last night. The two ladies were leaving for Millbrook on the 9 o'clock train and their two gentlemen friends accompanied them to the station. They even went further than that, and entered the car with them. Unable to tear themselves away at the last sad moment of parting, the train pulled out and before our two heroes noticed what had taken place they were unable to jump off owing to the speed that the train had attained. The result was they had to go to Millbrook and buy tickets for [illegible] too. They remained at Millbrook all night and came back to Peterborough this morning. They do not care to discuss the matter.

Offers $50,000 As Premiums

Canadian National Exhibition in Toronto is Greatest Annual Show in the World

Great efforts are being put forth by the Executive of the Canadian National Exhibition, Toronto, this year to attract an extra large number of visitors, although last year that number reached the magnificent total of three-quarters of a million. The expenditure will reach, including building expenses, $400,000; premiums $50,000, special attractions $50,000; running expenses $75,000—close upon $600,000, a sum which far exceeds the expenditure ever made in one year by any annual exhibition on this or any other continent. Both in exhibits and in entertainment the Toronto Exhibition, to be held from August 26th to September 9th, promises to exceed in value and attractiveness anything that has ever been attempted in Canada before. A number of the highest class attractions have been secured and something like $10,000 is being spent upon a spectacular production of the "Seige of Badajoz," with fireworks and an army of men. Some idea of the magnitude of the Toronto Exhibition can be gathered when it is stated that $16,000 is given in prizes for horses, $10,000 for cattle, $7,000 for dogs, $2,500 for sheep, $3,000 for swine, and a similar amount for poultry and pet stock. Handsome premiums are also given for ladies' and children's work and in other departments, the whole, as has been said, making a magnificent total of $50,000. Entries for all these classes close with the Manager at the City Hall offices, Toronto, on Saturday next.

Tea Meeting Was Held at Carmel

Pleasing Programme Presented —Many Cottagers Attended

A tea meeting was held in the Methodist church, Carmel on Thursday evening, which was largely attended by friends in that section and by cottager from the head of Stony Lake Rev. Geo. Nichie, pastor of the Methodist church, Warsaw, presided in an efficient manner and a most interesting programme was carried out. All the numbers were well received and afforded the audience much pleasure. Those who contributed songs were Mrs. Geo. Burnham of Toronto, who also presided at the organ during the evening, Mrs. J. Davidson of Norwood, the Misses Hunter (solo and duet), Miss Dot Hackett, Peterborough, Miss Irene Eastland, Peterborough; Mr. O. M. Bennett, Peterborough, and others. Mr. Jacob White of Dummer, favored with a violin selection, and together with three young ladies of his choir, furnished several fine vocal numbers.

Rev. L. S. Steedman of Otonabee Baptist pastor, Inspector Richard Lees and Mr. R. J. Winch of Peterborough, gave humorous and lively addresses. The proceeds amounted to about $100. An excellent tea was served by the ladies, and a vote of thanks was moved to the fair sex by Messrs. Davidson and R. J. Winch which was received with applause.

The cottagers returned to their summer homes, well pleased with the evening's entertainment. The lake was very calm, the proceedings of the tea meeting closing in time so that all obtained an excellent view of the eclipse of the moon.

Well Known Astronomer Writes From the Lick Observatory

Rev. Dr. Marsh Has Received Interesting Letter From Prof. Chant of Toronto University Who Lectured in Peterborough Last Winter.

Rev. Dr. Marsh has received a letter which is published below from Prof. C. A. Chant, Professor of Astronomy in the University of Toronto, and president of the Royal Astronomical Society of Canada, who is spending his vacation at the Lick Observatory University of California, at Mount Hamilton. The letter is as follows and will be read with interest in Peterborough:—

"I reached this place on June 11th, 6 weeks ago, and the time has passed very quickly. I found the director and the staff very cordial and they have put at my disposal every facility for learning how every part of the work is carried on.

I have spent much time assisting with the spectograph on the great reflector, and I have also used the 12 inch refractor for studying Mars and Saturn. By occulting the planet's disc I have been able to see the satillites with the 12 inch. They are easy enough with the 36 inch. I have been able to see Saturn's ring every time I have examined the planet, and on July 27th, next Saturday, the sun is in the plane of the ring, and then I am promised a view with the 36 inch. Dr. Aitken, who spends his time with the large telescope in double star measurements, also takes a turn at the satellites of Uranus and Mars. The former are pretty hard to get, but I have seen them all."

"The situation here is simply beautiful. Upon the summit of Mt. Hamilton we can see about in every direction canyons and ridges and the walks are very interesting and full of fine exercise, as there is so much climbing to do. There are deer in the brush and the men go out early in the morning to take a shot. They do not always come back with the game, however."

"I have prepared a pretty full account of the work in progress here which will appear in the next number of the 'Journal.' In the following number I hope to have some photographs of Daniel's comet which is photographed here on every available morning. A fine tail several degrees, 10 or 12 in length, can be found on the plate."

"I hope all is well in Peterborough with your section. The people out here think we are far ahead of them in the popular interest shown in the subject, and I have been asked to write a note on astronomical work in Canada for the publications of the Astronomical Society of the Pacific."

"I expect to stay here until the end of August. Then I go to Los Angeles and Mt. Wilson, then to Portland and Vancouver and home by the C.P.R. I will likely reach Toronto about Sept. 20th."

"Please give my compliments to the good Peterborough friends and with regards to your wife and family, I remain,

C. A. CHANT."

Lakefield Appreciates the Services of Fire Fighters

Task of Quenching the Blaze Would Have Been Difficult Were it Not for the Help From Peterboro'—Neway Notes From Lakeside Town.

Special to the Review.

Lakefield, July 30.—Mr. and Mrs. and Miss Josephine Strickland took a round trip to Bobcaygeon at the latter end of last week, and expressed themselves as delighted with the trip.

Prof. Michael MacKenzie, of Toronto University, is at present in Lakefield on a visit to his brother, Rev. A. W. MacKenzie.

Mr. Leonard of Des Moines, Iowa, and his son, Mr. Stewart Leonard, of Dorchester, Ont., are also guests of Rev A. W. and Mrs. MacKenzie, at "The Grove."

Hon. Senator Cox, of Toronto, was the guest of Mr. and Mrs. E. A. Tanner on Sunday last.

Rev S. S. Burns and family are taking a trip over the lakes to Coboconk this week. On Monday last they were the guests of Senator Cox at Stony Lake.

Mr and Mrs. Roland Johnson were in Peterborough on Sunday last, visiting friends.

Mr. O. A. Langley, solicitor for Dr. J. N. Johnston, the plaintiff in the suit Johnston vs. Hodge, informs us that the suit mentioned has not yet been settled, and that we were misinformed in regard to this phase of the question.

Miss Florence Atwood, who has been staying for the past week at "Kushaqua," Stony Lake, with her sister, Mrs. Longwood, returned to the village on Monday last.

Messrs George and Clarence Baptie spent Sunday at Sandy Point at which place Mr. George Baptie and party are camped for the summer.

TENNIS.

Bobcaygeon tennis players paid a return visit to Lakefield last week and took the local players into camp in glorious fashion. They won every week, with the exception of a single, which Rev. A. W. MacKenzie won from Dr. Fallis, and a draw, which Mr. O. A. Langley played with Dr. Boyd.

The visitors had a pleasant trip to Lakefield, going in Mr. Boy's yacht as far as Chemong, and driving from there to Lakefield by brake.

After the sets had been finished the visitors and players were regealed with afternoon tea on "The Grove" grounds, Mrs. MacKenzie, as usual, making a most hospitable and agreeable hostess.

The following ladies and gentlemen were in the party;—Dr. Boyd and wife, L C Boyd, G C Boyd, M B Bonnell, Miss F K Boyd, Mrs. De Grassi, Dr Fallis, Mr. R Moyle and wife. Mr. C E Pratt, formerly of Lakefield, came over with the Bobcaygeon contingent.

Mrs Isaac Surrin, of Winnebago, Minnesota, is in the village visiting Mr and Mrs. J. H. Davis.

FIRE AFTERMATH

The serious fire of Saturday last gave lie to all sorts of exaggerated stories, and by the time the news arrived at Stony Lake and Burleigh, and had a chance of getting magnified by oral process, the dimensions were appalling. Much as the loss to the Cavendish Lumber Co. is to be deplored, it is a wonder that the loss was not greater. The Peterborough fire brigade rendered most efficient service in coming to the assistance of the local fire fighters. Without their aid the task of quenching the fire would have been much greater.

Mr F. A. Kilbourn was the guest of Mr. R. B. Rogers on his house boat at Clear Lake on Sunday last.

Miss Mary Thompson, of Lochlin, Ont., is staying at "Ashbrook," the guest of Mr. and Mrs. Atwood.

Mr. W. Norris, his wife and sister arrived in the village on Saturday last from Montreal. Mrs. Norris and her sister have just come from England.

Miss Maud Leahy, of Peterborough, is here for a few days, visiting Miss Marguerite Webster.

Mrs Rolleston, Mrs. Tate and Miss Strickland drove into Peterborough on Monday last.

Warning to Launch Owners Several Things to Remember

The disaster in Toronto a few days ago, when nine young men lost their lives by a gasoline launch upsetting should be a warning to the owners of gasoline launches in and around this city. There are probably a score or more launches owned by local people and they are run up and down the river, and around the lakes with practically no precautions for the safety of the passengers on board. A well known boatman in the city, drew the attention of the Review to a few things that are omitted on gasoline launches that are certainly inviting danger to the lives of many.

Eighteen foot launches often carry eight or ten persons, while the load is six persons. An eighteen foot launch is practically the same as an eighteen foot skiff, and no one would think of putting more than six in it and very few that many. Over six overloads the boat, although it may not be noticeable to the occupants. But if the engine stops as it did on the Toronto Bay a very little would upset it, and it is particularly dangerous in a gale. A person never knows when the engine is going to stop either, nor when it will start again. One of the most important things is to be careful not to overload the boat. Hardly a launch in the city carries a paddle, or pole, or a life belt, or anything that would be of service in a time of trouble. The owners leave themselves and friends, entirely in the hands of fate.

Very few launches carry a lamp it is impossible to see a boat coming or to be seen and a collision is liable to happen at any time. One very dangerous place in the local waters is just above the dam. Some day a gasoline launch will be running around that part of the river, when the engine will stop. Those in the boat will have no paddle or life belt and the boat will drift down to the dam and go over to be dashed to pieces in the rapids below and all on board will go up with the angels. It would be very wise for every owner of a launch to fit his craft up with a paddle, a life preserver and a lamp and be very careful to carry only what the boat will hold.

Messrs. Walter Lang, Toronto, and Walter Humphries, Hastings, visited friends in the village on Wednesday.

Miss Lillian Richards, who has been visiting her cousin, Miss Nellie McCrae left for her home in Warkworth Thursday.

The haying is practically over in this vicinity, and the farmers are farmers are busy harvesting fall wheat. While the crops are not as good as they might be, most travellers coming through this section state the crops are the best they have seen this year.

Mrs. (Dr.) McWilliams is visiting relatives in Toronto.

Mr. W. D. Nelson, Cadillac, Mich., left Wednesday after a two weeks' visit with relatives in this vicinity.

Miss Margaret Edwards, who has been in Havelock, is visiting her parents, Mr and Mrs. James Edwards.

Mr and Mrs. Jos. Quinn and Miss Margaret and Kathleen Walsh camped last week at Idyl Wyld.

The many friends of Miss Birdie Grey, who was injured last week in an attempt to stop a runaway team of horses, will be pleased to hear that she is making satisfactory progress towards recovery.

Very few catches of maskinonge have been reported during the last couple of weeks. Perhaps the lunge are taking holidays, or maybe the Indian's theory, that they are losing their teeth, is correct. At any rate, the trolling bait seems to possess little attraction for the fish.

There is a good yield of wild raspberries in this vicinity, and the various berry patches are full of pickers every morning.

PE-RU-NA SAVED HER.

Mrs. Luke A. Morris, Jacksonville, Fla., writes:

"Peruna has done me more good than any other medicine I have ever taken, and that is saying a good deal, as I have had seven doctors treating me in the past two years.

"I only wish I had begun taking your wonderful medicine some time ago, and I would have saved so many doctor bills.

"I was completely run down, and given up to die, but Peruna braced me up and gave me a good appetite.

"I have taken not quite six bottles of Peruna and would not give it up for all the other medicines in the world.

"I thank you for all the good you have done me. I hope every sick woman who reads my name will give the medicine a trial."

Presentation to Popular Cleric

Rev. Mr. Archbold and Bride Welcomed at Clergy House, Minden

On Tuesday evening last the Clergy House, Minden, was filled to overflowing with a highly delighted crowd representing the congregation of St Paul's church, Minden, who, with visitors from Haliburton and Lochlin had assembled to greet Rev Rural Dean Archbold and his bride, on their home coming. The assemblage was headed by the church wardens, who, on behalf of the congregation, presented Mr. and Mrs. Archbold with a very handsome parlor couch upholstered in rich cut plush, accompanied by an address of welcome and good wishes, which was read by the clergyman's warden, Mr H. S. T. Seward, and the presentation was made by Mr. D. J. Hartle, people's warden. Rural Dean Archbold replied in most feeling and fitting terms, after which the company enjoyed an exceedingly pleasant time, during which light refreshments were served to the company and the meeting concluded with hearty personal congratulation from the visitors for the future welfare of the newly married couple.

The following is the address:

Rev. Mr and Mrs Archbold.

On behalf of the members of the congregation of St. Paul's church I am requested by them to perform a very pleasant duty, at this time, in asking Mrs. Archbold and yourself to accept a small token of our esteem and love toward you, of our deep appreciation of your labors on our behalf since coming amongst us, that it may incline you still further to remain and labor amongst us, even when parishes of more important and larger stipends are open to you. And may the pleasant relations that have existed during the past year, continue between us. With this tangible form of our esteem, we wish Mrs Archbold and yourself, on the occasion of your marriage, all the happiness and felicity, and may God, our Heavenly Father, bless you with every good gift through life's journey.

Signed on behalf of the members of St. Paul's.

THE WARDENS

WEDDING BELLS

O'CONNOR—O'GORMAN

At ten o'clock yesterday morning in St. Martin's church, Ennismore, Miss Maggie O'Gorman, daughter of the late Edward O'Gorman, of that township, was married to Mr. Wm. O'Connor, formerly of Douro, but now residing in Alberta. The ceremony was performed by Rev. Father Fitzpatrick. The bride was becomingly attired in white silk. She was attended by her niece, Miss Mary Sullivan, and Mr. John O'Gorman supported the groom. After the ceremony a delightful dejeuner was served at the home of Mr. Edward O'Gorman, brother of the bride. About 30 guests were in attendance. The bride was the recipient of many beautiful and costly presents. Mr. and Mrs. O'Connor will reside in the West.

BAKES—GREER

A very pretty house wedding was solemnized this morning at eleven o'clock at the residence of Mr. Johnson Greer, 704 George street, when his eldest daughter, Miss Violet was united in marriage to Mr. Henry Bakes of Campbellford. The ceremony was performed by Rev. E. A. Pearson, pastor of the George Street Methodist church, in the beautifully decorated drawing room, in the presence of a large number of invited guests. Punctually at eleven o'clock the bride entered the drawing room leaning on the arm of her father, to the strains of Mendelssohn's wedding march, played by Miss Bertha Grey, city. She was beautifully attired in dotted Swiss muslin, trimmed with ribbon and lace insertion. She carried a shower bouquet of white sweet peas. The bridesmaid was Miss Mabel Ash of Cobourg, who was similarly attired, and who carried pink sweet peas.

After the ceremony the guests sat down to a sumptuous wedding repast and hearty congratulations were bestowed upon the bride and groom. Many beautiful and costly wedding presents were recieved by the bride. The groom's gift to the bride was a handsome silver tea service and to the bridesmaid he gave a gold locket and chain. The out-of-town guests were from Cobourg, Toronto, Campbellford, Herkimer and Belleville.

Mr. and Mrs. Bakes left on the 4.48 C. P. R. train for Toronto, and on their return will reside in Campbellford. Mrs. Bakes travelled in a suit of green ladies' cloth, with Tuscan hat to match.

Winding up the Sugar Company

A Correspondent Makes Some Comment on the Action Taken in Paying off the Creditors

To the Editor of the Review.

Sir,—In a recent daily issue of your paper there is an item of news as to the final paying of the Sugar Co.'s creditors, which is misleading and unfair to those concerned. If your reporter had attended the meeting held in the Foresters hall, about one month ago, they would have learned the true state of affairs. It was shown there that some of the directors, at least two or three of them did all in their power to save everything for the creditors that they possibly could. It was shown there that when the manager had got the affairs in about as great a muddle as it possibly could be he packed his grip and quietly walked off to other parts. The affairs of the Sugar Co. were then placed in liquidation, with the only visible asset the partially finished wall on property that was bought but not paid for, and which would have reverted back to the original owners on the first of May, 1906. It was shown that the President, Mr. Bradburn, together with Messrs. Hunter, Leary, Davidson and Mr. John A. Weir, raised a loan sufficient to pay the purchase price of the land, and they endorsed the mortgage. The property stood for a year, unproductive, when fortunately the Brinton Carpet Co. came along and with the enterprise of the Hon. Geo. A. Cox purchased the property at a good price which enabled the liquidator to pay off the mortgage and leave a fund sufficient to pay all claims of creditors fifty cents on the dollar. But just then the lawyers got busy and all the machinery of the law known to be used in such matters, and unfortunately for the fund a decline set in, when it was feared by a large number of the creditors that what they should have was being used up in law costs. There was a petition circulated among the creditors and almost every creditor signed asking for the law proceedings to be stopped, as there was twenty-five hundred dollars gone in law costs and they would accept forty cents on the dollar for their claims and assign to any person that would buy them. About ninety per cent. of the creditors accepted the forty cents and assigned and gave their receipts to three of the provisional directors. This was supposed to stop the law proceedings and wind up a very tedious affair, but the lawyers still persisted in pressing the claim for the stock subscribed in the charter, for which the directors maintain that they were not liable. The matter got to the court of appeal and as was stated at the meeting it would have been two or three years before the litigation would have ended. Now it is evident that the directors found that having all the claims settled but about thirty (and some of those proposed to refund any amount over that the fund would not pay) they would have to pay the cost of litigation out of the money already assigned to them. Mr. Bradburn agreed to pay the few remaining claims and give the lawyers a rest. Mr. Bradburn is the largest creditor himself and it is only fair to say that these directors who were specially interested did all that men possibly could do, to make the best out of, seemingly, at one time, a total loss.

Walking Barber Given a Purse

Port Hope, July 30.—Port Hope's 56-year-old walking barber, Jimmie Reynolds, who recently made a plucky attempt to walk from Port Hope to Toronto and return in 38 hours, was the recipient this evening of a purse of two hundred and fifty dollars in gold at a public reception given in his honor in the drill shed by the local band and citizens of the town. Ex-Mayor White made the presentation and Reynolds made a suitable reply, in the course of which he announced his intention to again attempt the feat in October.

Cottagers at Stony Lake Complain That Law is Broken

Several cottagers at Stony Lake have been heard complaining lately of the pollution of the waters by persons, who, heedless of the harm they are doing, throw all their refuse matter into the lake. The law is printed in large letters and hung on the pavilion at Juniper Island, and also at Sandy Point, regarding the pollution of the waters and strictly forbids the throwing of any refuse matter into the lake. The offenders in this case are liable to a heavy fine and there is no excuse for anyone who is able to read, for not being well acquainted with the law. The persons that have been complained of are chiefly Americans who go out fishing all day and when their guides are cleaning the fish they throw the heads, skin and all the waste into the lake. The other day a party of Americans from Young's Point, were fishing in Clear Lake and after catching a good supply of the finny tribe, the guides proceeded to clean them and after finishing threw the waste into the lake. A cottager in the vicinity noticed their action and informed them of the law that existed in regard to this matter. The guides became frightened and before they left the spot they cleaned up every scrap.

This practice is altogether too common and as a large number of the cottagers use the water for drinking and cooking purposes, it is up to the authorities to look into the matter, and have it abolished.

Cheese Did Not Reach Eleven Cents on Local Board To-day

10 13-16c Was the Best Price Offered and the Bulk of the Offerings Sold at This Figure—Registration Was 4,595 Boxes.

Both the amount of cheese registered and the price paid at today's meeting of the Peterborough Cheese Board were below those at the last meeting two weeks ago. Eleven buyers were on hand, however, and they seemed to be keen after cheese but the best they would pay was 10 13-16c., with 10 3-4c. as the second figure. The total registration today was 4,595 boxes, as compared with an even 6,000 two weeks ago. When 11 5-16c. was the ruling price. Cheese has been going down the slide, however, since the last meeting of the board and it was not expected that over 11c. would be paid today. It is likely that the registration of two weeks ago, 6,000 boxes, will be the highest for the season as the flow of milk, is now decreasing. June is the factoryman's big month.

There was an interesting moment when it came time to decide when the next meeting of the board would be held. It was moved that an adjournment be made for three weeks and in amendment that the board adjourn for two weeks and sell ten days cheese. On coming to a vote there was an even split, fifteen voting each way. President Riddell cast the deciding vote in favor of two weeks' adjournment and received applause from that section of the gathering.

THE BIDDING.

The bidding opened with an offer of 10c from Mr. Wrighton. This was raised to 10 1-16c by Mr. Whitton and then Mr. Wrighton offered 10 1-4c. Mr. Squires raised the bid to 10 5-16c. and two or three intermediate bids were made until Mr. Gillespie offered 10 11-16c. This was raised to 10 3-4c. by Mr. Cook. Mr. Whitton made it 10 13-16c. and had the first call taking the following,—Cavanville, Ormonde, Killarney, Norwood, Brickley and Lang.

Westwood and Keene refused this offer.

The next call went to Mr. Gillespie at 10 13-16c and the following sold,—Buckhorn, Westwood, Villiers, and Otonabee Union.

Mr. Clark offered 10 13-16c., for the next lot and the following sold,—Bensfort, Shearer, Trewern, Pine Grove, Lakefield, Myrtle, Fraserville, Crown, Central Smith, Selwyn, Westminster and Warsaw.

Mr. Weir also offered 10 13-16c. and the following factories sold — Oakdale, Keene, Indian River, and Young's Point. Mr. Weir offered 10 3-4c for further but Mr. Squires offered 10 3-4c for the board and the latter bid took precedence. The following sold,—Cedardale, Mt. Pleasant, Oak Leaf, South Burleigh, and Hope.

Maple Leaf, North Dummer, East Emily, and Fleetwood refused this offer and also the same figure from Mr. Weir. They were the only factories that did not sell.

The registration of cheese was as follows,—

Keene	155
Warminster	135
Shearer	175

Selwyn	190

Juvenile Cases are Numerous

The juvenile cases that come up before His Worship Magistrate Dumble are very numerous and the younger element of the city is evidently growing up worse instead of better.

Anthony Mongour, a lad of about ten years of age, who was a month ago charged with stealing a watch, was this morning charged with stealing a waggon. He pleaded not guilty, Mr. E. L. Goodwill appearing on his behalf.

The evidence of several small boys was taken and it was clear that this lad had carried the waggon away from a residence on King street. His father was present and his worship gave him some good, sound advice as to how he should bring his boy up. The child should not be allowed his own way, but should not be brutally whipped. "If he is not checked he will give his parents a lot of trouble," said his Worship.

Young Mungour, who has been in the shelter for a few days, was allowed to go home with his parents.

Children's Aid Society Happy

Were Well Pleased With the Action of the Committee of the Whole

A member of the Children's Aid deputation when spoken to today, expressed himself as delighted with the practical assistance given by the Committee of the Whole, last night to the movement for the better protection of poor and orphaned children. Nothing was more essential to the future well-being of a nation than the care of its children, that is of those, whose only natural opportunity lies in the road to vice. The C. A. S. will be called together at once. The society will, including a furnace, have to expend not less than a thousand dollars, in the permanent improvement of the new shelter. It will easily be understood, therefore, that for it to build or acquire such a shelter as the Hilliard property, without the assistance of the City Trust Commissioners and the City Council would be quite impossible. It might also be added, concluded our informant, that the city will be able to make use of the Shelter, when, as often happens, a mother and family are suddenly thrown on its hands, for some temporary and unforeseen reason.

Fell Out of Rig Lit on His Head

Young Man Under Influence of Liquor Had Narrow Escape

A young man belonging to the city had a very narrow escape from breaking his neck last night. He was driving a livery rig on Hunter-st. and was passing the corner of Chambers street about eleven o'clock when he suddenly fell out of the rig on his head. He was very much under the influence of liquor, and had the horse not been walking, the fellow would likely have been seriously injured. As it was, he got on his feet and started to make the [illegible] a young fellow jumped into the rig and drove it back to the livery barn and the drunk went on up the street talking to himself and cursing an imaginary foe.

Wm. Miller, of Galt, fell 30 feet from a scaffold in Cowan's factory, and was severely injured.

Old Fire Hall to be Converted Into Offices for Officials

Plans of City Engineer Accepted by the Council—Instructions to Proceed With the Work at Once by Day Labor—Market Scales to be Repaired.

The old fire hall will be remodelled at once, according to the plans prepared by the city engineer some time ago. The Council considered the plans submitted for remodelling the whole city building, but that would cost too much money, while the engineer's idea would meet the requirements. It was also decided to have the work done by day labor instead of calling for tenders

Members present were Mayor McWilliams, Ald. Stevenson, Leary, Morgan, McIntyre, Johnston and Elliott

"What are we going to do with the plans for the remodelling of the old fire hall building?" asked the Mayor, after he called the meeting to order. The city clerk brought forth several rolls of plans from the depths of his vault. The first one considered was that of Architect Belcher, but it was too elaborate and would cost too much money, so it was laid aside. Then came one which had been prepared by Ald. McIntyre, City Clerk Armstrong and Ald. Johnston.

The second plan was the work of the three gentlemen, who spent some three hours last night at the city hall endeavoring to work out a scheme which would prove satisfactory. They went over the entire building, and finally Ald. McIntyre combined the ideas of the three and had a sketch drawn up, which was approved by the committee. But it would run away with far too much money and was laid aside.

The council did not seem to think that more than a thousand dollars should be spent at this time, as the general impression is that in a few years there will be a demand for a new city hall. The idea this year is to fix up the old fire hall so that it can be used by the city officials, who are now in offices over Mr. C. Brown's feed store. As a last resort the plans prepared by the city engineer and submitted by the Property Committe to the Council some time ago, were again brought out and were accepted by the following motion:—

Moved by Ald. Stevenson and Ald. Leary that the Committee of the Whole, having considered the alterations of the Council building as a whole have concluded that to make any extensive alterations would not be advisable and would be too expensive they therefore recommend that the Council accept the Property Committee's first report, which provided only for the fixing up of the old fire hall. To this was added that the wash room and passage room west of the committee room, be taken out.—Carried.

TO BE DAY LABOR.

Moved by Ald. Morgan, seconded by Ald. McIntyre,—That the city engineer be authorized to have the work done at once by day labor.—Carried.

Added to the above motion was that the city engineer have the market scales repaired at the same time.

Pressed Brick on Collegiate Institute Instead of Common

Board of Education in Trimming Down the Plans Went Too Far—People Will Not Like Common Brick on the Outside—Change Should be Made at Once.

A discovery was made yesterday afternoon, which will prove of great interest to every ratepayer in the city. A gentleman, well known to everyone, attended the laying of the corner stone of the new Collegiate Institute, and he was surprised to find that the Board of Education was using only the common brick for the facing on the outside walls, instead of pressed brick. This will be a most regrettable thing and the Collegiate will stand as a monument to a mistake forever. The Board of Education should not be permitted to erect an expensive building like that with common brick. The appearance alone will cost the city far more than the difference in the price of the two bricks.

When one of the building committee was spoken to about it, he said that the Board had to do it. They wanted to cut the price down to rock bottom, and they had the architect trim off everything he possibly could. The committeeman, however ventured to say that the difference would only be about $640 between common brick and pressed brick One of the architects was asked to make an estimate of the difference and he put it at $1000. Then a well known contractor figured it out at $2,000. Even at $2,000 the change should be made and made at once, before the contractors get too far advanced. The extra cost would have to be taken out of current revenue, but an extra tax for one year would wipe it out, and it would cost each ratepayer about 30 cents. The Board of Education should lose no time in making this change. The people are expecting a building to be erected that will hold its own against any other city and they will stand by the additional cost. They will also censure the Board of Education if the change is not made.

Banks and McCallum will do an extensive business. Already the prospects are very bright and they have an excellent stand and both are good business men. [illegible]

Buttons Jerked Off His Coat; Policeman Branded a Coward

Dramatic Scenes at the Expulsion of New York Policeman.

Commissioner Wept as He Ordered Officer's Badge Removed—Permitted Murderer to Escape After Killing a Woman—The First Offence of the Kind in Thirty Years—Keen Interest in Unusual Case.

New York, Aug. 1.—A remarkable scene closely paralleling that memorable one in Paris, when Capt. Alfred Dreyfus was publicly degraded before the French army, was enacted in the trial-room at police headquarters yesterday.

For the first time in more than 30 years a patrolman had been adjudged guilty of cowardice. He is Stephen S. Walsh, who, according to the charge made against him, last week fled from an armed man who had shot and killed a woman.

The keen interest with which the unusual case was followed rose to a point of dramatic intensity when Police Commissioner Bingham, who had presided personally at the trial, announced, in a voice choked with emotion, that the charge against the unfortunate man had been proven.

The commissioner turned to Inspector Richard Walsh, in whose district Stephen Walsh was a patrolman, but who is no relative of the dismissed man, and directed the inspector to strip Walsh of his shield and uniform buttons, so that he might not leave the trial-room with the emblems of his former position as a policeman in good standing on his person.

The dismissed man stood still and offered no resistance as the shield was unpinned from his breast, but when the inspector started to detach the buttons of the uniform, Stephen Walsh stepped back and appealed to his attorney from any further humiliation being put upon him in the presence of his former comrades.

Commissioner Bingham, who was laboring under great excitement, then interposed and directed the inspector to conduct his former subordinate to the steps of the police building and eject him. Stephen Walsh offered no resistance, and went with the inspector to the outer doorway, where he was formally directed to leave the building.

Throughout the unusual proceedings Walsh maintained his composure. As he was being escorted from the room, Commissioner Bingham, with a wave of his hand, indicated that he desired the other men in uniform to remain.

"Come up close in front, all you men in uniform," said the commissioner in a voice choked with emotion, while his eyes brimmed with tears, "I have a word to say to you all, but I can scarcely say it. My cheeks burned with shame here even to think of a charge of cowardice being preferred against a man in this department.

"It has been our pride to say that whatever other faults there may have been, there was no cowardice in this department.

"I gave the accused in this case every chance to defend himself, but it has been clearly proven that he failed just at the moment when he should not have failed. This thing must never happen again while you and I are together. You must forget this, but you must remember the proud record of thirty years before when not one man in the many thousands failed to do his duty in the face of any danger."

Stephen Walsh was one of the two men against whom a charge of cowardice was made last week, when Frank Warner was permitted to escape after killing Esther Norling in 42nd street. Warner then shot and killed John Wilson. It was shown that Walsh had followed Warner into a building and was shot at. Walsh ran down a flight of stair and into an office, where he locked the door and ordered two civilians not to open it. Walsh tried to attach the stigma of cowardice to fellow policemen also.

Cabinet at Work.

Ottawa, Aug. 1.—Sir Wilfrid Laurier arrived in Ottawa yesterday and Messrs. Paterson, Aylesworth, Lemieux, Templeman and Scott met in Cabinet session.

There is an immense amount of accumulated business to get through and this will occupy the attention of the Premier and his colleagues for some time.

It had been expected that the portfolio of Public Works at least would be filled, but the vacancies were only incidentally referred to.

Grand Trunk to Appeal.

Ottawa, Aug. 1.—Already notice of an appeal has been received from the decision of the Railway Commission ordering the Grand Trunk Railway to provide a daily third-class service at two cents a mile between Montreal and Toronto. The railway showed the greatest promptness in notifying the Commission of the appeal and it is understood that the case will be carried to the Privy Council.

Australia Will Kill It.

London, Aug. 1.—(C.A.P.)—The Standard is responsible for the statement that as long as Australia remains hostile to the "all-red" scheme, the Home Government will have nothing to do with it, and the impression prevails in Ministerial circles that Premier Deakin is inflexibly opposed.

Japs Protest.

Seattle, Wash., Aug. 1.—Five Chambers of Commerce in Japan have addressed a letter to the local Chamber asking that an effort be made to prevent discrimination against their countrymen in the United States.

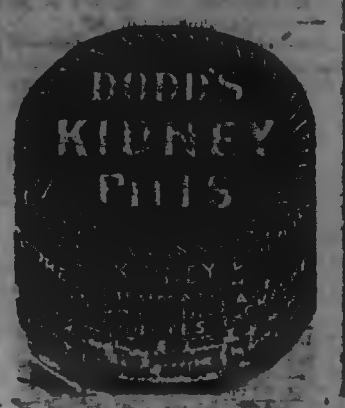
Vancouver, B.C., Aug. 1.—It is reported here that the Japanese Government is sending a special commissioner to Hawaii, the United States, and the Dominion to study the Japanese labor question at close range.



PEOPLE FEAR GHOST

Weird Crimes Perpetrated at Midnight 'Phone Station.

Operator Found Dying of Terrible Wounds — Residents Talk of the Supernatural — Shrieks and Yells by Night — Nine Quit and Two Lose Their Lives — Police Scout Ghost Theory.

Wellesley, Mass., Aug. 1.—The last man who has been brave enough to accept the position of night operator in the Telephone Exchange of this noted college town is dying from fearful wounds, in Wellesley's little hospital.

The first operator has been in his grave for a year with a shot-wound through his head. Between the dead and dying operators nine others, hired to conduct the central office by night, have quit their jobs, declaring that no money in the world can induce them to "work with the supernatural."

Throughout Wellesley, among college girls and citizens alike, the mysterious assailant has come to be known as the "Ghost of the Telephone," and there are many who believe that either a murderous phantom or a maniac lurks about the place to kill every man or woman who undertakes the nocturnal watch of the 'phone.

Joseph McCarthy, the last victim, was attacked while he held his ear to the receiver at midnight. He was alone in the building, and was answering a late call when some one or "something," the residents say, crept up behind him and dealt him two fatal blows on the head. Evidently he struggled with the assailant, for the office was in great disorder when the day operator found the dying man's body in the morning.

McCarthy was taken to the hospital, where he still lies unconscious. The doctors say he cannot survive his wounds, and unless he recovers consciousness before death the police have no hope of solving the mystery.

In the same strange way Perley Parker was murdered in the same office twelve months ago. The assassin had never appeared there before; the police put it down as a sporadic crime, and the telephone company had no trouble in finding a man to take Parker's place. This man was Joseph Puld. He stayed two months, then resigned without any explanation.

After him George Slaney became operator for two weeks. "You couldn't hire me to stay another night for a million dollars," he said, and also quit.

Benjamin Leighton, who followed, fled not only the station but the town, at the end of a single week. So did James Everett and James Friedeth, both hinting at awful sights and sounds by night, but refusing to explain. Then came James McManus, who held out a month.

"I can't stand the shrieks and yells around there," he said when he went away. Clarence Foss, the eighth man, carried a revolver to work with him. The town had heard about the telephone ghost. Ross dared it to come and fight against his gun. He quit in a month.

"A bullet is no good against the supernatural," he explained, when he resigned. "I know, because I tried, and I'm out of that place for good."

Next was Joseph Flynn, who stayed only one night.

"I won't talk about what I saw, because you'd laugh at me," said Flynn. "But people who never lived come there at midnight."

When he had gone away McCarthy undertook the job. He was said to be the most daring and least superstitious young fellow in Wellesley.

Although the police scout the ghost theory, they have been unable to find a single clue to the source of the mysterious crimes.

Approve Grant.

London, Aug. 1.—Both Houses yesterday approved the grant of $250,000 to Lord Cromer, who recently resigned the post of British agent and consul-general in Egypt.

The grant was opposed by the Nationalists and the Laborites on the ground that Lord Cromer had been sufficiently rewarded by his salary and pension, and that if the grant were necessary, it ought to be borne by the Egyptian and not the British taxpayer.

Injured in Runaway.

Belleville, Aug. 1.—What may prove to be a fatal accident happened to County Attorney Anderson of this city, while returning from Trenton Tuesday night, where he had been prosecuting in a case of robbery. His horse became frightened at an automobile and ran away, throwing the county attorney out, cracking several of his ribs and badly bruising him, besides injuring him internally.

Andrew Carnegie Decorated.

The Hague, Aug. 1.—Queen Wilhelmina has conferred on Andrew Carnegie the order of Orange Nassau. It is conferred for favors to the royal family or to the country, and consists of a blue enameled cross which has eight points, the whole surrounded by a laurel wreath. In the centre is the national coat of arms on a blue ground.

Killed in Runaway.

Kingston, Aug. 1.—Mrs. Gilbert Maracle, aged 65, returning from a berry-picking expedition, was instantly killed, three miles from Napanee, during a runaway.

She struck on her head.

Heiress to Miser's Estate.

Montreal, Aug. 1.—An heiress has been found in Glasgow to the estate of the late Neil Brodie, but the old miser was not so rich as popularly supposed, so the heiress will only come in for about $4,800.

SUES FOR $20,000.

Sir Charles Tupper Called in the Vancouver Libel Suit.

Vancouver, B.C., Aug. 1.—Former Commissioner of Lands and Works R. F. Green's suit against The Vancouver World for $20,000 for libel for saying he was bribed by Sir Adolphe Caron into accepting $37,000 in shares of the transcontinental exploration syndicate, which holds nine leases of provincial lands, is being heard.

Sir Charles Tupper was in the witness box. The court upheld Sir Charles' claim of professional privilege, and Premier McBride, Minister of Finance Tatlow and Hon. Carter Cotton, in turn, claimed the privilege of their oath of office, which the court upheld. The Premier gave Green a certificate for good and conscientious discharge of public duties.

Editor Higgins of The World, former Speaker of the Provincial House, then claimed the privileges of editor, and was also upheld, and the source of information was not revealed. He admitted he wrote the alleged libel, and declared he had verified the information to his satisfaction. Photographs of two destroyed letters were produced, one from Caron to Green, and Green's reply.

These showed the offer of shares made as a gift, and declined by Green, but Barrister Neil McKay of Kaslo, later appointed deputy commissioner of lands and works, had been named by Green as a likely member of Caron's syndicate, and certain shares were later sent to him, which, Caron says, are of the nominal value of $500.

Sir Adolphe Caron in his examination said the article was a dream.

Police Magistrate Livingstone, of Brantford, assumed his new duties yesterday.

RACED WITH DEATH

Messenger Started With Reprieve For Condemned Murderer.

Frank Capelle Escaped the Gallows This Morning—Was Granted Two Weeks Stay by Judge Britton—Counsel Making Great Fight For the Man's Life—Application For a New Trial.

Toronto, Aug. 1.—The death sentence to have been executed on Frank Capelle at Port Arthur this morning was postponed by reprieve until Aug. 15, granted by Judge Britton at noon yesterday. This is the first time such an order has been granted by a judge who did not try the case.

The application was made by C. A. Moss as agent for F. H. Keefer, of Port Arthur, counsel for the prisoner.

Capelle was found guilty at the last Parry Sound Assizes of the murder of one Dow and was sentenced by Judge Teetzel to be hanged on Aug. 1st.

A special messenger, Mr. Hugh Hoyles, was immediately dispatched to Port Arthur with the order of postponement.

The ground on which Mr. Keefer based his application was that he could produce evidence not heard at the trial when Capelle was sentenced which he claims would change the verdict of any jury from death to manslaughter.

Capelle was indicted jointly with Eugene Marano. The latter was acquitted.

Mr. Keefer also claims that he can produce an eye-witness of the tragedy, who was ill at the time of the trial, whose evidence will show that the death of Dow resulted out of a drunken row in which Capelle was struck on the head where he had been previously injured.

The shortness of the time between his application for reprieve and the day of sentence was due to his not having been advised of the result of his application for clemency from the Crown until July 29, the day he made application.

Capelle will be remanded back into custody until the 15th, and an application for a new trial made.

TO SAIL LAKES.

United States Naval Reserve Asks Canada For Another Ship.

Ottawa, Aug. 1.—The United States Government has made another application for a training ship on the great lakes.

Some time ago an application was made and granted for a United States cruiser to go through the Canadian canals, to be utilized as a training ship on Lake Erie. This time the application is made for one on Lake Ontario.

While the United States has formally made the application to the Dominion, it is really from the State of New York, and made on behalf of the naval militia, with headquarters at Rochester. It is understood that the application will be granted.

There are no guns on these old cruisers, which are to be used as training ships. Whatever guns are required for the naval officers and cadets will be kept ashore.

The granting of the application is regarded as a neighborly act and in no way interferes with the arrangement as to cruisers on the great lakes which exist between the two countries.

Ontario Rich.

Toronto, Aug. 1.—The total amount of succession duties paid to the Treasury Department of the province in July was $135,524. This brings the amounts for the year to date up to $676,941.

Col. Matheson in his budget speech estimated the receipts from this source for the year at $700,000, and it is likely that this will be greatly exceeded.

During July 18 estates accounted to the Department.

Drowns in Six Inches of Water.

Binghamton, N.Y., Aug. 1.—Jas. H. Morey, 74 years old, and wealthy, of Lounsberry, N.Y., was drowned in the Susquehanna River in six inches of water.

Toronto, Aug. 1.—The Ontario Government has made the following appointments:

George Young was appointed sanitary inspector for Coleman Township.

J. A. Devanny was appointed police magistrate for Nipissing, and Stuart Masson to the same position for Hastings.

BRITAIN SCORES.

Gets In Ahead of United States With Peace Conference Program.

The Hague, Aug. 1.—The British delegation are working on a proposition which, when it is presented, will cause considerable surprise, as it is in the nature of the unexpected.

As already cabled, the representatives of the United States have been privately discussing with other leading delegates the advisability of the United States representing a proposition for the periodical sitting of the conference, this proposition suggesting that it should meet quinquennially on June 2, beginning in 1912.

The British delegation went ahead of the Americans, having already communicated in the strictest secrecy only to a few delegates of the great powers, its proposition on the same subject, establishing that the conference should sit septennially, but that two years before the meeting special representatives of Great Britain, France, Germany, United States, Russia, Italy, Austria and Japan should meet to prepare the work for the conference, prearranging everything connected with its organization and the matters to be taken under advisement.

Thus, when the conference meets again its program will be already so studied by each country that satisfactory agreements will be the most easily reached.

In addition, although nothing has been said against Russia, the conference will no longer be monopolized by one nation, and will not depend, as heretofore, on the will of the sovereign of that country for its coming together and the fixing of the program.

The British proposition for the abolition of contraband was adopted in committee yesterday by 25 votes to 5. The representatives of the United States, Germany, France, Russia and Montenegro expressing themselves as opposed to the measure, and Japan, Spain, Panama, Greece and Roumania abstaining from voting. There were also ten absentees.

The Belgian proposition, that the inhabitants of an occupied territory should not be compelled to participate in military operations against the country, was adopted by a vote of 18 to 15. There were 12 absentees.

DUTIES ON FISH.

Nationalist Asks That Ireland Be Treated Like Canada.

London, Aug. 1.—Speaking in the House of Commons, John P. Boland, Nationalist representative of the southern division of Kerry, called the attention of Foreign Secretary Sir Edward Grey, to the fact that the United States is the principal market for Irish cured mackerel, and asked the Secretary to use his best endeavors in connections with the negotiations now going on between Great Britain, Newfoundland, Canada and the United States regarding the fisheries question, to have the American tariff of $2 a barrel on mackerel removed in the event of the Canadian fish being allowed to enter the United States free of duty.

Sir Edward replied that if a favorable opportunity occurred to make an attempt to obtain a reduction of American duties on the produce of the United Kingdom, the case of Irish cured mackerel would not be overlooked, but he said the negotiations on the subject of colonial fish that had taken place some time ago had not led to any definite result.

No Closed Season.

Windsor, Aug. 1.—C. W. Gauthier, one of the most prominent of Canadian fishermen, told the Canadian Fish Commission that there should be no closed season for any kind of fish.

He said if the exportation to the United States were prevented by the Government it would kill the fishing industry along the great lakes. Government hatcheries are the only remedy for the present condition, he said.

He also outlined a plan to have the Government establish canneries along the shores of the northern lakes and supply canned herring to the people at an estimated cost of about six cents per pound.

The London Inquest.

London, Aug. 1.—The evidence given at the sitting of the coroner's jury enquiring into the cause of the Reid disaster was principally that of the employes of the W. J. Reid Co. who swore that there was no especially heavy stock on the floor of the warehouse.

Wm. Foley, the local manager of the Smirlies concern, stated that from the appearance of things the W. J. Reid Co. seemed to be moving in, instead of moving out.

King to Visit Austria.

Vienna, Aug. 1.—The program was arranged yesterday for a meeting between King Edward and Emperor Francis Joseph at Ischl, in Upper Austria, on Aug. 15 and 16.

Immediately afterwards King Edward will continue the journey to Marienbad.

Goes Insane on Train.

London, Ont., Aug. 1.—Miss Alderson of Toronto, sister of Mrs. Davis of Maitland street, suddenly went insane while riding on a Grand Trunk train from Toronto to London.

Her condition gives her physicians and relatives the greatest cause for alarm.

'Joe Martin Redivivus.

Vancouver, Aug. 1.—Joseph Martin, K.C., former Premier, will likely be an independent candidate in the bye-election here opposing Hon. W. J. Bowser, newly appointed Attorney-General in McBride's Cabinet.

The Liberals decline to enter the field.

Gasoline Boat Ablaze.

Rochester, N.Y., Aug. 1.—A match ignited gasoline leaking from the engine of a launch on the Erie canal Tuesday night and six occupants of the burning boat leaped into the canal. Mrs. Margaret Clark and her nine-year-old boy were drowned.

John Sweeney, of Orangeville, was sentenced to three months for threatening to kill his wife.

The Wireless Convention.

London, Aug. 1.—(C.A.P.)—In the House of Commons, Sir Edward Sasson objected to the proposed ratification by the Government of the radio-telegraphic convention without a discussion by the House.

He said it was a thousand pities the colonies had not been asked for some agreement regarding a basis of common action at the Imperial Conference, especially in view of the fact that Canada is becoming a point of contact between the east and west.

Mr. Haldane, replying, said the Government was contending for the Canadian standard form of license.

Local Factories Were Inspected

Mrs. Brown Reports Them all to be Excellent Condition

Mr R. J. Brown returned to Toronto last evening, after spending the past two days in the city, inspecting the different factories.

Mrs. Brown is sent out by the Provincial Government, and her duty is to inspect all factories and shops where young girls are employed. Her district is east of Toronto as far as Ottawa, and as far north from Toronto as Sault Ste. Marie. Mrs Brown is kept travelling all the time. She examines factories in regard to the sanitary conditions and ventilation. Any girl under the age of fourteen working in a factory is reported, and also her employer. In shops 14 years is the minimum age at which they are allowed to start to work. On this trip Mrs. Brown only inspected the factories, and the condition in which she found the local shops was highly satisfactory. She had nothing but praise for the different establishments. She visited the Quaker Oats Co., Auburn Woollen Mills, C.G.E. Works, Carpet factory and the Colonial Weaving Co & in none of them did she find a girl working under 14 years of age. The sanitary and ventilating conditions were excellent and everything is being done which tends to make the girl's work more pleasant and her surroundings more agreeable. Mrs. Brown remarked that little trouble is being experienced in making employers comply with the law in connection with her work, and they are all anxious to have their places of business as modern as possible.

The inspection of shops is only carried out once a year, but that of the factories is attended to more frequently.

Annual Outing Was Successful

Knights of Columbus Went to Mount Julian and Burleigh Falls

The Knights of Columbus held a very successful excursion to Mount Julian and Burleigh Falls yesterday. There were about 150 left the G.T.R. station in the morning for Lakefield, where they took the steamer Stony Lake and had a very pleasant sail through the lakes. The weather was nice and cool and the hour's rest at Burleigh, where they had dinner, put them in good spirits for the return trip. On board were several members of the clergy, including Rev, Father Bretherton, of Hastings; Rev. Father Roach, of Texas; Rev Father Phelan, of Lindsay; Mr. A. J. Gough, of Lindsay, and Mr McCabe, of Toronto, were also present.

Children's Aid Society to Put Hilliard House in Condition

Will Spend About $700—Put in Water, Sewer, Light and Heating System—Provide Dormitories and Keep the Place in Good Repair.

A special meeting of the Property committee was held last night to consider the proposition of giving the Hilliard homestead to the Children's Aid Society. Representatives of the Society and the City Trust Commissioners were present. So far as the meeting was concerned everything went lovely and everyone was willing that the deal go through. The Society is to get the property at about $1 a year. In return they will put the property in proper shape, such as connection with the water works, providing a sewer system, putting in electric light and a new heating system, and to keep the building in good repair as well as fixing up the rooms as dormitories. The Property committee went as far as they could in the matter until they reported to the Council.

Those present were: Mayor McWilliams, Ald Stevenson, McIntyre, Leary and Morgan, Mr. J. H. Burnham, President of the Children's Aid Society, Mr Goodwill secretary, and Mr. Peter Campbell, treasurer.

In introducing the matter of the new home for the shelter for the Children's Aid Society, His Worship Mayor McWilliams, who acted as chairman at the request of Ald. McIntyre, explained what steps the Council had taken and asked the president of the Society to speak.

CHILDREN'S AID.

Mr. J. H. Burnham president of the Children's Aid Society, said that they were practically on the street as they were liable to be dispossessed of present shelter at a moment's notice. They had been given fair warning by Mr. Best and so they started to look for a new place at once and decided that the house on the Hilliard farm with an acre of ground would be an ideal place. Half the house would be no good, but the whole house would be splendid. Of course they would have to have sewer, waterworks, a heating system and electric light. A cesspool could be worked very satisfactorily and they would only have to go some 500 feet to connect with the waterworks and to put in a heating system. These improvements would cost about $500, which the Society would take charge of; The Society would also put the house in good repair. He expected the Council to give the property named for a very nominal rental of say a barley corn, or $1 per year.

Continuing Mr. Burnham spoke of the great work being done by the society and how worthy it was of generous treatment. He also spoke of the excellent work being done by Mr. and Mrs. Henry, who are one couple in a thousand for that position.

Mr. Goodwill in speaking referred to the amount of room required and pointed out that the present shelter was too small for both comfort and from a sanitary standpoint. They wanted new premises and larger premises so they can enlarge their work. Very often he received, as secretary of the society many applications which he cannot handle for lack of room. From the northern townships they often get children that are not more than half civilized and they have to be taught for probably two years, before they are fit to be placed in foster homes. Then they would like to be in a position to handle more cases of bad boys who are taken to the police court. At present they are unable to touch these boys. He thought that $700 would be needed to put the place in shape.

Mr. W. H. Moore said be thought it was most desirable to have a good shelter in the city. The city is now growing considerably and is large enough now for a good institution. As for a location he could not think of any beter place than the Hilliard homestead. The house was good and the land consisted of a little over an acre. He valued the property at $3000, and at the present time one-half of the house is rented for $150 a year and with a small expenditure the back part could be rented for about the same, giving the city some $240 or more, which is 6 per cent on $6000. The house is in pretty good condition, having been reshingled and repainted the past year. The house will be hard to heat, but if the society are willing to take it up its all right, and he would like to see it given if the Council feels it can afford to give it.

The position, said Mayor McWilliams is this:—The Children's Aid Society say the property is suitable for them; the City Trust Commissioners will give over the property if the Council forgoes the rental now received. It is now for the Council to deal with the matter. If there is a quorum to-night something will likely be done.

COUNCIL MEETING.

The committee of the whole adjourned and the Council met when the following resolution was passed.—

Moved by Ald. Leary, seconded by Ald. Johnston, that the City Council request the City Trust Commissioners to give the Children Aid Society the Hilliard farm house and the acre of land connected thereto, for a term of 21 years with the privilege of cancelling the agreement on six months notice any time after 5 years. The rental to be one dollar a year. The society to make their own improvements and keep the property in repair.

Provincial Auditor Reports On Finances of Town of Cobourg

The report of the Provincial Municipal Auditor to the Ontario Government for 1906, has been received. It contains a report of the very unsatisfactory condition of he finances in Cobourg, during a period of a few years ago. After reading some of them the ratepayers of Peterborough will probably realise that they have cause to be thankful for an honest, straightforward administration of affairs here.

In addition to the above there were many other things mentioned which showed carelessness and lack of system in the conduct of the city's affairs.

The revenue from town licenses was $393.25, which, we think, should have been collected earlier in the year.

Temporary loans from he bank amounted to $27,500. During the year $16,500 was repaid, so that on the 31st December, 1905, there was a balance of $11,000 owing the bank on the Council's note. Of this balance $2,000 is chargeable against sidewalks, for which debentures will be issued on the completion of the work leaving a difference of $9,000, which may be considered as a current liability of the town.

The sum of $554.50 was paid to the bank for interest during the year, of which $345.65 was owing on the 31st December, 1904. The difference, viz. $208.85, together with $270 interest accrued to 31st December, 1905, gives $478.85 as the total interest charge for the period under review.

We should mention that the council pays six per cent. for its accommodation and would suggest that an endeavor be made to secure a lower rate

The debenture debt on the 31st December, 1905, was $233,580.00 to which should be added the $2,000 expenditure on sidewalks referred to above.

Of this total ($235,580) the sum of $22,800 is in respect of local improvements and school debentures. The difference, viz., $212,780. is the net debenture debt against general rate and is a charge of over $42.00 per head, calculated on a population of 5,000. We understand your council contemplates a further issue of debentures in the near future.

We regret to report that there has been no investment of moneys for sinking fund purposes, though we find that year by year the requisite amount has been included in the estimates and assessed for. Unfortunately, however, the councils of 1902 and 1903 were working under large deficits and the money raised to meet sinking fund charges was diverted to other uses. The council of 1904 took upon itself to wipe out the accumulated deficit and were partially successful.

One matter, the payment of a bonus of $5,000 to Dick Ridout, was, of course, illegal and unwarranted, but the payment was afterwards legalized by a special Act of Parliament

In connection with this matter a judge living in the town used it as a lever to secure a reduction of his assessment. He intimated to the council that unless his assessment was reduced to a certain amount he would bring on a claim against the council for making an illegal payment.

Another bone of contention is the disposition of the moneys in the hands of the Town Trust Commissioners. The Commissioners were appointed to stand between the town and the bondholders at a time when the town's credit was questionable. A fortunate deal with the Dominion Government helped to re-establish the town's finances and removed the raison d'etre of the commissioners.

At the time of relinquishing their duties there was a balance of something like $10,000 in their hands and I do not know whether it was handed over to the town or spent by the commissioners in improvements to the opera house.

No one seems to know very definitely what was done with it, and, of course, it did not come within the province of my work to look carefully into the matter. This, however, is a matter of the past.

I think the fact that no sinking fund has been provided for, is a very serious matter.

The Consolidated Municipal Act is very clear and definite on this point and neglect to provide for it is considered a misdemeanor inasmuch as there is a penalty imposed.

The money has been assessed for, but it has been diverted to other uses.

There are evidences that the councillors have treated their duties in a very careless way.

They have failed to take their solicitor's advice and any suggestion made by the treasurer as to the advisability or legality of any action has been considered as interference.

The Council should be made to understand that as a body corporate they can only do what the law provides what they may so do and in a manner as set out in the statute.

RASPBERRIES AT HIGHER PRICES

Canning Factories Are Buying Everything in Sight—Prices Will Not Come Down

The reports in the papers recently of a large crop of raspberries and a probability of low prices were incorrect, according to some of the green grocers. There is a good yield of raspberries, and the prices might have been lower, but yesterday and the day before, the buyers from the canning factories, jumped into the patches, and offered a higher price than the grocers, and bought up large quantities. The factories so far have not had much fruit. The strawberries were scarce, and cherries were scarce, and worse still, the reports from the peach districts are to the effect that peaches will be a small crop also. It is reasonable, therefore, to understand the factories buying up everything in sight, and paying all kinds of prices. Housewives will therefore show their wisdom in taking the first reasonable offer made to them for raspberries.

A permit for the erection of a five-storey building at the corner of King and Simcoe streets, Toronto, to cost $180,000 has been taken out by the Canada General Electric Company.

Official Record Of the Weather

As Kept by Mr. Peters During Month of July—No Excessive Heat Reported

The rainfall during the month of July, in this district, amounted to 1 inch and 86-100. This amount, although comparatively small, was greater than in many other places not far distant, and, as a consequence there are none of the effects of drought to be seen here that are visible farther west. The heaviest fall was on the 29th, when we had .46 of an inch, during a thunderstorm, of which we had six during the month. Rain fell on four other days. No excessive heat was experienced, the highest being 86 degrees on the 17th and 19th. The lowest reading of the thermometer was on the 3rd, when the mercury went down to 42 degrees —a very low mark for July. We had 19 fair, or cloudless days, during the month, and 12 days, when the sky was overcast or showery. The days when we had it above 80 degrees in the shade, numbered 17.

They will carry a large number of guns and ammunition for the hunters and will be in a position to compete with the large Toronto and Montreal firms.

Packing Blew Out of a Joint

Steamer Monarch Had a Slight Mishap Coming up the River

Coming up the river on the regular trip last night a slight accident happened on the steamer Monarch, which delayed the boat for about half an hour. The packing on one of the joints blew out and allowed the steam to escape. Fortunately there was not a very large crowd on board and the passengers felt no uneasiness after the first minute. It was easy to see what had happened and there was no danger at all. Inside of half an hour the damage was repaired and the steamer continued its journey to the city.

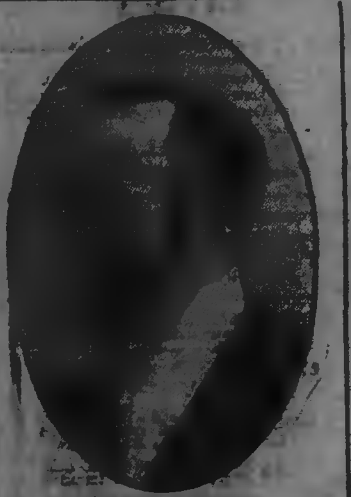
Corner Stone of New Collegiate Institute Well and Truly Laid

One of the Most Auspicious Events in the History of the City Took Place at the New Collegiate Institute at Central Park Yesterday Afternoon---Corner Stone of Splendid New Educational Institution Laid by Mr. Jas. Stevenson, Who for over Half a Century has Been Connected with Education in Peterborough—Ceremony Attended by Large Number of Prominent Citizens—The Advantages of Education are Impressed—Members of Board of Education Congratulated upon Their Accomplishment.



DR. GEO. BURNHAM
Who Acted as Chairman Yesterday

MAYOR McWILLIAMS
Who Assisted in the Ceremony Yesterday

In the presence of a large assemblage of prominent citizens, and with flags and streamers flaunting in the breeze, the corner stone of the new Collegiate Institute in Central Park was well and truly laid yesterday afternoon. The mortar on the corner of the foundation where the block was to rest was smoothed down by a silver trowel in the hands of Mr. Jas. Stevenson, and at 4.30 o'clock the big piece of granite that comprises the corner stone was lowered to its position, guided to its proper place by the veteran disciple of the educational interests of the city. The corner stone is at the north-east corner of the building, and the words, "corner stone," and "1907" are engraved upon it.

The laying of the corner stone of the new Collegiate marks another epoch in the history of the educational interests of Peterborough. It can hardly be said that the educational institutions have kept pace with the growth of the city. A new Collegiate was needed several years ago but at that time the Board of Education could not see their way clear to erect one. Since it was definitely decided about two years ago to build a new Institute, many difficulties have been encountered, and at times it seemed as if the erection of the badly needed institution would have to be further delayed. But the members of the Building Committee and of the Board of Education generally were and are men of [illegible] and determination, and they have persevered and labored until today they have sight of the accomplishment of their object. In a few months (for rapid progress is being made) a new Collegiate Institute of architectural beauty and splendid equipment will stand in Central Park, stand as a lasting monument to the industry and foresight of the members of the Board of Education of 1905, 1906 and 1907. The foundation has practically been completed, and in a few days work on the brick walls will be under way, and the building will be nearing completion before the close of the year.

Complete preparations had been made for yesterday's auspicious event, and everything was in readiness for the interesting ceremony of laying the corner stone when the citizens assembled at four o'clock. A long flag pole had been erected near the north-east corner, and from its top floated a large Canadian ensign. Arched over the corner stone were two high poles, to which were attached a large number of colored rosettes, making a very pretty scene. A large platform had been erected at the south-east corner of the building on top of the foundation, and there seats were arranged to accommodate those who wished to listen to the speeches. A canvas canopy was erected over the platform to act as a protection in case of rain, but it was hardly needed, for, although rain had fallen during the afternoon, the sky was bright and the sun shining during the hour and a half involved in the ceremony of laying the corner stone.

MANY PRESENT.

Nearly all the members of the Board of Education, many of the members of the City Council, a large number of those engaged in the teaching profession in the city, as well as a large number of other citizens, both ladies and gentlemen, were present and took a deep interest in the proceedings. In addition to the laying of the corner stone proper, there were addresses by Dr. Burnham, who made an efficient chairman; Mr. Jas. Stevenson, who laid the corner stone and who had been connected with the educational interests of Peterborough for the last fifty years; Dr. M. A. Morrison, chairman of the Building Committee; His Worship Mayor McWilliams, R. R. Hall, M.P.; T. E. Bradburn, M.P.P.; Rev. J. G. Potter, representing the Ministerial Association of the city; Rev. Father McColl, representing His Lordship Bishop O'Connor, and Mr. D. W. Dumble, Police Magistrate of the city, and a member of the Board of Education.

CHAIRMAN'S ADDRESS

It was shortly after four o'clock when the chairman, Dr. Burnham, called the gathering to order, and in opening the proceedings, spoke as follows:—

Ladies and Gentlemen,—

We are met here on a most important occasion to assist at a most important and significant ceremony.

While I appreciate the honor of being asked to preside, I can see no further reason for my selection than the fact that I would not be likely to make a speech, and therefore my remarks will be brief.

I have referred to this being an important occasion, and it is so for several reasons.

In the first place, in the matter of a Collegiate Institute building, Peterborough enters upon an independent position.

We have been a town for nearly sixty years, and a city for two years, yet we have never had a Collegiate Institute building — we have been simply tenants of the Public School Board.

This present building of which we are to-day laying the corner-stone, has not come before it was needed.

This occasion is important because it marks the beginning of better days for the Institute.

We have long had one of the best equipped teaching staffs in the country, but they were handicapped by structural disadvantages.

With the new building we shall be better prepared to do the work which an Institute is designed to perform, and have a building somewhat worthy of the size and importance of the city.

We are well provided with Public School buildings, all of them nearly in a good state of repair.

We are, in a certain sense, crowded out of the Central School building, which is needed for Public School purposes.

While we leave that building for the benefit of the Public Schools, we enter upon a more promising field of usefulness to the Public Schools.

DR. M. A. MORRISON
Chairman of the Building Committee of the Board of Education

MR. JAS. STEVENSON
Who Laid the Corner Stone Yesterday Afternoon.

While there are some who deny or ignore the value of an Institute, yet without it our Public Schools would degenerate—would suffer from lack of properly qualified teachers.

The Institute is the backbone of the Public School, as one of its chief functions is to prepare pupils for the teaching profession.

The occasion in this regard deserves importance from the fact that, with a new Collegiate Institute building and a new Normal school, we are in a position to complete the pedagogic process from beginning to finish.

The pupil enters the Institute from the public school, becomes qualified, non-professionally, for a teacher takes a walk up George street to the Normal School, where he becomes professionally qualified as a teacher. He or she may then become employed as a teacher in the very school where the education began—possibly in the kindergarten—thus making the educational circle complete and entire, all within the compass of the city.

Whatever may be thought of the wisdom shown in the selection of a chairman, I think you will agree with me that no more happy selection could be made to perform the formal act of laying the corner stone of the new Collegiate Institute than an old, highly respected and veteran citizen, Mr. James Stevenson.

He has for more than half a century been intimately and officially associated with the educational interests of Peterborough. He has been a member of the school board in unbroken succession for more than 55 years.

His services must have been of high value to have received so signal a proof of the appreciation of the ratepayers.

He has witnessed and had an active part in the construction of our public school buildings, representing an expenditure of over $100,000.

No individual citizen living, no citizen already passed to his reward has done so much and been so long associated with the educational interests of the city of Peterborough, as Mr. Stevenson.

It is, therefore, a high testimonial to his services, a practical recognition of his work, and of the esteem in which he is held, that Mr. Stevenson has been chosen to perform the pleasure which I now have the pleasure in calling on him to do—the laying of the corner stone of the new Collegiate Institute of the City of Peterborough.

THE STONE LAID.

Accompanied by the members of the Board of Education, the City Council and others, Mr. Stevenson went forth, and with silver trowel in hand, smoothed down some of the mortar and directed the stone to its place as it was lowered to its position by Mr. Arthur Webb, one of the stone cutters employed on the building. The stone was suspended by means of a rope and pulley, and the act of lowering it to its position was quickly accomplished. In a cavity underneath the corner stone was placed an iron box containing the following articles, which, perhaps, may prove of interest to some future generation;—

Peterborough Daily Review.

Peterborough Morning Times.
Toronto Globe.
Toronto Mail and Empire.
Copies of Collegiate Echoes.

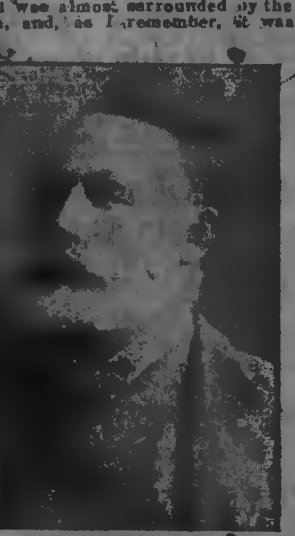
MR STEVENSON'S ADDRESS.

On all present declaring the stone "well and truly laid," Mr. Stevenson returned to the platform, along with those who had accompanied him, and, upon being called upon by the chairman, gave an address, in which was contained an interesting review of the educational history of the city. Mr. Stevenson spoke as follows;—

Mr. Chairman, Ladies and Gentlemen:

Fifty years ago this summer I, as mayor of the then small town of Peterborough, and as a member of the building committee of the School Board, had the honor of laying the corner stone of what was then known as the "Union" and now as the "Central School"; and I wish to express my appreciation of the very great compliment which has been paid me in giving me the opportunity to officiate a second time at a ceremony which marks a long step forward in the city's educational advance. I, therefore, declare this stone well and truly laid and hope the institution may have a Divine blessing.

My recollection of educational institutions in Peterborough goes back to those days when, in a log school house, the Rev. Samuel Armour, the father of the late Chief Justice, formerly taught both the High and the Common School under one roof; though, at the date I arrived in Peterborough, Mr. Armour had gone and the Rev. Moses Williamson was teaching in his stead. Situated in the rear of the present Central school and about where the play sheds now stand, the school was almost surrounded by the woods, and, as I remember, it was a famous resort for wild pigeons, which were easily knocked off the roof. Though an unpretentious affair this was for years the only school of the village and afterwards of the town, and received Government aid as our Grammar School. In its latter years, it was restricted to High School work, while a Common School overlooked the Otonabee from what had been a Methodist church on the north side of Hunter street, east of Sheridan, and about where the residence of the Rev. Canon Davidson now stands.



MR. D. W. DUMBLE
One of the Speakers Yesterday

Together these represented our educational institutions in the way of Public schools until 1853 when the old log school house became so cold as to render it unfit for use; and thereafter and until the building of the Union School in 1857 the Common and High Schools were quartered together in the Hunter street Methodist church.

With the advent of 1857 the crowding in the school became such as to necessitate action of some kind and a committee of seven were chosen, of whom Mr. Jas. Hall, the father of the present sheriff and of the city solicitor, was the chairman while W. S. Conger, W. Cluxton, Frederic Ferguson, Rev. Mark Burnham and myself were the members.

Of that committee, and of the then School Board, with the exception of myself, none remain alive but it speaks well for the foresight of these men that the building which they erected is still used for the purpose for which it was originally intended, and is, I venture to say even now, not architecturally an unworthy example of a well designed school.

At one time it was intended to place the new school on what is now Victoria Park, and three acres were, with the consent of the town and county councils, appropriated for the purpose, but fortunately not used.

Having decided on the necessity for a school and the site having been selected, the next step was to raise the requisite money, a process of the most difficult character, and not to be disposed of by the easy methods of later days. First, we sold a lot on King street and then another on London street, netting by the sale about $800. Next the council appropriated to our use the whole of the money derived from the Clergy Reserves, amounting to about $4,000, and finally, after many fruitless negotiations, the members of the Board gave their individual notes for a sufficient sum to make up the $16,258.00 which the school cost. In the meantime every effort was made to sell our debentures before the maturity of the notes, and finally our six per cent. securities were disposed of to W. McMaster, the founder of McMaster Hall, Toronto, at eighty-five cents on the dollar; but not before the notes of the members of the Board had been presented for payment, protested, and promptly sued.

So were the circumstances under which the school was built, at an estimated cost of $16,000 and an actual cost of $16,258; and, while the results of the training given in the old school, are apparent in different parts of Canada today, I trust that the results of the erection of the building, the corner stone of which we lay today, may be more apparent and more widespread, than those which accrued from the efforts of the 3,500 people who made up our population fifty years ago; and that amid the multitude of practical and scientific studies which fill the curriculum of today, a place and a teacher may be found who, in the words quoted by the new principal of our Provincial University, will lead our youth to meditate upon "whatsoever things are honest, whatsoever things are just, whatsoever things are pure, whatsoever things are lovely, whatsoever things are of good report," so that well balanced, well rounded men, men who will be a credit to themselves, to their city and to this Institute, may fifty years hence be living examples of the foresight of the builders of today.

After the completion of the Union school, the pressure for increased accommodation was not felt till 1865 when it became necessary to rent the Baptist church on the corner of Dublin and Aylmer streets, and a five years lease of the property was made, at the modest rental of ten pounds per year, the lease expiring in 1871. In the meantime, however, in 1868, a resolution was introduced by the late Col. Haultain and seconded by Mr. D. W. Dumble, then, as now, a tireless worker, in all that concerns education, that provision should be made for ward schools for the centre and for the south wards; and by September, 1870—after a discussion of sites which nearly landed the school on the property on which we now stand—a contract for $6,000 was let to T. Lasher, which resulted in the erection of what is now used as a Collegiate Institute, then called the Central School.

Corner Stone of New Collegiate

By February, 1872, the Central School was complete, the cost being $5,050 on an estimate of $5600 and accommodation was furnished for the three hundred and eighty-four common school pupils, and the 128 students in the High School, then in attendance.

The Central School was scarcely completed when it became apparent that something must be done for the south ward; and with the Hon. Geo. A Cox as chairman of the committee, lot 13, north of Sherbrooke street and west of George street, was purchased for $600. A building committee composed of Mr. Cox, the late Geo. Hilliard, the late A. Rutherford, Mr. Jno. McClelland and myself, were appointed, and by December, 1874, at an expenditure of $5,797 on an estimate of $6,000 the south ward school was completed, and at once occupied, the number of scholars in the common school having kept pace with the building and grown from 384 in 1872 to 582 at the date of the opening of the school.

Within two years we had purchased another lot for $600, this time to accommodate those resident in the western section of the town, and after holding it one year the west ward school came into existence at a cost of $5435.00, the common school pupils of the town, now numbering 952.

The rest of our building activity is comparatively recent history. As our population has grown and the demands increased, accommodation has been generously afforded; extensions have been made and improvements effected. The North ward school has been built, Ashburnham school has been acquired and now the King Edward has been added to the list. And as step by step, the Board and the people have endeavored to keep pace with the growth of the town, and I think I am safe in saying that so long as the Board continue to pursue the policy they have followed in the past, so long as they keep abreast of the times, employ the best teachers and pay them salaries in proportion to their ability, so long as they continue to feel that our educational interests are our most important interests, just so long will their work as a Board continue to be a success.

DR. M. A. MORRISON.

Dr. M. A. Morrison, chairman of the building committee of the Board of Education, was then called upon. He expressed himself as being delighted that this period had been reached in the erection of a new Collegiate Institute and he was glad to be present at this auspicious event not alone on account of laying the corner stone, interesting ceremony as it was, but because progress had been made in the new building to such an extent that the foundation was ready for the laying of the corner stone. It was a glad day for the members of the Board of Education to see the Collegiate Institute so well advanced for they only knew the labor that had been involved in getting the building under way. There had been many difficulties to overcome during the past three years. When it was decided to build a new Collegiate Institute, the board had three vital points to consider in having the plans prepared: (1) to have an Institute that would meet the demands of the future for several years to come as well as provide accommodation for the present; (2) to have a building that would be an ornament and a credit to the city; (3) to erect a building of this kind and to meet these requirements on an appropriation that would be approved by the people. The sum of $50,000 was at first voted, but owing to delays in getting started, unavoidable delays they were, it was found when everything was in a position to go ahead that it would cost $49,000 for the building alone, owing to advances in the price of material wages, etc. For the heating, plumbing, etc., it would require $21,000 more and on going to the people, this sum was granted. "We are building a Collegiate Institute," said Dr. Morrison, "that will accommodate 450 pupils, it will have twelve class rooms, physical and chemical laboratory, full complement of teachers and pupils, cloak rooms, lavatories, assembly hall, etc. In 1871 there were 128 students enrolled at the Peterborough Collegiate Institute; last year there were almost 300 and at the recent examinations in the city there were 114 pupils passed. The majority of these will attend the Collegiate Institute this fall. It has been apparent that the old Collegiate Institute has outlived its usefulness and the new one will be appreciated alike by pupils, teachers and citizens generally. You see today the fine masonry of this foundation. I can assure you that the superstructure will be in keeping with the foundation, and the whole will be a credit to the city.

In closing Dr. Morrison stated that to date contracts to the extent of $58,700 had been let. He congratulated Mr Stevenson on attaining such advanced age, coupled with bodily and mental strength. He wished him many more years of usefulness and good health. The speaker also paid a high tribute to the excellence of the Collegiate Institute teaching staff.

MAYOR McWILLIAMS.

Mayor McWilliams said he considered this one of the most auspicious days in the history of the city. The importance of the day could not be overlooked, for it marked an event which in an indirect way would be looked back upon with thankfulness by generations yet to come. He congratulated the members of the Board and the building committee on what they had accomplished. Great credit was due them. He believed in the development of the Collegiate Institute system. It was the people's university. The speaker referred to the advantages of education. It was a great force in the making of good citizens and after all true citizenship was the highest aim. It was the duty of every man and woman to see that the boys and girls grew up to be good citizens, good citizens not only in a material sense, but inculcated with high ideals and public spirit. "Nothing is too good for Peterborough," should be the motto of her citizens. "No place should stand above us, let us always be in the front rank," said His Worship in closing.

WARDEN McNULTY.

Warden McNulty brought congratulations from the County to the Board of Education, on their accomplishment. He was sure the new Institute would be a splendid building and a credit to the city and county. The practical interest the county had in the erection of the new Collegiate was shown in 1904, when certain lots belonging to the County in Central Park, were ceded to assist in providing a site. He congratulated Mr. Stevenson on his health and vigor and wished him many more years of strength and activity.

R. R. HALL, M. P.

Mr. Hall congratulated the Board of Education, Mr. John Belcher, the architect of the new Collegiate, and Mr. Stevenson. The laying of a corner stone was always an important event, but especially so in connection with an educational institution. Nations decayed when education was neglected. Greece and Rome had gone down from this cause. Education was a nation's greatest asset and he was glad that Peterborough was keeping well to the fore.

T. E. BRADBURN, M. P. P.

Mr. Bradburn added his congratulations to those of the other speakers and alluded to the auspicious event that had just been celebrated and looked forward to the early completion of the new Collegiate.

REV. J. G. POTTER.

Rev. J. G. Potter said he was present as the representative of the Peterborough Ministerial Association and felt honored to be one of those participating in such an important event. He also tendered his congratulations to the Board and the building committee and in his address spoke of the value being built up on a good foundation. Education was one of the essentials in the making of character. He was glad to see such harmony prevailing among all classes. This was as it should be. The Collegiate Institute was for everybody, for the children of the rich and poor without regard to religious belief.

REV. FATHER McCOLL.

Rev. Father McColl said he represented His Lordship, the Bishop, who was unable to be present. The reverend gentleman gave an excellent address in which he referred to the excellence of the educational system of Ontario. Education was one of the greatest forces in the world. Without educated leaders a nation could not keep its place among the countries of the world. It was necessary to have good teachers and as teachers receive part of their training in the Collegiate Institutes it was important that these institutions should be the best.

MR. D. W. DUMBLE.

Mr. D. W. Dumble was the last speaker and spoke in part as follows:

Mr. Chairman,—I congratulate you sir, as representing the Board of Education on the happy accomplishment of this long desired object—the erection of the Collegiate Institute building.

I congratulate the people of the city, not alone on securing the building but on the fact that they so freely voted the money required for its erection; for this demonstrates that they realize the importance of a thorough grammar school education for their boys and girls and that they no longer are controlled by the idea that anything beyond the three "R's" is only for the rich.

No class of society gains more from higher education than the poor.

God did not plant brains in the heads of the rich only.

The world is today, getting more from those who struggled hard for their education than from those who were born with the proverbial silver spoon in their mouths, and the people are beginning to realize that the father who secures for his child the means of using his own abilities and parts, to make his own way in life, does better for him, than the one who has pinched and starved to saved money for children, who never having learned what it cost to get, spend it improvidently and too often for their own undoing.

Nations, like Germany, which put higher education within the reach of the people stand at the head in literature, science and commerce, and if England is elbowed aside in the strife for commercial supremacy of the world, it will be because she has been negligent in this matter.

Let her exalt the school and suppress the gin shop and she will maintain her proud position.

We are a young nation, but with the giant blood and bone of the north races.

We are ambitious and with our territory, so rich and broad, we must take our place among the world's great peoples, unless we are unmindful of the lessons of history.

Our country's development calls for energy and brainy effort, but it must be energy and effort guided by the highest intelligence.

Let us develop our own resources and let us keep the resulting benefits at home, and not let the capital and skill of our older neighbor rob us of our children's bread.

With this new building and its fine appointments, soon to be completed, our splendid staff will win higher fame than before.

The fine lecture hall will enable our learned staff to extend the benefits of their education and culture, so that lasting goodwill endure to the people and they will be as proud of this fine Institution as they have been satisfied with its educational results in the past.

It is said that buildings do not make the university, true, but they greatly help.

Our Institute has had no home save a rented building, much lacking in its appointments.

With this fine building and staff, we will not be obliged to send our children away to expensive boarding schools, for their is no private school in the province that has such a scholarly staff of teachers as our own Institute.

Here, rich and poor, high and low, in the noble pursuit of learning sit side by side.

There is a levelling both ways, the poor child instinctively appropriates the manner, refinement and culture of those whose home teachings have been more refined—while to some extent the unsophisticated manners of the poor impress themselves on the better bred — but all makes for the better acquaintance and fellowship, and mutual respect.

None gain so much as the poor and none should more heartily support the Collegiate than those who are most benefitted.

I am satisfied that the splendid building and appointments will inspire in teacher and pupil such a spirit of pride as to prove a stimulus and motive for higher efforts and attainments and that the expenditure will more than repay itself and that long after we are gone this institution will be a credit and honor to the people.

Again, sir, I congratulate you, and hope that your expenditure will be more than justified and your highest hopes be more than satisfied.

Who Got the Fish That Were Lost?

Messrs John Moloney and Jas. Lynch Are on the Warpath Together

"Who got the fish!" Messrs. John Moloney and James J. Lynch are greatly worried and would willingly give a good reward to the person who furnishes them with information which will recover the two bass. The circumstances are as follows:

Messrs. Moloney and Lynch took in the Knights of Columbus excursion yesterday. There were about 150 on board, including a number of the clergy. During the day Mr. Lynch was presented with two nice black bass, and as they were from a great friend he valued them highly. The two fish, however, made quite a large parcel and rather than lose both he gave one to Mr. John Moloney.

"Now be very careful with that or some one will take it," said Mr. Lynch. "Out on a trip of this kind if you lay it down for a minute some one will take it."

"All right," replied Mr. Moloney, "the person who gets that fish from me will be a very smart man."

It was not long afterward that a couple of charming ladies occupied the attention of the county court clerk and he laid his fish down. Mr. Lynch went into supper in the cabin with a little girl, one of the reverend gentlemen and one or two others. He put his fish on the floor beside him and kept his eye on it. An interesting conversation at the table distracted for one moment James' attention, and when he looked for his fish it was gone. Immediately after supper he told Mr. Moloney of his loss, and the latter then looked for his fish.

"Well, by George, would you believe it now, some one has stolen mine too," said Mr. Moloney.

The two gentlemen were greatly excited. They did not like to accuse any of the clergy of relieving them of their goods, and the only person they could pick on was Mr. McCabe, of Toronto, who does not often get a mess of bass, and who might like to take them back to the city with him. At any rate, the fish have not yet turned up and the Toronto man must bear the blame, although he is probably innocent.

Two Drunks Were Allowed to Go

Thos. Cleary and Hiram Long, who were charged in the police court yesterday, with being drunk in a public place on July 30th were allowed to go this morning by Magistrate Dumble.

P. C. [illegible] was called and stated that on Thursday afternoon these two were sleeping in the Christian Science church yard, and he saw them staggering on Aylmer street. Both prisoners stated they were not drunk and only had a few glasses that day.

His Worship allowed them to go, but warned them that if they ever appeared again, they would not get off so easily.

Said Good-bye to Miss Thompson

Big Crowd at Station to See Her Off Last Night

Miss Birdie Thompson, Peterborough's representative in the Toronto World's trip to London, left last night on the trip across the pond. The World party travelled from Toronto in a special car attached to the C.P.R. train, which passes through Peterborough at midnight. Miss Thompson joined the other successful contestants at the local station and, despite the late hour, a large number of friends gathered to see her off. She was given an enthusiastic send-off, with many expressions for a pleasant trip and a safe return. The train was late in arriving and it was nearly one o'clock before Peterborough was left behind. The other members of the party had boarded the special car at Toronto and the majority of them were snuggled up in their bunks, before Peterborough was reached. However, some of them had friends in Peterborough and were at the windows to greet them. Miss McGregor, who headed the list in Toronto is a sister of Mr. T. D. McGregor, of McGregor & Reid, of this city, and he was among those at the station.

The ladies in the party are; Miss Lizzie McGregor, Miss Ida Vandemark Miss Mabel Hodgson, Miss M E. Virtue, Miss Eleanor Skene and Miss Florence Stephenson, of Toronto; Miss Olive Board of Hamilton and Miss M. Allin, Whitby; Miss Birdie Thompson, Peterborough; Miss T E. Richardson, Oshawa; Miss Sarah Flannagan, Kingston. With them as escort is Albert E. S. Smythe of the World staff.

Today they will spend in sightseeing in Montreal. Tomorrow early they sail on the steamer Virginian.

POETIC POINTERS

BY THE PRINTERS' DEVIL

Darling, why so sad and lonely?
Ever yours, dear, yes, yours only!
Never mind such silly pouting.
Need I tell you of an outing?
It's the Printer's Picnic, dear—
Swell time promised, so I hear.

Keep the date before your eyes—
August 12th—my, how time flies!
Now I've told you all, my child,
Except the spot—'tis Idyl Wyld.

An Inspector of Small Boats

Proposal That Some One Should be Given Authority on Humber Bay

Toronto, July 23.—The tragedy of last week, in which the treacherous waters of Humber Bay took a toll of nine young lives, has given rise to an agitation in Toronto Junction and along the Bay, for a patrol boat to watch for parties in distress in times of storm.

It is also suggested that as the matter properly comes within the province of Toronto, the city should appoint some capable man, who knows the waters of the Bay, to inspect all craft going out and see that boats are not overloaded, as was the case with the ill-fated Dalvine.

"If such a step were taken by Toronto," said one Junction citizen, "it would mean that there would be not half as many drownings as there are when there are no protective measures taken.

"If an inspector or patrol man had been appointed, he would never have allowed that little launch, with its cranky engine, to go out with ten young men in it."

Junction people suggest that Chas Nurse is a man who should be given some official status. He and George Ward (brother of the controller) recovered five of the nine bodies of the drowned young men.

Mr George Aurey, of the Junction, who has had long experience with boats and crafts of all kinds, and on many waters, suggests that a good plan for any persons who find themselves in the water, and an upturned gasoline launch near them is to pull the rope out through the holes at each end of the launch and hang on to it. Then when the launch rolls in the trough of the waves, as it surely will, the people do not suffer any choking or injury and the rope will sustain them.

Unusually Sad Was This Death

Came to the City to Work But Was Only Spared a Few Days

A sad death occurred at Nicholls hospital yesterday afternoon when Archibald Houston, a young man from Creemore, who came to Peterborough about ten days ago, passed away, unattended, except by strangers or recent acquaintances. The young man was 26 years of age, and had been ill for several days. Monday, he was operated on at the hospital for appendicitis and gradually sank until death came about five o'clock last evening. Deceased came to the city about ten days ago, to work in the electric works, and had only been here a couple of days when he was taken ill and had to go to the hospital.

The remains were taken to Creemore, near Parry Sound, this morning. Interment will take place at Creemore where two brothers of the deceased reside. In religion, the late Mr. Houston was a Baptist, and seemed to be a model young man in every respect.

FINE OF 15c WAS IMPOSED

Somewhat Unique Sentence in the County Police Court

A charge of being drunk and disorderly against John Perkins, an employee of a local hotel was ventilated in the County Police Court before His Worship County Magistrate Edmison today. Perkins, who is a young fellow who is not altogether right in his head was alleged to have caused a disturbance on board the steamer Otonabee during one of its Thursday afternoon trips about the middle of July. It was shown that a bunch of hoodlums had tormented him until he had used bad language and caused a disturbance. The toughs also wanted him to take a drink out of a bottle of whiskey but Perkins refused.

The magistrate imposed a fine of 15c and costs, amounting in all to $5. The sum was paid. The magistrate remarked that had not Perkins used the bad language he would not have fined him at all as it was his opinion that it was the poor fellows' tormentors who should be in the court and not Perkins.

Don't Whip Sister She Can't Throw

Little Girl Hit Her Brother With a Bottle—He May Die

Port Hope, July 30.—Little Joseph Gabbott, only five years old, demonstrated himself a hero the other day. Although dying from a blow inflicted by his little sister, he pleaded that she be not punished for the act.

The little fellow was playing with his sister Florence and several other small children in a lot opposite the home of Joseph Gabbott, No. 28, Railroad avenue, Coney Island, throwing heavy soda water bottles at a tin can. The youngsters were having a great time, when Florence with a girl's proverbial inaccuracy as a thrower, let a bottle slip from her hand and strike her brother in the temple. He fell to the ground stunned.

The children ran away shrieking and several grown people hastened to the little sufferer's aid. He opened his eyes and the first words he uttered were,—

"Don't whip sister. She couldn't throw. Girls can't throw."

Then he lapsed into unconsciousness. The little fellow was taken to the Emergency hospital, where all possible was done by Dr. Johnson, but his life is despaired of, as the small skull is hopelessly fractured. Florence sits beside the cot of her little brother and is inconsolable. The boy is not expected to live.

Phelps, Bradford, Goldfarb, Found Guilty of First Charge

His Honor Judge Weller this afternoon found Phelps, Bradford and Goldfarb guilty of the first charge, that of stealing $12.50 from Hurl. Lewis was not found guilty on this charge. At the time of going to press the case was still in progress, the judge dealing with one of the other charges.

THE MORNING EVIDENCE

The trial of the four pickpockets was resumed this morning at eleven o'clock, before His Honor, Judge Weller. Mr. Wood conducted the prosecution and Messrs. F. D. Kerr, and D. O'Connell appeared for the defence The evidence is now all in, and the prisoners listened attentively throughout it all, and Phelps and Bradford showed signs of uneasiness.

Mr. L. O'Connor, street railway conductor was first called. On circus day, June 25, the four prisoners rode up on his car together about four o'clock in the afternoon. He identified the four prisoners as the four men who were pointed out to him.

Mr. Harry Fowler, another street railway conductor was called. He identified Phelps as the man he noticed on his car. About three o'clock that day Phelps got on at Crescent and Locke street. He stepped on the car, asking where he could get a boat for hire. Witness saw no bad behaviour on the part of Phelps.

Mr. Sam Wainwright was called. He found a pocket book inside of the exhibition grounds gate on circus day. He gave the pocket book to Mr. Newhall on the following day.

Mr. J. H. Larmonth was the next witness. On circus day witness saw three of them, Phelps, Bradford, and Goldfarb. He saw them at Charlotte street and at Brock street. At Charlotte street they got off a crowded car and soon after got on another one going north. Later they came down and they went on to the exhibition grounds where they got off. Witness never seen them again until they were arrested. Owing to some of the conductors having been robbed the year before, they were suspicious of these men.

Mr. Jas. Thomas, motorman, was called. He saw the four men get on the car on the trip going north. Two got onto one end and two on the other end of the car.

THE DEFENCE.

Mr. John McCann, inspector of the street railway was called in connection with the running of the cars on circus day.

Mr. Charles Barber, teller in the Bank of Montreal, was also called for the defence. He stated that the practice of tellers when balancing up their cash, was to count up their bills, and mark them as far as they had counted. This practice is constantly going on and nearly every bundle of bills you see is marked. Witness looked at the marked bills found on Phelps, and said the marks on them were teller's marks, but admitted that they could possibly be made by someone else.

Mr. O'Connell for the defence then began the summing up. He said that here were four young men charged with picking pockets. There is no evidence to show that an offence had been committed outside that of the police officer. A conviction then can only be made on the uncorroborated evidence of Newhall. Mr. O'Connell reviewed Mr. Newhall's evidence and stated that in the time given by Newhall it was impossible to do all he says he did. Then the evidence of Mr. Hurl. He did not see his pocket robbed. He saw one of the prisoners shoving him, but it might easily have been someone else who robbed him. Then the evidence of the C.P.R. conductor had not shown that they committed an offence. The two detectives can bring in a list of past charges but that does not count, as it cannot be used before a conviction. That was not fair. If men who have put in terms in gaol, and who are trying to lead honest lives, are to be chased around the country, then what is the use of them trying to live right. In conclusion Mr. O'Connell said on only Newhall's evidence could a conviction be made, and whatever he could say of the other three, there was no evidence against Lewis.

Mr. F. D. Kerr then spoke for the defence. No matter what suspicions were against them, the men were innocent in the eyes of the law. His plea for the prisoners was along the same lines as Mr. O'Connell. He stated that it was only on the police officer's evidence a conviction could be made.

Crown Attorney R. E. Wood delivered a strong address for the Crown. He asked that a conviction be made. The fact that Newhall told identically the same story twice proved its worth. The Crown did not ask for a conviction only on straightforward methods and he considered enough evidence had been given outside the detectives to make a conviction.

The Judge reserved his decision till three o'clock.

Will Prevent Anthrax in Cattle

Agricultural Department, Ottawa Will Supply Vaccine

The disease known as "Blackleg" in cattle, although entirely unknown in many extensive agricultural sections of Canada and not at all widespread in any district or province, annually causes quite extensive losses to cattle raisers. Anthrax, which is quite a different disease, although frequently confused with Blackleg in the minds of many cattle raisers, is also the cause of serious loss of stock. The former disease is almost entirely confined to cattle under three years and is generally fatal. The latter attacks other classes of farm animals and the human subject is not exempt from its infection, which generally results seriously.

By the aid of science cattle raisers are now enabled to protect their stock against these maladies. As the human family is vaccinated against small pox, in the same manner cattle are rendered immune from Blackleg and Anthrax. The Department of Agriculture at Ottawa through the Health of Animals Branch is now in a position to suppply preventive vaccine for each of these diseases at the nominal cost of five cents per dose. Until recently, by special arrangement with extensive manufactures in the United States, these products were secured at a reduced cost, and were placed in the hands of Canadian cattle raisers at ten cents per dose for Blackleg vaccine, and fourteen cents per dose for Anthrax vaccine. It is due to the fact that these preparations are now being made at the Biological Laboratory in connection with the Health of Animals Branch that they can be supplied at five cents per dose.

The vaccine for Blackleg may be administered by any intelligent person by means of an instrument supplied by the Department, at fifty cents.

Anthrax vaccine, which is also supplied at five cents per dose, is more difficult to administer, requiring a qualified veterinarian to treat an animal

Cattle raisers who have fear of an attack of either Blackleg or Anthrax, would do well to apply to the Veterinary Director General at Ottawa for the proper preventive treatment.

Record Payment of Taxes Made; Collector Got About $100,000

One of the best evidences of the city's prosperity is the fact that Tax Collector Green has received nearly $100,000 of taxes for the first installment. While the collector had not made a full count, he thought that the total would reach between $99,000 and $100,000. The total amount on the roll is only $136,873.26, so that only $36,873.26 remain to be paid on the second installment. The Council should feel delighted with the above statement, as it is the best on record, and exceeds last year by several thousand dollars. The amount collected last year was $91,869.60.

Mr. Green and his assistants were very busy night and day for the past two weeks getting out the bills and receiving the cash, and today he is finishing up after the rush. Occasionally a ratepayer drops in, but he will receive no discount.

Local Citizen Says That Raspberries Are Plentiful

A local citizen called at the Review office to-day and characterized as false the reports that there was a scarcity of raspberries in the surrounding country. Incidentally he delivered himself of some stuff not exactly complimentary to the grocers of Peterborough whom he stated were "holding up" the people as regards the price of berries.

"Why," he stated, "the back country is full of berries. I've been out in the north every week and I never saw so many raspberries as are growing there. Not for years have they been so plentiful and there is no reason why they should be selling at such a high price as 15c per box. A woman from the northern part of the county was in the city last night and sold her berries at 10c per box and was glad to get 10c for them. She considered it an excellent price. Now, why should the people of the city be asked to pay 15c?"

The gentleman also stated that during the strawberry season this fruit sold at Lindsay for 10c per box while at Peterborough 12c and 15c per box had to be paid.

"Now, don't you believe any of this stuff about berries being scarce," said the gentleman, as he took his departure, they have never been as plentiful as this year.

Carters Are Occupying New Quarters at Last

The carters of the city are now settled in their new quarters on Water street, near the Peterborough Canoe Co., and henceforth is anyone wants to procure a carter they will know where to get one. They moved around to their sheds yesterday afternoon, and a long row of horses and carts are no more to be seen standing at the corner of Simcoe and George streets. It certainly is a great improvement to see them off the main street. All the carters want now is a telephone, and they will have everything comfortable and convenient. A person remarked today that they are now situated in an out of the way place, but when the citizens learn where they have their headquarters it will be just as easy to get them at their new sheds as at the old place. Ald. McIntyre, who started the movement to have these carters' sheds and who saw it through, must be [illegible] that his purpose is [illegible] and much credit is due him. It certainly was a good move on the part of the city fathers to [illegible] good place as headquarters for the carters.

There is a hitch between the carters and the city regarding the telephone. The carters maintain that the council should provide a telephone, while the latter contend that as a telephone would be to their own interests they should pay for it themselves. And the average citizen agrees with the council in this matter

Choked Woman to Death To Foil the Evil Spirit

Savage Tribal Custom Causes Murder of a Squaw.

Tragedy of Western Canadian Wilds—Indian Chief and Medicine Man Arrested for Murder—Choked Woman to Death by Slowly Tightened Rope—The Executioners Honored—Fed by Victim's Parents.

Ottawa, Aug. 2.—Joseph and Jack Fidler, the chief and medicine man of the Sandy Lake Crees, are under arrest at Norway House, about 200 miles from Kenora. They will be tried for the murder of a squaw.

It is a case of a savage tribal custom. The woman became ill last spring and grew delirious. These Indians held that when a person dies delirious an evil spirit, one Wendigo, escapes from the body to the woods, frightens away the game, and a famine ensues. The band, according to custom appointed their chief and medicine man to choke the sick squaw, so that the spirit might not escape with the breath, but remain secure in the dead body.

Before the whole band the chief and the medicine man did the deed. A rope about the squaw's neck was tightened by the two leaders of the band until the ravings of the woman were stopped and the evil spirit was imprisoned and the game preserved.

The Fidlers asked the officials not to be too severe with them, as they had no idea that they were doing wrong. They were merely doing their duty by the band and followed the custom of their fathers. The execution of this duty was a high honor, and, according to custom, the executioners were handsomely fed by the parents of the victim.

The authorities here are trying to decide whether it will be easier to send a judge to Norway House to try the case, or have the prisoners and witnesses sent to Edmonton for trial.

ENQUIRY ORDERED.

Attorney-General Foy Directs Investigation of Trenton Voters' Lists.

Toronto, Aug. 2.—Attorney-General Foy stated yesterday that he had instructed the crown attorney of Hastings to take such steps as may be deemed necessary in regard to a complaint made to the Department of irregularities in the preparation of the voters' list.

It is alleged that the manhood franchise section of the list has been loaded up with 310 names that ought not to be there. These were written into the assessment roll by Peter Pomery, an occasional clerk, at the instance and from a marked voters' list furnished by Mr. G. W. Ostrom, ex-M.P.P., town clerk.

Mr. Ostrom admitted freely the irregularity of what he had done, but denied any intention of political or electoral dishonesty. A comparison of the inflated list with that of the previous year showed that every one of the 310 names improperly inserted had been approved by Judge Deroche at the revision of Dec. 3, 1906, and finally certified to by him Feb. 5, 1907. Mr. Ostrom explained that this revision completed in February last, had left about 260 names in the manhood franchise part of the list.

No election had been held on this list and he inserted the 220 unauthorized names from it in the list for 1907, adding the 66 names in the assessment roll. He said further that, as the list was to be finally revised in the presence of representatives of both parties before the county judge, he thought it better to have it printed as near complete as possible; that it would entail less work and less printing to strike off a few not entitled to vote than to virtually reproduce the manhood franchise part by making large additions.

As to the copying of names from the voters' list to the assessment roll, Mr. Ostrom said it was for convenience in reference to the coming revision. In support of his plea of innocent intent, he pointed out that all the names improperly entered on the list printed and exposed in June last were certified to by the judge for the previous year's list in February of this year.

CAID'S LIFE.

Raisuli Plays That Trump Card In Demanding Negotiation.

Tangier, Aug. 2.—The Government troops under command of Caid Bouchta have renewed operations against the lawless tribes. They surprised the village of Alkala, inhabited by Raisuli supporters, at daybreak and set it on fire. A brief fight ensued, in which many were killed and a large number of prisoners fell into Bouchta's hands.

The commander of the troops offered a big reward to any one delivering over to him Raisuli, dead or alive.

Raisuli's letter to the Sultan's Minister threatening to kill Caid MacLean and an urgent message sent to Bouchta, acquainting him with the threat and advising suspension of hostilities, have so far had no deterrent effect on the commander of the Moroccan troops.

It is reported that Raisuli has formulated demands, indirectly involving the dilemma of either destroying the Government's authority or sacrificing Caid MacLean's life.

Raisuli refuses to treat with the Sultan, and insists that Great Britain compel the Moorish Government to accede to his terms and guarantee their execution.

The terms include a demand on the part of Raisuli that he be made governor of the northern tribes. Failing this, he threatens that he will kill Caid MacLean.

The Moors feel that the acceptance of the bandit's terms will lead to anarchy, thus affording an excuse for interference by France.

FLEET FOR PACIFIC.

First Official Announcement Made by Roosevelt's Secretary.

Oyster Bay, Aug. 2.—Secretary Loeb said yesterday that there had been no change in the plans to send the Atlantic battleship fleet to the Pacific Ocean, and the necessary preparations for the trip are now being made in the navy. Upon this completion and approval by the President, the voyage will be begun when the President gives the word.

This is the first direct announcement that the fleet is going to the Pacific.

No protest has been received at Washington from the Japanese Government against the plan to send the Atlantic battleship fleet to the Pacific and none is expected.

The fleet is to remain in American waters.

Liberal's Easy Win.

London, Aug. 2.—The by-election for a member of Parliament for the northwest division of Staffordshire has resulted in the return of Albert Stanley, Liberal candidate, with the substantial majority of 2,340 over the Unionist candidate.

The result indicates that the Unionists have little prospects of success at the polls except in constituencies where special conditions have caused a split in the Liberal Labor elements.

A King Unseated.

Paris, Aug. 2.—It is officially announced that by the direction of the French Government the French resident of Annam has interned Thanh-Thai, King of Annam, in his palace at Hue, and established a regency consisting of the Council of Ministers, under the presidency of the Minister of Justice.

The mental condition of the King has been steadily growing worse since last spring.

GETS TRENT PROPERTY

Ontario Transfers Water Rights and Lands to the Dominion.

Timber Patentees Will Be Protected—All Mines and Minerals Are Preserved to the Province—Dominion Government Will Keep All the Works In Good Repair and Good Condition.

Ottawa, Aug. 2.—An agreement has been reached between the Dominion Government and the Government of Ontario, by which the province transfers to the Dominion all the locks, dams, rights in waters and flooded lands owned by it along the Trent Valley Canal.

The Dominion agrees to keep the works in repair and good condition, including the lock and three swing bridges at Lindsay, the lock at Balsam Lake and the lock and swing bridge at Young's Point, and pledges itself to pay the province at the rate of 50 cents per acre for any unpatented lands which may be flooded by the construction of reservoirs, and to compensate private owners also, with the provision that in case it is impossible to arrive at a settlement the dispute shall be referred to the Exchequer Court for decision.

It is further provided that all mines and minerals on unpatented lands taken over and flooded in the course of the construction of reservoirs, shall be preserved to the province and that all mines and minerals on patented lands are to remain the property of the province until a proper compensation be granted therefor.

The Dominion also guarantees to the owners and lessees of timber lands all rights previously possessed by them, with the provision that in case any such owner or lessee is dissatisfied with the Government's terms he may appeal to the Exchequer Court.

SUE FOR LIBEL.

Turgeon and Gouin Take Action Against Quebec Papers.

Quebec, Aug. 2.—Hon. Mr. Turgeon, Minister of Crown Lands for the Province of Quebec, has entered an action for civil damages against Le Nationaliste, the Montreal paper edited by Oliver Asselin.

Hon. Mr. Turgeon claims that about four weeks ago Le Nationaliste accused him of perjury, and has repeated the accusation several times since. Hon. Mr. Turgeon has also decided to sue several other papers who have followed the course of Le Nationaliste by reproducing the articles complained of or accusing him in a like manner.

Hon. Mr. Gouin, Premier of Quebec, has entered an action for civil damages against La Patrie which, in an article published Wednesday night, said that the Prime Minister had something to do with the negotiations which Baron De Lepine pretends to have made with the Government respecting crown lands in Abitibi.

Drank Hot Lard.

London, Ont., Aug. 2.—To drink a large quantity of hot lard and survive is an unusual experience, but that is the experience of the 14 months old baby of Mrs. Jolly of Egerton street, this city.

While the mother was engaged baking, the little one drew a jar of lard from a table, and before the mother could interfere had swallowed a large quantity.

Although frightfully burned internally and externally, the doctors say the child will recover.

Want a River Patrol.

Windsor, Aug. 2.—Claiming that they have lost several thousand dollars' worth of property through the depredation of river pirates, from whom they have not sufficient police protection, residents on the shore between here and Gilbors, nine miles south, have started an agitation to have the Provincial Government arrange for a police patrol boat along the river.

London, Ont., Aug. 1.—A team of horses attached to a hack belonging to a local liveryman, frightened by a dog, ran away while returning from Mount Pleasant cemetery, the cab swung to one side, crashing into a telegraph pole. The horses broke away from the vehicle unhurt, dragging driver Charles McLeod with them a considerable distance, he receiving serious injuries to his face and legs, but no bones were broken.

SWEPT BY FIRE.

New Brunswick Town Has Fourth Baptism of Flame Fiend.

Woodstock, N.B., Aug. 1.—For the fourth time within six months this town was visited by a bad fire yesterday, when one of the largest wholesale houses in the province, the Baird Drug Co., and a number of smaller establishments were destroyed.

One life was lost.

A short circuit, caused by telephone and electric light wires becoming crossed, had set the Baird block on fire. One fireman cut the light wires and just at that moment Charles McKenney caught hold of a wire, no doubt thinking it dead. Without uttering a word he fell dead. Robert Welch standing beside him also received a shock.

The Carlisle Hotel was damaged by the fire.

Surveying Western Ontario.

Toronto, Aug. 1.—A meeting of the Hydro-Electric Power Commission was held yesterday afternoon. Sultan Must Account for the Actions of His Troops

France is Roused by Atrocious Moroccan Murders.

Arabs Attack and Kill Europeans In Holy War Outrage—British Comment Strange — Spain Insists on Punishment—Pasha to Answer to France With His Head—Cruisers Ordered There.

Tangier, Aug. 2.—On the pretext that they were displeased with the harbor works, three tribes raided Casablanca, one of the chief seaports of Morocco, and massacred the native guards and five Frenchmen, two Spaniards and one Italian. The other Europeans in the city, together with a number of Jews, took refuge on a German ship, which has arrived here.

A report from the French charge d'affaires here shows that the slaughter of Europeans in Casablanca was an outcome of a holy war preached by the Arabs for the extermination of Europeans.

On Tuesday morning the natives began their attack by stoning a European and as the man tried to flee he was surrounded and hacked to pieces. This was the signal for a general attack.

As soon as the danger became known the French and Spanish residents rushed to their respective consulates for protection.

M. D'Erville, the French consul, demanded that the pasha provide an escort for the recovery of the bodies of those killed. The pasha pleaded at first that he had no cartridges, but upon further representations he finally supplied an escort.

In the meantime, while the Jews and Christians were taking refuge on board the German ship, the Musselmans began to attack the laborers employed upon the harbor works. They fired on the shore boats and killed several men whose bodies subsequently were burned. One woman who tried to swim off to a ship was shot down.

It is feared that Casablanca will be invaded by twenty thousand Arabs to-day.

The Pasha of Casablanca will answer with his head to the French Government for the general security of the city. This is the ultimatum which the French cruiser Galilee, due to reach Casablanca to-day is conveying. The French cruiser Forbin now at the Azores, also has been ordered to proceed to Casablanca immediately.

London, Aug. 2.—The morning papers comment strongly on the state of anarchy revealed by the massacre at Casablanca, Morocco, and declare that it is evident that the Sultan is powerless to preserve order. The powers, therefore, they assert, are bound to take measures to exact retribution and stem the lawlessness.

The Daily News says—"Nobody would blame France for deciding that it is useless to proceed with a policy which merely toys with the fringe of the question. In the end, however, the Moroccan difficulties must be solved in Berlin before it is faced at Fez."

"It is impossible to believe," says the Graphic, "in the face of the Casablanca massacre, that Germany will longer oppose drastic action of this kind, and nothing less will meet the grave exigencies of the present situation."

Madrid, Aug. 2.— The Imparcial insists that the murder of Spanish subjects at Casablanca must be punished.

CAUSE RIOTS.

Revelations of Immorality in Northwestern Italy Stirs People.

Turin, Aug. 2.—The anti-clerical riots, which have broken out in northwestern Italy, are largely a result of popular excitement following the publication of certain alleged revolting and immoral practices of the Salesian fathers at Varenna.

This exposure was printed in L'Avore and in it pupils of the school maintained by the fathers described the rite performed daily at what they called the "Blackmasses," at which the priests and sisters were present, and which the scholars say they were forced to attend. The school has been closed, and the pupils sent to their homes.

The public prosecutor of the district has arrived at Varenna and is conducting an investigation.

A crowd sacked the church at Warasa Wednesday night, and stoned the convent of the Salesians.

Russian Strike.

Lodz, Russian Poland, Aug. 2.—This city is again the scene of a strike movement, accompanied by violence, disorder and death.

The troops have encountered strikers in the centres of the town and some 30 men have been killed or wounded in this fight alone.

Business is at a standstill. The trouble came to a head Wednesday, and in spite of the aggressive stand taken by the authorities, the disorders recommenced early yesterday morning.

The strike is serious. It would appear to be the beginning of a big labor war, and the workmen's unions are preparing for a long struggle.

Boilers Explode.

Breckenridge, Mo., Aug. 2.—Three employes were killed and a fourth is dying as the result of the blowing up of a Burlington locomotive. The explosion was heard three miles away.

Urbana, Ohio, Aug. 2.—Three employes were instantly killed here yesterday by the explosion of a boiler on a Pennsylvania freight train.

Lightning Hits Oil Tank.

Sarnia, Aug. 2.—At five o'clock yesterday afternoon lightning struck an oil tank at the Imperial Oil Works and for some time the whole million dollar plant was in danger. The column of smoke from 18,000 gallons of oil burning could be seen for miles. Ten streams were put on the fire at one time.

POLICE REBEL.

Soldiers Summoned to Belfast to Awe Constabulary.

Belfast, Aug. 2.—Constable Barrett, a leader of the disaffection among the police, has been dismissed and five other constables who have taken a prominent part in the agitation have been suspended.

At Dublin yesterday the Lord Lieutenant of Ireland, the Earl of Aberdeen, replying to a petition from members of the Belfast constabulary, declared that is was impossible for the Government to entertain a petition presented under such circumstances, and the last paragraph of which was threatening in character.

Troops continue to pour into the city, emphasizing that the authorities are fully determined to grapple promptly with rioting by the striking dock laborers, or the mutinous police, who are demanding more pay because of the extra work the strike entails.

The fourth battalion of the Middlesex Regiment, bringing a Maxim gun, and a section of the Essex Regiment, arrived yesterday, making the military strength about 7,000 men.

This imposing display of force is producing a reassuring effect on the general public, which early in the trouble was somewhat panic-stricken.

The police have issued a manifesto declaring their intention to ignore the inspector-general and communicate directly with Mr. Birrell, Chief Secretary for Ireland.

Constabulary Mutiny.

London, Aug. 2.—Defending the action of the Government in rushing 7,000 troops into Belfast for strike duty, Chief Secretary for Ireland Birrell declared in the House of Commons yesterday that the mutinous action of a portion of the constabulary and the continuation of the strike necessitated decided measures.

Mr. Birrell added there was good reason to believe that the strike would soon end.

SCORED CARON.

Justice Clement Says He Should Be Stripped of Royal Honors.

Vancouver, B.C., Aug. 2.—"I haven't the slightest hesitation in saying that Sir Adolphe Caron should have the insignia of royal favor which has been conferred upon him, stripped from him for writing such a letter," said Justice Clement to the jury in the libel suit by former Commissioner of Lands and Works R. F. Green, against The Vancouver World, the end of which came half an hour later in a verdict for the newspaper.

The letter the court referred to was one of the features of the case, written by Sir Adolphe Caron from Ottawa in January, 1906, on the completion of the Telqua Valley leases, and addressed to Green, then B. C. Minister of Mines.

"That matter now being closed," said the letter, "I wish to say that if you care about some friend of yours, and selected by you, joining our syndicate, we should be only too glad to have him as one of us."

Green, while declining himself to accept the offer, named Neil McKay, then private secretary to Premier McBride, later deputy commissioner of lands and works, now Conservative M.P.P. for Kaslo, Green's former constituency.

"That letter reached Green," continued the court, "and I say Green at once should have resented the dishonor done him in making him such a proposition. Either Green must be a most innocent man, unable to see a proposition of that sort was dishonorable, or else he must have thought that in the long run possibly some benefit would accrue to him from it."

AIMS AT GERMANY.

Great Britain Said to Be Showing Antagonistic Attitude.

The Hague, Aug. 2.—The American and British delegations are exchanging views on their respective projected propositions relating to periodical meetings of the conference, and they may agree to combine the two propositions.

The general attitude of Great Britain, which in all the propositions regarding naval warfare, particularly seemed only preoccupied in protecting herself against Germany, is causing many comments. On the question of contraband Great Britain, therefore, found herself supported only by small countries. Germany and the United States again were in line against Great Britain on this subject, strengthening the belief that their co-operation in the conference may lead to more important matters outside the conference.

Famous Novelist Dead.

London, Aug. 2.—David Christie Murray, the novelist, died here yesterday.

He was born in April, 1847, in Staffordshire. He began his career in journalism as a reporter on The Birmingham Daily News. Coming to London in 1873, he served on The Daily News and The World and was correspondent of The Times in the Russo-Turkish war. He then began to travel and in 1889-90 lectured in Australia and in 1894-5 in Canada and the United States. In 1879 he published his first novel, "A Life's Atonement," and his publications thereafter were many, many being in collaboration with Henry Herman. His recreation was landscape painting.

Boy of 15 Suicides.

Cobourg, Aug. 2.—John Jones, an immigrant boy, who was living with John Bright near Burnley, Northumberland County, took his own life with Paris green. Coroner withdrew the warrant.

The boy was about 15 years of age, and had been in the employ of Mr. Bright for about a year.

Two Hours Ahead.

Rimouski Wharf, Que., Aug. 2.—The Empress of Ireland, arrived here at 9.40 a.m., making the voyage from Liverpool to this port in the record time of five days and 16 hours, eclipsing the run of her sister ship, the Empress of Britain, of two weeks ago, by exactly two hours.

Two-year-old Magdalene Brabant, of Kaispure, Sask., was burned to death while playing with matches.

Calf-buyers are making strong discrimination against grass-fed calves, and they are selling relatively low. Calves of the right kind are scarce, and sell quickly at good prices. Prices ranged from $3 to $6.50 per cwt., but they had to be top-notchers to bring the latter price.

Milch Cows.

Trade in milkers and springers was more active to-day, as buyers from Montreal were on hand, buying many of the best that had been gathered together during the week, as will be seen by sales given below. Prices ranged from $30 to $60 each, three cows bringing the latter price, and one cow at $65.

FIRE INSURANCE

The most important point in Fire Insurance is the selection of a Company which offers absolute security. Experience in the recent conflagrations in Baltimore, Toronto and San Francisco shows that English and Scottish Companies stood the severe strain of these appalling losses better than any other, and proves that they are among the leading Companies of the world.

Free Farm Land.

Toronto, Aug. 2.—A number of townships in the vicinity of Dryden, in the Lake of the Woods district, have been opened by the Ontario Government as free grant lands.

When Hon. Frank Cochrane and Hon. Dr. Reaume visited the district recently, one of the complaints of the settlers was the price of 50 cents an acre put on the land by the Government, while other lands just as desirable from an agricultural standpoint, or more so, have been given to the settlers free. This worked to the disadvantage of the locality, retarding settlement.

DIRECTIONS FOR SENDING IN ALARMS

A Key for the Alarm Box will be found hanging in a small box, with glass front, adjoining the Alarm Box. Break the glass, remove the Key, and open the Box; pull the lever down, when the Alarm is at once transmitted to the Fire Hall, Pumping Station, and residences of the Firemen. Do not attempt to remove the Key from Box, as this can only be done by the use of a small Releasing Key.

HOW ALARMS ARE SOUNDED

The number of the Ward from which the Alarm is sent in is always sounded on the bell, which also constitutes the first number of the Box nearest to the fire, and when an Alarm is sounded, the Ward number is given first, then a pause, and then the remaining numbers of the Box.

Fill in Hunter Street Raceway

Work is Going on Now and a Good Job Will be Done

The city engineer has started filling in the raceway from the old McAllister mill across Hunter street east. For many years this creek has flowed under the street and recently the bridge has become very unsafe. The Board of Works entered into negotiations with the owners of the raceway and got their consent to fill it up. A twenty-four inch pipe is being put in and the hole filled up with the clay being taken from the lift lock hill. When this is done the job will be permanent, and all danger at this point overcome.

NEARLY UPSET PICKING LILIES

George St. Choir Picnicked at Chemong and Buckhorn

A very happy party left the city at eight o'clock yesterday morning, and returned about half past ten in the evening. It was the annual outing of the choir of George street Methodist church. They went to Chemong Park in busses and there took the steamer Ogemah and went over the beautiful lakes to Buckhorn, where they partook of dinner. During the stay there one of the young men secured a canoe and took two of the fair sex out to gather water lilies. These flowers grow in large numbers around Buckhorn and the girls could not resist the temptation and cast covetous eyes upon the white crowned water. The trio in the birch-bark made excellent progress and the girls were enthusiastic over the sport. They thoroughly enjoyed pulling the slimy stems, but one of the girls pulled too hard, and the canoe all but upset. It took in a quantity of water and the young people had their clothes soaked. That the craft did not go all the way over was due to the coolness of the girls and the good management of the young man.

The Ogemah returned about an hour after dinner to Chemong Park where the party had supper and spent several hours boating, playing ball and rambling through the woods. The day was a great success and everyone got home tired and happy.

Young Man Lost Horse and Buggy

Mr. Herb York who resides on the gravel road a short distance from the city called at the police station this morning and complained of losing his horse and buggy. Last Tuesday evening Mr. York left his horse standing at the corner of Aylmer and Sherbrooke streets and was away from it about twenty minutes. When he returned to get it to drive home it was gone. Mr. York had just bought the horse that day from a man in Otonabee. It was a heavy beast weighing about 1300 lbs., and was white in color. A diligent search was made for the lost animal, but as yet no trace of it has been found. If it is not found it means a loss of seventy-five dollars to Mr. York. If there is anyone who knows anything of its whereabouts will they kindly communicate with Chief Roszel.

FAVOR SUNDAY CHEESE MAKING

Kingston, Ont., August 2.—The marking of cheese on Sunday was again up for discussion at the regular meeting of the Frontenac Cheese Board, when the following resolution was carried by a unanimous vote:—"That the secretary write the Minister of Justice requesting that the cheese factories throughout the Dominion be permitted to make cheese on Saturday night, finishing on Sunday at at present."

Pickpockets Got 18 Months; Three Were Found Guilty

Lewis Was Acquitted on all Charges—Goldfarb, Phelps and Bradford go to Central Prison—Disturbance in the Court Room Yesterday Afternoon.

Harry Goldfarb, 18 months, Central Prison; C. H. Phelps, 18 months, Central Prison; Ray Bradford, 18 months, Central Prison; Harry Lewis, acquitted.

The above is the sentences imposed by His Honor, Judge Weller, on the above mentioned fellows, who were convicted on charges of picking pockets on circus day, June 25th. Lewis was allowed his freedom, there not being sufficient evidence against him.

When the court opened at three o'clock yesterday afternoon a large audience of interested persons awaited the arrival of His Honor Judge Weller. All the evidence in connection with the charge against the four for stealing $12.50 from Wm. Hurl, of Young's Point, having been taken at the morning session and Messrs. O'Connell and Kerr having addressed His Honor on behalf of the prisoners, the afternoon session opened with His Honor's judgment. The Judge began, "These four men are charged with taking $12.50 from Wm. Hurl. The evidence is clear that Bradford took the money and Phelps assisted him. His Honor found Phelps and Bradford guilty. Goldfarb was seen picking pockets and shoving and jostling the crowd. He is equally as guilty. Another thing he said he came here from Montreal on a freight train, which he did not as was proven by Conductor Mitchell. Goldfarb also said he had only $1.50 on him and when searched a large sum was found. His watching for a policeman also proves his guilt.

In regard to Lewis, His Honor did not care to express his own private opinion of him. He could not convict him on the evidence. On this charge he was acquitted.

At this juncture Mr. O'Connell stated that he desired to make application to the Court of Appeal on behalf of Bradford, and Mr. Kerr did likewise on behalf of his clients, Phelps and Goldfarb.

ANOTHER CHARGE.

The next charge against the four pickpockets, was that of stealing a pocket book from Wm. Hartley, on circus day. P. C. Newhall again went into the box. His evidence as given the other day, relating to Mr. Hartley's encounter with the pickpockets was taken. He stated that the whole four were on the car at the time. Phelps and Bradford did the stealing while Goldfarb and Lewis kept shoving and jostling the people. Mr. O'Connell stated that this witness had come into the box to emphasize the statement that Lewis was also engaged in "doing" the people. The cross examination by Mr. O'Connell was very close, but nevertheless the officer's evidence remained unshaken. At this point, owing to a repeated disturbance in the court room by some persons clapping their hands, the crowd was put out of the room.

MR. HARTLEY.

Mr. Hartley was called. He stated that at the Y.M.C.A. corner he boarded an Auburn car. He had an umbrella and several parcels in his arms. He identified Phelps as the man who stood in the door and would not let him in. When asked for his fare he put his hand in his pocket for his purse but it was gone. He had two pocket books on him. The one taken contained only a small sum of money, while the other had five dollars in it. He went home and after dinner came to the police station and told his trouble. As the old gentleman left the box, he stated that he would rather see the men reform than see them punished.

Mr. H. Cyril Hill was a passenger on the car Mr. Hartley was on. He saw him trying to board the car. Inside the car he saw Goldfarb, but he could not say that he saw the others.

His Honor found the three men guilty on this charge but Lewis was acquitted.

Crown Attorney Wood stated that they would not go on with the case of stealing the forty dollars from Luke Francis until after the appeal of the previous two charges as the lawyers for the defence had decided to appeal both. The defence decided not to appeal and the Francis charge was proceeded with.

LEWIS ALLOWED TO GO.

As Lewis was not connected with the Francis case and as he had not been proven guilty on the two previous charges, he was allowed to go. He went from the box a free man. At first he left the court room, followed by his friend Mr. Taylor of New York City. He soon returned and going up to His Honor in a very low voice thanked him. He was then given his money taken from him on circus day and he walked away.

Mr. Francis then went into the box. He related how that on June 25th at the entrance to the Southern Hotel, a man, who he identified as Phelps told him not to shove, putting his hand on his shoulder. He recognized Bradford as the man shoving him. He then told of how he missed his pocket book shortly after. It contained four Bank of Montreal ten dollar bills and some change. One of them was marked by some blue pencil marks. He recognized two of the bills as his, that were found on Bradford.

This was all the evidence that was taken and the two were then found guilty.

THE SENTENCES.

The Judge then proceeded to pass sentence on them.

Harry Goldfarb, have you anything to say? His lawyer Mr. Kerr, then rose and on his behalf appealed to His Honors sense of mercy. He said that he had received a number of telegrams from the prisoner's wife in New York City. She had been very ill, and she and a little baby were depending on her husband for support. Mr. Kerr asked the Judge to be as lenient as possible.

His Honor stated that Goldfarb started out to live by pickpocketing and he should have thought of his wife and child sooner. "You are sentenced to eighteen months in the Central Prison."

On behalf of Phelps, Mr. Kerr also said that he had a wife and two children depending on him, but the way of the transgressor is hard, and he received eighteen months in the Central.

On behalf of Bradford, Mr. O'Connell addressed the Judge. He said he was a young man, only 21 years of age. His face does not bear traces of crime, and he was never before convicted. He is a married man and is in a delicate condition, and a letter from a well-known doctor in New York city proved it. He asked that his sentence be made as light as possible. "Why it was his hand that took most of the money," said His Honor and the sentence passed on him was the same as the other.

The three prisoners took their sentences good naturedly, especially Goldfarb and Phelps, but Bradforb seemed to be more worried, and was seen to sigh deeply several times, and was heard to remark that he wished they would take him right away from this place.

MONEY RETURNED.

The parties who were robbed of their money had it all given back to them and no doubt were glad to get it. The balance of the money was handed over to the prisoner's lawyers to keep for them.

Home Boy Took Dose Paris Green

Fifteen Year Old Youth Commits Suicide Near Cobourg

Cobourg, Aug. 1.—Coroner Dr. Ferris received word that John Jones, a Home boy, employed by Mr. John Bright, a farmer, residing near Burnley, has been found dead. The coroner at once issued a warrant for an inquest, but after visiting the scene of the fatality, and learning the circumstances, the conclusion was reached that the boy had taken his own life by taking Paris green, and the warrant was withdrawn. He had been sent by his employer that morning to put Paris green on the potatoes. The act was probably committed in a fit of despondency. He was about fifteen years of age, and had been with his present employer a year.

ORILLIA GETS AFTER BARRIE

Scores Latter Place for Delaying Finish of Trent Canal

The Orillia Packet gets after Barrie in the following hot stuff:—

Barrie appears determined to stir up an agitation over the northern outlet of the Trent Valley Canal similar to that which delayed the opening of the southern end. The ulterior motive behind the movement inaugurated last week is a wish to have a large amount of swamp land drained. It is claimed that the construction of the canal by the Nottawasaga route would render cultivatable fifty thousand acres of what is now waste land. Of course, such a consideration has no bearing on the question of which route is best suited to the primary purposes of the canal, but it accounts for the belated interest which is being taken in the project in the municipalities between Barrie and the Georgian Bay. It is not likely that deputations and flamboyant assertions of the superiority of the Nottawasaga valley will have any effect on the choice of routes, which will be made on the report of the engineers. But the agitation may cause delay, as did Port Hope's abortive effort to divert the southern outlet. In which case Barrie will suffer as well as Orillia. It is a pity the question had not been left entirely to the engineers, to decide on its merits with as little delay as possible.

DUCK SHOOTING AT GOOSE LAKE

Game Warden Bradshaw Gets After the Offenders

There has been a certain amount of illegal duck shooting going on recently in the neighborhood of Goose Lake. On Tuesday last Fishery Inspector and Game Warden Bradshaw took an excursion in that direction for purposes of investigation.

Seeing a piece of burnt rag on the shore—used for cleaning out a rifle—Mr. Bradshaw drew his own conclusions and waited. Shortly after, the bushes nearby parted and out strode a stalwart farmer, N. Waldon by name, with an old fashioned bell-mouthed blunderbuss under his arm.

"Been shooting ducks?" interrogated Mr. Bradshaw. Waldon replied in the negative, and went on to explain that he was "hunting ground hogs." The protection of cherry and fruit trees also was part of his programme, and he was bound neither ground hogs, birds or men would get ahead of him. Under the circumstances the Game Warden was obliged to take the hunter's word for it.

Annual Outing Of R. Hall & Son

About 100 Employees Went Down the River to Gore's Landing

About one hundred employees of the firm of Rich. Hall & Son, enjoyed the kind hospitality of Mr. Hall and had a delightful sail down the Otonabee river and across Rice Lake to Gore's Landing yesterday afternoon on the steamer Monarch. It was an ideal day for a trip down the river, and the cool refreshing breezes of Rice Lake, were a pleasant relief from the heat of the city. The party left here shortly after two o'clock, and reached Gore's Landing in time for tea. Mr. Richard Hall and Mr. R. Bass were on board and did everything to make the outing one of great pleasure for the employees. An hour was spent at Gore's Landing and the return trip was commenced shortly after seven o'clock. Music by several of the employees added greatly to the pleasure of the trip. This is the second time Mr. Hall has showed his interest in his employees by giving them an outing down the river, and it is to be an annual affair. It is needless to say that the employees appreciate Mr. Hall's kindness and an excursion of this kind tends to make stronger the friendly relations existing between employer and employees. The party reached home about ten o'clock, after having spent a most enjoyable time.

Refrigerating machinery will be installed on British warships to keep magazines cool.

Maple Blossoms Are Now Afloat

The excitement of the shouting thousands last night was a happy memory and breakfast was a delicious prospect.

The day was of exquisite weather and Montreal looked at its best. Drives around the city, a view from the lookout on the mountain, greetings from interested friends, the last shopping preparations, writing letters and partaking of the hospitality of the Windsor Hotel filled the day full.

Spectators are full of curiosity and the World and its guests are on every lip.

The party embarked on the Virginian at ten.

LITTLE CRIME IN THE COUNTY

Few Cases Before the County Police Magistrate

Not for many months has such quietness prevailed in county police circles as at the present time. There have been no cases of any importance for the past month, in fact until yesterday the county magistrate had not been called upon to dispense justice for several weeks.

This condition of affairs speaks well for the conduct of the people of the county, but it is not likely that such a state of serenity will continue long. "It never rains but it pours" is often very true in connection with police matters.

Monday's Game Should be Fast

Young Torontos and Locals Will Clash at Riverside Park

Peterborough people will have the opportunity of seeing the best lacrosse match of the season, when the local team and the Young Torontos clash at Riverside Park on Monday afternoon. The homesters are in good shape and are determined to take a fall out of the visitors and incidentally get back at the Toronto aggregation for the trimming received at Rosedale early in the season.

Fred Waghorne, of Toronto, will handle the whistle, which is an assurance that clean lacrosse will be played. It should be a great game, and no doubt a big crowd will witness it. There were 1,500 people at the Beaverton-Newmarket game at Newmarket yesterday. Cannot Peterborough turn out just as large a crowd?

Woman Chased by a Bear While Picking Raspberries

With Two Children She Was in a Patch Near Janetville—Escaped Without Injury—Villagers Hunting the Animal Down.

The village of Janetville was greatly excited yesterday afternoon and evening over the appearance of a big, real live bear in a berry patch about half a mile outside the village. A woman and two children were in the patch picking raspberries when suddenly the woman heard a peculiar noise a little distance away. She turned around and beheld a big bear approaching. She alarmed the two youngsters, and the three dropped their pails and made a wild run for safety. It was the only thing they could do, as they were unarmed, and no assistance was at hand. They were badly scared and covered the ground at a record gait, with the bear close behind. They reached a house not far away, and the animal which is so fond of putting its arms around one, made off again.

Word was sent to the village and like wild-fire, spread among the residents. Mr. J. B. Burns, one of the merchants, organized a party, which started out for the berry patch. All were well armed and they formed a circle around the supposed hiding place.

The sight of a bear in the berry patches will put fear into the hearts of women and children, and it will be a hard job getting pickers for the balance of the season.

Crew of the "Bob Hall" Had An Exciting Experience

Were Out Near the Middle of Lake Simcoe When Storm Arose and the Tug Was in Danger of Going Down.

Information has been received in the city that the crew of the Government tug "Bob Hall," had a somewhat exciting experience on Lake Simcoe last Friday afternoon. The boat was out near the middle of the lake when a storm came up suddenly and the wind blew at almost a hurricane rate. The waves were lashed into foam and rose high in the air beside the boat, which was being tossed about by the furies of wind and wave. At times it was feared that she would go down as once or twice it looked as if the stout little craft had taken in more water than she would carry, but each time she righted herself in fine style and after a stormy period the wind subsided and everything was all right again.

It was an exciting time for the crew while the storm lasted and none of them care to go through the experience again. They were a long distance from the shore and would have had a hard time if anything had happened the tug.

Fire Alarm Device Notifies Central When the Blaze Starts

An invention, known as the Telephone Fire Alarm, has recently been perfected by W. L. Denio, of Rochester, the originator of the old Standard Fire Alarm. It is a device which is said to have no rival, either in this country or in Europe.

As its name indicates, the invention is a fire alarm operated in connection with a telephone line. Telephone engineers and experts, who have witnessed demonstrations with the device pronounce it a valuable product for telephone companies. The apparatus was displayed at the National Telephone Convention which was held in Chicago in June, and was inspected by the ablest constructors of telephone lines in this country.

According to the promoters the device insures the best fire protection to telephone subscribers. The fact according to Commissioner Gilman's report of last year, that a great many alarms are sent in over the telephone lines, emphasizes its value. It minimizes, they say, the chances of errors occurring either in sounding the alarm, due to the excitement caused by the sudden appearance of a blaze, or in its transmission at the exchange by the operator. It also does away with the necessity of one's leaving the premises or the family in danger while he goes to a box in the street to send in an alarm.

The invention has been in operation as an experiment for several months. It was installed in the homes of the directors of the new company formed for its manufacture, and in a few business places, and in all instances it has given satisfaction in sending the alarms.

The device is very simple. Two kinds of boxes have been designed, either of which may be put into operation, simply by bridging to the telephone circuit. One box is made for stores, factories and buildings, where automatic protection is desired. It contains a pair of magnets, operated by the current on the line, making no local battery necessary. As many manuals as are needed can be placed in various parts of the building and connected with the box. The automatic feature is accomplished by the use of thermostats or a fire detecting wire. Strung through a room or rooms where a fire originates, the detecting wire fuses as soon as the temperature reaches 160 degrees, closes the circuit and operates the box. The closing of the circuit releases the escapement of the movement in the signal box. This mechanism then rapidly makes and breaks the circuit, making a distinctive flash in a lamp at the exchange and causing a peculiar noise in the receiver which the operator recognizes immediately as the fire alarm. The alarm may be repeated fifteen or twenty times, extending over a period of from five to eight minutes.

The make and break wheels are all cut differently, so that when an operator receives a signal she merely uses the fire plug, which is on a direct line to the fire department, and the number of the box is punched on a tape by the register. As soon as the operator has sent the alarm on to the department she rings a telephone bell in the building to give warning of the fire. A gong may be used for this purpose.

The other box has been designed for the use of those who do not desire the automatic feature. It is operated by breaking the front glass and pushing the button, which closes the circuit and transmits the alarm in the same manner as it does in the other box. The return ring of the operator in a case of this kind of a box may serve to awaken sleeping inmates to their peril.

The Manager Of the B. & A.

By VAUGHAN KESTER

"Well, so long," the latter added; "I got to get back." And a moment later he might have been seen making his way cautiously in the direction of the office, while Spide, his battered hat under his arm and the cigarette clutched in one hand, was skipping gayly across the cornfield toward the creek, followed by Fink. He was bound for the "Slidy," a swimming hole his mother had charged him on no account to visit. Under these peculiar circumstances it was quite impossible for him to consider any other spot.

CHAPTER XI.

"SAY," Clarence blurted out, "there's going to be a strike!" Oakley glanced up from his writing.

"What's that you are telling me, Clarence?"

"There's going to be a strike, Mr. Oakley."

Dan smiled good naturedly at the boy.

"I guess that has blown over, Clarence," he said kindly.

"No, it ain't. The men had a meeting last night. It was in the room over Jack Britt's saloon. I've just been talking with a fellow who was there. He told me."

"Sit down," said Oakley, pushing a chair toward him.

"Now, what is it?" as soon as he was seated. And Clarence, editing his reminiscences as he saw fit, gave a tolerably truthful account of his conversation with Spide. The source of his information, its general incompleteness and the frequent divergences occasioned by the boy's attempt to incorporate into the narrative a satisfactory reason for his own presence in the yards, did not detract from its value in Oakley's estimation. The mere fact that the men had held a meeting was in itself significant. Such a thing was new to Antioch, as yet unvisited by labor troubles.

"What is that you say about my father?" For he had rather lost track of the story and caught at the sudden mention of his father's name.

"Spide says they got it in for him. I can't just remember what he did say. It was something or other Griff Ryder knows about him. It's funny, but it's clean gone out of my head, Mr. Oakley."

Oakley started. What could Ryder know about his father? What could any one know?

He was not left long in doubt. The next morning shortly after he arrived at the office he heard the heavy shuffling of many feet on the narrow platform outside his door, and a deputation from the carpenter shop led by Joe Stokes and Branyon entered the room. For a moment or so the men stood in abashed silence about the door and then moved over to his desk.

Oakley pushed back his chair and as they approached came slowly to his feet. There was a hint of anger in his eyes. The whole proceeding smacked of insolence. The men were in their shirt sleeves and overalls and had on their hats. Stokes put up his hand and took off his hat. The others accepted this as a signal and one after another removed theirs. Then followed a momentary shuffling as they bunched closer. Several who looked as if they would just as soon be somewhere else breathed deep and hard. The office force—Kerr, Holt and Miss Walton—suspended their various tasks and stood up so as not to miss anything that was said or done.

Stokes took a step forward and cleared his throat as if to speak. Then he looked at his comrades, who looked back their encouragement at him.

"We want a word with you, Mr. Oakley," said he.

"What have you to say?"

"Well, sir, we got a grievance," began Stokes weakly, but Branyon pushed him to one side hastily and took his place. He was a stockily built Irish-American, with plenty of nerve and a loose tongue. The men nudged each other. They knew Mike would have his say.

"It's just this, Mr. Oakley: There's a man in the carpenter shop who's got to get out. We won't work with him no longer!"

"That's right," muttered one or two of the men under their breath.

"Whom do you mean?" asked Oakley, and his tone was tense and strenuous, for he knew. There was an awkward silence. Branyon fingered his hat a trifle nervously. At last he said doggedly:

"The man who's got to go is your father."

"Why?" asked Oakley, sinking his voice. He guessed what was coming next, but the question seemed dragged from him. He had to ask it.

"We got nothing against you, Mr. Oakley, but we won't work in the same shop with a convicted criminal."

"That's right," muttered the chorus of men again.

"Get out of here!" he ordered hotly.

"Don't we get our answer?" demanded Branyon.

While the interview was in progress McClintock had entered and now stood at the opposite end of the room, an attentive listener.

"No!" cried Oakley hoarsely. "I'll put whom I please to work in the shops. Leave the room, all of you!"

The men retreated before his fury, their self confidence rather dashed by it. One by one they backed sheepishly out of the door, Branyon being the last to leave. As he quitted the room he called to Dan:

"We'll give you until tomorrow to think it over. But the old man's got to go."

McClintock promptly followed Branyon, and Clarence darted after him. He was in time to witness the uncorking of the master mechanic's vials of wrath and to hear the hot exchange of words which followed.

"You can count your days with the Huckleberry numbered, Branyon," he said. "I'm hanged if I'll have you undoe me after this!"

"We'll see about that!" retorted Branyon roughly. "Talk's cheap."

"What's the old man ever done to you, you infernal loafer?"

"Shut up, Milt, and keep your shirt on!" said Stokes in what he intended should be conciliatory tones. "We only want our rights."

"We'll have 'em, too!" said Branyon, shaking his head ominously. "We ain't dagoes or Polacks; we're American mechanics, and we know our rights."

"You're a sneak, Branyon! What's he ever done to you? You needn't be so particular about the old man's record. You know as much about the inside of a prison as he does."

"You're a liar!" Nevertheless McClintock spoke only the truth. At Branyon's last word he smashed his fist into the middle of the carpenter's sour visage with a heavy, sickening thud. No man called him a liar and got away with it.

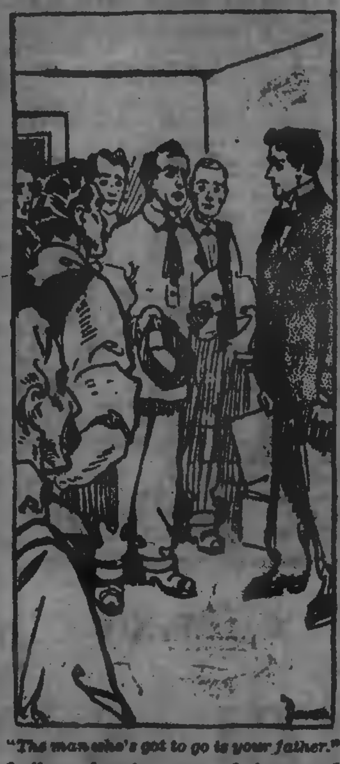
"Gee!" gasped the closely attentive but critical Clarence. "What a soaker!" Branyon fell up against the side of the building near which they were standing. Otherwise he would have gone his length upon the ground, and the hands rushed in between the two men.

Stokes and Bentick dragged their friend away by main strength. The affair had gone far enough. They didn't want a fight.

McClintock marched into the office, crossed to the water cooler and filled himself a tumbler; then he turned an unruffled front on Oakley.

"I guess we'd better chuck these fellows—fire 'em out bodily, the impudent cusses! What do you say, Mr. Oakley?"

But Dan was too demoralized to consider or even reply to this. He was feeling a burning sense of shame and disgrace. The whole town must know his father's history or some garbled version of it. Worse still, Constance Emory must know. The pride of his respectability was gone from him. He felt that he had cheated the world of a place to which he had no right, and now he was found out. He could not face Kerr nor Holt nor McClintock. But this was only temporary. He couldn't stand among his ruins. Men survive disgrace and outlive shame just as they outlive sorrow and suffering. Nothing ever stops. Then he recognised that, since his secret had been wrested from him, there was no longer discovery to fear. A sense of freedom and relief came when he realised this. The worst had happened, and he could still go on. How the men had learned about his father he could not understand, but instinct told him he had Ryder to thank. Following up the clew Kenyon had given him, he had carefully looked into Roger Oakley's record, a matter that simply involved a little correspondence.



"The man who's got to go is your father."

He had told Branyon and Stokes only what he saw fit and had pledged himself to support the men in whatever action they took. He would drive Oakley out of Antioch. That was one of his motives. He was also bent on cultivating as great a measure of personal popularity as he could. It would be useful to Kenyon and so advantageous to himself. The congressman had large ambitions. If he brought his campaign to a successful issue it would make him a power in the state. Counting on this victory, Ryder had mapped out his own career. Kenyon had force and courage, but his judgment and tact were only of a sort. Ryder aspired to supply the necessary brains for his complete success. Needless to say, Kenyon knew nothing of these benevolent intentions on the part of his friend. He could not possibly have believed that he required anything but votes.

Oakley turned to Clarence.

"Run into the carpenter shop and see if you can find my father. If he is there ask him to come here to me at once."

The boy was absent only a few moments. Roger Oakley had taken off his work clothes and had gone uptown before the men left the shop. He had not returned.

Dan closed his desk and put on his hat.

"I am going to the hotel," he said to Kerr. "If anybody wants to see me you can tell them I'll be back this afternoon."

"Very well, Mr. Oakley." The treasurer was wondering what would be his superior's action. Would he resign and leave Antioch or would he try and stick it out?

Dan hurried uptown to the hotel. He found his father in his room, seated before an open window in his shirt sleeves and with his Bible in his lap. He glanced up from the book as his son pushed open the door.

"Well, Dannie?" he said, and his tones were mild, meditative and inquiring.

"I was looking for you, father. They told me you'd come uptown."

"So I did. As soon as I heard there was going to be trouble over my working in the shops I left."

"Did they say anything to you?"

"Not a word, Dannie, but I knew what was coming and decided to quit work."

"You shouldn't have done it, daddy," said Dan, seating himself on the edge of the bed near the old man. "I can't let them say who shall work in the shops and who not. The whole business was trumped up out of revenge for the cut. They want to get even with me for that, you see. If I back down and yield this point there is no telling what they'll ask next—probably that the wages be restored to the old figure."

He spoke quite cheerfully, for he saw his father was cruelly hurt.

ODDFELLOWS AT ORILLIA

Mr. J. T. C. Lang Arranges for the Peterborough Delegation

The Orillia Packet says:

Mr. J. T. C. Lang, of Peterborough was in Orillia on Monday making arrangements for the accommodation of the Peterborough delegates during the meeting of the Grand Lodge of Oddfellows. There will be about 20 delegates from that city and they wish to be all together. Mr. Lang succeeded in making arrangements with Mr. Hessey to have a hall fitted with cots and to get their meals at the Orillia House. They will make the hall the Peterborough headquarters for the three days.

NOT ON GRAND TRUNK THOUGH

A good story is told of a passenger conductor on the northern division obtaining leave to go and get married. He received a pass for the journey there and back. On the return journey being rather flustered, the bridegroom pulled out his marriage certificate instead of his railway pass, and showed it to the ticket collector. The latter, a Scot, looked long at the certificate in perplexity and then said, "Eh, mon, you've got a ticket for a lang weary journey, but no' on the Grand Trunk line!"

GREEKS TOOK FRENCH LEAVE

The Barrie Advance says: George Georgas, a Greek, who with a fellow countryman had carried on a candy kitchen and ice cream parlor here for the past couple of years, brought sorrow to a large number of confiding citizens by quietly getting out of town early Sunday morning. Nobody had any inkling of the intended move, as business with the Greeks was apparently good. They seemed to be holding a full hand and consequently enjoyed a considerable measure of credit with such of the townspeople as had dealings with them. When the shutters were seen to be up on Monday at the candy kitchen, vague rumors began to fly about the front street, and it then dawned on the creditors of Mr. Georgas that all was not right. It is said that similar disappearances have taken place recently in many of the towns of Western Ontario by members of the Greek colony, with the same sequel in each case—an array of creditors but no available assets.

Salvation Army Band Concert

Splendid Programme Was Enjoyed by a Large Crowd of Citizens

There was a good crowd gathered at Victoria Park last night to hear the weekly concert of the Salvation Army band. This was the last concert the band will give until they return from their two weeks' trip. The band was in splendid form and under the leadership of Bandmaster Greene, rendered an excellent programme, which was greatly enjoyed. As a musical organization the Salvation Army band is a credit to the city and the citizens are proud of it. The weekly concerts are increasing in popularity and the grant from the council is well made. Following was the programme rendered last evening:

March—"Keyton" — The latest march published by the Salvation Army.

Selection—"Happy Day" with Saxophone and Euphonium Solos.

March—"Third Prize March" composed and written by Bandsman Coles, of Chalk Farm Band, London, which is the largest Army band in the world.

Instrumental quartette — "Nearer to the Lord," by Solo and First Cornets, Baritone and Euphonium.

Selection—"Songs about Jesus," with Cornet and Mellaphone solos.

March—"The Captain."

Euphonium Solo — "Eternity" — Bandsman Boorman, with band accompaniment.

Selection—"Still Unsaved," with Cornet and Euphonium solos.

March—"Spanish Chant," introducing solo for Mellaphone.

"God Save the King."

Beyond the Steel and Steam On the Real Western Prairie

Where no Puffing Engine Marks advance of Civilization, Where Cowboys Live Lives Busy and Dangerous, and the Cattle Roam Freely the Thousands of Square Miles.

Lethbridge, July 20.—A decade or two ago travellers in the far west were obliged to journey in stages. Now these have been supplanted by the railway, save in remote districts. To see the real west, however, it is necessary to leave the iron horse far behind, and with steeds of flesh and blood explore new territory, for the steel rails betray the advance of civilization, whereas when one is but ten miles from the railway the country is often as primeval as in the days of Adam and the traveller would hardly be surprised if a marauding party of painted and befeathered Indians suddenly burst into view. But the modern redskin is a disappointed animal, clad in rags and dirt, and sadly lacking the picturesque element, save on an occasional fete day.

THE CAPTAIN AND STAFF

To manage a ranch of ten thousand cattle, from five to ten cowboys, a foreman, two horse wranglers, and a cook, are necessary. The number of cowboys or cowpunchers, as they prefer to style themselves, varies as the season, far fewer men being required in winter than in summer, and a larger number still are needed when anything out of the ordinary, such as a big cattle drive, takes place. Owing to the name, cowboy, many people think that most of those entitled to the name are young fellows, ranging from fifteen to twenty-five years of age, and are really boys. Most of the men, however, are between the ages of twenty and sixty years. Another mistaken idea about the West, mistaken so far as Canada is concerned, at any rate, is as to the prevalence of crime. There is far less crime in Western Canada than in Chicago.

NOT A ROUGH BUNCH

The cowboys do not carry guns or bowie knives, nor do they indulge in fringed buckskin shirts or crimson neckerchiefs. A cowpuncher wears a plain shirt, generally of dark blue or black, or some such sombre color, corduroy or tweed trousers, and a soft felt hat of Stetson make (widely different from that worn by the bank clerks and other town dwellers in Calgary and Lethbridge.) In winter he wears also a jacket of fur or heavy cloth, and chaps (leather trousers, minus the seat, and worn over the ordinary corduroys.) These generally have long angora hair, black, white or yellow in color, casted on in front.

ALL FOR UTILITY

There is no part of the cowpuncher's costume not designed for use. The broad-brimmed felt hat is far more efficient in protecting the eyes from the sun than is a straw hat. The black silk handkerchief protects he neck from sunburn, and the chaps (pronounced shaps) are comfortable for riding and keeping the legs warm, in a way which nothing else would. The heels of the top boots are made very high, in order to prevent the foot from slipping through the large Western stirrups, for the cow-punchers do not ride with merely the toe in the stirrup and if by any chance they should be thrown it is a matter of life or death to have the feet free, as otherwise they might be dragged for miles.

THE ROUND-UP.

The phase of cowboy life which the easterner hears most is the "round-up." The name alone conveys vague of what the work is, but that is all that most people learn concerning it. The round-up is held two or three times a year to collect all the calves for branding in the spring and fall, and also to collect the animals to be sold as beef. Every round-up covers different territory, until the whole range and much of the adjoining country has been cleared of the ranch's cattle.

Soon a fair sized herd is "cut-out" and a man is required to watch it. When the large herd no longer contains any of the required animals it is left to itself and the cattle "cut-out" are driven back to some spot near camp, where they are held by a couple of men, while the rest return to camp for dinner. In the afternoon it is the same, and during the days following till all the calves have been rounded up and branded, or till the required number of beef cattle, (steers, heifers and dry cows), has been collected. In the latter case the cattle already collected, are held every night and day, but in the former this is not necessary, as there is only a round-up in the morning, and in the afternoon the calves are branded and are then freed. It would be injurious to the animals and would require more labor to first collect all the calves on the range and then spend a couple of weeks branding them.

THEY FEED WELL.

The food in a cow camp is excellent better than that to be obtained from most Western hotels. Pork and beans is not the staple article of diet. It never was and never will be while there is such a quantity of good beef close at hand. The cooking is usually very good, as there is a special man for that purpose. The cook is quite an important functionary and is next to the foreman in rank. He receives $60 a month, whereas the ordinary cow boy gets $40. The cook orders the men around in his tent as much as, and often more than, the foreman does on the round-up. In the morning for breakfast, there is beefsteak, buns, jam and coffee; for dinner, tea and coffee, beef in some form or other, tomatoes, or corn, pudding (generally rice and prunes), pie, good bread and butter and jam; for tea, much the same as for dinner, but always cake in addition.

ARDUOUS AND DANGEROUS.

The cow-puncher is accustomed to risking life and limb. He is continually in danger from badger holes, cattle, horses, or rattlesnakes. He is probably also one of the hardest worked beings on the face of the earth, and his life is spent in solitude, without the luxuries of civilization. Much of his work is not merely physically hard, but it wears on the nerves and is extremely monotonous. But in spite of the long hours, the hard work, the inclement weather, ranging from a hundred degrees in the shade, and no shade within miles, to fifty below zero, in spite of the danger, the solitude, in spite of all these discomforts, men are fascinated by the life. They are free from the conventionality of civilization. They respect no man for his worth. The sons of old and titled families, who have cow-punching aspirations, must needs get out and hustle if they wish to gain the respect of their companions.

Series of Accidents on Stony Lake With the Gasoline Yachts

Lake Was Very Rough, but no Casualties Reported—E. A Froud Struck on the Head With an Ax—Crew of the Bobs Overboard.

Mr. E. A. Frowde, who is spending the summer at Sandy Island, Stony Lake, with his mother and sister, met with a nasty accident yesterday afternoon.

Mr. Frowde has been in British Columbia for the past two years and arrived home a few weeks ago to have a rest, and they all went up the lakes. Yesterday Mr. Frowde was cutting wood with which to cook fish for the supper. As he swung the axe, it caught on the clothes line above him, and then fell on his head, inflicting a very nasty wound. Mrs. Frowde was the only one on the island at the time and she was greatly worried. The young man received a cut on the head about an inch and a half long, and it required several stitches to fix it up. He is doing well now, however, and there will not likely be any serious consequences.

It is reported that one of the big gasoline boats was struck by lightning while out in the lake on Wednesday. There was a big gale blowing and the lake was rough, and to cap it all a thunderstorm came on. The lightning was very vivid and one flash struck the craft, but did very little damage. There were a number of passengers on board at the time, including several ladies, who were badly scared, but other than that no one was any the worse for the experience.

Another party in a gasoline launch had a bad scare one day this week. They were out in the lake and the waves were running high. The boys put up a curtain to keep the water from splashing into the boat, when one end of the curtain was caught in the engine. For a minute or two things were very exciting, but no one was hurt, and the engine was soon started again.

The crew on the supply boat Bobs had their own troubles yesterday morning. Before starting out they were carrying wood on board for the boiler when the engineer fell overboard and got a good wetting as well as upsetting a load of wood into the lake. He got out without any trouble and the boat was started on its regular trip. When it stopped at the first island Captain Dunsford went to get off to take any orders that might be coming his way when he fell overboard, and had to swim to shore, and the rest of the trip was made in wet clothes.

The weather up the lakes this week has been anything but pleasant for the small boats. The lake has been very rough for several days and no canoes have ventured out. Quite a number of launches and dinghies could be seen running about the lake, but that was all. Then there have also been several thunder storms, during one of which the Juniper Island store was struck but not seriously damaged.

NEW YORK MEN WELL PLEASED

With Peterboro'—Mr. Taylor's First Visit to Canada

Messrs. Hurl Lewis and Taylor left on the midnight C.P.R. train for Montreal, on their way back to New York. Mr. Taylor deals largely in bric-a-brac and art, and is very prominent in athletic circles there. Mr. Lewis is one of the four men arrested on circus day charged with picking pockets, and who was liberated yesterday by His Honor Judge Weller. Lewis hails from New York, where he is well known. He is a boxer in the featherweight class, and has been in many contests before the athletic clubs of New York, Montreal, Buffalo, Toronto and other cities, and several local people have seen him go a couple of times. He said he was glad the he had been found not guilty by His Honor, although at no time was he at all afraid of being convicted. Speaking of his enforced visit at Castle Nesbitt, he said that he was well treated and could make no complaint, although he would much rather have been at liberty.

FIRST TIME IN CANADA

When Mr Taylor received word from the local lawyers that Lewis wanted him in Peterborough, he was at a loss to know how to get here. He knew no one who could tell him anything about this city, and he thought he was bound for the great forests where fur coats are worn all the year round. It was the first time he had occasion to cross the line, although he knows the United States like a book and has been on the continent. When he reached Toronto he was surprised to find so modern and up-to-date a place, and he was convinced, as he continued his journey east that he was getting away from civilization. Toronto must be the only place of any size, he thought, and this was borne out to a certain extent by the small towns and rough country through which he passed. When he saw Peterborough, however, his surprise was great. He could hardly realize that this was in Canada. He said last night that there are many cities on the other side with a population of a hundred thousand, or more, which has not got the fine stores there are here. Mr. Taylor was around the city a lot and he was greatly impressed with it. "If it was not that my business in New York is so well established, or if I had more money, I would like nothing better than to come to Peterborough and go into business." He will be back in the near future to spend a holiday here, but he hopes not under the same circumstances that he came this time.

FIRE ENGINE GIVEN A TEST

Packing in One of the Parts Was Too Tight and Will be Loosened

As a result of the slight accident to the fire engine at Lakefield on Saturday night, when a small bumper was broken, one part of the engine had to be taken apart and repacked. The chief of the brigade, therefore decided to give the engine a test last night to see if it would work all right. At seven o'clock the fire alarm was sounded in in two minutes and a quarter, and the brigade was at the corner of Brock and Water streets, where the test was to be made. The engine followed a minute or two later at a good clip, and shortly afterwards the water was turned on. The pumps worked as well as ever, but they did not seem to draw the water as well as formerly and it was decided that the packing had been put in too tight. The engine was run for about half an hour and then shut down. The packing will be taken out and put in again, which is not much of a job.

Race for $25 Didn't Come Off

Pill Pounder and Hotel Man Put up the Cash But Couldn't Agree

Two well known business men on Hunter street, a druggist and a hotelman, put up a big bluff last evening. They were standing on the street on opposite sides when the druggist called out:

"I can beat you down to Belleghem's for five cents, a cigar, a quarter a dollar or twenty-five dollars."

"You can't beat me for a cent" replies the hotelman.

"I'll give you to the post and beat you for $25" ventured the pill pounder.

"Put up your money. Here's mine and I will give it to the newspaper man to hold."

The money, after some argument, was put up, but a dispute as to which post was meant delayed the start for several minutes and finally the men refused to run. The druggist claimed that he said the tie post in front of the Review office, but the sport from across the road wanted to go to the telephone post which is five or six yards farther down.

"You're a flunker, a bum sport; your'e afraid to run."

"Start at the tie post" said the mixer of drugs, "and I'll run. You don't want to run; you're too fat."

A similar argument continued for some time and then the sprinters had to skidoo to answer the telephone.

Two Men Badly Hurt Near Lindsay

Lindsay, Aug. 1.—A. Switzer, of Cameron, had his leg broken in two places at the ankle, his head and face cut, and his back injured.

Henry Switzer, Ops, was badly bruised and cut around the head and back.

These are the results of an accident which happened last evening in Ops township, near Lindsay. The injured men were engaged in placing a rack for a hay fork when the scaffolding broke and the men fell 35 feet to the barn floor. Switzer is in the Ross Hospital, Lindsay.

A few minutes after one o'clock on Wednesday a serious accident occurred at the farm of Mr. John Sluggett, north of Graham's church, on the north-western boundary, as a result of which Mr. A. Switzer, of Cameron, and Mr. Henry Sluggett sustained severe injuries.

The two men had been engaged by Mr. Wes. Brethour, implement agent, of this town, to erect a track for a new hay fork in Mr. Sluggett's barn, and while at work up near the peak of the roof, the scaffold on which they were standing gave way, precipitating them to the barn floor below—a distance of 35 feet. Sluggett suffered serious injuries to the head and back; Switzer's left leg was broken at the ankle, both bones being fractured, head and face were cut, and his back injured.

Dr. White, of town, was apprised of the accident by telephone, and made a quick run to the Sluggett home in his auto through a driving rain storm, covering the distance of about five miles in twenty minutes. Switzer was removed to the Ross Hospital, town, during the afternoon. Just how badly the men are injured was not known at the time of going to press with this issue.—Lindsay Post.

Mrs. A. E. Horsley To Enter Suit

Aftermath of the Big Trial at Boise, Idaho—Orchard Will Not Plead Guilty

Boise, Idaho, Aug. 1.—A sensational story has been published here to the effect that Mrs. Albert E. Horsley, of Northumberland County, Ontario, has arranged to bring suit against Dan Gardener to whom her husband sold his interest in the Hercules mine, the claim being that the deed was invalid, as it did not bear her signature.

Added to this story is one to the effect that Peter Breen has secured an interview with Orchard and has induced him to agree to repudiate his confession, and that Orchard has employed the firm of Breen and Roe to defend him when his trial comes on.

PETERBOROUGH AND COBOURG

Midland League Game in Latter Town To-morrow

The Peterborough baseball team leaves for Cobourg on the 8.30 G.T.R. train tomorrow morning and plays the lakeside aggregation a Midland League game in the afternoon. The locals will have the same team as in the last three or four games and expect to give the home nine a run for their money. Corney Burns will be on the firing line with Burridge behind the bat. Quinlan will be at second base, and the rest of the team will be as usual.

After the match the Peterborough team will drive to Harwood and return home by the steamer Ounabee, which will call at that point on its return trip Saturday night.

Peterborough must win tomorrow's game to remain in the running and every man will do his utmost to pull out a victory.

Strathconas and Lillies To-morrow

Fast Game Assured at Riverside Park—Two Strong Teams

All arrangements have been completed for the game at Riverside Park tomorrow afternoon between the Strathconas and Lillies, and no doubt a large crowd will witness this game, as both teams have been practicing hard and are well matched. The Intermediate Strathconas were defeated in the final game, but will try hard to pull out a victory, while the Lillies are quite confident of taking a fall out of the Straths. The Straths will pick their team from the following men, who are asked to be at the Riverside Park tomorrow afternoon;—Wilson, Quinlan, Parnell, Belleghem, Allison, Weatherstone, Kendry, Curtis, Guerin, Tobin, Regan, King and Dobson.

Newmarket Won From Beaverton

The intermediate game yesterday at Newmarket, between Beaverton and Newmarket, was won by the home team by 4 goals to 1, and the score just about indicates the play. There were about 1500 people on the grounds when play began, and those present certainly saw something doing all the time. Newmarket got two in the first quarter, one in the second and one in the third. Beaverton scored their only goal in the second quarter.

The teams were as follows:

Newmarket—Goal, Doonan; point, Sheldings; cover, Graves; defence field, Webb, Doyle, and Anderson; centre, Rowland; home field, Campbell, Reeves and Northcote; outside home, Dunsmore; inside, Robinson; captain, Green.

Beaverton—Goal, Dobbin; point, Coombe; cover, Hinds; defence field, Carter, Marshall, Jacobi; centre, Cave; home field, Curran, Morrin, Cameron; outside, Anderson; inside, Pagnook.

Referee—Ed. Baker, Toronto.

Newmarket protested Curran and Con Morrin, of Beaverton, on the same lines as the Young Torontos did.

TENNIS

NICHOLLS OVAL TOURNEY

Much interest centres in the games in the tournament of the Nicholls Oval Tennis Club. Every court was filled last night, and every game was well contested. Some of the scores were very close, as will be seen by the results which follow. In the gentlemen's singles Mr. Meyers beat Mr. Lang, 6—2, 6—0, and Mr. Sisson defeated Mr Dingman, 6—3, 0—6, 6—4. Mr. Dingman had a comparatively easy thing of it in the second set, but his opponent was too strong in the other two. Mr. Sasson and Mr. Clarke were unable to finish owing to darkness. The first set was won by Mr. Clarke, 6—4, the second by Mr. Sasson, 6—0, and the score in the deciding set stood 6 all, when darkness made it impossible to continue.

In the ladies' singles Miss L. Gray and Miss E. McClennan were unable to finish. Miss Gray won the first set, 6—4, and the score in the second was 10—10, when it became too dark to finish.

FRED LYNCH TO PLAY

Fred Lynch, one of the greatest lacrosse players Peterborough ever produced, will be on the line-up of the locals when they meet the Young Torontos at Riverside Park on Saturday afternoon. Ladies Thought Dog Was Mad

The residents of a farm house near the Chemong Road, about half way between the city and the summer resort, were given a bad scare yesterday afternoon, thinking that they were in danger from a mad dog. It appears that one of the passengers who was going out on the bus in the afternoon, was taking a large hound, which he owns, with him to Chemong. The dog was running behind the 'bus and when near the farm house mentioned above, suddenly gave vent to a howl of pain and rushed up the lane and across the lawn leading to the house. Two women were sitting on the verandah, sewing, and when the saw the canine approaching in such haste, they sprang from their chairs, rushed indoors and closed the door behind them. The dog, finding entrance to the house cut off, ran around the building two or three times and when last seen by the people on the 'bus, was standing on his hind legs looking in the pantry window.

The dog must have been stung by a bee or wasp when he made the dash for the house, and the two ladies no doubt thought the brute had hydrophobia. If some one had shouted "mad dog" their terror would have been added to, but as it was, they appeared greatly frightened.

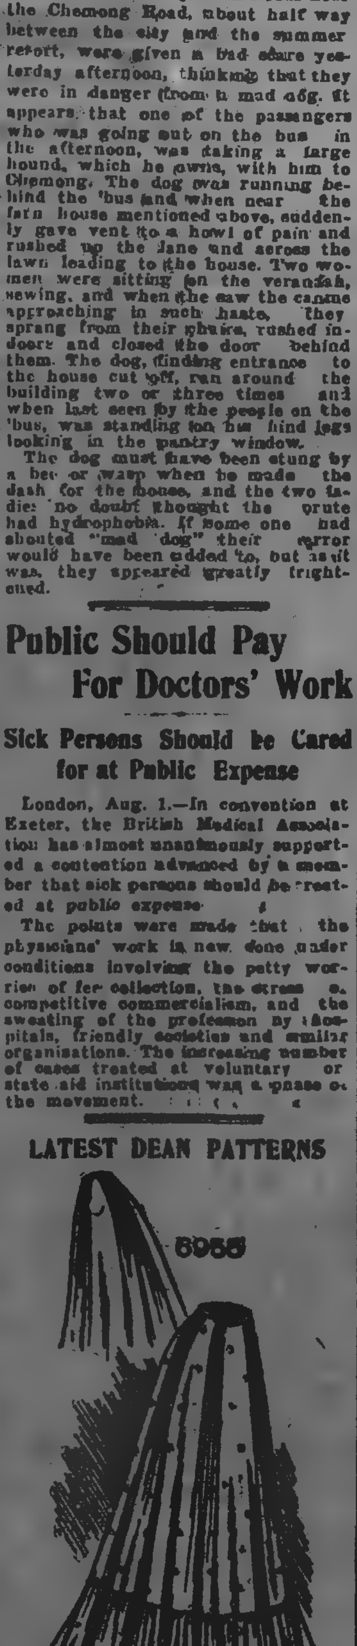
Public Should Pay For Doctors' Work

Sick Persons Should be Cared for at Public Expense

London, Aug. 1.—In convention at Exeter, the British Medical Association has almost unanimously supported a contention advanced by a member that sick persons should be treated at public expense.

The points were made that the physicians' work is now done under conditions involving the petty worries of fee collection, the stress of competitive commercialism, and the sweating of the profession by hospitals, friendly societies and similar organisations. The increasing number of cases treated at voluntary or state aid institutions was a phase of the movement.

LATEST DEAN PATTERNS



6955.—A GRACEFUL SKIRT.

A pretty fashion for a skirt of silk, washing stuff or cloth is suggested in the one shown. The upper portion is in seven gores with groups of tucks at each seam stitched to below the hips. A straight gathered flounce completes the skirt proper and assures a pretty flare about the feet. The skirt may be in round or sweep length and is dressy enough for any nice gown. For the medium size 7 1-2 yards of 27 inch material are needed.

6955.—Sizes 20 to 32 inches bust measure.

The price of this pattern is 10c.

Criminal Record of Phelps, Goldfarb, Lewis, Bradford

They Have Appeared in Court Many Times and Have Frequently Been Fined—Are Also Familar With the Inside of Prisons—Got Their Heaviest Sentence Here.

The criminal records of the four men who were charged with pickpocketing, three of whom were convicted and sentenced to terms in the Central Prison, go to show that these fellows have not been following the straight path.

Two weeks previous to their arrest here, Bradford and Lewis were arrested at Elmira, N.Y., and given one hour to leave the city. At no place where they ever have been arrested have they received such a heavy sentence as in this city. Their arrest here reflects much credit on the local police force and especially on the clever detective work of P. C. Newhall. The four came here with the intention of robbing all the people they could and they little thought that their smart work would end in a small Canadian city like Peterborough. The citizens of Peterborough ought to feel justly proud of their police force and should feel very grateful for the excellent protection given by them against such men as were sentenced yesterday. It is not likely that they will ever return to this city and they will not forget their visit here for a while.

The records of the four are as follows;

Building Committee Will Make no Change in the Brick

Claimed That the Brick Being Used is Just as Good and More Artistic—Architects Recommend it—Pressed Brick Would Cost $1500 More—Money Needed for Equipment.

There will be no change in the quality or style of brick to be used for the facing of the outside walls on the Collegiate Institute. The property committee met this morning at the building and discussed the question of pressed brick or the hard red brick called for in the specifications. The question was raised through the interview with one of the well-known men, which was published in the Review last night. That gentleman wanted pressed brick used.

The Property Committee, however, found that the contractors were putting in the brick called for in the specifications, which are hard-burned, uniform select red brick laid in red mortar. These are somewhat cheaper than the pressed and at a distance of a few yards, it is said, it would be hard to distinguish them. It is also stated that the architects in Toronto, are advocating this class of brick in preference to the pressed, as the latter gives too much the appearance of a plain, smooth cut, while the rougher brick is more artistic.

The architect was asked to figure out the difference in the cost of the two bricks and he said to substitute the pressed brick would cost about $1,500. The board decided that if the people cared to vote that much more money, it could be spent to better advantage on the equipment, and therefore no change will be made. The building committee also state that the contractors the architect and the clerk of works are all very particular in selecting the very best brick made by Mr. Curtis, and that it cannot be beaten, and that the outside will be very creditable to the city.

Are Your Glasses Suitable?

If suitable, it is a great satisfaction to know it. If not suitable, you should know it. Most opticians try to please their customers, but not all have the skill to know and be sure that the glasses supplied are suitable to the best interests of the eyes. There need be no uncertainty of this, and should not be.

Our Specialist is examining eyes and glasses daily and will tell you if your glasses are suitable and whether or not you need glasses. Many seek the benefit of Mr. Browett's knowledge, gained by so extensive an experience as he has enjoyed in both Canada and United States

The Band Concerts Attract Crowds

Excellent Programme Rendered in Victoria Park Last Evening

Again last evening the weather was most favorable for the weekly band concert in Victoria Park, and an unusually large crowd were present to hear the excellently rendered programme of popular and classical music. Incidentally it might be remarked that so far this season the band concerts have not had to be postponed on account of a wet night. The programme last evening was of the usual high standard that the 57th band always gives. The medley "Banwick's Hits," which contains a number of popular songs was a great favorite last evening and an encore was demanded. "Reminiscences of Scotland," was one of the best numbers on the programme and received great applause, as did also Bandsman Hughes' cornet solo, "Corporale Di Fenti Mani." The programme all through was exceptionally good.

House Burned In South Ops

Home of Mrs. P. J. Murphy Destroyed by Fire Last Night While She Was Visiting

A telephone message was received by Mrs. P. J. Murphy from Lindsay this morning, informing her that her home with nearly all the contents was burned last night, about five o'clock. Mrs. Murphy has been visiting her daughter, Mrs. T. J. Begley, Victoria Avenue for some time. Her home is situated in the township of South Ops, near the C.P.R. tracks on the Bobcaygeon and Pontypool branch Last night, as the five o'clock express was passing the house a spark from the engine ignited the roof, and the fire was not discovered until it had made great headway. There was only time to save a few articles of furniture down stairs, when the roof fell in. The house was of solid brick, and although it with the contents were covered with insurance the loss will be a heavy one. Mrs. Murphy and Mr. Begley left on the noon train for Lindsay today.

Over 300 names are alleged to be improperly on the assessment roll of Trenton.

Peterborough is Suffering From a Lack of Advertising

Well Known Public Man Suggests that Manufacturing Committee Issue Some Advertising Matter—More Factories and Excursions Wanted.

"Why is Peterborough not being advertised?" is a question which many prominent citizens are asking, and one well-known municipal man said that it was a shame that the Manufacturer's Committee had taken no action this year, whatever. No factories have turned up yet, at all and very little, if any, effort, is being made to secure any. Up to the present year the cry has always been that Peterborough was destined to be the great manufacturing city of Ontario. There was always lots of land available for sites and railway connections that would compete with any place, while the city's geographical position alone was a great attraction. Some effort was made in the past and the result fully justified every dollar that was spent, and the committee which has charge of this end of the work and which has the authority to spend considerable money, in not taking up the work, is detrimental to the city's interests.

Not only are many factories being allowed to quietly locate in other towns without seeing Peterborough, but the city is not even advertised as an attractive spot for excursions. Crowded trains could be brought into the city every day or two, if an effort was made to get them. But when the societies, lodges, trades unions and other organizations are arranging for the annual outing there is no literature at hand to help Peterborough along. When an excursion does come here, there is no one at the station to meet them with little guide books telling them where to go or what to do. They are allowed to come, wander about like a lot of sheep and go away again and not a piece of paper has been placed in their hands as a souvenir.

What would be nicer or more profitable to the city than to have a neat little folder printed containing a list of the places of attraction, the location of the many parks, the great manufacturing industries, the river, the lake, the boat houses, the wharves, and how to get there, what they cost to enjoy, etc., and hand one to each visitor. An attractive booklet would be appreciated. It would be kept as a souvenir for future reference, or sent to a friend who would be induced to come to Peterborough on a visit.

Every person who comes to the city is valuable. Their stay in the place costs the people nothing, and not a man, woman, or child, can come without spending some money. It means business for the merchants, and it means good advertising for the city and the manufacturers.

Other literature of a more comprehensive nature and giving a different kind of information should be issued for the purpose of assuring new industries. But as long as the Manufacturers Committee sits idle there will be nothing doing in Peterborough, was the municipal man's closing remark.

No Milk Tests to Be Published Need Further Consideration

Board of Health Had No Quorum—Harvey Street Sewer to be Built by the Council After Notice Has Been Given.

The result of the milk tests will not be published yet. The Board of Health met last night, after several futile attempts to get the members together and even then there was not a quorum. The only members present were Chairman Wm. Byres, Dr. Burnham and Mayor McWilliams. The other members are either out of the city or failed to connect. The Medical Health Officer and Sanitary Inspector, were present, however.

The first matter taken up was that of the Harvey street sewer, which the council had decided to go ahead with, this season, but which a woman, and the chairman signed a petition against, and made a majority against the sewer, blocking the work, after she had signed the petition for it. That woman now wants the sewer and is sorry for what she did. The question is, will the Board order the sewer built on sanitary grounds? Sanitary Inspector Ball said he had canvassed the people up there pretty thoroughly and while some would not sign the petition for the sewer, none of them said they would do anything against it. They majority of them want to see the sewer put in.

There was not a quorum present, so it was decided to allow the council to give notice of its intention to have the sewer built. This will take two months, but it is really the shortest course to pursue under the circumstances.

In the south end of the city one of the residents keeps animals which are offensive to the neighbors and they want it looked after. The Sanitary Inspector will look into it.

The Board next took up the question of publishing the milk analysis which were made in Toronto, and which have been reported upon. After considering several features of the report it was decided to leave it for further consideration.

As there was no other business before the chair, the Board adjourned.

A New Ontario Town Suffers by Severe Fire

North Bay Enveloped in Flames During Fierce Gale.

Many Business Houses Wiped Out—Originated From Gasoline Explosion—Arrests Made During the Excitement — Loss Will Be Many Thousands—Firemen Worked Like Heroes.

North Bay, Aug. 3.—While a fierce gale of wind was raging yesterday, fire broke out at 10.30 in the tailor shop of T. H. Campbell, the second store of the Gilmour Block, and, spreading with rapidity, was not checked until 1 o'clock, when the Gilmour and Richardson blocks were smoldering heaps of debris.

The fire originated from gasoline used in cleaning garments, and Campbell was seriously burned.

The firemen worked heroically in blinding smoke and blistering heat, and succeeded in preventing the flames from spreading to the Purvis Block, adjoining. They were helped by a firewall, which checked the attack of the flames.

J. W. Richardson's large brick block, occupied by him entirely as a hardware store, was the first building to go.

Of the Gilmour Block, adjoining, only a few bricks remain of the front.

The rapid spread of the flames prevented much salvage, and the stocks in the burned stores are almost a total loss.

One man was arrested for stealing while the fire was in progress, and another intoxicated individual was placed in the lock-up for safe keeping, having been rescued by the firemen for attempting to climb along a narrow ledge on the second storey.

The Richardson Block was valued at $6,000, with $4,000 insurance, divided between the Liverpool, London & Globe, Union and North British & Mercantile companies.

Richardson's hardware stock was valued at $25,000; insurance $14,350, divided between Guardian, Canadian, Sun, Commercial Union, Norwich Union, Home, Montreal, Canada, North British & Mercantile and Atlas companies. The stock is a total loss.

The Gilmour Block, owned by J. E. Gilmour, was valued at $[illegible]; insurance $3,000, in Monarch, London, Mutual and Standard companies; total loss.

T. H. Campbell carried insurance of $700 on household effects. Very little was saved.

J. W. Smith, druggist, carried a stock valued at $3,000; insurance $1,000; part of the stock was saved.

T. H. Mulligan, clothing merchant, had stock valued at $5,000, and insurance of $3,000. Some of the stock was saved.

CAN'T STAND DARROW.

So Attorney Richardson Throws Up the Idaho Miners' Cases.

Denver, Col., Aug. 3.—The News yesterday says that E. F. Richardson of Denver, who was one of W. D. Haywood's counsel at Boise, has withdrawn from any further connection with the defence of officials and others of the Western Federation of Miners.

"The whole sum and substance of the matter is that I cannot endure Darrow's methods," said Richardson. "If I do not sanction Socialism, at least not when it is coupled with trying a legal suit; especially when that case is a murder case and means a man's life."

Money for Mexico.

Montreal, Aug. 3.—It is said that the visit of Eugene C. Creel, Mexican ambassador to the United States, who has gone to Ottawa to discuss with Sir Wilfrid Laurier some developments in connection with the relations of the Dominion and the great Isthmian republic is of great financial significance.

A large amount of Canadian capital has been invested in Mexican enterprises, both electric and mining, and Mr. Creel, who has during the principal part of his life been closely associated with Mexican banks and railways, desires to effect alliances between the banks of which he is the controlling spirit in Mexico, and the principal banking institutions of Canada. The object of this alliance is a freer flow of capital from Canada to Mexico.

Mr. Creel had conferences with the heads of the Bank of Montreal, the Bank of [illegible] and other financial institutions.

Pure Food Congress.

Paris, Aug. 3.—When Harvey W. Wiley, chief of the bureau of chemistry in the United States Agricultural Department, returns to Washington he will recommend that the American Government call an international pure food congress to establish international food standards. He says the French Government is favorable to this scheme.

While in France Mr. Wiley has investigated the use of sulphate of copper in peas and other vegetables exported to America.

FUEL FAMINE.

Northwest Again Threatened With Shortage of Coal.

Cleveland, Aug. 3.—The northwest will suffer a more severe coal famine during the coming winter than the record-breaking one last year, which cost so many lives, according to local coal shippers.

It is declared that the inability of the railroads to supply the boats with enough coal and the great demand for ore, occasioned by the closing of the strike of ore handlers, will bring about a far-reaching shortage of fuel at the upper lakes. With good fortune the region out beyond the upper lakes will have from 3,000,000 to 5,000,000 tons of coal less than it will require, according to estimates.

Ohio shippers are rushing fuel to the upper lakes ports in every vessel they can charter. Since the opening of navigation shipments to the head of the lakes are considerably greater at this time than a year ago. A prominent mine owner said yesterday:

"There are now 100 big ore carriers up the lakes awaiting cargoes. They cannot get away till the ore reaches the docks, which means a delay of perhaps 10 days. Those huge vessels when they reach Ohio ports with ore are not going to take back coal.

"No vessel owner who is not under contract to carry coal will wait for a coal load, so the northwest probably, even with 10,000,000 tons of coal on the docks by Dec. 1, will experience another fuel famine before next spring."

CZAR AND KAISER.

Elaborate Preparations for Meeting To-day in the Baltic.

Berlin, Aug. 3.—Emperor William of Germany and Emperor Nicholas of Russia are to meet to-day in the Baltic Sea off Swinemunde.

Emperor William will be on board the imperial yacht Hohenzollern and the Russian Emperor on his yacht, the Standart.

The German Baltic fleet will be present to give color to the occasion.

The German authorities are taking every precaution to assure the safety of the Russian Emperor. A large number of marine policemen will be sent to-day from Stettin to Swinemunde to do guard duty on shore.

The Norddeutscher Allgemeine Zeitung publishes a welcome to Emperor Nicholas at the head of its columns yesterday evening. It announces that the Russian sovereign is coming for several days of friendly intercourse with Emperor William. This meeting is pre-eminently personal in character, the paper says, it is dictated by no specific political purpose, and there is therefore no occasion for any one to view it with distrust or suspicion. In conclusion the paper says:

"The German people see in this meeting an expression of the hearty relations existing between the houses of the two rulers and between the two countries, that are bound together by many mutual interests."

Philadelphia, Pa., Aug. 3.—In order that all metal moulders may become members of the organization, the Iron Moulders' Union of North America, in session here yesterday, changed its name to the International Moulders Union.

WILL HUMBLE SULTAN

Two Great Squadrons Ordered to the Coast of Morocco.

France and Spain Will Act Together in Demanding the Head of Maslamin Pasha—Great Holy War Appears Imminent — Must Be An Accounting—French Premier on the Situation.

Paris, Aug. 3.—An extraordinary meeting of the Cabinet to discuss the Moroccan situation was held yesterday afternoon.

Foreign Minister Pichon expressed himself in favor of immediate energetic action by France to secure reparation for the murders of Europeans at Casablanca and to insure the safety of the Europeans still there. In so much as France and Spain are charged, by the Algeciras agreement, to act together in the matter of policing Casablanca, M. Pichon advocated, as a first step, proposing to Spain the immediate landing of French and Spanish troops at the scene of the massacre.

At the conclusion of the meeting it was announced that France and Spain had reached an agreement to concentrate the squadrons on the coast of Morocco.

The French newspapers, excepting the Socialist journals, are unanimous in demanding that the Government take decisive steps to enforce respect for France in Morocco.

Some newspapers express the opinion that Germany will not now stand in the way and think the time is ripe to abandon M. Delcasse's policy of "specific penetration," which they contend has served only to arouse the hatred of the Moors for the French, and march straight to Fez.

La Republique Francaise says that unless the head of Maslamin Pasha, the governor of Casablanca, is obtained, a genuine holy war is likely to be precipitated, and that this would endanger Algeciras.

Vienna, Aug. 3.—M. Clemenceau, the French Premier, who is taking the cure at Carlsbad, has given out an interview on the Moroccan situation, in which he says that France will be guided by two main considerations in dealing with the situation arising from the Casablanca murders. First, she will, if possible, find a peaceable solution of the difficulty, and, secondly, she will only take action in agreement with the powers who took part in the Algeciras conference.

FOY TO FIGHT.

Will Urge Ontario Government to Meet G.T.R. on 2-Cent Fares.

Toronto, Aug. 3.—The Ontario Government will be represented by counsel before the Supreme Court in the event of the Grand Trunk Railway carrying an appeal to that body against the decision of the Railway Commission of Canada that the Grand Trunk is obliged by the terms of its original charter to run at least one train each way between Toronto and Montreal and carry passengers thereon at the rate of two cents a mile.

Attorney-General Foy yesterday announced this decision. He told a reporter that he would recommend to the Government that counsel be appointed to represent the people of Ontario in opposing the appeal.

He said he was not in a position to say anything further at this time.

BREACH BLEW OFF.

Three Men Killed and Seven Injured on a French Warship.

Toulon, Aug. 3.—Three men were killed and seven others wounded by the explosion of a gun during target practice yesterday on board the French training ship Couronne.

The breach of a 100-milimetre gun was blown off. The recoiling mechanism of the gun failed to work, and the breach was shattered into a thousand pieces.

The chief gunner and two of the gun crew lost their lives. Of the seven men wounded, two are officers.

Minister of Marine Thompson admitted yesterday that some of the large calibre shells used during the recent naval manoeuvres in the Mediterranean had exploded prematurely. He said the reason was that old black powder had been used. The present ammunition will be reloaded with mellinite, which explodes only on concussion.

Coal Field Found.

Prince Albert, Sask., Aug. 3.—The finding of coal in the Eagle Lake country has revived coal excitement here. Some years ago coal was discovered in Shellbrook and also in the Colleston districts. In Colleston loose coal can be shoveled up by the wagon load. No thorough effort has been made to exploit the field, but now that Eagle Lake coal district has been defined steps are being taken to explore Colleston.

Launch Goes Over Dam.

Ottumwa, Iowa, Aug. 3.—Five persons were drowned Thursday night by the capsizing of a launch in the Des Moines River.

The boat became unmanageable in the strong current, due to the high water, and finally the engine broke down altogether. The boat then drifted over the dam and crashed into the rocks below.

TALKS ALL-RED LINE

Lord Strathcona Reaches Montreal and Expresses Views.

Canadian High Commissioner Says the Supreme Importance of the Project Is a Cause of Necessary Delay—Britain Friendly to Canada—Favors Halifax as the Terminal on This Side.

Montreal, Aug. 3.—"Naturally I have to keep in daily touch with the Dominion, and I cannot see but what this present prosperity which we are now enjoying all over the country will continue for several years to come. This is, in fact, but a repetition of what took place in the United States after they had recovered from the effects of their civil war," said Lord Strathcona and Mount Royal, who reached the city yesterday morning, accompanied by his daughter, the Hon. Mrs. Howard.

Lord Strathcona compared the position of the Liberal party of England under William Ewart Gladstone, with its radically changed policy under Sir Henry Campbell-Bannerman, and stated that, although they had not advanced so far as to adopt the preference policy, they were distinctly friendly to the colonies, and especially to the Dominion of Canada.

This, he thought, was clearly manifest, when they readily adhered to the idea of meeting the representative men of the colonies every four years for the purpose of discussing questions of importance to both the Motherland and the colonies, and also when they consented to the principle of what has been named the "all-red line."

Speaking at length on this matter, Lord Strathcona declared that there was nothing to indicate any change of attitude on the part of the British Ministry since the day they gave their consent to this great project at the recent conference. The British Government, through the Colonial Secretary and other Ministers, accepted this project, which they no doubt realized would be of the greatest possible benefit to the Empire as a whole, and he believed that this adhesion would be carried into practical effect in due season.

He said, however, that the project was a very serious one, and one of supreme importance, consequently nothing could be done in haste and without a mature consideration of every phase of the question. While it was quite true that he had the greatest confidence in the project, it was a mistake to say that he had ever pronounced himself in favor of any particular British port. He, however, always favored Halifax as the Canadian terminal port, and when his lordship was asked if this remark meant all the year round his lordship replied, "Yes, all the year round," and then he went on to calculate the time that a fast railway train should take to make the run from Halifax to Montreal, and arrived at the conclusion that when the track and roadbeds of our railways are put in first-class condition, as they, of course, must be, to admit of such a service, the run will be easily made in from 15 to 16 hours.

"Yes," he added, "the trip across the Atlantic will be made in four days, and from Halifax to the commercial capital of the Dominion in two-thirds of another day, making the route pre-eminently the fastest from the old to the new world."

Outlook Unpromising.

London, Aug. 3—(C.A.P.)—The London Daily Mail says the outlook for the all-red route is unpromising. No definite decision has been reached, but The Mail alleges that all departmental investigations show that economical stability could not be ensured for the scheme. Members of Parliament therefore are beginning to doubt if the scheme can be carried out.

Diver Suffocates.

Windsor, Aug. 3.—Marshall Townsend, a diver, was suffocated by the parting of his air hose while in twenty feet of water near Algonac yesterday.

There was no warning of the accident, which was only discovered after Townsend had failed to respond to signals and had been hauled to the surface.

His features were horribly distorted, and showed that he must have suffered agonies before losing consciousness.

Worry and Suicides.

Woodstock, Aug. 3.—James Smith committed suicide on the farm of his brother William of Glandford Township, near Ratho, by hanging himself in the barn.

Despondency and worry over his physical condition is believed to be the cause. Smith came home from California a couple of years ago, and has since been in very poor health.

Ottawa, Aug. 3.—In the cadet series of competitions of the Canadian Military Rifle League, Dundas High School won first place, Guelph Cadet Battalion second, and Ottawa Public School third.

Toronto, Aug. 3.—Aubrey White, Deputy Minister of Mines, received word yesterday that Wm. H. The body will be sent home.

Cause of Unrest.

Chautauqua, N.Y., Aug. 3.—Bishop Henry C. Potter of the Protestant Episcopal Church of New York spoke on "The Church and Social Unrest" here yesterday.

The causes for the social unrest of the country, Bishop Potter said, are popular education, the industrial revolution and extravagance in expenditures.

He declared that there can be no more righteous arraignment of the church to-day than upon its indifference to the physical, mental and social needs of the working people.

The church should be related by profound sympathy to social problems, said Bishop Potter, and it is the duty of the church to create a more benign and fraternal atmosphere through the inspiration of individual members of a Christian ideal of sympathy, honor and social service.

Was Criminally Negligent.

New York, Aug. 3.—A coroner's jury yesterday charged President Ralph Peters and General Superintendent Jno. C. McCrea of the Long Island Railroad with being responsible, through criminal negligence, for the death of Dr. Edward J. Gallagher and Miss Helen Madigan, who were killed by a train at a crossing.

LONDON COLLAPSE.

Jury Finds It Due to Alterations Made in the Building.

London, Ont., Aug. 3.—That the said Wm. Thomas Tambling came to his death in the City of London in Brewster's store on the 16th day of July, 1907, by the east wall of what was known as the Crystal Hall building falling eastward on the said Brewster store, and destroying it, thus causing the death of said Wm. T. Tambling.

"And we further find from the evidence that the collapse of the said Crystal Hall building was caused by a portion of the middle wall of the ground floor of the said building giving way as a result of certain alterations that had recently been made in the said wall on the floor above."

The above was the verdict rendered by the jury enquiring into the cause of the recent disaster.

Wm. Murray, the architect who had charge of the changes, was recalled and gave evidence as to the strength and carrying power of the pillars which were placed in the building. Mr. Murray figured that it would have taken a weight of 300 tons to break down the columns. They were ten feet four inches long, five inches in diameter and of three quarter inch cast iron metal. They supported the double girders and were tied where they crossed.

FIERCE FIGHTING.

Japs and Koreans Lock in Deadly Conflict Near Seoul.

Seoul, Aug. 3.—Thursday a battalion of Korea soldiers, resenting disbandment, at a given signal attacked three mounted Japanese officers, who had arrived at Little West Gate Barracks to demand the surrender of their munitions.

Two of the Japanese officers escaped on horseback. The third one fell from his horse and escaped afoot when the firing began, and the Koreans sallied out of Little West Gate into the street, but were forced to retire under a Japanese fire from the tower gate.

Gen. Okaziki ordered out reinforcements, and the barracks and adjacent buildings were invested. There was continuous sniping and also fire from the Japanese machine guns.

The entrances to the Japanese section of the city have been under a heavy guard of gendarmes since midnight, and troops and machine guns are stationed in all the streets.

Gen. Okaziki believes that he has ample troops to control the situation. The other three Korean garrisons have not mutinied.

The invested quarter is adjacent to the consulate quarter, which is protected by a strong cordon of Japanese troops.

BREAK LOCAL OPTION.

Original Method Adopted by Hotel Man to Secure Many Votes.

Neepawa, Man., Aug. 3.—The little local option town of Neepawa is seething with excitement over an attempt at the revision of the voters' list to add 249 names to the list.

D. Hamilton, who has been proprietor of the hotel, presented the names stating that the hotel had been sold to a stock company of 249 persons resident in Winnipeg, who, he claimed, had purchased his hotel and block of land adjoining in shares of $100 each and were entitled to vote upon it. The names were entered, but the matter will be keenly contested before Judge Ryan on Monday.

As there are only 500 voters in Neepawa, the additional names could carry everything.

The temperance people claim that the names consist principally of hotelkeepers and bartenders of Winnipeg. Citizens claim that the temperance question is but a small matter in the issue, and that if these outsiders can vote they can rule the town from Winnipeg, defeat any bylaw, incur any expense, or elect any council or school board they desire.

Awning Saves Life.

Toronto, Aug. 3.—An awning at the Queen's Hotel saved the life of seven-year-old Roddie Buell, son of George M. Buell of Rochester, N.Y., a guest of the Queen's Hotel. The lad in playing at a three-storey window in some way overbalanced and fell out.

The awning, which shades a window on the ground floor broke the fall and the little fellow rolled off upon the soft sod of the hotel lawn unhurt.

Electrocuted.

New York, Aug. 3.—George Wessenet, employed by the New York & New Jersey Telephone Co., was instantly killed by electricity at Mineola. Wessenet held one end of a measuring tape, made of linen or cotton and coated with a sort of shellac, while his assistant climbed a pole with the other end. There was no metal on the tape. When the man aloft let go the tape it struck a high tension wire.

Housebreakers at Cornwall.

Cornwall, Aug. 3.—A daring case of housebreaking took place here yesterday afternoon, when the residence of Thomas McGill, manager of the McGill Chair Co., was entered during the absence of the family and servants, and considerable jewellery carried off.

The most important point in Fire Insurance is the selection of a Company which offers absolute security. DIRECTIONS FOR SENDING IN ALARMS

A Key for the Alarm Box will be found hanging in a small box, with glass front, adjoining the Alarm Box. Break the glass, remove the Key, and open the Box; pull the lever down, when the Alarm is at once transmitted to the Fire Hall, Pumping Station, and residences of the Firemen. Do not attempt to remove the Key from Box, as this can only be done by the use of a small Releiving Key.

HOW ALARMS ARE SOUNDED

The number of the Ward from which the Alarm is sent in is always sounded on the bell, which also constitutes the first number of the Box nearest to the fire, and when an Alarm is sounded, the Ward number is given first, then a pause, and then the remaining numbers of the Box.

John Harris Fell Broke Two Ribs

Man Who Had Lockjaw for Long Weeks Met With an Accident

The many friends of Mr. John Harris, who suffered for so long in Nicholls hospital, will regret to hear that he was the victim on Thursday, of an accident which will lay him up for some time. Mr. Harris was working at the shovel works when he fell against one of the iron trucks and broke two ribs. Dr. Young was called and had the injured man removed to his home, where the fracture was set. He is doing as well as possible and will be out in a short time.

BLUE BERRIES ARE PLENTIFUL

These are the days of huckleberries. To the uninitiated into the mysteries of the fruit world it may be said that huckleberries and blueberries are the same thing, or things. They are said to be very plentiful in the northern part of the county and they are ripening fast.

A party is being organized at Warsaw to go blueberrying next week. They expect to get a large amount of this delicious fruit.

Jolly Time Spent By the Painters

Mr. Fred Cook Entertained His Men to a Supper at Spence's Restaurant

A very pleasant evening was spent by Mr. Frederick Cook and his employees last night. Mr. Cook is a contracting painter and does a very large business, necessitating a big staff of men, and has always enjoyed a popular support from all of them. Last night he entertained the boys to a supper at Spence's restaurant—McCallum's old stand—when a jolly time was had, and everyone voted it a great success. There were sixteen sat down to the tables which were artistically spread and decorated. Mine Host Spence provided an excellent bill of fare, which included all the seasonable and toothsome delicacies, while the service was all that could be desired. This was the first supper Mr. Spence had catered for in Peterborough and he made such a favorable impression that there is no doubt of him receiving many orders.

An hour was spent at the festive board and then Mr. Cook and his guests indulged in songs, etc. for some time, making a thoroughly enjoyable evening. Before adjourning, Mr Cook and Mr. Spence were tendered hearty votes of thanks.

Justice Clements at Vancouver dismissed the libel suit of Hon. R. F. Green against the World newspaper.

Peterborough Industrial Show Will Beat All Previous Records

Over 1000 Members Have Paid Up—Great Assistance From City, County and Government—Big and Valuable Prize List—Great Attractions.

The Peterborough Industrial Exhibition in 1907 will surpass anything in the history of the association and be without doubt the greatest exhibition held between Toronto and Ottawa. The management and directors are all enthusiastic over the big three days show because they have received such encouragement from the farmers and breeders of live stock and poultry in the surrounding country that they cannot help but believe that the entry list will be a record breaker.

Not only is the number of exhibits going to be greatly increased, but the quality of the produce will be better; the horses, cattle, sheep, swine and poultry have all improved; there will be a greater display of ladies work; the special attractions will be the best procurable, and the races will be fast. The society has put the show on a business basis and everything is being carried out along those lines. The prize lists were issued early and they are now in the hands of exhibitors who are figuring out their entry lists. The total amount of money offered will exceed $3,500.

On the second and third days of the fair a programme of horse races will be run off, for which purses amounting to $500 is being offered. Several hundred dollars are being paid for special attractions to be given in front of the grand stand. These will consist of three features and they will surpass anything seen here before and will be clean morally, and fit for the most modest to watch and enjoy.

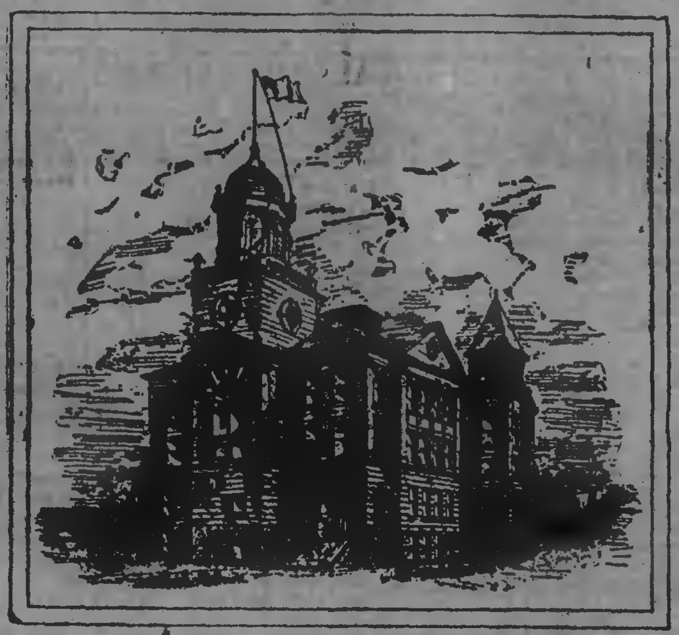
The financial end is always the ticklish point, but this year there is the very brightest prospects. The directors started out the first of the year to get new members and to-day the president reports 1000 paid up members which is an immense increase over any former year. The City Council has granted $400 again and the County Council $100. That gives the society $1,500 before one entrance fee is paid or before anyone has passed in the gate. To this must also be added the Government grant which is not yet made known, but should be several hundred dollars, bringing the total up to nearly $2000. That practically assures the public that the prize money and expenses of the show will be paid in full.

Another strong feature this year which will have a great effect on the attendance is that the citizens have taken a greater interest than ever in the show. The merchants are offering many special prizes and in addition to the society's prizes and attractions there will be several other features worth seeing, including Mr. Wm. Yelland's dog race. The band of the 57th regiment will be present on Friday and Saturday, the second and third days of the fair and will no doubt atract a good crowd itself.

Rapid Progress Being Made on Peterborough's Normal School

Will be a Very Handsome Building—Best Pressed Brick Being Used—Architect's Report to the Department of Public Works.

Rapid progress is being made on the construction of the new Normal School being erected by the Ontario Government in Dixon Park. Contractor Whitham knows his business and is making an excellent job of the building. Mr. Wm. Whitham, a nephew of the contractor, is superintending the work here, and, although he was some time late in getting started, he will have the job completed as soon as the others.



NEW NORMAL SCHOOL

A large staff of masons, carpenters and laborers are employed. The foundation has been finished for some time, and great progress has been made with the brick walls. For the outside wall a splendid pressed brick, the best that can be had, is being used, and when the work is all done the new school will present a very attractive appearance. It will be a credit to the city, and too much praise cannot be given Mr. T. E. Bradburn, M.P.P., who did so much in inducing the Government to select Peterborough.

The official report on the four new Normal schools, as presented to the Minister of Public Works for Ontario, is as follows:—

"Plans and specifications have been prepared by the Department for four Normal Schools to be erected in Hamilton, Stratford, Peterborough and North Bay respectively, as shown by the accompanying illustrations. The buildings will be four stories in height, including the basement. The design is in the style of Italian Renaissance, with a central tower in the front facade, surmounted by a dome, the main entrance being at the side of the toewr, with an imposing portico of stone. The building from top of stone to the main cornice will be in brickwork, with stone string courses, capitals, columns, etc., with sufficient enrichments to give relief to the architectural lines, and when completed the composition will give an ornate and substantial appearance. The outside dimensions on the ground line are 78 feet frontage by 108 feet in depth. In the basement are located the heating and ventilating apparatus, three rooms for manual training, a gymnasium, janitor's room and men's toilet room. The ground floor is approached by the main entrance in front for the public and teachers, and an entrance at each side for the students, leading to a wide hall, extending through the length of the building, with two spacious staircases leading to the upper floors. There will be upon this floor three class rooms, a library and a reading room, a room for the principal, an office for the secretary and two cloak rooms. On the first floor are located two class rooms, a lecture room, chemical laboratory, apparatus room, teachers' rooms, and two cloak rooms. The third floor consists of an assembly hall with a seating capacity of five hundred persons, with ample exits at each end, an art room, and two rooms for the instruction of domestic science."

All of which is respectfully submitted.

I have the honor to be, sir,
Your obedient servant,
F. R. HEAKES,
Architect.

Thomas G Applegath, of Hamilton grandfather of Jesse Applegath, of Toronto, is dead.

EXCITING TIME AT PORT HOPE

Truck Load of Trunks Fell on Track and Train Struck Them

The Port Hope Guide says;

There was quite an exciting time at the Grand Trunk yesterday and one which placed several persons in a perilous position for some time. One of the employees of Mr. James Haw was bringing a truck down the platform when he lost control of it and it went out on the track. The 4.20 train pulled in before the truck could be removed and hurled it across the platform. It struck another truck which was loaded with trunks, etc., near the men's waiting room, and the contents were scattered in all directions.

Mr W. S. Bletcher was at the door and was struck by a flying trunk, and knocked on the waiting room floor. Another gentleman, who was waiting for the train was pinned to the wall by a trunk and rendered unconscious for some time.

Those who witnessed the mix-up are confident that the engineer saw the truck and could have easily brought his train to a standstill, and thus avoided an accident which might have proved very serious.

James King, a pioneer of East Zorra, is dead, aged 86.

Passengers Fed At the Station

C.P.R. Train Was Several Hours Late and Spence's Restaurant Had a Rush

The C.P.R. regular from Montreal due here at 5.10 a.m. did not arrive this morning until eight o'clock. The delay was caused by connections at Montreal. A large number of immigrants arrived yesterday and arrangements for their transportation took up the time. Besides the regular, two special trains of immigrants have gone through since. The passengers on the regular train were fed at the station here by Mr. McKwen Spence, the proprietor of Spence's restaurant. Although he only received one hour's notice he had over 600 sandwiches and coffee at the station when the train arrived.

Patented Electric Iron Made in Peterborough is the Best

Surpasses Any Other Make on the Market—Invented by Messrs. Collier and Cunningham and Has Given Great Satisfaction in City Homes.—Is a Money Saver.

A boon to housewives is the only way to describe the new electric iron which has been patented and is now being manufactured by the Collier-Cunningham Co. The members of the firm are W. H. Collier, B.A., M.E.E., manager of the Pre-Payment Meter Co., and A. B. Cunningham, mechanical superintendent of the Pre-Payment Co. These two gentlemen are the inventors and they have made arrangements with the Pre-Payment Meter Co. to have the irons manufactured in their factory.

The Collier-Cunningham iron is the first and only successful electric iron manufactured in Canada, all the others being of American make. But this one although later in getting on the market, has every other make discounted. There are several features about it which will make it extremely popular and will assure the company of a very large sale. It is a six pound iron with a shape that makes work easy and it is so perfectly constructed that it will never burn out. In passing it might be mentioned that the company is putting one of the irons to an unusually severe test. For the past twelve days it has been connected with the electric current for 24 hours a day, and it has not yet burned out, and the company does not expect that it will for two months or more.

The great feature about the iron is the patent cut off switch which regulates the heat and never allows the iron to get too hot for the finest work. This switch is situated at the back end of the iron and when a women stops ironing and turns it on its end the switch is pressed in and the current cut off and it stays off until the iron is turned down again. This saves running to the switch on the electric light every minute or two. There is no trouble whatever as the user does nothing whatever but turn the iron up, which the great majority do anyway. It also saves electric current all the time it is not in use.

Between the iron proper and the aluminum or nickle plated cap there is placed a pad of asbestos which prevents any heat coming up and keeps it all in the iron.

The valuable feature of the iron is the heating apparatus which is placed inside the iron within an eight of an inch from the bottom. It is a patent lava tube, rivalling diamonds for hardness, around which is cut a thread. This is wound with a special wire, fitting into the thread and the whole is covered with an insulating compound and wrapped in mica, this is placed in groove in the bottom of the iron and the wires attached. Then a metal covering is placed over it with an asbestos pad on top. Then the aluminum or nickle plated cover and the handle completes this household article. The construction of the iron is perfect and has already made many warm friends in the city.

One month ago Messrs. Collier and Cunningham placed six irons in the homes of leading citizens to try. They were left for a week and then loaned to six other persons. Between 30 and 40 women have tried them on all kinds of work, including table cloths and sheets and fancy shirt waists, and the result in every instant has been the most satisfactory, and many orders have been placed with the firm. Then many merchants in town have ordered the iron on sight knowing that it cannot help but prove satisfactory, and become a great seller. The greatest encouragement has been received on every side and the firm will have to enlarge its plant to begin to fill the orders. The iron will sell at $5 for the plain style, and $6 for the nickle plated.

Are Asking More For Their Eggs

Holders Wanted 20c per Dozen To-day—Green Apples are on Deck

Today's market was a little better than usual, the number of buyers and sellers being larger than last week. There were few changes in prices although some lines had a tendency to go up, while others were easier.

Holders were asking 20 cents per dozen for eggs, but couldn't secure this figure. Eighteen and nineteen cents per dozen was the best that could be had, and there was quite a large turnover at these figures. Butter was fairly plentiful and was in good demand at 24c. and 25 cents per pound.

New potatoes were plentiful, and changed hands at 35 cents per peck. They were in active demand, and those who had them jingled the silver in their pockets as a result of their remunerative sales. Other vegetables sold at the usual prices.

Green apples were on hand for the first time this season, but they were pretty green looking, and did not sell very readily. They were offered at 10 cents per gallon.

SNIFF NOSE BETTER NOW

Smiff, who is everlastingly getting into trouble, has a big bunch of trout on just now. He was admiring some flowers that a lady had drawn his attention to, and to be polite and gallant, and assume a proper enthusiasm for floriculture, he planted his nose in a cup shaped flower without noticing that a busy little bumble bee was already there ahead of him. Smiff's nose, through a profound study after midnight, is a peony even in its normal condition. At present it is a sight beyond description. —Bobcaygeon Independent.

Decrease of 7,000,000 Pounds Of Fish Since Catch of 1890

May Prohibit Export of Canadian Fish to the United States—Valuable Papers Read at Annual Meeting of American Fisheries Society

An organization of considerable importance to one of the principal industries, both here and in the United States, is the American Fisheries Society, which held its 36th annual meeting at Erie, Pa., July 23, 24 and 25. This society is composed chiefly of the expert fish culturists and scientific men, engaged in the study of all subjects pertaining to fish life and the improvement of the fisheries.

The bulk of the papers read were of a scientific and technical nature and would not be of interest to the general public, but many advances were reported among which were improvement in the propagation of bass and a new hatching jar by one of the members.

Canadians may not be aware of the immense amount of work, now being done, not only by the federal government at Washington, but also by many individual states, in the direction of fish hatcheries. Pennsylvania alone last year deposited some 600,000,000 of fry, and commissioner expects next year to reach the billion mark.

ONTARIO'S FISHERIES.

The blue books of the Province of Ontario show that last year the total amount of fry placed in Ontario waters from the Dominion hatcheries amounted to only 90,673,000, so that Canada is obviously not doing her fair share of the work.

Under the existing regulations and the practical methods by which the fishing industry is being carried on, the large planting of fry by American fish hatcheries is only serving to extend the evil day, when the fisheries will be hardly worth the net-fishermen's attention.

The only paper read of a character not technical was that by A. Kelly Evans, a Canadian member of the society, and secretary-treasurer of the Ontario Fish and Game Protective Association, who chose as his subject the international problem of the proper regulation of the fisheries of the great lakes and some methods by which fish and game protective associations might assist the fish culturist. He was listened to with marked attention by the delegates.

He quoted from the blue book of the Province of Ontario, which shows that the value of the total catch of fish in Ontario, has only decreased since 1890, $275,000, approximately.

FEWER FISH CAUGHT.

He pointed out that while even a casual glance will show this, it requires a careful examination of old blue books and the summation of the totals of each kind of fish caught in 1906 to find that there is an alarming decrease in fish caught since 1890 of approximately 7,000,000 lbs. This paradoxical result is explained by the fish having largely increased in value since 1890. Had the fisheries been maintained, as they could have been, by proper regulations, up to the standard of '90, the demand for Canadian fish is so great that this added 7,000,000 would not have reduced the present prices, and taking a fair average it means that Ontario has received during the last year at least $500,000 less than had it kept the fisheries constant. Taking money at 5 per cent. this means that the capital asset in fisheries has decreased in the neighborhood of $10,000,000 since 1890.

He also quoted sworn testimony taken before Canadian royal commissions and proved the enormous quantities of fish in the great lakes some years ago, and explained that the reasons why the recommendations of these royal commissions had not been acted upon by either federal or provincial governments was the malign influence of local politics and the votes of the net-fishermen in conjunction with the total want of interest taken in this matter by the Canadian public generally.

He took up the practical condition of things at present—each state bordering on the great lakes, making its own regulations governing the fisheries, while the Canadian authorities made different ones still, the result being the steady and alarming depletion which the United States hatcheries, alone were attempting to check.

The State of Minnesota and one other state had already passed legislation giving up their powers over the fisheries to the federal government and he was glad to see that this movement of centralizing the authority and thereby making uniform regulations possible, was now being considered by the other states interested. He pointed out the fact that while the Canadian regulations prevented fish, under a certain size, being taken, Mr. Tinsley's report of 1906, page 9, states: "We have the most convincing proof of American control, when we revert to the well-known fact that at least three fourths of the fish caught in the great lakes by the licensed fishermen of the province, reach the United States direct from the net, thus evading with impunity espionage or protection from provincial officials," and he asserted, and was not afterwards contradicted, that undoubtedly immense quantities of Ontario's fish found markets in the States, which were illegally exported.

MAY PROHIBIT EXPORT.

He referred also to the fact that many complaints had been received from Canadian dealers and the public, unable to obtain Canadian caught fish in their own markets, and he asserted that it could not be expected that this condition of affairs would last forever, and it was quite possible that within a few years a law would be passed by the Canadian authorities prohibiting the export of food fish. As this would be a serious matter to the American consuming public, he appealed to the members to pass the resolution, which he had introduced and which had been recommended by the committee on resolutions, in which he proposed that the society should use all its influence in the direction of calling an informal conference or convention of representatives from each of the sovereign states bordering on the great lakes, representatives from the Province of Ontario and the Dominion Government, as well as representatives from the federal authorities at Washington with a view to drawing up uniform regulations as to the size limit of fish, nets, seasons, etc., and thus preventing the menaced destruction of an important food for the masses of the people.

The resolution was carried unanimously and the details of the work left in the hands of the executive committee.

Do Peterborough People Appreciate City's Beauty?

A Visitor Here Comments upon the Beauty of Nicholls Oval—People Should Stroll Around More.

"The people of Peterborough do not appreciate the beauty and the charming location of Nicholls Oval, remarked a visitor from the Western States, to a Review representative yesterday. "I was up there the other evening," he continued," and was surprised to see so few people there. The spot is one of the prettiest I have seen in many years, and the air there is something that the toiler in the city does not know the value of. There is a difference even between the ozone at the Oval and that one inhales down in the town. Often when it was warm and dusty in the city a cool breeze sweeps across the Oval and makes the temperature ideal."

The remarks of the visitor seem to be in keeping with those heard frequently from those who have visited this city to the effect that the people of Peterborough do not appreciate the many beautiful spots in the city and vicinity.

It is true that it is a safe bet that many people residing in the southern end of the city have not been at the southern end for months. And the above is equally true of the north end as regards visiting in the south. Citizens should stroll around more and see what is going on. The city is constantly changing, steadily improving and those who are interested in the welfare of the city should move around and see what is being done. It will be an incentive to them to get out and assist in beautifying the city.

With the people of a town or city it is often a case of "far fields are green." They do not appreciate what they have at home.

Rice Lake Resorts Popular Many Excursions Go There

Steamer Otonabee Has Done a Big Business This Season—Many Visitors to the Lake—Campers Along the River Bank—Good Fishing Everywhere.

Probably no other year has the traffic on the lower waters, that is on the Otonabee River and Rice Lake been as great as this season, and the popularity of this trip is rapidly growing. This year Rice Lake resorts have been a greater attraction than ever before. It is the opinion of some people that in the course of a few years it will outclass Stony Lake. This statement is substantiated by the fact that even this season there have been more excursions down the river than up the lakes and while all the local steamers report business exceptionally good it has been said that the upper lake steamers have not had such a busy season as in previous years. The majority of the excursion committees took Idyl Wyld for their picnic grounds and up-to-date forty four excursions have been run to the resort. The people are just beginning to appreciate the beauties of the Otonabee River and Rice Lake. The scenery along the banks of the river is exceedingly pretty and a sail down it to the lake affords one a great deal of pleasure and especially so to a lover of the beauties of nature.

Rice Lake, also with its islands, although not so numerous as at Stony Lake, is attractive. It is a broad stretch of water and the cool, refreshing breezes from it invigorates one and seems to fill one with new life. Fishing in that district has never been better and it is probably due in part, to this fact, that the resorts have become so popular. The river abounds with bass and lunge, and there has hardly been an angler who tried his luck with the rod and line that has returned empty-handed.

The Americans come to Canada more for the fishing than anything else and this year a large number are registered at the Rice Lake resorts. A great many tents have been pitched along the banks of the Otonabee this year, and a large number of citizens spend July and August under canvas on some one of the pretty spots along the river, where they are away from the heat and busy life of the city. Every evening a large crowd are seen wending their way to the Otonabee boat-house, where they get a canoe and spend the evening on the river. The attractions of the lower waters are numerous and the people are beginning to realise them.

The better accommodation, both in the boat service and at Idyl Wyld has taken a great many down the river. The new steamer Otonabee has carried a large number of excursions and the regular trips are also being largely patronized. On an average two hundred people have been on board the Otonabee on every excursion and on some of the regular trips.

Idyl Wyld is a very pretty and attractive spot. The hotel is now filled with guests and the accommodation, although not so good at the first of the season, is now excellent. The other resorts, Jubilee and Gore's Landing, are also filled with guests and everyone is catching their share of fish. It is the intention of the proprietors of Idyl Wyld to enlarge the hotel and by next season even better accommodation will be afforded the tourists who come to this resort. It is certain that Rice Lake is becoming very popular and is presenting a livelier appearance.

HEADLESS BODY FOUND.

Ghastly End of Unknown Young Man Being Investigated.

Sault Ste. Marie, Aug. 2.—The body of an unknown man was found in the bush, 20 miles north of Blind River on the Tote road, near Eddy's lumber camp.

Every indication points to foul play, as the head was missing, and it is said the pockets of the clothes worn by the man were turned inside out.

The head was later discovered buried near by, but owing to the fact that the body had lain in the bush for considerable time identification is rendered impossible. The hands are also missing, and have not been found.

The body was found by a lumberman while passing through the bush.

The coroner and Provincial Constable Graham of Blind River, acting under instructions from Crown Attorney McFadden, have gone to make a thorough investigation.

The body was that of a young man of small size, wearing a dark suit and tan shoes.

Mrs. W. Shewfelt, a young married woman of Blind River, was assaulted in her home there by an unknown man in the absence of her husband. Wednesday night. The man broke into the house, and intimidated the woman by firing a revolver, the bullet from which entered the pillow of the bed. Her husband is foreman in a camp at Blind River.

MAD WOMAN FIRES BARN.

Set Flames Also to the House and Welland Farmer Suffers Loss.

Welland, Aug. 2.—Andrew Hoover, whose farm adjoins the Town of Welland, has suffered the loss of his large barn and the season's hay crop, amounting to about fifty tons.

It is thought that the fire was started by his daughter Margaret, a woman of 34 years, who is demented. The men were all in the fields at the time, about 3.30 in the afternoon, and by the time they reached the barn it was impossible to save anything. The contents included a quantity of grain and a bull and all were lost.

While the fire was in progress Miss Hoover attempted also to set fire to the house. The demented woman was placed in custody and will probably be removed to an asylum next week.

Korean Troops Disbanded.

Seoul, Korea, Aug. 2.—At 10 o'clock Wednesday night Japanese troops surrounded the Korean barracks, after an imperial proclamation had been issued disbanding the Korean army, composed of 7,000 men. Several hundred Koreans gathered at the great bell during a thunderstorm and were dispersed by a company of Japanese soldiers. The outlets from the Korean army barracks are guarded by machine guns. Two thousand of the Seoul garrison were disarmed and disbanded yesterday.

The proclamation disbanding the troops say that the disbanded soldiers will be granted one year's pay. The Emperor's bodyguard will not be disbanded.

Passengers Were Robbed.

Brockville, Aug. 2.—Two members of the crew of the steamer Rapids King were arrested and remanded here yesterday morning on charges of stealing grips from Mrs. Hastie and Miss Griffith, Toronto, from the steamer Prescott.

Dies In Swimming Pool.

Philadelphia, Aug. 2.—Edmund R. Watson, president of the Northern National Bank, and treasurer of the Henry Hess Brewing Co., of this city, was found dead in the swimming pool of the Columbia Club yesterday.

Drowns in Cistern.

London, Ont., Aug. 2.—Miss Campbell, a young woman residing on the Durham road, about eight miles from here, fell into a cistern Wednesday night and was drowned.

Judge's Pocket Picked.

Ottawa, Aug. 2.—Judge Finehout of St. Paul, Minn., who was here visiting relatives, was relieved of a pocketbook containing $40 Wednesday night.

M. Rostand Ill.

Paris, Aug. 2.—M. Edmund Rostand, the famous dramatist and author of "Cyrano de Bergerac," is reported seriously ill.

Boiler Wrecks Trains.

Memphis, Tenn., Aug. 1.—A despatch from Milan, Tenn., says: Four persons were killed outright, another was fatally injured, and ten others seriously hurt, when the boiler of an engine attached to a fast Illinois Central fruit train exploded, wrecking the train, as well as another freight train on an adjacent siding.

Fair Peach Crop Is Now Reported

St. Catharines Fruit Growers Say Fruit Will be Excellent

In contradiction to the statement sent out from St. Catharines by City Clerk Fay, the Standard of that city, published yesterday, the following interviews with prominent fruit growers:—

Mr. W. H. Bunting was first interviewed. He stated he had not seen the despatch, but upon learning the contents of it said he had no doubt Mr. Fay had been misquoted. He could not believe that so many trees had been ruined, as he himself had not lost one per cent. of his fruit trees. As to the fruit, he explained that the peach crop will be much lighter, this year, but the quality of the fruit will be excellent.

"It is hard on the growers to have such reports scattered over the country," said Mr. Bunting, "as consumers are led to believe there is no fruit to be obtained at any reasonable price and therefore do not look for it and accordingly the sale is greatly hampered."

Mr. Bunting further stated that some trees had died; some die every year, but the percentage is nothing like the 66 per cent. claimed in the despatch.

The crops as has been realized from early spring, are all light with the exception of grapes which are very plentiful and all that need be feared for them is that they will not properly ripen.

"Two-thirds of the trees that were standing years ago are dead." he said, "but not many died this year. I, myself did not lose a dozen trees, and the other growers who efficiently used the proper spraying mixtures had no losses either. Those statements are not correct as applied to the conditions of affairs today ——"

Just then Mr. Thompson was called away for a few minutes, but upon returning dictated the following statement of the true conditions of the local fruit prospects.—

"Not ten per cent. of the trees were killed by the winter and the effects of the scale. A few year-old and two-year old trees on low ground died, and some of the older trees are going out through lack of cultivation and spraying. The bulk of the trees which did die were in orchards which had either not been sprayed at all or had been poorly sprayed by unskilled help and also by application of poorly prepared lime and sulphur and other ineffective remedies. As a result on those trees, few scales had been killed and by the end of the season the increase had been so great that the trees had been practically killed."

"On the other hand I can point to scores of orchards, properly sprayed with properly prepared material, where no trees are dead, and all are in the best condition. The loss of the trees is not great, as it is a well-known fact that a certain percentage of peach trees go out every year, the life of an orchard being only from ten to twenty years."

"These growers who are following spraying intelligently, are very optimistic as to the fruit situation, feeling that the grower who sprays and cares for his trees will be able to keep his orchard in the best of condition and at the same time owing to the carelessness growing out of the business, prices will be better in the future."

"I may add that one reason for the very light crop is due to the light frosts in the early spring, followed by the prolonged cool weather. Owing to this fact a large percentage of fruit properly set was caused to drop from the trees. The season of course, is later but the warm weather is bringing grapes and tomatoes along very rapidly and with an open fall it is expected all will properly ripen."

CANADA'S INDUSTRIALS

More of Them Should be Listed for Convenience of Investors.

(Montreal Herald.)

Complaint has been made that few of the Canadian industrial or manufacturing stocks are listed on the market. In the United States many of the best enterprises offer a freer opportunity for investors. Naturally the banks profit by the Canadian system, for they get cheap money and loan it to the manufacturing concerns at a large profit.

Many people who could get 7 per cent. for their money in such substantial stocks as Slater preferred or Dunlop preferred, now carry money in the banks and only get 3 per cent. for it

Canadian industrials have reached the point where they offer the safest and most lucrative investment.

Most Fascinating Story in History of the British Turf

The Sad Career of the Marquis of Hastings—Born an Heir to Millions and Died Discredited and Disgraced.

There is no more fascinating story in the history of the British turf than that of Henry Weysford Plantagenet, fourth and late Marquess of Hastings, the richly dowered young nobleman who for a few mad years dazzled the world by his prodigality and made it gasp by his recklessness, only to perish in early manhood, ruined, discredited, disgraced—a story the very pity and tragedy of which invest it with a strange allurement, and which serves as an enduring warning against the glamor and danger of gambling on the turf.

Seldom has a man entered the world under such conditions of splendor and promise as this heir to great wealth and high rank, who was cradled in July, 1842; but he was born with a fatal taint in his blood, which was destined to be his undoing. His mother was one of the most notorious gamblers in Europe—a woman who spent her days and nights at Continental gaming tables staking her gold with the fierce zest of the confirmed gambler. "The Jolly Fast Marchioness" was the name by which she was known from one end of Europe to the other; and no one could accuse her of not having well earned her title. His father, the Marquess, on the other hand, had an absorbing passion for hunting, and was never happy unless he was following the hounds.

Before the embryo peer had learned to toddle his father died; and when he was nine years old the death of his elder brother made the boy a marquess and the owner of vast estates, which yielded a regal revenue. Here then, thus early in life we have all the elements of a potential tragedy—a youth of weak character, with the gambling taint in his blood, in the uncontrolled possession of an income large enough to indulge any vicious propensity.

HORSE COST SEVENTY THOUSAND

As an undergraduate at Oxford he began his swift and brief career of dissipation, squandering his money right and left in the company of the loosest and fastest of his fellows, and the prey of a gang of unprincipled adventurers. It was at this time, while still in his teens, that the young marquess made his first turf venture in the purchase of Kangaroo for which he paid the unprecedented sum of $70,000 to Mr. Henry Padwick. Kangaroo was a fraud, not worth his keep, and after a most disappointing career, eventually ended his days between the shafts of a London hansom.

One would have thought that this first unlucky experience would have been a lesson and a warning to His Lordship, but it seems, curiously enough, only to have whetted his appetite for the turf; for a little later we find him owner of no fewer than 60 race horses in training under John Daly, and finally launched as a patron of the turf. Many of his horses were of excellent quality, too—for there were few better judges of horseflesh than the marquess, and for a time it seemed as if he were destined to make a big fortune as a racing man.

In the Earl he had a perfect treasure, for he simply romped away with the Grand Prix de Paris, and ought easily to have won the Derby and St. Leger if proper care had been taken of him, while in three years—1864, 1866 and 1867—the marquess won over $365,000 in stakes. He was equally fortunate for a time in backing other men's horses, for Lecturer's win the Cesarewitch put $37,051 in his pocket. It is little wonder that in these early days he was in the habit of boasting that he could "make a certain $150,000 a year out of betting." And so he might have done if he had kept his head.

Probably his early successes turned his brain — never at any time strong, for he seems literally to have courted disaster by wild and reckless plunging. One reads remarkable accounts of the marquess sweeping on to the race course in a gorgeous carriage drawn by four or six horses, to be immediately surrounded by a clamorous crowd of bookmakers, whose wagers he snapped up as fast as they could shout them regardless of their amount.

"They're laying odds on yours, my lord,' one bookmaker exclaims.

"What odds?" blandly replies the owner.

"Well, my lord, I'll take you 6 monkeys to 4!"

"Put it down," is the brief response.

"And me 300 to 200!" "And me!" "And me!" clamor a swarm of pencillers who come clustering up.

"Done with you, and you, and you" —the bets are booked as freely as proffered.

"And now, my lord, if you've a mind for a bit more, I'll take you 3,500 to 2,000.

"And so you shall," is the gay answer, as the backer expands under the cheery influence of the biggest bet of the day. Then with their 'tis to 40s and 7 ponies to 4, the smaller fry are duly enregistered, and the marquess drives off, his escort gathers round him, and away they dash

Such is a contemporary description of a typical scene on the race course, with this prodigal young peer as its central figure; and similar scenes were enacted at almost every great race in England for the four or five years of his meteoric career. Can one wonder that no purse however, deep, could long stand against such reckless wagering, or that the fatal day of reckoning could not long be delayed

But the real cause of "Harry Hastings'" undoing was a woman—Lady Florence Cecelia Paget, daughter of the second Marquess of Anglesey. Lady Florence, as some of our readers will recall, was one of the loveliest women of her time, 'an epitome of female charms." Many a wooer sought her hand; but her smiles were reserved for but two of them all—the young Marquess of Hastings and Mr. Henry Chaplin, then (and we may say even now) one of the handsomest men in England.

The story of her beauty and her frailty is still well remembered—how she became affianced to Mr. Chaplin, and then, by a dramatic act of fickleness, cruelly abandoned him in favor of her titled lover. One day, in Mr Chaplin's company, she drove up to Swan & Edgar's and entered the shop, leaving her fiancee in the carriage to await her return. But he waited in vain, for the fickle woman slipped through the shop, out by a back entrance, entered a cab in which Lord Hastings was awaiting her coming and was driven rapidly away while the man to whom she had pledged her troth was patiently expecting her return at the opposite side of the building.

For this act of treachery a terrible penalty was exacted a few months later. Between the two men—the betrayed and the betrayed—a fierce, relentless feud was waged from that fatal day. Mr. Chaplin scored the first point in the duel when Hermit was put up to auction; Lord Hastings forced the bidding up to $5,000, which was considered a ridiculously high price for such a poor animal; but a further bid of $250 secured the animal for his rival, and with it, though he little suspected it at the time, the means of a well planned revenge.

Hermit was entered for the 1867 Derby, but so poor were his chances considered that odds of 66 to 1 were freely laid against him. The marquess laid persistently and heavily against his rival's horse until he stood to lose over $500,000; never, we may be sure, dreaming for a moment that Hermit could by any possibility win. The memory of that sensational and tragic race is almost as fresh now as on the day when it was run. The snow was falling in a blinding shower as the horses struggled gamely over the heavy course; to the amazement of every onlooker Hermit was seen gradually to force his way to the front, and amid a scene of unprecedented excitement he passed the post a winner

Heavy as was the blow, the marquess took it with a smile, although in order to pay his losses he had to part with his magnificent estate of Loudoun, in Scotland, valued at $1,500,000. And when he drove off the course in a barouche and four, with some of his boon companions, to dine at Richmond, he was to all appearance the gayest of them all.

But he was a crushed and broken man. He never recovered from the blow which Fate dealt him that day, and but a few hours before his death he said to a friend, with a pathetic mingling of pluck and pride, "Hermit fairly broke my heart. But I didn't show it, did I?"

But Nemesis was still on the track of Harry Hastings, relentless in pursuit; and the next and last blow fell in the autumn of this black year. His lordship had entered his two-year-old filly, Lady Elizabeth, for the Middle Park Plate, at the Newmarket Second October meeting, and confidently looked to her to recoup his losses. To his consternation, however, she utterly failed to come up to his expectations, and finished, instead of first, a bad fifth.

For a moment he turned pale and reeled under the cruel stroke. Alarmed by his look of anguish and despair, Marie Marchioness of Ailesbury, one of the best-hearted of women, by whose carriage he was standing, sought to distract him by thrusting her betting book into his hand. Professing to be much concerned at her own losses, she asked him, in an agitated voice, "Tell me how I stand." In a moment the marquess was himself; and, glancing over the book, handed it back to her, with the words, as calm and unconcerned as if he himself had no interest in the race, "You have lost £23."

That it is said was the only occasion on which his lordship showed the slightest emotion, however great his losses. But human nature, however controlled, has its limits of endurance and the marquess realised that he had thrown his dice for the last time—and had lost. He was a hopelessly ruined man; and, what was far worse, more galling to his proud nature—he was disgraced, for he was utterly unable to pay his creditors. His ancestral estates and his money, accumulated during his long minority, had all gone; and though he sold his horses and hounds, and pawned his furniture and jewellery—all he had in the world—he still remained $200,000 in debt to the king.

Nor was this all; for grave doubt was cast on his honor; his most cherished possession, by the inexplicable running of Lady Elizabeth, and by his scratching of The Earl on the evening before the race, who was considered a certain winner of the Derby of 1868. These questionable proceedings raised a storm of abuse and suspicion over the head of the fallen idol.

The career which had opened with such a blaze of promise was now nearing its close under clouds and tempests. Shattered in health and fortune and broken in spirit, the young man escaped from England for a few months to seek health and peace in Norway. But the quest was in vain the fiat had gone forth that his day of conquest and defeat alike was over, and he returned to England a dying man.

Only once more was his familiar figure seen on any racecourse, and that was at the Newmarket First October meeting of 1868, nearly a year after he had received his last staggering blow Pallid, emaciated, a pitiful wreck of his former strength, he sat cushioned and rug-covered in a basket-carriage, an object of pity to all beholders, while he watched his beautiful mare Athena win a race, and staggering from his carriage he patted her graceful neck as she was led away to the weighing room.

Even at this eleventh hour he could not bankrupt as he was, refrain from wagering a modest "pony," and he smiled a wan, pathetic smile when the bookmaker brutally said, "Now, mind, I'm to be paid this." And that was the last the world saw of the once gay, debonair, reckless plunger who had flamed so brilliantly across the sky, a short-lived, dazzling meteor of the turf.

It was his intention to spend the winter abroad, in the hope that the flicker of life that was left in him might be fanned into flame under the blue skies and mild air of Egypt; but he did not live to make the journey. On the 10th of November he breathed his last having crowded into 26 years an experience of the vicissitudes of fortune such as few men have known in three times his brief span and leaving behind him the memory of a wasted life, relieved—and let us pay this tribute to him—by a courage, which, under other conditions, might have made his name honored and revered.

Peterborough and Young Torontos

Monday's lacrosse match between the Peterborough's and Young Toronto's is the centre of interest among the sporting element of the city. Can the locals win out is the question being asked on all sides and there are many who think that they can and have backed up their opinion with the toadskins. At anyrate it will be the best game of the season as the team that loses will be out of the running for the district championship. The locals will have the strongest lineup of the season and are determined to win and everybody here hopes they will. The atendance promises to be exceedingly large and incidentally it might be remarked a lacrosse team is not run on air.

Fred Waghorne will referee and that is an assurance that the game will be clean. If the locals stay on the field they can win the game and every man on the team should see that he stays off the fence. To stay on the field is one of the accomplishments of the finished lacrosse player.

It's up to the Peterborough team to wipe away that defeat sustained at Rosedale. Be there to see them do it.

Fast Game for This Afternoon

This only sporting event in Peterborough today, is the baseball game at Riverside Park this afternoon, between the Strathconas and Lilies. This will be an interesting contest and those who attend are promised a good exhibition of ball. This is the first of a series of three games to be played for the senior championship of the city between these two teams. Both aggregations are composed of a bunch of good players and the rivalry between the two is very keen.

The boys are under an expense in playing the game at Riverside Park and the people are asked to give them their support by turning out to the game.

It is expected that Mr. W. Wareham will umpire the game but if he does not, Mr. Fred Whitcroft will handle the indicator.

BASEBALL

OFF FOR COBOURG.

The Peterborough Baseball Team left this morning at 8.30 for Cobourg, where they will play the Cobourg nine in a Midland league game. The local boys expect a hard game and are in good form for it, and expect to pull out a victory. A large number of enthusiasts will accompany the team to cheer the boys on to victory.

Little Boy on His Way to Stony Lake Fell From Hotel Window

Master Buell, of Rochester, Fell From Third Story Window of Queen's Hotel—An Awning Broke the Fall and He Was Uninjured.

The Toronto Star of yesterday had reference to a remarkable fall of a young lad by the name of Buell, of Rochester, N.Y., who fell three storeys from the Queen's hotel, Toronto. Young Buell's parents are well known to several Peterborough citizens. They have a beautiful summer home at Stony Lake and spend the summer there. The young lad was on his way to Stony Lake and was stopping off at Toronto. Mr. and Mrs Buell's many friends in the city will be pleased to learn that the little lad escaped without any serious injury.

The following is the article in the Star:—

A remarkable instance of the unossified condition of a child's make-up, and the consequent immunity from many of the death dealing agencies, was provided this morning, when Master Buell, of Rochester, N.Y., a lad of 7 or 8 years, fell from a three-storey window on the east side of the Queen's hotel to the garden below.

He was leaning carelessly out of the window, when in some way he lost his balance, and fell headlong. Fortunately for the future of the boy, and the peace of mind of his parents, an awning projected from the building about fifteen feet from the ground, directly in the path of his descent. Shooting off from this accidental life-preserver, the lad fell lightly to the grass-plot below, little the worse for his aeronautic adventure.

But for his being intercepted, and the force of his fall diminished by the awning, there is little doubt that the lad would have lost his life, for just beneath the window from which he fell there is a hard cinder-path, with curb stones along the side of the hotel.

A doctor in attendance, however, pronounced him altogether uninjured.

50,000 Bananas Are Sold In Peterborough per Week

This is the Estimate of a Local Fruit Dealer---Some Interesting Figures About Banana Consumption in This City.

Fifty thousand bananas sold in Peterborough per week! Just think of it, 3 1-2 bananas each week for every man, woman and child in the city. That's going some, isn't it? No matter whether you are big, little, old, young, stout, thin, ugly or pretty, 3 1-2 bananas per week is your share of the bananas sold in Peterborough. Are you getting your share? If not, someone else is.

FIGURING IT OUT.

As is generally known, bananas are perhaps the fruit that is sold to the greatest extent in the sumemr time. There is a big demand for them from the beginning of June until the end of summer, and a tremendous quantity of them are sold, not only in Peterborough, but in every city, town and village in the country. Bananas are always in season. Peaches, pears, apples, plums and the various kinds of fruit, like princes and kings, may flourish and may fade, but the yellow cucumber-shaped fruit of the south is always on the job.

A Review representative, who has a hankering for bananas himself, last night asked one of the largest fruit dealers in the city how many bananas he sold each week, and was informed that his average output per week during the summer was about 100 bunches. Bananas, like trouble, come in bunches, you know. Last week, he stated, that his sales went over 100 bunches, but the average for the summer would be about 100 bunches per week. The newspaper man was also informed that the average number of bananas in a bunch is eleven dozen, or, to get it down to units, 132 bananas. Multiplying the number of bunches by the number of bananas per bunch, we get 13,200, which is the amount of this lone fruit dealer's sales per week in the banana line. There is another dealer in the city who probably sells just as many bananas per week as the one referred to above. Add 13,200 to 13,200 and you have 26,400. This represents the banana sales of two dealers per week. When it is taken into consideration that there are over twenty groceries in the city and several fruit stores, it will readily be seen that the total amount of bananas sold in Peterborough per week will easily reach 50,000. The population of the city is about 15,000, so there are 3 1-2 bananas per week for every man, woman and child in the city. As many of the children are not big enough yet to touch this fruit, it is apparent that somebody is eating far more bananas than the average allottment of 3 1-3 for each inhabitant of the city. Are you getting your share? That's the point.

STRETCHING THEM OUT.

The average banana is six inches in length. Taking this as a basis to work on, it is found that, if the number of bananas sold in Peterborough per week were placed end to end in a straight line, they would reach 25,000 feet, or nearly five miles, pretty nearly half way from Peterborough to Lakefield. If they were placed in a circle they would form the ring for a race track with a diameter of a mile and a half, just about ten times as big as the race track at the Peterborough Driving Park.

AS TO WEIGHT.

It takes four average sized bananas to make a pound. Therefore, 50,000 bananas, the number sold in Peterborough per week, would weigh approximately, 12,500 pounds, or 6 1-4 tons. That's nearly as much coal as you burnt last winter.

AS TO VALUE.

Fifty thousand bananas is approximately 4,165 dozen. Bananas sell on the average at 20 cents per dozen. Multiply 4,165 by 20c. and you have the value of the bananas sold in Peterborough per week, something nearly $900, almost enough money to start a modest man in business.

And just when you are thinking it over, does it not occur to you that if the skins of these 50,000 bananas were scattered on the streets of Peterborough, there would be enough of them to send the whole population sliding on its back?

Newspaper Man Went in Search of the Big Bear

There is a rumor afloat that a member of the Examiner editorial staff is going to take to the road with a performing bear and in future earn his daily bread from the results of Bruin's toil. At any rate a member of the pen pushing staff of the Grit daily went to Janetville yesterday and as far as can be learned his mission was to secure the big black bear that frightened the woman and children out of the berry patch a day or so ago, particulars of which event appeared in the Review yesterday. Of course, in order to travel and exhibit a bear, it is necessary to have a bear, and the Examiner man had high hopes of securing the Janetville bruin when he left the city yesterday. Whether he was successful or not in his quest could not be ascertained today, but his friends are hoping that the best, or the worse, may have happened.

If the bear is secured, it is the newspaper man's intention to show him at the Printers' picnic at Idyl Wyld on August 12th. No doubt the grizzled city editor and the big bear-r-r-r would make a great hit. Already we can see the stalwart form of the scribe from over the way elevated on a soap box, and spieling somewhat after this manner;

"See the bear. See the big black, bouncing bear. Captured in the wilds of Janetville two weeks ago last Saturday. Brought to Peterborough and placed on exhibition. Only a dime and we need the money."

The Steel-Coal case was begun at Sydney, C.B., to-day before Justice Longley.

London, Aug. 1.—In convention at Exeter, the British Medical Association has almost unanimously supported a contention advanced by a member that sick persons should be treated at public expense.

The points were made that the physicians' work is now done under conditions involving the petty worries of fee collection, the stress of competitive commercialism, and the sweating of the profession by hospitals, friendly societies and similar organizations. The increasing number of cases treated at voluntary or state aid institutions was a phase of the movement.

From the Atlantic to the Pacific Canada Abounds in Big Game

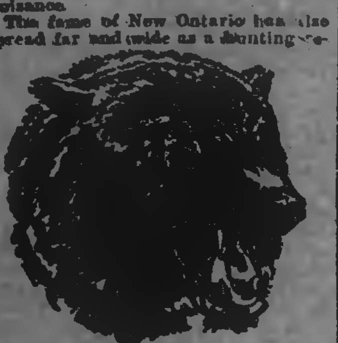
The Dominion May Well be Called the Home of the Hunter—The Moose, the Monarch of the Forest, is Found in Every Province—Illustrations of Some of the Principal "Big Game" Animals—Pointers for the Hunters.

When the foliage of the woods takes on its gayest color and the atmosphere has lost the depressing heat of summer, then it is that the sportsman and vacation-wise visit the secluded, quiet homes of the big game of Canada, where is found Nature in her most beauteous garb, decked in her choicest colors to fittingly receive her most favored guests. Every true sportsman is the friend of all game; he travels far to see them in their native haunts; he glories in the chase and in fairly outwitting these nimble creatures of the forest. When he kills, it is only to satisfy his needs, for he is directly opposed to the ignorant butcher who would ruthlessly terminate all game, and to the educated sportsman is due the formation of game protection associations and the marked increase in recent years of big game in Canada. Of Newfoundland, Nova Scotia and New Brunswick much has been written of value to the hunter of big game, so that upon their resources valuable information is available.

BLACK BEAR

Quebec has attained a wide reputation as the home of big game. Its woods are prolific of game, so much so that after centuries of relentless hunting in them by white man and redskin, moose and caribou still abound, while the timid red deer has in some counties become a public nuisance.

The fame of New Ontario has also spread far and wide as a hunting resort where good sport is at all times assured.



BEAR'S HEAD

Following the transcontinental line of the Canadian Pacific west beyond Pembroke and its chain of waters, an important station for sportsmen is the town of Mattawa, situated at the junction of the Mattawa River with the Ottawa. The town of Mattawa, a name borrowed from the Indians and signifying "the meeting place" in the Ojibway tongue, is one of the best points on that portion of the line to fit out for an extended shooting excursion. The hotel accommodation there is good and prices are low for board or guide and boats. It is a supply depot for a vast, rugged and wild country, where extensive lumbering operations are carried on. For many years the Hudson's Bay Company maintained a post at this place; in fact, the post was there a hundred years before the town. In no other Canadian district within easy reach of civilization are there so many moose; bear are quite abundant, while caribou and deer are by no means scarce.

To reach this district the Canadian Pacific Railway is followed to Temiskaming station, where the steamers of the Lumsden Line make close connections and will convey the traveller to Haileybury, or, should the sportsman so desire, he may proceed all the way to the mouth of the White River.

Sudbury, from which the Soo branch of the C.P.R. runs to Sault Ste Marie, is well situated as a sporting headquarters and outfitting point. Deer hunting on the Vermilion River is excellent, and as yet there are few wolves in the district. Caribou and moose exist in fair numbers thirty miles west of the town near Onaping Lake, and all that country is good for deer.

Twenty-five miles east of Biscot there is a good deer country. This is one of the best centres between the Ottawa River and Heron Bay. From here a canoe route down the Mississaga leads to Dayton on Blind River on the Soo branch, but this trip is shorter if one leaves from Wakami, Winnebago station. The first twenty miles after leaving Biscot is through burnt land, but after that the route lies through a splendid forest country, where moose abound. 15 days is the necessary time for the trip to Dayton, but you can spend even more time pleasantly on the trip. There are moose, deer, caribou and bear, rabbit, partridge and duck in the neighborhood. From 100 to 150 bears are killed annually about Biscot.

As shooting grounds, these broad tracts of forest, lake and rocky barren between Sudbury and Fort William are worth attention. Black bear, moose, caribou and ruffed grouse are generally distributed. The best points are upon the north shore of Lake Superior proper, Jack Fish being, perhaps, as good a centre of operations as any.

Westward from Fort William, the terminal of the Canadian Pacific upper lakes route, is a wild, broken country extending to the boundary line that divides the Province of Ontario from that of Manitoba. Like the region just referred to, it has many lakes and streams; but the first worthy of special notice is Wabigoon—Ojibway for flower—Lake is a pretty sheet of water extending west and south about twenty miles in each direction by about three of four wide, with rough, rocky shores in places, and a few small islands.

Undoubtedly Wabigoon is the best centre for sport between Fort William and the Manitoba boundary. There is a good deal of big game easily accessible, and the wing shooting is remarkably fine. Of late years the sharptail grouse, the common chicken of the Northwest, has appeared in that part of the country in very large numbers.

To attempt to describe any particular route is quite impossible. A glance at a map of Canada will reveal the extent of the great chain of waters referred to, and the sportsman can select from a hundred or so long or short canoe trips the one that best suits his convenience. Upon these boundless streams and lakes you can spend a delightful holiday, covering a few days, weeks or an entire season if you will, tracing out the old-time routes of the voyageurs famous in the history of the fur trade; four million dollars' worth of furs and peltries have been brought down these glancing highways, and hundreds of feet have trodden the portages you will find by the way.

FUN WITH A MOOSE

Manitoba has many excellent places where big game may be found. Pembina Mountains, reached by the Canadian Pacific railway, furnish excellent elk and deer shooting, while the great lakes and splendid railway facilities of this Province make other well known resorts easy of access. Saskatchewan and Alberta have an abundance of big game. The Rocky Mountains, despite the heavy toll levied each year by the Stoney Indians, continue to attract sportsmen from all over the world. Go there if you want something of a novelty in the way of sport—you will not be disappointed, as what there is there for you to-day to see would fill a large-sized volume. British Columbia each year is adding additional laurels to its already great reputation for big game, and a visit by the sportsman to the well known game districts means a hunting trip that will live long in the memory of the most blase sportsman. It is impossible within the limits of this article to give a list of all the different localities where game can be found, but under the different headings will be found much information which will be useful to the sportsman.

It is around a Canadian camp fire that the sportsman realizes the worth of a journey as herein described, and that fellowship which tends to create broader views. The fame of the Canadian game districts has gone abroad, and each season finds a larger number of hunters en route to their favorite grounds. The reward of each is abundantly evident, so that an annual excursion has a two-fold object: the pursuit of pleasure and the seeking of physical gain, both of which await the sportsman in the forests of Canada.

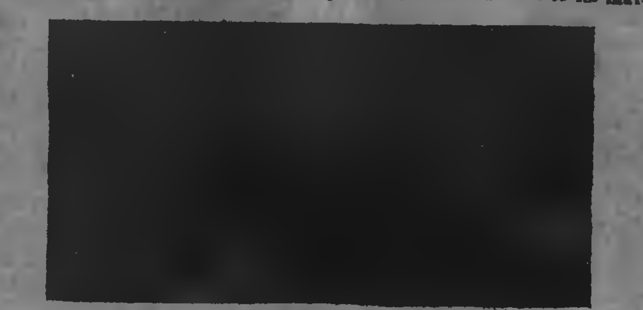
THE MOOSE.

This monarch of the Canadian forest is found in every Province in the Dominion, from the Atlantic Ocean to the Rocky Mountains, and from the Yukon to the boundary of the United States. The moose is indeed noble game, and when fully grown weighs over one thousand pounds, and has a spread of antlers from five to six feet and more in width. The State of Maine has produced many excellent specimens, and has long had a reputation as the home of this giant quadruped. Nova Scotia and New Brunswick are now even more noted for moose hunting.

THE MOOSE

At least one-third of the Province of New Brunswick is good hunting ground, and most easily reached by the Canadian Pacific Railway. Moose are found in at least twelve of the fifteen counties in this Province. The best moose grounds are to the east and north of the river St. John, north of King's county, and extending to the north-eastern seaboard. This portion of the Province has been described as a vast game preserve, running one hundred and fifty miles to the northward and having in some places a width of more than one hundred miles east and west.

The chief resorts of this noble animal in the Province of Quebec are about Lake Edward, Riviere-a-Pierre and La Belle Riviere in the Lake St. John country, in the counties of Ottawa and Pontiac, in the north-west of the province, and in Gaspe and Temiscouata, in the east and Kipawa in the west. In September and October the animals are often surprised and killed while wading in the cool waters of inland lakes, where they feed on the roots and stems of aquatic plants. Like the red deer, they "yard" in winter, the "yard" consisting of hardwood ridges between cedar or spruce swamps round or through which they make beaten tracks in their ramblings. A "yard" sometimes contains from 20 to 40 animals.



BRITISH COLUMBIA CARIBOU

In Ontario moose are quite abundant in the Temagami district, in the neighborhood of Mattawa, and also around Lake Abitibi. Maniwaki, Desbarats, Missanabie and Thurso are good points from which to start for a moose hunt. Over 100 moose were brought out of this district by the Canadian Pacific Railway during the hunting season of 1906, which is ample proof of their numbers in this locality.

A sportsman writes regarding the big game of Northern Ontario:

"There are usually four to six in our party, and we always secure all the game we want without a guide. Our hunting ground is along the main line of the Canadian Pacific railway about 150 miles west of Sudbury, Ontario. We camp on the side of the railroad and get our mail daily. There are moose, deer, bear and caribou, all within two or three miles of the railroad. Last fall I saw fifty-six deer and eight moose. Our party killed four bull moose, the smallest having antlers with a spread of over four feet, and we killed all the deer we wanted."

Manitoba has also furnished splendid moose hunting, but the present high license in this province prevents many sportsmen hunting within its borders.

British Columbia and Yukon moose have a reputation for being the largest in the world. They are reported numerous all through the northern interior of British Columbia, especially so on the Findlay and Liard Rivers. Near Atlin there is good hunting, and also at Cassiar, north-east of Quesnel Lake, the moose are increasing rapidly in numbers.

DEER.

Deer are found in great abundance throughout Canada. Canada is adapted for the growth and development of the deer. South as far as Florida the buck will not often attain more than eighty pounds in weight, while those in Ontario frequently scale over three hundred and twenty-five lbs., due to the invigorating climate and abundance of suitable food. Northern Ontario and Quebec are ideal deer ranges, and despite the heavy toll levied each season by thousands of hunters, the splendid game continues to increase in numbers. From Ontario hunting grounds last season were carried by the Canadian Pacific railway and other roads over 4000 deer, and as each hunter is limited to two deer, it is easily computed the number of sportsmen who engage in this exhilarating sport.

CARIBOU.

Wild and difficult to approach, the woodland caribou adds to his marvelous endurance unequalled speed. It can bound a prodigious distance, and can walk, trot or gallop with equal grace.

In winter it makes its home in barren, frozen swamps, where it finds the lichens which form its daily food. The coat is brown and whitish in some parts. The full grown animal is from four and a half feet to five and a half feet high and frequently weighs over six hundred pounds. There are two varieties known as the woodland caribou and the barren ground caribou. The former is larger and of darker color than the latter, but its antlers are lighter, and it is generally found in herds of five or six. The barren ground caribou travels in herds of from twenty to many hundreds, its coat is lighter, its muzzle more covered, but the weight is about the same. They are noted for their migratory habits, and display great vigor and activity. The home of this splendid game is in Newfoundland, Labrador, Nova Scotia, New Brunswick, Northern Quebec and Ontario, Manitoba, Saskatchewan, Alberta and British Columbia.

BRINGING IN THE MOOSE HEAD

The most popular caribou grounds in Quebec are doubtless those known as Les Jardins, the name being derived from the luxuriant growth of coarse grass, sprinkled with occasional clumps of bushes and trees, forming admirable screens for the hunter. These grounds are some fifty miles north-east of Baie St. Paul, near the headwaters of the Murray Bay river, and are now included in the limits of the Laurentides National Park. Enormous herds of these animals are seen every winter in this locality.

In Ontario north of Lake Superior, along the line of the Canadian Pacific Railway, is a good hunting territory for this game.

WAPITI OR ELK.

This beautiful game is next to the moose in size, and is possessed of a stately grace and power which makes it a very attractive animal when seen in its native haunts. The antlers grow to a great size, and form one of the most prized trophies which the sportsman can procure in America.

Vancouver island still has a fair number of these animals, and with a slight snow fall it is not difficult to secure a good head. There are also a number in East Kootenay, B.C., but these are protected for two years. The species is now rare in many places where it formerly abounded, but wapiti are still plentiful among the foot-hills of the Rockies, and they may also be found on Vancouver Island, in Alberta, Saskatchewan, Mackenzie and Keewatin territories.

BIGHORN OR MOUNTAIN SHEEP.

The bighorn or Rocky Mountain sheep is to-day considered the most prized trophy obtainable by the sportsman. Its home is among the fastnesses of the Canadian Rockies. This animal is of a suspicious, timid nature, but is sure-footed and self-reliant in its mountain home, and will escape over the rocks which the hunter finds impossible to traverse. The flesh of this animal is by many hunters declared to be the best of the world's game, and its massive, wide-spreading horns make a beautiufl decoration. Of all Canadian game the big horn is most wary and difficult to bag. Their strategy is admirable, and once they have regained the higher ground after feeding during the early morning, only the combination of luck and skill will secure a successful shot, and any brought down represents honest, hard work and straight shooting. A bighorn can go further over the rocks in five minutes than the best mountaineer will travel in two hours, and once the steadfast, all-seeing eyes of the ram have detected the hunter there is absolutely no chance of approaching within shooting distance. In the glorious country which the bighorn inhabits a few weeks in the saddle among the mountains, in the clear air under the blue sky, makes the sportsman forget the world of brick and mortar and the attendant cares of commercial life, and will do more to restore vitality than a ton of drugs and stimulants.

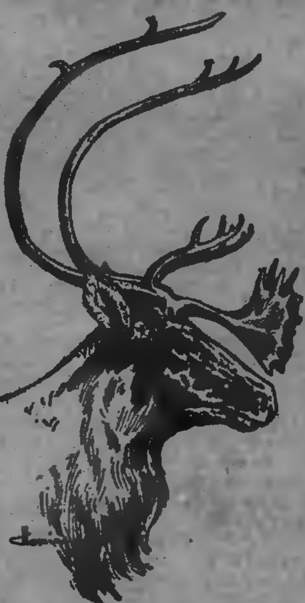
CANADA LYNX

Splendid hunting places for this game are easily reached from the following resorts in the Canadian Rockies: Banff, Laggan, Field and Glacier, Revelstoke and Golden, where Nature may be viewed, in magnificent mountain peaks, rushing rivers, glaciers and canyons. Bridge River, Chilcoten, Michel are also splendid points from which to hunt these animals.

The bighorn is almost strictly a grazing animal. His natural feeding grounds are the high mountain meadows, which lie from a thousand feet below timber line, up to the snow line. He is not equal to the mountain goat as a climber, but far excels the goat in speed and cautiousness.

ROCKY MOUNTAIN GOAT.

This singular animal, whose uncanny beard gives him almost a human-like appearance, has its home among the giant peaks of the Canadian Rockies. He is a brave and fearless fighter, and is more than a match for any dog that dares to attack him. His sharp and needle-like horns and strong, pointed hoofs are excellent weapons of defence against his enemies. He is the most daring of all mountain climbers, fearless, sure-footed, devoid absolutely of fear, and delights in scaling great heights and taking perilous leaps across chasms. His coat is white, soft and fluffy, and the color has the effect of magnifying his size, which is usually about 35 to 40 inches at the shoulder, and when full grown weighs from 200 to 250 lbs. He has practically no enemies save men and eagles. The grizzly bear, the mountain lion and the wolf do their hunting far below him, so when he climbs up or down the steepest precipice he can find, there is no wild creature without wings that can follow him.



HEAD OF CARIBOU

No sport can excel hunting the mountain goat, for the quest brings the sportsman to a high altitude, where the outdoor life always creates health and appetite. Everywhere in the mountains the sportsman finds himself in strange surroundings and giant snow-capped peaks; cliffs must be surmounted, gorges and passes crossed, amid picturesque mountain lakes and tarns, spacious valleys and enchanting streams; the whole more or less clothed with an infinite variety of odorous pine woods. "It was all a mistake, Danny—my coming to you, I mean," Roger Oakley said, shutting the book reverently and laying it to one side. "The world's a small place after all, and we should have known we couldn't keep our secret. It's right I should bear my own cross, but it's not your sin, and now it presses hardest on you. I'm sorry, Dannie"— And his voice shook with the emotion he was striving manfully to hide.

"No, no, father. To have you here has been a great happiness to me."

"Has it, Dannie? Has it really?" with a quick smile. "I am glad you can say so, for it's been a great happiness to me—greater than I deserved." And he laid a big hand caressingly on his son's.

"We must go ahead, daddy, as if nothing had happened. If we let this hurt us, we'll end by losing all our courage."

"It's been a knockout blow for me, Dannie," with a wistful sadness, "and I've got to go away. It's best for you I should. I've gone in one direction and you've gone another. You can't reconcile opposites. I've been thinking of this a good deal. You're young and got your life ahead of you, and you'll do big things before you're done, and people will forget. I can't drag you down just because I happen to be your father and love you. Why, I'm of a different class even, but I can't go on. I'm just as I am, and I can't change myself."

"Why, bless your heart, daddy," cried Dan, "I wouldn't have you changed! You're talking nonsense. I won't let you go away."

"But the girl, Dannie; the girl—the doctor's daughter! You see, I hear a lot of gossip in the shop, and even if you haven't told me I know."

"We may as well count that at an end," said Dan quietly.

"Do you think of leaving here?"

"No. If I began by running, I'd be running all the rest of my life. I shall remain until I've accomplished everything I've set out to do if it takes ten years."

"And what about Miss Emory, Dannie? If you are going to stay, why is that at an end?"

"I dare say she'll marry Mr. Ryder. Anyhow, she won't marry me."

"But I thought you cared for her?"

"I do, daddy."

"Then why do you give up? You're as good as he is any day."

"I'm not her kind; that's all. It has nothing to do with this. It would have been the same anyhow. I'm not her kind."

Roger Oakley turned this over slowly in his mind. It was most astonishing. He couldn't grasp it.

"Do you mean that she thinks she is better than you are?" he asked curiously.

"Something of that sort, I suppose," dryly. "I want you to come back into the shops, father."

"I can't do it, Dannie. I'm sorry if you wish it, but it's impossible. I want to keep out of sight. Back east when they pardoned me every one knew, and I didn't seem to mind, but here it's not the same. I can't face it. It may be cowardly, but I can't."

CHAPTER XII.

OAKLEY had told his father he was going to call at the Emorys'. He wanted to see Constance once more. Then it didn't much matter what happened.

As he passed up the street he was conscious of an impudent curiosity in the covert glances the idlers on the corners shot at him. With hardly an exception they turned to gaze after him as he strode by. He realized that an unsavory distinction had been thrust upon him. He had become a marked man. He set his lips in a grim smile. This was what he would have to meet until the silly wonder of it wore off or a fresh sensation took its place. And there would be the men at the shops. There intercourse had hitherto been rather pleasant and personal, as he had recognized certain responsibilities in the relation which had made him desire to be more than a mere taskmaster. The thought of his theories caused him to smile again. His humanitarianism had received a jolt from which it would not recover in many a long day.

The hands already hated him as a tyrant and probably argued that his authority was impaired by the events of the morning, though how they arrived at any such conclusion was beyond him, but he had felt something of the kind in Branyon's manner. When the opportunity came it would be a satisfaction to undeceive them, and he was not above wishing this opportunity might come soon, for his mood was bitter and revengeful when he recalled their ignorant and needlessly brutal insolence.

Early as he was he found, as he had anticipated when he started out, that Ryder was ahead of him. The editor was lounging on the Emorys' porch with the family. He had dined with them.

As Dan approached he caught the sound of Constance's voice. There was no other voice in Antioch which sounded the same or possessed the same quality of refinement and culture. His heart beat with quickened pulsations and his pace slackened. He paused for an instant in the shadow of the lilac bushes that shut off the well kept lawn from the street. Then he forced himself to go on. There was no gain in deferring his sentence. Better have it over with. Yet when he reached the gate he would gladly have passed it without entering had it not been that he never abandoned any project simply because it was disagreeable. He had done too many disagreeable things not to have outlived this species of cowardice.

The instant he saw him the doctor rose from his seat on the steps and came quickly down the walk. There was no mistaking the cordiality he gave his greeting, for he intended there should be none. Mrs. Emory, too, took pains that he should feel the friendliness of her sentiment toward him. Constance, however, appeared embarrassed and ill at ease, and Dan's face grew very white. He felt that he had no real appreciation of the changed conditions since his father's story had become public property. He saw it made a difference in the way his friends viewed him. He had become hardened, and it had been impossible for him to foresee just how it would affect others, but to these people it was plainly a shock. The very kindliness he had experienced at the hands of the doctor and Mrs. Emory only served to show how great the shock was. In their gracious, generous fashion they had sought to make it easy for him.

Oakley and the editor did not speak. Civility seemed the rankest hypocrisy under the circumstances. A barely perceptible inclination of the head sufficed, and then Ryder turned abruptly to Miss Emory and resumed his conversation with her.

Dan seated himself beside the doctor on the steps. He was completely crushed. He hadn't the wit to leave, and he knew that he was a fool for staying. What was the good in carrying on the uphill fight any longer? Courage is a fine quality, no doubt, but it is also well for a man to have sense enough to know when he is fairly beaten, and he was fairly beaten.

He took stock of the situation. Quite independent of his hatred of the fellow, he resented Ryder's presence there beside Constance. But what was the use of struggling? The sooner he banished all thought of her the better it would be for him. His chances had never been worth considering.

He stole a glance at the pair, who had drawn a little to one side and were talking in low tones and with the intimacy of long acquaintance. He owned they were wonderfully well suited to each other. Ryder was no mean rival, had it come to that. The world had given him its rub. He knew perfectly the life with which Miss Emory was familiar. His people had been the right sort. He was well born and well bred, and he showed it.

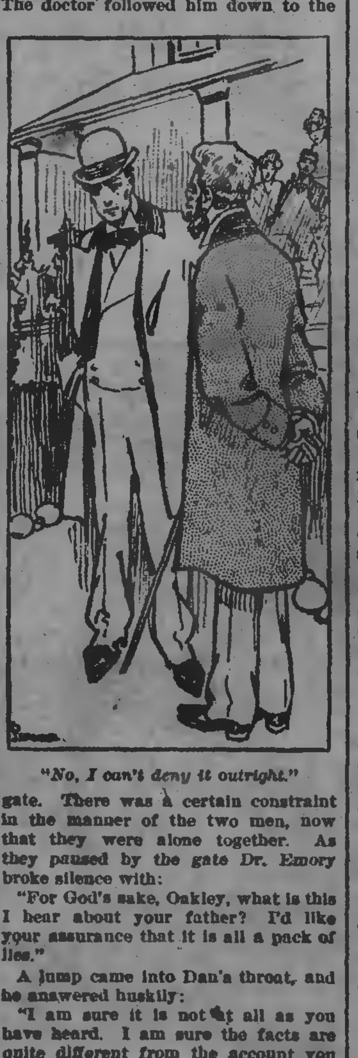
It dawned upon the unwilling Oakley slowly and by degrees that to Constance Emory he must be nothing more or less than the son of a murderer. He had never quite looked at it in that light before. He had been occupied with the effect rather than the cause, but he was sure that if Ryder had told her his father's history he had made the most of his opportunity. He wondered how people felt about a thing of this kind. He knew now what his portion would be. Disgrace is always vicarious in its consequences. The innocent generally suffer indiscriminately along with the guilty.

The doctor talked a steady stream at Oakley, but he managed to say little that made any demand on Dan's attention. He was sorry for the young man. He had liked him from the start, and he believed but a small part of what he had heard. It is true he had had the particulars from Ryder, but Ryder said what he had to say with his usual lazy indifference, as if his interest was the slightest and had vouched for no part of it.

He would hardly have dared admit that he himself was the head and front of the offending. Dr. Emory would not have understood how it could have been any business of his. It would have finished him with the latter. As it was, he had been quick to resent his glib, sneering tone.

But Dan's manner convinced the doctor that there were some grounds for the charges made by the hands when they demanded Roger Oakley's dismissal, or else he was terribly hurt by the occurrence. While Dr. Emory was reaching this conclusion Dan was cursing himself for his stupidity. It would have been much wiser for him to have remained away until Antioch quieted down. Perhaps it would have been fairer, too, to his friends, but since he had blundered he would try and see Miss Emory again. She should know the truth. It was characteristic of him that he should wish the matter put straight, even when there was no especial advantage to be gained.

Soon afterward he took his leave. The doctor followed him down to the gate. There was a certain constraint in the manner of the two men, now that they were alone together. As they paused by the gate Dr. Emory broke silence with:



"No, I can't deny it outright."

"For God's sake, Oakley, what is this I hear about your father? I'd like your assurance that it is all a pack of lies."

A jump came into Dan's throat, and he answered huskily:

"I am sure it is not at all as you have heard. I am sure the facts are quite different from the account you have heard"—

"But"—

"No, I can't deny it outright, much as I'd like to."

"You don't mean— Pardon me, for, of course, I have no right to ask."

Dan turned away his face. "I don't know any one who has a better right to ask," he said.

"Well, I shouldn't have asked if I'd thought there was a word of truth in the story. I had hoped I could deny it for you. That was all."

"I guess I didn't appreciate how you would view it. I have lived in the shadow of it so long"—

The doctor looked aghast at the admission. He had not understood before that Dan was acknowledging the murder. Even yet he could not bring himself to believe it. Dan moved off a step as if to go.

"Do you mean it is true, Oakley?" he asked, detaining him.

"Substantially, yes. Good night," he added hopelessly.

"Wait," hastily. "I don't want you to go just yet." He put out his hand frankly. "It's nothing you have done anyhow," he said as an afterthought.

"No, but I begin to think it might just as well have been."

Dr. Emory regarded him earnestly. "My boy, I'm awfully sorry for you, and I'm afraid you have got in for more than you can manage. It looks as though your troubles were all coming in a bunch."

Dan smiled.

"My antecedents won't affect the situation down at the shops, if that is what you mean. The men may not like me any the better or respect me any the more for knowing of them, but they will discover that that will make no difference where our relations are concerned."

"To be sure. I only meant that public opinion will be pretty strong against you. It somehow has an influence," ruefully.

"I suppose it has," rather sadly.

"Do you have to stay and face it? It might be easier, you know— I don't mean exactly to run away"—

"I am pledged to put the shops and road on a paying basis for General Cornish. He'd about made up his mind to sell to the M. and W. If he does it will mean the closing of the shops, and they will never be opened up again. That will wipe Antioch off the map. Not so very long ago I had a good deal of sympathy for the people who would be ruined, and I can't change simply because they have, can I?" with a look on his face which belonged to his father.

The doctor stroked his beard meditatively and considered the question.

"I suppose there is such a thing as duty, but don't you think, under the circumstances, your responsibility is really very light?"

Dan laughed softly.

"I didn't imagine you would be the first to advise me to shirk it."

"I wouldn't ordinarily, but you don't know Antioch. They can make it very unpleasant for you. The town is in a fever of excitement over what has happened today. It seems the men are not through with you yet."

"Yes, I know. My father should have gone back. It looks as if I'd yielded, but I couldn't ask him to when I saw how he felt about it."

"You see, the town lives off the shops and road. It is a personal matter to every man, woman and child in the place."

"That's what makes me so mad at the stupid fools!" said Oakley, with some bitterness. "They haven't the brains to see that they have a lot more at stake than any one else. If they could gain anything from a fight I'd have plenty of patience with them, but they are sure losers. Even if they strike and the shops are closed for the next six months it won't cost Cornish a dollar—indeed, it will be money in his pocket."

"I don't think they'll strike," said the doctor. "I didn't mean that exactly, but they'll try to keep you on a strain."

"They have done about all they can in that direction. The worst has happened. I won't say it didn't bruise me up a bit. Why, I am actually sore in every bone and muscle. I was never so battered, but I'm beginning to get back, and I'm going to live the whole thing down right here. I can't have skeletons that are liable to be unearthed at any moment."

He took a letter from his pocket, opened it and handed it to the doctor.

"I guess you can see to read this if you will step nearer the street lamp."

The letter was an offer from one of the big eastern lines. While the doctor knew very little of railroads, he understood that the offer was a fine one and was impressed accordingly.

"I'd take it," he said. "I wouldn't fritter away my time here. Precious little thanks you'll ever get."

"I can't honorably break with General Cornish. In fact, I have already declined, but I wanted you to see the letter."

"I am sorry for your sake that you did. You are sure to have more trouble."

"So much the more reason why I should stay."

"I am quite frank with you, Oakley. Some strong influence is at work. No, it hasn't to do with your father. You can't well be held accountable for his acts."

Ryder's laughter reached them as he spoke. Oakley could see him faintly outlined in the moonlight, where he sat between Constance Emory and her mother. The influence was there. It was probably at work at that very moment.

"I wouldn't be made a martyr through any chivalrous sense of duty," continued the doctor. "I'd look out for myself."

Dan laughed again.

"You are preaching cowardice at a great rate."

"Well, what's the use of sacrificing oneself? You possess a most horrible sense of rectitude."

"I would like to ask a favor of you," hesitating.

"I was going to say if there was anything I could do"—

"If you don't mind," with increasing hesitancy, "will you say to Miss Emory for me that I'd like to see her tomorrow afternoon? I'll call about 3—that is"—

"Yes, I'll tell her for you."

"Thank you," gratefully. "Thank you very much. You think she will be at home?" awkwardly, for he was afraid the doctor had misunderstood.

"I fancy so. I can see now, if you wish."

"No, don't. I'll call on the chance of finding her in."

"Just as you prefer."

Oakley extended his hand.

"I won't keep you standing any longer. Somehow our talk has helped me. Good night."

"Good night."

The doctor gazed abstractedly after the young man as he moved down the street, and he continued to gaze after him until he had passed from sight in the shadows that lay beneath the whispering maples.

CHAPTER XIII.

PERHAPS it showed lack of proper feeling, but Oakley managed to sleep off a good deal of his emotional stress, and when he left his hotel the next morning he was quite himself again.

His attitude toward the world was the decently cheerful one of the man who is earning a good salary and whose personal cares are far from being numerous or pressing. He was still capable of looking out for Cornish's interests, and his own, too, if the need arose.

He went down to the office alert and vigorous. As he strode along he nodded and smiled at the people he met on the street. If the odium of his father's crime was to attach itself to him it should be without his help. Antioch might count him callous if it liked, but it must not think him weak.

His first official act was to go for Kerr, who was unusually cantankerous, and he gave that frigid gentleman a scare which lasted him for the better part of a week, for Kerr, who had convinced himself overnight that Oakley must resign, saw himself having full swing with the Huckleberry and was disposed to treat his superior with airy indifference. He had objected to hunting up an old order book Dan wished to see on the score that he was too busy, whereat, as Holt expressed it, the latter "jumped on him with both feet." His second official act was to serve formal notice on Branyon that he was dismissed from the shops. He was even harsh with Miss Walton, and took exception to her spelling of a typewritten letter which he was sending off to Cornish in London.

He also inspected every department in the shops and was glad of an excuse he discovered to reprimand Joe Stokes, who was stockkeeper in the carpenter's room, for the slovenly manner in which the stock was handled. Then he returned to the office and as a matter of discipline kept Kerr busy all the rest of the morning hauling dusty order books from a dark closet. He felt that if excitement was what was wanted he was the one to furnish it. He had been too easy.

Naturally the office force gave a deep sigh of satisfaction when Oakley closed his desk and announced that he was going uptown and would not return. Miss Walton confided to Kerr that she just hoped he would never come back.

It was a little before 3 o'clock when Dan presented himself at the Emorys'. The maid who answered his ring ushered him into the parlor with marked trepidation. She was a timid soul. Then she swished from the room, but returned almost immediately to say that Miss Emory would be down in a moment.

When Constance entered the room he advanced a little uncertainly. She extended her hand quite cordially, however. There was no trace of embarrassment or constraint in her manner.

As he took her hand Dan said simply, going straight to the purpose of his call:

"I have thought a good deal over what I want to tell you, Miss Emory." Miss Emory instantly took the alarm and was on the defensive. She enveloped herself in that species of inscrutable feminine reserve men find so difficult to penetrate. She could not imagine what he had to tell her that was so pressing. He was certainly very curious and unconventional. There was one thing she feared he might want to tell her which she was firmly determined not to hear.

Oakley drew forward a chair.

"Won't you sit down?" he asked gravely.

"Thank you, yes." It was all so formal they both smiled.

Dan stood with his back to the fireplace, now filled with ferns, and rested an elbow on the mantel. There was an awkward pause. At last he said slowly:

"It seems I've been the subject of a lot of talk during the last two days, and I have been saddled with a matter for which I am in no way responsible, though it appears to reflect on me quite as much as if I were."

"Really, Mr. Oakley," began Constance, scenting danger ahead. But her visitor was in no mood to temporize.

"One moment, please," he said hastily. "You have heard the story from Mr. Ryder."

"I have heard it from others as well."

"It has influenced you"—

"No, I won't say that," defiantly. She was not accustomed to being catechised.

"At least it has caused you to seriously doubt the wisdom of an acquaintance," blurted Oakley.

"You are very unfair," rising, with latent anger.

"You will greatly oblige me by sitting down again."

And Constance, astonished beyond measure at his tone of command, sank back into her chair with a little smothered gasp of surprise. No one had ever ventured to speak to her like that before. It was a new experience.

"We've got to finish this, you know," explained Dan, with one of his frankest smiles, and there was a genial simplicity about his smile which was very attractive. Constance, however, was not to be propitiated, but she kept her seat. She was apprehensive lest Oakley would do something more startling and novel if she attempted to cut short the interview.

She stole a glance at him from under her long lashes. He was studying the carpet, apparently quite lost to the enormity of his conduct. "You have heard their side of the story, Miss Emory. I want you to hear mine. It's only fair, isn't it? You have heard that my father is an ex-convict?"

"Yes," with a tinge of regret.

"That he is a murderer?" plunging ahead mercilessly.

"Yes."

"And this is influencing you?"

"I suppose it is," helplessly. "It would naturally. It was a great shock to us all."

"Yes," agreed Dan, "I can understand, I think, just how you must look at it."

"We are very, very sorry for you, Mr. Oakley. I want to explain my manner last night. The whole situation was so excessively awkward. I am sure you must have felt it."

"I did," shortly.

"Oh, dear, I hope you didn't think me unkind!"

"No." Then he added, a trifle wearily: "It's taken me all this time to realize my position. I suppose I owe you some sort of an apology. You must have thought me fearfully thick skinned." He hoped she would say no, but he was disappointed. Her conscience had been troubling her, and she was perfectly willing to share her remorse with him since he was so ready to assume a part of it. She was as conventional as extreme respectability could make her, but she had never liked Oakley half so well. She admired his courage. He didn't whine. His very stupidity was in its way admirable, but it was certainly too bad he could not see just how impossible he was under the circumstances.

Dan raised his eyes to hers. "Miss Emory, the only time I remember to have seen my father until he came here a few weeks ago was through the grating of his cell door. My mother took me there as a little boy. When she died I came west, where no one knew me. I had already learned that, because of him, I was somehow judged and condemned too. It has always been hanging over me. I have always feared exposure. I suppose I can hush it up after awhile, but there will always be some one to tell it to whoever will listen. It is no longer a secret."

"Was it fair to your friends, Mr. Oakley, that it was a secret?"

"I can't see what business it was of theirs. It is nothing I have done, and, anyhow, I have never had any friends until now I cared especially about."

"Oh!" and Miss Emory lowered her eyes. So long as he was merely determined and stupid he was safe, but should he become sentimental it might be embarrassing for them both.

"You have seen my father. Do you think from what you can judge from appearances that he would kill a man in cold blood? It was only after years of insult that it came to that, and then the other man was the aggressor. What my father did he did in self defense, but I am pretty sure you were not told this."

He was swayed by a sense of duty toward his father and a desire to vindicate him—he was so passive and enduring. The intimacy of their relation had begotten warmth and sympathy. They had been drawn nearer and nearer each other. The clannishness of his blood and race asserted itself. It was a point of honor with him to stand up for his friends and to stand up for his father most of all. Could he, he would have ground his heel into Ryder's face for his part in circulating the garbled version of the old convict's history. Some one should suffer as he had been made to suffer.

"Of course Mr. Ryder did not know what you have told me," Constance said hastily. She could not have told why, but she had the uneasy feeling that Griff required a champion, that he was responsible.

"Then you did hear it from Mr. Ryder?"

She did not answer, and Oakley, taking her silence for assent, continued: "I don't suppose it was told you either that he was pardoned because of an act of conspicuous heroism, that at the risk of his own life he saved the lives of several nurses and patients in the hospital ward of the prison where he was confined." He looked inquiringly at Constance, but she was still silent. "Miss Emory, my father came to me to all intents an absolute stranger. Why, I even feared him, for I didn't know the kind of man he was, but I have come to have a great affection and regard for him. I respect him, too, most thoroughly. There is not an hour of the day when the remembrance of his crime is not with him. Don't you think it cowardly that it should have been ventilated simply to hurt me, when it must inevitably hurt him so much more? He has quit work in the shops, and he is determined to leave Antioch. I may find him gone when I return to the hotel."

"And you blame Mr. Ryder for this?"

"I do. It's part of the debt we'll settle some day."

"Then you are unjust. It was Mr. Kenyon. His cousin is warden of the prison. He saw your father there and remembered him."

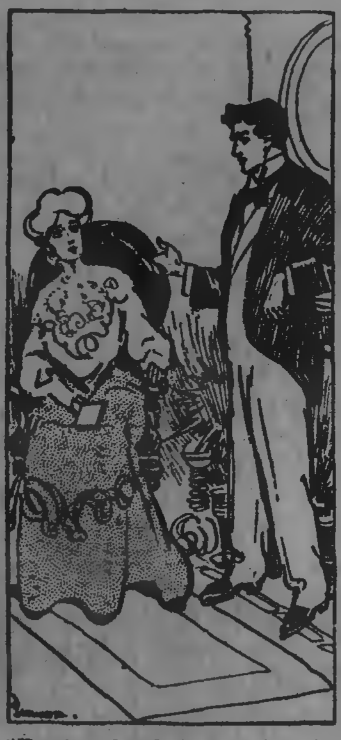
"And told Mr. Ryder," with a contemptuous twist of the lips.

"There were others present at the time. They were not alone."

"But Mr. Ryder furnished the men with the facts."

"How do you know?" And once more her tone was one of defiance and defense.

"I have been told so, and I have every reason to believe I was correctly informed. Why don't you admit that it was a cowardly piece of business to strike at me over my father's shoulder?" demanded Oakley, with palpable exasperation. The narrowness of her nature and her evasions galled him. Why didn't she show a little generous feeling? He expected she would be angry at his words and manner. On the contrary, she replied:



"You have heard the story from Mr. Ryder."

"I am not defending Mr. Ryder, as you seem to think, but I do not believe in condemning any one as you would condemn him—unheard."

She was unduly conscious perhaps that sound morality was on her side in this.

"Let us leave him out of it. After all, it is no odds who told. The harm is done."

"No, I shall ask Griff."

Dan smiled doubtfully.

"That will settle it if you believe what he tells you."

"His denial will be quite sufficient for me, Mr. Oakley," with chilly politeness.

There was a long pause, during which Dan looked at the carpet and Miss Emory at nothing in particular. He realized how completely he had separated himself from the rest of the world in her eyes. The hopelessness of his love goaded him on. He turned to her with sudden gentleness and said penitently:

"Won't you forgive me?"

"I have nothing to forgive, Mr. Oakley," with lofty self denial, and again Dan smiled doubtfully. Her saying so did not mean all it should have meant to him.

He swept his hand across his face with a troubled gesture. "I don't know what to do," he observed ruefully. "The turf seems knocked from under my feet."

"It must have been a dreadful ordeal to pass through alone," she said. "We are so distressed for your sake." And she seemed so keenly sympathetic that Dan's heart gave a great bound in his breast. He put aside his mounting bitterness against her.

"I don't know why I came to see you today. I just wanted to, and so I came. I don't want to force a friendship."

Miss Emory murmured that no excuse was necessary.

"I am not too sure of that. I must appear bent on exhibiting myself and my woes, but I can't go into retirement, and I can't let people see I'm hurt."

His face took on a strong resolve. He couldn't go without telling her he loved her. His courage was suddenly riotous.

"Once, not long ago, I dared to believe I might level the differences between us. I recognized what they were, but now it is hopeless. There are some things a man can't overcome, no matter how hard he tries, and I suppose being the son of a murderer is one of these." He paused and, raising his eyes from the carpet, glanced at her, but her face was averted. He went on, desperately: "It's quite hopeless, but I have dared to hope, and I wanted you to know. I hate to leave things unfinished."

There was a long silence, then Miss Emory said softly:

"I am so sorry."

"Which means you've never cared for me," dryly.

But she did not answer him. She was wondering how she would have felt had the confession come forty-eight hours earlier.

"I suppose I've been quite weak and foolish," said Dan.

She looked into his face with a slow smile.

"Why do you say that? Is it weak and foolish to care for some one?"

"Wasn't it?" with suddenly kindled hope, for he found it hard to give her up.

Miss Emory drew herself together with a sigh.

"I never thought of this," she said, which was hardly true; she had thought of it many times.

"No," admitted Dan, innocently enough, for her lightest word had become gospel to him, such was his love and reverence. "You couldn't know." Poor Oakley, his telling of it was the smallest part of the knowledge. "I think I see now, perfectly, how great a difference this affair of my father's must make. It sort of cuts me off from everything."

"It is very tragic. I wish you hadn't told me just now." Her lips trembled pathetically, and there were tears in her eyes.

"I've wanted to tell you for a long time."

"I didn't know."

"Of course you couldn't know," he repeated. Then he plunged ahead recklessly, for he found there was a curious satisfaction in telling her of his love, hopeless as it was.

"It has been most serious and sacred to me. I shall never forget you—never. It has helped me in so many ways just to know you. It has changed so many of my ideals. I can't be grateful enough."

Miss Emory approved his attitude. It was as it should be. She was sorry for him. She admired his dignity and repression. It made him seem so strong and purposeful.

"You will find your happiness some day, Mr. Oakley. You will find some one more worthy than I." She knew he would be insensible to the triteness of her remark.

"No," generously, "that couldn't be. I'll not find any one. I'll not look."

"Oh, but you will!"

Already, with the selfishness of her sex and a selfishness which was greater than that of her sex, she was regretting that she had allowed him to step so easily into the position of a rejected lover.

"I don't want you to think it is going to ruin my life," he said quietly, "or anything of that sort."

An appeal to her pity seemed weak and contemptible.

"I have striven to win what I can't have, what is not for me, and I am satisfied to have made the effort."

Miss Emory bit her lip. He was going to put her out of his life entirely. It was ended, and he would do his best to forget her with what speed he might, for he loved her and was too generous to wish her to suffer. This generosity, needless to say, was too altruistic for Constance to fully appreciate its beauties. Indeed, she did not regard it as generosity at all. She resented it. She realized that probably she would not see him again—at least, the meeting would not be of his making or choosing. There was to be no sentimental aftermath. He was preparing to go, like the sensible fellow he was, for good and all, and she rebelled against the decree. It seemed brutal and harsh. She was angry, hurt and offended. Perhaps her conscience was troubling her too. She knew she was mean and petty.

"I don't think it could have been very serious to you, Mr. Oakley," she murmured, gazing abstractedly from the window.

"I don't know why you think that. I can't say any more than I have said. It includes all." She wanted to tell him he gave up too easily.

"At any rate, we are friends," he added.

"Are you going?" she cried, with a ring of real longing and regret in her voice, lifted out of herself for the moment at the thought of losing him.

Dan nodded, and a look of pain came into his face.

"Yes, I am going."

"But you are not going to leave Antioch?"

"Oh, no!"

And Miss Emory felt a sense of relief. She rose from her chair. "Then I shall see you again?"

"Probably," smiling. "We couldn't well avoid seeing each other in a place the size of this."

He held out his hand frankly.

"And I shan't see you here any more?" she asked softly.

"I guess not," a little roughly. The bitterness of his loss stung him. He felt something was wrong somewhere. He wondered, too, if she had been quite fair to him, if her ability to guard herself was entirely commendable after all. He knew in the end his only memory of her would be that she was beautiful. He would carry this memory and a haunting sense of incompleteness with him wherever he went.

She placed her hand in his and looked up into his face with troubled, serious eyes.

"Goodby." It was almost a whisper.

Dan crossed the room to the door and flung it open. For an instant he wavered on the threshold, but a moment later was striding down the street, with his hat jammed needlessly low over his ears and his hands thrust deep in his trousers pockets.

At the window Constance, with a white, scared face, was watching him from between the parted curtains. She hoped he would look back, but he never once turned his head.

THE MONARCH OF MINERAL WATERS

Not one person in a thousand knows that Fruit is really a wonderful medicine?

Not rare fruits—but the common, everyday fruits that you can buy in the fruit shops.

APPLES act directly on the kidneys—increase the flow of urine. ORANGES are excellent for the skin. FIGS and PRUNES are splendid bowel laxatives and liver tonics.

There are two great difficulties in curing yourself of Kidney and Bladder Troubles — Rheumatism — Constipation — Skin Eruptions, etc. by simply eating fresh fruit. First, the minute quantity of medicinal principal that you would get by eating a normal amount of fresh fruit would be insufficient to do any real good—second, eating excessive quantities of fruit would upset the stomach, on account of the indigestible pulpy fibre found in all fruits.

An Ottawa physician overcame these difficulties when he discovered the principle which brought forth "Fruit-a-tives."

"FRUIT-A-TIVES" are fruit juices—not as they occur in fruit—but with their medicinal activity greatly intensified. After the juices are extracted from the fruit, a chemical change is made to take place in which one atom of the bitter principle in fruit is replaced by one of the sweet. Then tonics and antiseptics are added and the whole pressed into tablets.

Fruit-a-tives act on the three great eliminating organs—the Bowels, Kidneys and Skin. They arouse the sluggish liver—enable the liver to give up more bile, which regulates the bowels and cures Constipation (or non-action of the bowels) Fruit-a-tives strengthen the kidneys and induce vigorous, healthy skin action.

For Headaches and Backaches—for Indigestion and Disordered Stomach—for Irregular Bowels—for all Kidney and Bladder Troubles—for Skin Eruptions—Fruit-a-tives are without an equal in the world.

and flowers. Truly, hunting amid such surroundings is a delight, and when the reward is a magnificent head, together with renewed vitality, the sportsman feel samply repaid for his time and expense.

Mountain goats are found in British Columbia fro mthe United State sboundary to , the Skeena river. Some of the best places to start from are Nelson, Michel, Golden, Revelstoke, Fernie, and the Canadian Rocky Mountain resorts of Banff, Laggan, Field and Glacier.

THE MUSK OX.

Possibly the hardest game in North America to secure is the musk ox, as it is only found in a district situated almost or quite within the Arctic circle, and about the head waters of the Great Fish River, also northeast of the Great Slave Lake, and in Greenland and Labrador.

Tradition says the musk ox receives its name from the fact that it emits a strong musk odor, but the Indians and trappers who bring these valuable skins to the Hudson's Bay Company allege this is a myth. The horns grow directly down and then outward. The color of the fur varies fro m ajet black t oa deep seal brown according to the age and season of capture. The hair is very fine and silky, growing thickly about the face, back and shoulders.

In size the musk ox is about 3 1-2 to 4 1-2 feet at the shoulder ,and from five to eight feet from the tip of the nose to the end of the tail, and weighs about 800 pounds. The animal looks diminutive when standing, owing to its very short legs, but the bones are massive and indicate great strength.

Hunting these creatures is a serious and expensive business under the most favorable circumstances, and the only safe way would be to communicate with the Hudson's Bay Company at Winnipeg, Manitoba, who can furnish letters to their traders to supply the guides, dog sleds and equipment.

BLACK BEAR.

The black bear is found throughout the length and breadth of Canada. He is a harmless creature, with a good coat in the early spring, and lives upon fruit, berries, fish, meat, bugs, lizards and mice. It is impossible to tell how he secured his reputation as a dangerous animal, for in reality he is an arrant coward, and unless goaded by a wound ,or the she bear with cubs, will not attack mankind. The best specimens are secured northward, and in Alaska robes of over eight feet in length are not uncommon. In New Brunswick, Quebec, Ontario, Manitoba Saskatchewn, Alberta and British Columbia many have been killed weighing over four hundred pounds, and in sections of eastern Canada they are so numerous as to be a positive nuisance to the settlers. There is no difficulty in securing a good specimen, the places being numerous where black bear may be killed.

THE GRIZZLY BEAR

This well known species of the bear family has always had the respect and admiration of all sportsmen. The Indian considered a necklace of the claws of the animal proof that the brave was worthy of the name, and not a squaw man. The white hunter always regarded the grizzly bear as worthy of the utmost precaution, and as one of the most dangerous animals in the world when wounded. Immensely powerful, quick and cunning to a degree of almost human intelligence, the grizzly bear is a royal quarry for any sportsman.

One of the best known writers, who has hunted in the United States for th epast fifteen years, recently announced that he has given up all hope of killing a grizzly bear in his own country, and has been compelled to turn to British Columbia and the Canadian Rockes, where they are still plentiful.

Like the wolves, the grizzly bears of today know well that man is an enemy to be feared. Nine grizzlies out of ten will run the moment a man is discovered, no matter what the distance may be between man and bear. The tenth will charge you furiously, especially if the attack is made fro mbelow of from the only line of escape. It is said that a wounded grizzly always runs down hill, and this may account for some attacks upon hunters which might not have taken place had the hunter been located above or at one side of the wounded animal.

HUNTING MOUNTAIN GOAT IN THE CANADIAN ROCKIES

At most seasons of the year the grizzly is a solitary creature. In the berry season frequently two or three have been seen together in the same berry patch, but this is a rare exception. It is said to require seven years for a grizzly bear to attain maturity ,when they usually reach a weight of from five to seven hundred pounds. One died in Lincoln Park, Chicago, that weighed eleven hundred and fifty-three pounds. As a rule the claws are long and curved, and possessed of great strength. The fur in season is a splendid trophy, and worthy of a high place in comparison with all fur-bearing animals.

The best hunting places can be reached from the well known resorts of the Canadian Rockies, Banff, Laggan, Field, Glacier, Golden and Revelstoke.

A. Bryan Williams, Provincial Game Warden of British Columbia ,says;—"The Ishut River, which runs into the Stikine River not far from the mouth, is the best place I know of for bear, both black and grizzly. You will have to hire a canoe and go up the river as far as you can. The snow should be off the slides in the mountains from the middle to the end of April, and at this time, while there is still snow in the timber, the bears come out of their winter quarters and are in prime condition.

WOLVES.

Wolves are increasing in number, but systematic hunting of wolves has now begun, and they will be kept down.

The grey wolf is a large boned ,long-headed ,powerful animal ,whose weight frequently reaches eight ypounds. He usually hunts for big game in parks of from three to twenty. So great is the damage done to big game and to farmers' and ranchmen's stock, that every province in Canada offers a bounty for their scalps. Yet the wolves continue their destruction of game and stock each winter in increasing numbers. Wolves are found in all the provinces of Canada.

PUMA, OR COUGAR, COMMONLY CALLED PANTHER.

The puma, panther, cougar, or mountain lion ,is found in the Canadian Rockies and British Columbia. It is the largest and most powerful of the cat family found in America, and of a sneaking disposition, but capable, because of its size and great strength, of putting up a terrific fight. Deer and all small game are its natural prey. With a good dog it is easy to get a cougar in many parts of Vancouver Island. There are also a great many in the Okanagan and Boundary Creek Districts. They seem to be increasing in numbers everywher ein British Columbia. Nelson, Golden ,Revelstoke, Michel and the Canadian mountain resorts of Banff, Laggan, Field and Glacier are good points to start from when in search of this elusive species of the "felis cougar."

CANADA LYNX ,BOBCAT OR WILD-CAT.

This is an animal perhaps better known to the fur trade than to the sportsman. The Canada lynx has the lank form of all the cat family, but its deep soft fur makes it appear larger than it really is. Its feet are large and tufted, so that it can get along well in the deep snows of the country. Its coat is ashy gray. The Canada lynx has always a tuft of black hair on the ears, and may be distinguished in this way from the wild cat or bobcat. It is found in the Maritime Provinces and Maine, also in Ontario ,Quebec and in the Canadian West.

ANTELOPE.

The Canadian antelope is a graceful creature, and roams the prairies and foothills of Western Canada and the mountain ranges of British Columbia.

The best way to take the antelope is to start them on the run and then cut off their flight at an angle. They rarely change their course when they have once set upon it, and hence the sportsman is oftentimes able to get within range. The meat is good, but the hide is of little use. A young antelope is a lovable object and a agreeable pet.

SMART STYLE AND BECOMINGNESS

It's a white season, and shirt blouses of every style will be par excellence. A very trig shirt waist in linen, showing narrow tucks at either side of the front closing, and wider ones on the shoulder ending at yoke depth, is sketched and recommended to all lovers of good style. The narrow plaiting edging the front plait is a late suggestion for adornment and may be used or not as desired. The natty shirt cuffs are trimmed in like manner while this also appears on the collar. The waist is one not difficult to fashion, but suggestive of good taste and representing the best of the newest fashions. Any of the seasonable waistings may be used, the medium size calling for 3 yards of 36 inch material.

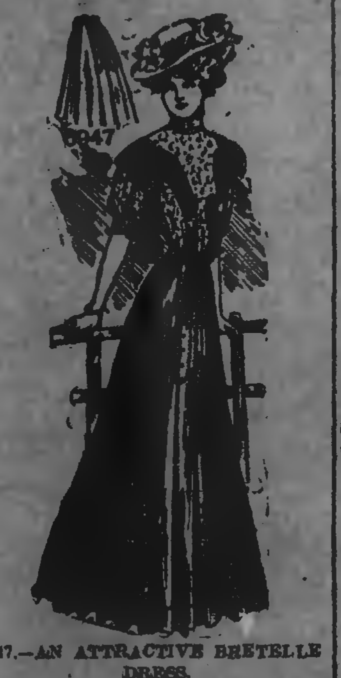
A Useful Gown

The loose, comfortable gown which slips on easily and requires no elaborate fastening to close it is an invaluable possession in the feminine wardrobe. Such a one as sketched and made in a washable silk or Japanese cloth it will prove wonderfully useful and becoming. The broad sailor collar and loose flowing sleeves suggest freedom from restraint and so quite in keeping with the purpose of the garment. For use as a bathrobe or negligee it is invaluable. For the medium size 7 yards of 30 inch material are needed.



6947

6947.—AN ATTRACTIVE BRETELLE DRESS.

This fashion for bretelle dresses is a very economical one and the woman who must make ends meet by remodelling her last year's dress or using a left-over skirt with shirt waists by combining it with bretelles, will appreciate the pattern sketched. The skirt is a seven-gored one showing inverted box pleats at centre front and back and three backward turning tuck-plaits at each side seam. Very neat trimming sections are inset at front and back, or may be omitted. The shoulder straps or bretelles are of the material of the skirt and finished with stitching or a narrow braid. Such a costume may be worn with any lingerie or silk shirt waist and prove very smart. For the medium size 5 3-8 yards of 44 inch material are needed.

6947.—7 sizes 20 to 32 inches waist.

The price of this pattern is 10c.

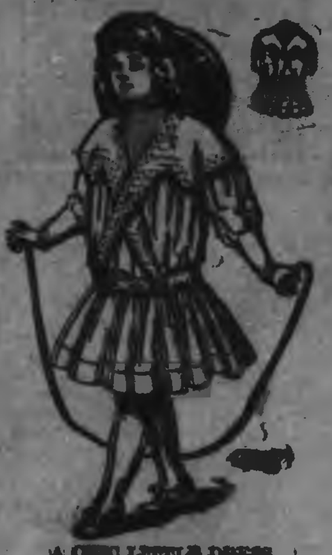
6955

6955.—A GRACEFUL SKIRT.

A pretty fashion for a skirt of silk, washing stuff or cloth is suggested in the one shown. The upper portion is in seven gores with groups of tucks at each seam stitched to below the hips. A straight gathered flounce completes the skirt proper and assures a pretty flare about the feet. The skirt may be in round or sweep length and is dressy enough for any nice gown. For the medium size 7 1-2 yards of 27 inch material are needed.



A CHIC LITTLE DRESS.

Some Timely Suggestions Giving Directions in the Leading Styles and the Best Materials to be Used

Magical Increase.

Have you tried what they call magical increase?

Take a large drinking glass, conical in shape—that is, small at bottom and large at top. Put in it a quarter, half fill with water, then place a plate on top and turn quickly over so that the water may not escape.

A piece of silver as large as half a dollar will immediately appear on the plate, and somewhat higher up will be another piece of the size of a quarter.

Curious phenomenon, isn't it?

Printers' picnic—August 12.

Beauty Won by Proper Breathing.

If you want to be fully developed, with an easy grace of motion that tells of the perfect control of every muscle, then take to rhythmic breathing. It will make a new woman of you. The hollows in your cheeks and your neck will fill up as if by magic. The increasing heaviness of your walk will disappear. You will acquire a complete command of your body.

Any flabbiness or angularity comes from breathing with only the upper part of one's lungs. Double chins and other deformities are due to the same causes.

GOOD STYLE IN A SHIRT WAIST DRESS.

Every wide awake woman and girl realizes the smartness and practicability of the shirt waist dress, and a model which is unusually good is shown here for the benefit of our readers. The waist has tucks in slot-seam effect in front and back, the latter extending to the belt and lending excellent lines. The sleeves may be short or long, the first being finished with a narrow cuff and the latter with a deep cuff. The skirt is a four-piece one with tuck pleats at front, side and back, stitched over the hips. It is a style not difficult for the amateur sewer to follow and will prove attractive in the washing fabrics or cloth or taffetas. For the medium size 6 1-2 yards of 44 inch material are needed for the dress.

6940.—Six sizes, 32 to 42 inches bust measure.

The price of this pattern is ten cents.

4229.—A PRACTICAL COAT FOR A GIRL.

An odd coat is perhaps more necessary to the small girl than to older persons as she is not so likely to own a suit and must have something of medium weight for the whole year around. Here is sketched a coat of a little more than hip length which realizes the best of the present modes and is not beyond home making. The seams may be lapped and stitched or bound with a narrow braid, while the collar may be of the material or velvet. The coat is box shape and very natty, requiring 1 1-2 yards of 54 inch material in the medium size.

4229.—Sizes 4, 6, 8, 10, 12 years.

The price of this pattern is 10c.

The Springhill mines are idle; the men all went on strike.

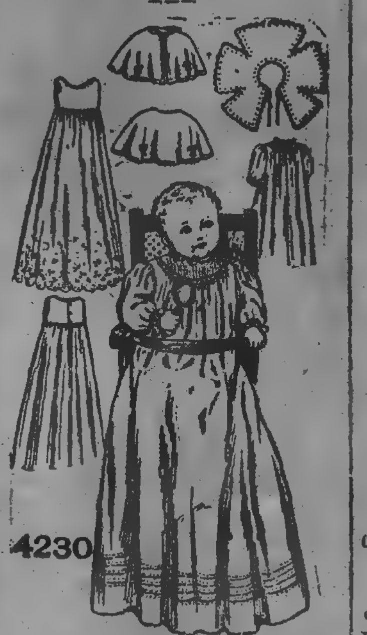
4229.—A PRACTICAL FROCK FOR PLAYTIME.

The play dress holds a place of its own in the regime of the wardrobe, one does not always want to dress a child in overalls or rompers when she is playing about the house or yard. Here is a dress which answers the same purpose and yet looks well enough for anyone to see, being all in one piece and belted or not as desired. It is intended to be worn with petticoats or bloomers, the later being made of the material of the dress. Two box plaits appear in front and back the closing being effected at the front under the left box plait. Small box plaits at the wrist retain the fulness of the sleeve. This dress may be made of chambray, crash, madras or percale, as well as any of the durable cloths. For the medium size 2 1-8 yards of 44 inch material are wanted.

4229.—7 sizes, 2 to 8 years.

The price of this pattern is 10c.

Leave your order and ten cents at the REVIEW OFFICE and pattern will be sent you by mail.



4230

4230.—AN OUTFIT FOR THE BABY.

Three necessary garments for every little one who requires new apparel are shown and may be found simple enough in construction for the veriest amateur to fashion. The dress has a round yoke to which the skirt is gathered front and back. The petticoat is of the usual style with a deep body part and full gathered skirt. The thrid garment is the ever useful kimono, which is all in one piece and closed under the arms and in front with ribbon bows. Any of the lingerie stuffs may serve for the dress and petticoats and French flannel, challis or cashmere for the sack. The pattern comes in one size and calls for 2 3-8 yards of 36 inch material for the dress, 2 yards for the petticoat and 5-8 yard for the sack.

The price of this pattern is 10c.

6931.—A SMART STYLE FOR A PLAIN SHIRT WAIST.

An entirely plain shirt waist can embody quite as much style as the most elaborate one, the lines and finish deciding its quality. Here is shown a blouse of the simplest yet expressive of no small degree of modishness and good taste. It is built on mannish lines, the front closing under the plait and having long or shorter sleeves. A trig pocket is usually pleasing upon a shirt waist of this type, but it is especially so this year when Dame Fashion demands pockets wherever possible. Such a waist may be made in any seasonable material, being equally suitable to rub fabrics, cloth, worsteds and silks. For the medium size 3 1-2 yards of material 27 inches wide are needed.

6249.—6 sizes, 32 to 42 inches bust measure.

The price of this pattern is 10c.

A NOVEL GIRDLE BRETELLE

It is a season of accessories and happy is the woman or girl who is clever with her needle to fashion such becoming apparel. A very attractive girdle bretelle which is full of style and built according to the newest fashion lines is sketched. It may be made of silk, velvet or cloth as well as other seasonable materials and will be smart worn with any style of blouse or shirt waist, the elaborateness of its development deciding its dressiness. Three pretty buttons close it at the waist line, the open spaces at the shoulder being joined by straps of braid or velvet ribbon. For the medium size 1 1-4 yards of 27 inch material are needed.

No Street Cars Met the Boat

Public Would Rather Take the Cars up From the Street Railway Wharf

When the steamer Otonabee returned from Idyl Wyld with the C. G. E. Angling Club excursion on Saturday night. it did not stop at the street railway wharf. It was eleven o'clock when the wharf was reached and the street cars had made their last trip. Many people had, as a result, a long walk ahead of them. This should not be. It would be better for the public and for the two transporatation companies, if there was a mutual understanding that the street cars would meet the boat on every excursion. Ninety per cent. of the people would be glad to get off at the street railway wharf and come up town on the cars. It saves from 20 minutes to half an hour and when everyone is so tired that means a great deal. Or if the cars had been at Wolfe street wharf, it would have helped a lot. The public would appreciate attention of that kind and if the boat company and street railway company arranged for this accommodation, the trip down the river would be even more popular.

Angling Club Had Good Time

Between 200 and 300 Went to Idyl Wyld—Tug of War the Feature

The C.G.E. Angling Club had a most successful excursion to Idyl Wyld Saturday afternoon. It was the occasion of their annual outing and between 250 and 300 persons boarded the steamer Otonabee at the Wolf street wharf. The weather was very cool and those who took their coats along were very glad of it. The steamer made splendid time both going and returning and the trip was thoroughly enjoyed. Some of the boys played the piano and Mr P Kane with the violin, furnished music for dancing and the lower deck was the scene of a jolly dance.

The boat arrived at Idyl Wyld a little before five o'clock, when those who had baskets spread their suppers out on the tables in the park and partook of a hearty supper. The meal at the hotel was ready on time and a good supper was served. The large dining room was filled several times and everyone was satisfied. After the inner man had been satisfied the excursionists took a stroll through the woods and came back in time to see the tug-of-war between the machine shop and the toolmakers' department. There were eleven men on each team. The contest was a good one, and while the machinists were a little the heavier, they had to pull hard to win the box of cigars. On board the boat coming home there was a drawing contest for the ladies. The prize was a silk umbrella and it went to Miss Patterson.

The Otonabee called at Gore's Landing on the return trip, where the baseball boys, who had been at Cobourg, got on board. It was a quarter to eight when the gang plank was pulled in and it was just eleven o'clock when the people struck the street railway tracks.

BRINTON CARPET WORKS PICNIC

On Monday next, Civic Holiday, the Brinton Carpet Works will entertain their employees to a trip down the river to Idyl Wyld. The steamer Water Lily will carry the carpet people with their friends and a good time is anticipated. It will be the first summer outing for the company and it is likely that it will be an annual affair.

TRIPPED OVER SMALL HYDRANT

Last night after playing for evensong at St. John's Mr. R. J. Devey was leaving with Mrs. Devey when he tripped over the short hydrant at the south-east corner of the church, which is close to the sidewalk, and in the partial darkness, scarcely to be seen. The result of the sudden stop against the edge of the sidewalk, was an ugly wound on the knee cap, which bled freely through the torn clothing, with a few bruises and missing pieces of skin, which will serve Mr. Devey with a forcible reminder of his tumble for the next few days.

ST. JOHN'S CHURCH

New Yorkers are in Terror; Carnival of Crime Prevails

Atrocious Crimes Against Women and Children Continue

More Girls Attacked—Police Without Any Clue to Murderers — Heroic Measures Taken — Four Brothers Arrested But Afterwards Released —Italian Narrowly Escapes Lynching—Former Victim Unidentified.

New York, Aug. 5.—The frequency and atrocity of crimes against women and children in New York in the past fortnight have brought about heroic measures.

Acting Police Commissioner O'Keefe issued orders Saturday directing every plain clothes officer on the force to lay aside all other work and devote himself entirely to efforts to bring to justice the perpetrators of these crimes. He ordered that house to house visits be made by all officers on regular beats and that parents be advised to keep their children under closer supervision. He also announced that he would ask the board of estimate and appropriation for an appropriation sufficient to add five hundred officers to the force.

The attacks on children recently have struck terror to the hearts of parents all over the city, and scores of cases of supposed attempts at assault have been reported to the police, which have no foundation, except in the fears of parents.

But notwithstanding the cases which have no foundation in fact there have been enough actual cases of assault on children to cause the police as well as parents much worry.

The police arrested four brothers, Thomas, Louis, George and James Esposito, believing that they could throw some light on the murder of little Katie Tietschier, whose mutilated body was found in a cellar on First avenue. Later all but Louis were discharged. Louis, when confronted with evidence that he was seen to emerge from the cellar, admitted that he cut wood there the day Katie disappeared. He also admitted that he knew the child and often spoke to her. Anna Messner, Rippolone, a shoemaker, and Bonfanta, his assistant, are still held by the coroner.

The police are convinced that the murderer of the child is some one who was well-known in the neighborhood, and who knew the little girl.

An Italian by name of Marias Sallo was arrested and held on a charge of attempted assault on Anna Rogers, a young girl living in Brooklyn. The girl says as she was walking down the street Sallo seized her by the arm and tried to drag her into a vacant lot. Her screams brought a crowd, who attacked Sallo and were only prevented from seriously injuring him by a policeman, who drove them back with his revolver.

The body of the young woman found in an areaway in East 99th street several days ago is still unidentified at the morgue.

Frank Powers, proprietor of a lunch room, was arraigned in Yorkville court and held for further examination. Three young girls testified that he offered them money to walk in Central Park with him.

More Outrages.

New York, Aug. 5.—Another murderous assault was added last night to the police record of recent crimes against defenceless women and girls. Last night's victim was Miss Ellen Bulger, a woman of middle age, who was attacked in her apartments in the Bronx, cruelly beaten and left in a helpless state.

There was evidence that the woman had made a courageous fight.

From what the police were able to learn from her, she was surprised by a smooth-faced stranger, perhaps 40 years of age. He was coatless and wore an outing shirt and dark trousers. He escaped.

Just before Miss Bulger was assaulted, George Kestner, a Russian, charged with attempted assault upon an 8-year-old girl, was set upon by a crowd of men, and all but killed. The clothes were torn from his body and he was taken to a station house, wrapper in a blanket.

Two Hundred of England's Finest Battleships Parade Before Royalty —Steel City With 35,000 Officers and Men—Sailors Cheer Their Majesties—Home Guard Section of the British Navy.

Portsmouth, Eng., Aug. 5.—The 200 ships-of-war constituting Great Britain's home fleet paraded before King Edward and Queen Alexandra Saturday on the Solent and incidentally furnished a magnificent pageant for the opening of the annual Cowes regatta week.

Spread out in long lines between the Isle of Wight and the Hampshire shore this splendid array of vessels, great and small, formed a steel city, with a population of 35,000 officers and men. Never before have so many British men-of-war been seen together under the control of a single admiral.

From the battleship Dreadnought down to the smallest submarine every vessel was decked from stem to stern with flags. The crews were assembled on deck and as the King and Queen, on board the royal yacht Victoria and Albert, passed down the lines, each ship's company gave a rousing cheer. For eleven miles up and down the King and Queen steamed between steel walls.

This gathering of warships forms the recently organized home guard section of the British navy and the Government and the Admiralty are so proud of the assemblage that they departed from the usual rule about visitors and threw the entire fleet open to the critical inspection of the public.

Dotted through the three central lines were no less than six flagships, headed by the pennant of the commander-in-chief, Vice-Admiral Francis B. Bridgeman. The five other flag officers were: Rear-Admirals Harry S. F. Niblett, Frank Finnis, Robert A. J. Montgomery, George A. Callaghan and Spencer H. M. Login.

The splendid naval panorama was completed by scores of pleasure yachts and excursion steamers, crowded with thousands of the general public, each with its band of music playing, helped to enliven an unusually attractive scene.

King Edward after the review decorated all the admirals taking part with the Victorian order, including Admiral George Stanley Bosanquet, who receives the cross.

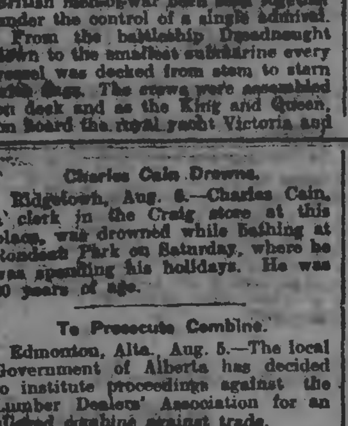
Charles Cain Drowns.

Ridgetown, Aug. 5.—Charles Cain, a clerk in the Craig store at this place, was drowned while bathing at Rondeau Park on Saturday, where he was spending his holidays. He was 30 years of age.

To Prosecute Combine.

Edmonton, Alta., Aug. 5.—The local Government of Alberta has decided to institute proceedings against the Lumber Dealers' Association for an alleged combine against trade.

A lift from two trips of 35,000 salmon is reported from Victoria, B.C.



The "Sailor Boy" brand of canned goods are the best that are put up. They never fail to please. Try a few cans.

Mohawks' New Chief.

Deseronto, Aug. 5.—The death of Dr. Acland Oronhyatekha having made vacant the post of head chief of the Mohawks on the Tyendinaga Indian Reserve, Joseph Hill, Jr., a cousin of the deceased, has been chosen as his successor.

The election was held at the Indian council house, with William R. Aylesworth, Government agent for the Bay of Quinte district, as returning officer. The polling was open, and took place between 8 a. m. and 5 p. m.

Sampson Green, for many years a councillor of the Mohawk band, opposed the successful candidate, who is a young man, and had not previously aspired to a position in the council. There were 386 eligible voters, and 169 votes were actually cast, the kinsman of the late chief receiving 121.

5,000 in Free Fight.

New York, Aug. 5.—The fighting element among the whites and blacks in the vicinity of 130th street and Fifth avenue lined up yesterday to settle a baseball dispute, and 50 persons required medical treatment, of whom two will die.

Probably 5,000 persons took part in the fight. Three hundred policemen dispersed the [illegible]

EUROPEANS ATTACKED.

Situation at Casablanca In Morocco Grows Steadily Worse.

Tangier, Morocco, Aug. 5.—The situation at Casablanca grows steadily worse. Two steamers arrived here Saturday, bringing refugees—the Constantin, carrying 250 Jewish and a number of French refugees, and the other steamer with four hundred persons, including many Europeans.

All those arriving here report conditions as most alarming, the town still being in the power of the natives. All the Europeans of Casablanca have been aboard the steamers anchored in the harbor, and panic reigns in the town.

The refugees were not permitted by the natives to leave in peace. In spite of the presence in the harbor of the French cruiser Galilee, a large body of Moors attacked the Europeans as they were embarking. They appeared, however, to fear reprisals, for they soon desisted, and, proceeding to the Christian cemetery, dragged a number of corpses from the vaults and began to burn them. A body of troops arrived and opened fire on the Moors. A number of them were killed and the band was dispersed.

At the request of the consular corps here, the warship Galilee, in the harbor, desisted from bombarding the villages and re-embarked her landing party. The consuls feared reprisals.

To Release MacLean.

Tangier, Aug. 5.—The statement has been obtained from a high native source that Sir Harry MacLean, who has been a prisoner in the hands of the bandit, Raisuli, for about a month, probably will be released the end of this week.

Caid Mehalla, for the Government, has fought another successful engagement with the Kmass tribesmen. He took many prisoners and heads. The losses sustained by the Government troops, however, were severe.

THREATENS MARTIAL LAW.

Violent Anti-Clerical Agitations In Northern Italy.

Rome, Aug. 5.—The Government is threatening to impose martial law in a number of towns in northwestern Italy, unless the violence in connection with the anti-clerical agitation at once comes to an end.

At Mantua a crowd of manifestants pillaged some churches and burned several sacred objects, and at Turin a workman attacked and wounded a priest in the street.

At Savona there were violent anti-clerical manifestations, and the guard over the prison, where the Salesian fathers from Varazze, who are charged with immoral practices, are locked up, was reinforced to protect them from the mob.

The fire in St. Anthony's Church at Spezzia, set by an unruly crowd, was extinguished and the church is now guarded by a detachment of sailors.

The clericals charge that the free masons are conducting a campaign against them among the masses, and the director-general of the Salesians has entered suit against the newspapers that published the alleged exposures. He has also asked the Government to conduct an investigation of these charges.

Priests Used Revolvers.

Rome, Aug. 5.—At Sampierdarena a crowd attacked the Salesian Colleges with stones. Seven priests in the building got together and replied with revolver shots, whereupon the mob broke down the doors and swarmed inside.

The situation of the priests was dangerous for a few moments, and they were only rescued by the timely arrival of troops.

Anti-clerical demonstrations were announced for Saturday in a large number of Italian towns.

SUICIDE NEAR TORONTO?

Mysterious Message Received From Missing Man, Native of Erie.

Erie, Pa., Aug. 5.—Through the aid of the postoffice officials of Toronto, Canada, the local police officials have succeeded in clearing up the mystery of the disappearance of a prominent man.

It is now thought that John McCall committed suicide near Toronto, although no clue to his whereabouts was disclosed until Postmaster [illegible] of the Erie postoffice received a card from Toronto, which bore these words, "Committed suicide; if you find it, send word to my mother that I am dead.—McCall, Erie, Pa."

This note was written on the back of a ticket of a Toronto theatre. The card was found on Toronto Island.

McCall disappeared some time ago, and the police notified his parents yesterday of his death, although no foundation as to whether the body was found or not has been received.

Fatality at Cobalt.

Cobalt, Ont., Aug. 5.—Alexander McIsaac, a machine man on the Temiskaming & Hudson Bay mine, was killed Saturday morning by falling down the shaft.

He had just come to the top in the bucket with another employe, and it is supposed he slipped when stepping out of the bucket. He dropped 30 feet. When picked up by the foreman he spoke, but expired immediately after.

McIsaac came from Dartmouth, N.S., where his sister resides. His father and mother are also living, at Halifax. He was about 40 years of age, a widower, and belonged to the Cobalt Miners' Union. His son died last spring in Nova Scotia.

Many Injured In Mine.

Homburg, Aug. 5.—An explosion of fire damp Saturday in a mine at Mittelbexbach, six miles from here, resulted in a report that 18 men had been killed. A rescuing party found the missing men alive, although unconscious. Many men were injured, but none were killed.

Struck by Train.

St. Catharines, Aug. 5.—John White, an Indian, whose home is at Caledonia, but who was working on a fruit farm near Jordan, was struck by a train while walking on the Grand Trunk tracks Saturday evening and instantly killed.

Coal has been discovered in the north bank of the Saskatchewan River, five miles east of Prince Albert.

PERMANENT COURT.

Arbitration Proposal of U. S. Accepted at The Hague.

The Hague, Aug. 5.—The American proposition regarding the establishment of a permanent court of arbitration at The Hague was adopted Saturday by the sub-committee.

The vote on the proposition was as follows:

In favor of — Germany, Argentine, Brazil, Bulgaria, China, Chile, Colombia, Denmark, Santa Domingo, Ecuador, France, Great Britain, Gautemala, Italy, Japan, Mexico, Montenegro, Norway, Panama, Paraguay, Holland, Peru, Portugal, Russia, Sweden, Venezuela, and the United States.

The following abstained from voting, some of them because they were without instructions: Austria, Belgium, Spain, Greece, Roumania, Servia, Siam, Switzerland, Turkey, Uruguay, Luxembourg and Salvador.

It is quite probably that Great Britain, France, Germany, Russia and the United States will agree to present to a special committee on Tuesday, a combined scheme for constituting a working permanent court of arbitration.

Besides the details already known, a section regarding the expenditures will doubtless be arranged like that of the universal postal union at Berne, the various countries being divided into different classes, according to their population and bearing a proportionate share of the costs.

Japs Watched Yankee Gun Drill.

Cleveland, Ohio, Aug. 5.—Upon the return of Battery A from its annual target practice at Camp Eels, Capt. Blasius asserted that the work of his men and guns was closely observed by two Japanese who were routed by the officers.

The Japanese watched the work of the guns from a distance, partly hidden by trees.

Battery A is one of the few organizations equipped with the latest field pieces.

Haywood Is Ready.

Salt Lake, Utah, Aug. 5.—W. D. Haywood, secretary-treasurer of the Western Federation of Miners, when asked yesterday whether he was going to take a hand in the strike now on in the Hibbing and Duluth range district, said he would be subject to any order for the good of the Federation.

Thomas Murray, of London, was sentenced to six months yesterday fo ran assault upon his step-son's wife.

The Manager Of the B. & A.

By VAUGHAN KESTER

Copyright, 1901, by Harper & Brothers

CHAPTER XIV.

ON Thursday the Herald published its report of the trouble at the shops. Oakley had looked forward to the paper's appearance with considerable eagerness. He hoped to glean from it some idea of the tactics the men would adopt, and in this he was not disappointed. Ryder served up his sensation, which was still a sensation, in spite of the fact that it was common property and two days old before it was accorded the dignity of type and ink, in his most impressive style:

> The situation at the car shops has assumed a serious phase, and a strike is imminent. Matters came to a focus day before yesterday and may now be said to have reached an acute stage. It is expected that the carpenters, of whom quite a number are employed on repair work, will be the first to go out unless certain demands which they are to make today are promptly acceded to by General Cornish's local representative.
>
> Both sides maintain the strictest secrecy, but from reliable sources the Herald gathers that the men will insist upon Mr. Branyon being taken back by the company.
>
> Another grievance of the men, and one in which they should have the sympathy of the entire community, is their objection to working with the manager's father, who came here recently from the east and has since been employed in the shops. It has been learned that he is an ex-convict, who was sentenced for a long term of imprisonment in June, 1885, for the murder of Thomas Sharp at Burton, Mass.
>
> He was only recently set at liberty, and the men are naturally incensed and indignant at having to work with him. Still another grievance is the new schedule of wages.
>
> A committee representing every department in the shops and possessing the fullest authority met last night at the Odd Fellows' hall on South Main street, but their deliberations were secret. A well authenticated rumor has it, however, that the most complete harmony prevailed and that the employees are pledged to drastic measures unless they get fair treatment from the company.

Ryder tacked a moral to this, and the moral was that labor required a champion to protect it from the soulless greed and grinding tyranny of the great corporations which had sprung into existence under the fostering wing of corrupt legislation. Of course "the picturesque statesman from old Hanover" was the Hercules who was prepared to right these wrongs of honest industry and to curb the power of Cornish, whose vampire lusts fattened on the sweat of the toiler, and especially the toiler at Antioch.

A copy of the paper was evidently sent the "picturesque statesman," who had just commenced his canvass, for in its very next issue the Herald was able to print a telegram in which he "heartily indorsed the sentiments embodied in the Herald's ringing editorial on the situation at Antioch" and declared himself a unit with his fellow citizens of whatever party in their heroic struggle for a fair day's wage for a fair day's work. He also expressed himself as honored by their confidence, as, indeed, he might well have been.

Dan digested the Herald's report along with his breakfast. Half an hour later, when he reached the office, he found McClintock waiting for him.

"The men want to see you, Mr. Oakley. They were going to send their committee in here, but I told 'em you'd come out to them."

"All right. It's just as well you did." And Oakley followed him from the office.

The men were clustered about the great open door of the works in their shirt sleeves. From behind them in the silence and the shadow came the pleasant, droning sound of machinery, like the humming of a million bees. There was something dogged and reckless in the very way they stood around with folded arms or slouched nervously to and fro.

Dan singled out Bentick and Joe Stokes and three or four others as the committee and made straight toward them.

"Well, men, what do you want?" he asked briskly.

"We represent every department in the shops, sir," said Bentick civilly, "and we consider Branyon's discharge as unjust. We want him taken back."

"And suppose I won't take him back, what are you going to do about it, eh?" asked Dan good naturedly, and, not waiting for a reply, with old time deftness he swung himself up into an empty flat car which stood close at hand and faced his assembled workmen.

"You know why Branyon was dismissed. It was a business none of you have much reason to be proud of, but I am willing to let him come back on condition he first offers an apology to McClintock and to me. Unless he does he can never set his foot inside these doors again while I remain here. I agree to this because I don't wish to make him a scapegoat for the rest of you, and I don't wish those dependent on him to suffer."

He avoided looking in McClintock's direction. He felt rather than saw that the latter was shaking his head in strong disapproval of his course. The committee and the men exchanged grins. The boss was weakening. They had scored twice—first against Roger Oakley and now for Branyon.

"I guess Branyon would as lief be excused from making an apology if it's all the same to Milt," said Bentick less civilly than before, and there was a ripple of smothered laughter from the crowd.

Dan set his lips and said sternly, but quietly, "That's for him to decide."

"Well, we'll tell him what you say, and if he's ready to eat humble pie there won't be no kick coming from us," remarked Bentick impartially.

"Is this all?" asked Oakley.

"No; we can't see the cut." And a murmur of approval came from the men.

Dan looked out over the crowd. Why couldn't they see that the final victory was in his hands? "Be guided by me," he said earnestly, "and take my word for it, the cut is necessary. I'll meet you halfway in the Branyon matter. Let it go at that."

"We want our old wages," insisted Bentick doggedly.

"It is out of the question. The shops are running behind. They are not earning any money, they never have, and it's as much to your interests as mine or General Cornish's to do your full part in making them profitable.

"Wages can't go back until the business of the shops warrants it. If you will continue to work under the present arrangement, good and well. If not, I see no way to meet your demands. You will have to strike. That, however, is an alternative I trust you will carefully weigh before you commit yourselves. Once the shops are closed it will not be policy to open them until fall, perhaps not until the first of the year. But if you can afford to lie idle all summer it's your own affair. That's exactly what it means if you strike."

He jumped down from the car and would have left them then and there, but Bentick stepped in front of him.

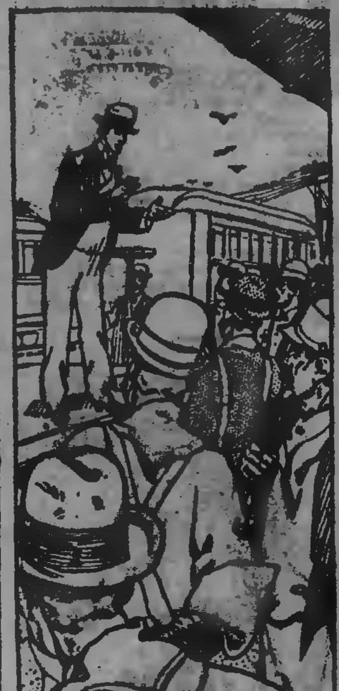
"Can't we talk it over, Mr. Oakley?"

"There is nothing to talk over, Bentick. Settle it among yourselves." And he marched off up the tracks, with McClintock following in his wake and commending the stand he had taken.

The first emotion of the men was one of profound and depressing surprise at the abruptness with which Oakley had terminated the interview and his evident willingness to close the shops, a move they had not counted on. It dashed their courage.

"We'll call his bluff!" cried Bentick, and the men gave a faint cheer. They were not so sure it was a bluff after all. It looked real enough.

There were those who thought with a guilty pang of wives and children at home and no pay day, the fortnightly haven of rest toward which they lived. And there were the customarily reckless souls, who thirsted for excitement at any price and who were willing to see the trouble to a finish. These ruled, as they usually do. Not a man returned to work. Instead they hung about the yards and canvassed the situation. Finally the theory was advanced that if the shops were closed it would serve to bring down Cornish's wrath on Oakley and probably result in his immediate dismissal. This theory found instant favor and straightway became a conviction with the majority.



"I don't wish to make him a scapegoat for the rest of you."

At length all agreed to strike, and the whistle in the shops was set shrieking its dismal protest. The men swarmed into the building, where each got together his kit of tools. They were quite jolly now and laughed and jested a good deal. Presently they were streaming off uptown, with their coats over their arms, and the strike was on.

An unusual stillness fell on the yards and in the shops. The belts as they swept on and on in endless revolutions cut this stillness with a sharp, incisive hiss. The machinery seemed to hammer at it, as if to beat out some lasting echo. Then gradually the volume of sound lessened. It mumbled to a dotage of decreasing force, and then everything stopped with a sudden jar. The shops had shut down.

McClintock came from the office and entered the works, pulling the big doors to after him. He wanted to see that all was made snug. He cursed loudly as he strode through the deserted building. It was the first time since he had been with the road that the shops had been closed, and it affected him strangely.

The place held a dreadful, ghostly inertness. The belts and shafting, with its innumerable cogs and connections, reached out like the heavy knuckled tentacles of some great lifeless monster. The sunlight stole through the broken, cobwebbed windows to fall on heaps of rusty iron and heaps of dirty shavings.

In the engine room he discovered Smith Roberts and his assistant, Joe Webber, banking the fires, preparatory to leaving. They were the only men about the place. Roberts closed a furnace door with a bang, threw down his shovel and drew a grimy arm across his forehead.

"When do you suppose I'll get a chance to build steam again, Milt?"

"Oakley says we won't start up before the first of September."

CHAPTER XV.

THE first weeks of the strike slipped by without excitement. Harvest time came and went. A rainless August browned the earth and seared the woods with its heat, but nothing happened to vary the dull monotony. The shops, a sepulcher of sound, stood silent and empty. General Cornish, in the role of the avenger, did not appear on the scene, to Oakley's discomfiture and to the joy of the men. A sullen sadness rested on the town. The women began to develop shrewish tempers and a trying conversational habit, while their husbands squandered their rapidly dwindling means in the saloons. There was large talk and a variety of threats, but no lawlessness.

At intervals a rumor was given currency that Oakley was on the verge of starting up with imported labor, and the men, dividing the watches, met each train, but only familiar types, such as the casual commercial traveler with his grips, the farmer from up or down the line, with his inevitable paper parcels, and the stray wayfarer were seen to step from the Huckleberry's battered coaches. Finally it dawned upon the men that Dan was bent on starving them into submission.

Ryder had displayed what for him was a most unusual activity. Almost every day he held conferences with the leaders of the strike, and his personal influence went far toward keeping the men in line. Indeed, his part in the whole affair was much more important than was generally recognized.

The political campaign had started, and Kenyon was booked to speak in Antioch. It was understood in advance that he would declare for the strikers, and his coming caused a welcome flutter of excitement.

The statesman arrived on No. 7, and the reception committee met him at the station in two carriages. It included Cap Roberts, the Hon. Jeb Barrows, Ryder, Joe Stokes and Bentick. The two last were an inspiration of the editor's and proved a popular success.

The brass band hired for the occasion discoursed patriotic airs, as Kenyon in a long linen duster and a limp, wilted collar presented himself at the door of the smoker. The great man was all blandness and suavity—an oily suavity that oozed and trickled from every pore.

The crowd on the platform gave a faint, unenthusiastic cheer as it caught sight of him. It had been more interested in staring at Bentick and Stokes. They looked so excessively uncomfortable.

Mr. Kenyon climbed down the steps and shook hands with Mr. Ryder. Then, bowing and smiling to the right and left, he crossed the platform, leaning on the editor's arm. At the carriages there were more greetings. Stokes and Bentick were formally presented, and the congressman mounted to a place beside them, whereat the crowd cheered again, and Stokes and Bentick looked, if possible, more miserable than before. They had a sneaking idea that a show was being made of them. Ryder took his place in the second carriage, with Cap Roberts and the Hon. Jeb Barrows, and the procession moved off uptown to the hotel, preceded by the band playing a lively two-step out of tune and followed by a troop of bare legged urchins.

After supper the statesman was serenaded by the band, and a little later the members of the Young Men's Kenyon club, attired in cotton flannel uniforms, marched across from the Herald office to escort him to the rink, where he was to speak. He appeared radiant in a Prince Albert and a shiny tile and a boutonniere, this time leaning on the arm of Mr. Stokes, to the huge disgust of that worthy mechanic, who did not know that a statesman had to lean on somebody's arm. It is hoary tradition, and yet it had a certain significance, too, if it were meant to indicate that Kenyon couldn't keep straight unless he was propped.

A wave of fitful enthusiasm swept the assembled crowd, and Mr. Stokes' youngest son, Samuel, aged six, burst into tears, no one knew why, and was led out of the press by an elder brother, who alternately slapped him and wiped his nose on his cap.

Mr. Kenyon, smiling his unwearied, mirthless smile, seated himself in his carriage. Mr. Ryder, slightly bored and wholly cynical, followed his example. Mr. Stokes and Mr. Bentick, perspiring and abject and looking for all the world like two criminals, dropped dejectedly into the places assigned them. Only Cap Roberts and the Hon. Jeb Barrows seemed entirely at ease. They were campaign fixtures. The band emitted a harmony destroying crash, while Mr. Jimmy Smith, the drum major, performed sundry bewildering passes with his gilt staff. The Young Men's Kenyon club fell over its own feet into line, and the procession started for the rink. It was a truly inspiring moment.

Since an early hour of the evening the people had been gathering at the rink. It was also the opera house, where during the winter months an occasional repertory company appeared in "East Lynne," "The New Magdalen" or Tom Robertson's "Caste."

The place was two-thirds full at a quarter to 8, when a fleet courier arrived with the gratifying news that the procession was just leaving the square and that Kenyon was riding with his hat off and in familiar discourse with Stokes and Bentick.

Presently out of the distance drifted the first strains of the band. A little later Cap Roberts and the Hon. Jeb Barrows appeared on the makeshift stage from the wings. There was an applausive murmur, for the Hon. Jeb was a popular character. It was said of him that he always carried a map of the United States in tobacco juice on his shirt front. He was bottle nosed and red faced. No man could truthfully say he had ever seen him drunk, nor had any one ever seen him sober. He shunned extremes. Next the band filed into the balcony and was laboriously sweating its way through the national anthem when Kenyon and Ryder appeared, followed by the wretched Stokes and Bentick. A burst of applause shook the house. When it subsided the editor stepped to the front of the stage. With words that halted, for the experience was a new one, he introduced the guest of the evening.

It was generally agreed afterward that it had been a great privilege to hear Kenyon. No one knew exactly what it was all about, but that was a minor consideration. The congressman was well on toward the end of his speech and had reached the local situation, which he was handling in what the Herald subsequently described as "a masterly fashion, cool, logical and convincing," when Oakley wandered in and, unobserved, took a seat near the door. He glanced about him glumly. There had been a time when these people had been, in their way, his friends. Now those nearest him even avoided looking in his direction. At last he became conscious that some one far down near the stage and at the other side of the building was nodding and smiling at him. It was Dr. Emory. Mrs. Emory and Constance were with him. Dan caught the fine outline of the latter's profile. She was smiling an amused smile. It was her first political meeting, and she was finding it quite as funny as Ryder had said it would be.

Dan listened idly, hearing only a word now and then. At length a sentence roused him. The speaker was advising the men to stand for their rights. He rose hastily and turned to leave. He had heard enough, but some one cried out, "Here's Oakley!" and instantly every one in the place was staring at him.

Kenyon took a step nearer the footlights. Either he misunderstood or else he wished to provoke an argument, for he said, with slippery civility: "I shall be pleased to listen to Mr. Oakley's side of the question. This is a free country, and I don't deny him or any man the right to express his views. The fact that I am unalterably opposed to the power he represents is no bar to the expression here of his opinion."

Oakley's face was crimson. He paused irresolutely. He saw the jeer on Ryder's lips, and the desire possessed him to tell these people what fools they were to listen to the cheap, lungy patriotism of the demagogue on the stage.

He rested a hand on the back of the chair in front of him and leaned forward with an arm extended at the speaker, but his eyes were fixed on Miss Emory's face. She was smiling at him encouragingly, he thought, bidding him to speak.

"This is doubtless your opportunity," he said, "but I would like to ask what earthly interest you have in Antioch beyond the votes it may give you?"

Kenyon smiled blandly and turned for one fleeting instant to wink at Ryder. "And my reply is this: What about the twenty million dollar specimen of American manhood who is dodging around London on the money he's made here in this state, yes, and in this town? He's gone to England to break his way into London society, and, incidentally, to marry his daughter to a title."

To be continued.

Salvation Army Band Was Good

Harmony is No Judge of Music—Concert Was the Best This Season

In reply to a letter written by a self-opinioned musician signed "Harmony," to a morning contemporary, it might be stated that it is not based on facts and is a direct insult to the Salvation Army band. A musician said to the Review this morning that "Harmony" is either no judge of music or else he was in his dotage. In that case he had no license to force such trash, as comes from his pen, on the public.

The Salvation Army band is an organization composed of musicians who play for the love of the music, and for the benefit of the people; not one of them is paid. Every cent received goes to further the work. They do not play in Victoria Park for the grant they get from the council. The grant was made first, and afterwards the band was requested to give a weekly concert in the park. The programme last Thursday night was the best that has been produced this season and the band played better than it has ever done before. There was a larger crowd present than usual and the applause was more general and more enthusiastic.

Bandmaster Greene stated this morning that last week twelve of the band's instruments, four of which were bass, were in Toronto being silver-plated. Before the band starts on its tour, all the instruments will have been plated. This had some effect on the volume, but that was all.

OBITUARY

JOHN SMITH

The sad intelligence was received in the city Saturday morning by Mr John Smith, Bolivar street, of the sudden death of his son, Mr. W. Louis Smith, in Rochester, N.Y. The news came as a great shock to his parents and brothers here. Apparently in good health, the deceased and wife and child, left this city Tuesday morning for their home in Rochester, after having spent six weeks visiting here, and his parents little thought then that it would be the last time they would see him alive. His death occurred very suddenly at midnight on Friday.

The deceased was 27 years of age, and was the second son of Mr. John Smith, Bolivar street. Five years ago he went to Rochester, where he conducted a flour and feed store. Three years ago he was married to Miss Etta Babbage, of Rochester, who, with an infant son is left to mourn his loss.

Besides his parents, five brothers survive him. They are Harold, Delbert, Cooper, Roy and Edgar, all residing at home.

Mr Smith and son, Harold, left for Rochester on Saturday, and the funeral will likely take place there today.

Some Incidents Of World Trip

Letter Received From Miss Birdie Thompson

In a letter received today by one of her friends in the city, Miss Birdie Thompson, relates several little incidents in her trip that will be of interest to those who were instrumental in her success in the recent World contest.

Miss Thompson says:—"We arrived in Montreal about eight o'clock Friday morning and had the morning at our own disposal. After luncheon at the Windsor, which was our headquarters, we were driven all around the mountain and the other places of interest in the city. The steamer "Virginian," of the Allan Line, was boarded after dinner, about half-past nine. Several of us had callers, and you may depend, they were very welcome, for every girl was feeling a little lonely at leaving.

"The girls are quite congenial, and we are getting along splendidly. The weather so far has been ideal and we are now about 50 miles below Quebec.

Peterboro's Representative Is Home From Petewawa

Bomb. Edwards, Who Was a Member of the Canadian Artillery Team, Tells About the Competition With the Britishers.

Bomb. T. J. Edwards, the member of the 24th Field Battery who was on the Canadian Artillery team that shot against the crack British team at Petawawa last week, returned to Peterborough Saturday evening. He spent a couple of days in Ottawa after the competition was over at Petawawa and had a most enjoyable outing.

Bomb. Edwards states that the Britishers were not as hard a proposition as the Canucks expected, and the Canadian team did not experience great difficulty in defeating them. The Canadians at first thought they were up against it good and hard for every member of the team from over the pond was an experienced gunner, and the pick of the British artillery. The Canadian team was made up of representatives of every battery in Canada, and they had never shot together before. Under these circumstances they were badly handicapped, but they made good use of the few days allowed them before the competition commenced, and were in fair shape when the shooting commenced. The Canadians won out by a comfortable margin, handling their guns in fine style and working well together. The individual scores have not yet been published, but will appear in the Canada "Gazette" at an early date. No doubt it will be found that Peterborough's representative made a good showing. The members of both teams were treated in fine style at Petawawa, and enjoyed the experience very much.

Lift Lock Circle Was Organized

A new Circle was opened in Peterborough on Friday evening, Aug. 2nd, in connection with the A.O.F., known as Lift Lock Circle No. 142, Companions of the Forest.

Lift Lock Circle starts with a membership of 25 members.

This society is steadily progressing, the new Circle being the second Circle of the Companions in Peterborough.

Capt. G. H. Rogers Is Coming Home

Is Captain and Adjutant in the XI Rajputs Regiment, India

Col. H. C. Rogers, postmaster, Peterborough, expects a visit from his fifth son, Captain and Adjutant Guy H. Rogers, of the XI Rajput's regiment, of the Indian army on Wednesday. He is on furlough, having spent a month in Japan, three months in British Columbia with his friends, and intends stopping a month here with his father, and then a month in England, returning to India in October via Suez Canal, after encircling the Globe. Capt. Rogers has not been here for the past five years, and his many friends will be greatly pleased to see him again.

Becoming Mourning.

Fashions in mourning have undergone a very great change since the wonderful improvements that have been made in crape. In the first place, it has been successfully waterproofed and is no longer expensive wear. Then the soft finish crape is particularly well adapted to the picturesque and artistic gowns of the present day. Instead of the gowns being trimmed with folds and volants of crape this season entire empire and empress gowns will be worn of this soft and graceful crape.

The Chocolate Cure.

In an obscure but picturesque little village of faroff Germany there is a place called the "Chocolate Cure," where thin people go to become stout. The patients eat and drink cocoa and chocolate all the time while they rest, admire the scenery, gossip and grow fatter every day. The true secret of the great success of this treatment is the happy way chocolate has of fattening just the right places, settling in the hands, the arms, the neck and the shoulders, making the fair patient prettier and plumper all the time. The really effective part of this cure may be tried at home by any persevering woman, and the medicine is so very palatable and the method so simple that there is actually, it seems, no reason why all of us should not be of just the desired weight; anyway, the suggestion deserves an honest trial, and even if nothing be gained, why, surely nothing can be lost.

Stairway Closets.

A woman who found her steep back stairs as little ornamental as they were useful has had them converted into two closets, one opening out of her dining room, the other on the second floor. The steps were removed bodily and a glass door opened into the dining room from where they had been. The space inside she had paneled, and rows of shelves were built in well up to the ceiling. The lower ones were used for china and the upper ones for preserves. A small window cut into the side yard admitted light into what was really a small shelf lined room. The whole cost little. Upstairs a capacious linen closet filled in the vacant space. Another woman who did not wish to have the stairs actually taken out had the upper landing converted into a closet, but left the stairs underneath, using them from the first floor as a store closet for brooms, buckets and the like.

The front and side edges roll back from the face in a most becoming manner. The coat is in sack style and fastens only at the neck. A pretty design is embroidered along its edges, the round deep collar being an effective addition. The sleeves are full and finished with turnback cuffs of the embroidery. Linen, pique or pongee might serve as material of which 1-2 yard 27 ins. wide is needed for the bonnet in the medium size, and 1 yard 54 inches wide for the coat.

Is Advertising Peterborough

Manufacturers Committee Has Prepared Copy for a Booklet

In reference to the article which appeared in Saturday's issue, headed "Peterborough is Suffering from a lack of Advertising," the chairman of the manufacturers' committee stated that the Review had been misinformed as copy has been in the printers' hands for about two weeks for a small pamphlet advertising the city. The book or circular will contain a map of the Trent canal and information as to the manufacturing interests here, the power now developed and the water power available for development. This publication will be issued in a few days and will contain Peterborough's advantages as a manufacturing centre in a nut shell. Continuing Ald. Morrow stated that the committee was doing as much as any manufacturers' committee had done for the past 15 years in the way of advertising.

So far as getting new industries was concerned he said that the committee had written many letters but he did not see much chance for the establishment of new manufacturing concerns so long as the money market was as tight as it is at present.

SOME TIMELY COMMENT

To the Editor of the Review.

Mr. Stenton quite recently protests in the newspapers that I had not his authority for statement re the Hilliard house, attributed to me by the reporters. Mr. Sawle, of the Review and I interviewed Mrs. Stenton, Mr. Stenton not being at home, who gave us to understand that if the C.A.S. paid the $40 or $50 which they had spent upon the house and a few other expenses incident to a change of residence that her husband would not, she was sure, stand in the way of the children. This is what I stated to the Council. Recognizing that it was only a casual remark of mine some of the members of the committee observed that the society could in any event utilize the vacant portion until the Stenton lease of the other part was up which would be in April next. We have no desire to dispossess Mr. Stenton, but the city authorities do not seem to consider that his occupancy stands in the way of the proposed gift. We appreciated the kindly tone of Mrs. Stenton with regard to the contemplated deal and we had a sure and certain hope of coming to terms with Mr. Stenton. He is protesting no doubt in order to protect his rights and it is of course quite proper for him to do so. No one had the least intention of imposing upon him.

BETTER THAN SPANKING

Spanking does not cure children of bed-wetting. There is a constitutional cause for this trouble. Mrs. M. Summers, Box W. 82, Windsor, Ont., will send free to any mother her successful home treatment, with full instructions. Send no money but write her today if your children trouble you in this way. Don't blame the child, the chances are, it can't help it. This treatment also cures adults and aged people troubled with urine difficulties by day or night.

Milk Test Results Published Result is Very Satisfactory

Three Tests Made in Most Cases—One Sample Taken When Only One or Two Cows are Kept—All are up to or Above Standard.

The report of the medical health officer and sanitary inspector on the milk being sold to the people of Peterborough, has at last been handed to the newspapers for publication. For months the milk tests have been a subject for discussion in the home, on the street, in the council meetings, committee meetings and Board of Health meetings.

Early in the year, in fact last year, there was a big ado over the alleged impure and adulterated milk. A systematic test of milk was used as a plank by municipal candidates and a lot of hard fighting was put up in order to have the scheme carried out.

Finally the sanitary inspector was authorized to collect samples of milk from everyone who sold the produce of the cow in the city. In some cases three samples were taken in others two and others only one. It might be mentioned that two shipments of samples were made, but they were late in arriving at Toronto and spoiled on the road so that no report could be made.

In every case, however, the milk sold to the people of this city is good. There was not found in a single sample any trace of adulterations and the percentage of butter fat is in most cases above standard. This is exceptionally satisfactory, and is a condition of affairs not found in every town or city.

None of them showed either formaldehyde, salicylic acid or boracee.

The percentage of butter fat was as follows:

W E Stewart	4.0	3.5	4.0

One test was made of milk from persons who, in the majority of cases keep but one or two cows, and sell to a small number of customers. These are as follows:

Mrs Margaret Huston	4.0
John Scott	3.25
N Bibby	3.5
Mrs Armstrong	3.0
W Eyres	3.75

The last mentioned was reported as skim milk.

A private test was made of milk supplied by Mrs. Morrow, the test being made at her request. She does not sell milk. The report showed 3.5 per cent of butterfat.

Fell on Pavement On Simcoe Street

Intoxicated Man Received Bad Gash in Forehead

An unknown man from Lakefield fell on the pavement on Simcoe street on Saturday afternoon and put a severe gash in his forehead. He was in an intoxicated condition and was rendered unconscious by the injury he had received. He lay on the street some time before he was noticed and carried into a house in the vicinity. A doctor was sent for and the Dan Spence ambulance summoned. The injured man was taken to Nicholls hospital where the cut was dressed. The injury had a sobering effect and the man was able to leave the hospital a couple of hours afterwards.

PLUNGED OVER BRIDGE

Train Falls Fifty Feet Into the River Loire.

Bad Railway Accident in France—Forty Passengers and Engineer Drowned—Engine Jumped Track—Stone Railing Gave Way—Only Conductor and Fireman Saved—All Perished Like Rats In a Trap.

Angers, France, Aug. 5.—Forty passengers in a third-class railroad car and the engineer of the train were drowned yesterday afternoon in a railroad accident, three miles southeast of this town.

The locomotive of a crowded local train jumped the track when entering the bridge over the River Loire at Des Ponts-de-Ce. The stone railing gave way, and the engine plunged into the river, 50 feet below, dragging down with it its tender and the baggage and third-class car.

Fortunately no other cars went into the water, as the coupling between the second and third cars broke.

The conductor and fireman were the only persons whose lives were saved. They escaped by swimming.

The third-class car was filled with passengers, but, although part of the roof was blown off by the confined air as it sank, not a single passenger extricated himself, and all were drowned like rats in a trap.

The engineer perished beneath the locomotive.

MOTOR CARS COLLIDE.

Five Killed and Two Wounded During Auto Race.

Bordeaux, Aug. 5.—On account of accidents resulting from the efforts of the contestants to make speed, the Government has ordered that the Criterion Cup race come to an end. The cars had still 434 miles to go.

By the collision of two cars, five men were killed and two others mortally wounded. One of the cars was competing in the Criterion Cup race. It collided while running at full speed with a touring car. Among the men killed are the editors of two newspapers.

TWO MEN KILLED.

Automobile Ran Into Ditch Going at High Speed.

Middletown, N.Y., Aug. 5.—William J. Maxwell of Wurtsboro, and J. S. Fields of Port Jervis, were killed in an automobile accident at Cuddebackville late on Saturday. Mrs. J. C. Eglinger of Port Jervis was probably fatally injured and her three children were badly hurt. The automobile ran into a ditch while going at high speed, and turned bottomside up.

Protection From Autoists.

Paris, Aug. 5.—The frequency of automobile accidents in France has led to the formation of a society of protection against the abuse of automobiling.

They propose to circulate petitions throughout the republic which will be presented to Parliament.

The memorial will ask more rigid speed laws and other safeguards. Moreover, the new society will lend material support to the victims of irresponsible automobilists in their efforts to secure reparation.

Farmers Burnt Auto.

Chicago, Aug. 5.—Mobbed by farmers after their big touring car had accidentally run over a little boy, several prominent persons recently are said to have been driven from their automobile near Deerfield, Ill., forced to look on while the big auto was incinerated in a big bonfire that farmers built under it, and then compelled to walk two miles through the country before they could find an accommodating driver who would take them to the Moraine Hotel in Highland Park.

ARRESTED AT QUEENSTOWN.

Winnipeg Man Who Absconded Captured by English Detectives.

Winnipeg, Aug. 5.—James Robertson, who is wanted here for alleged fraud, was arrested at Queenstown, Ireland, on board the Lucania, by Scotland Yard detectives. He left Winnipeg on July 2, with $1,000 belonging to Barry Cummings, one of his partners, and with another $1,000, the property of George Edwards.

It is also said that he carried on his business in the Ashdown Block here in an irregular manner, and may have to meet a number of cheques when he is returned to this city for trial.

Soldiers to Guard Wagons.

Belfast, Ireland, Aug. 5.—About 250 of the disaffected police are to be exiled to remote parts of the country.

Saturday a number of wagons were overturned. In one instance a mob attacked a van loaded with bags of sugar and set it on fire. They then threw the wreckage off the dock.

In the evening a mob attacked a police patrol and attempted to rescue a prisoner. The police at first were driven back, but reinforcements arrived and a series of charges with clubs were necessary before the crowd dispersed. Several civilians were injured.

Beginning to-morrow the authorities have decided to use soldiers to protect vans and wagons.

It is expected the negotiations to bring an end to the carters' strike will terminate satisfactorily to-day.

CZAR REVIEWS FLEET.

Meets Kaiser In Swinemunde Harbor—Special Police Precautions.

Swinemunde, Germany, Aug. 5.—Emperor Nicholas of Russia arrived in this harbor Saturday morning on the imperial yacht Standart, and was met by Kaiser William on the Hohenzollern, which was accompanied by the cruisers Koenigsberg and Sleiper, and a flotilla of torpedo boats.

Emperor William was advised by wireless telegraphy of where the Standart was cruising, and the yachts met at sea.

Emperor Nicholas called upon the German Emperor and was invited to remain on board the Hohenzollern and review the German fleet. The Hohenzollern, with its convoy of warships, then returned to Swinemunde, and the two Emperors review the and the two Emperors reviewed the German fleet, which consisted of 18 battleships, seven cruisers, a number of auxiliary vessels, a flotilla of torpedo boats and minor crafts. A salute was fired in honor of Emperor Nicholas, and the crews of the German vessels manned the yards.

At about the time the review ended, the Standart steamed into the harbor, accompanied by an escort of Russian torpedo boats.

Emperor Nicholas lunched on board the Hohenzollern. The staffs of both sovereigns were present at the luncheon, after which the Emperor returned to the Standart. The German Emperor paid his return call to the Russian sovereign on board the Standart yesterday afternoon. The two sovereigns had a long talk. Prince Van Buelow, the German imperial chancellor, and W. Iswotzky, the Russian Foreign Minister, were present and took part in the conversation.

During the review the Swinemunde harbor was closed by German torpedo boats and special harbor police watched all the boats along the wharf. As a further protection there was a large detail of Russian police among the crowds that had gathered on the shore to witness the review.

SAILORS JUMP INTO SEA.

Reckless Attempt at Desertion by Two Norwegians.

Moncton, N.B., Aug. 5.—With their ship five miles from the nearest land, two Norwegian sailors jumped from the barque Auguste Leffler into the Straits of Northumberland. A little later they were rescued by a passing boat and taken to Shediac, where they have been given employment.

The escape of the two men was dramatic. With another sailor off the same ship, which was at Point Duchene for several days, they deserted some time ago and ran away. Constable Belyea, Shediac, was sent after the trio, locating them with some difficulty, and they put up quite a stubborn resistance before being taken back to the vessel, which was bound for Preston, England, and sailed from Port Duchene Saturday morning.

When the ship was some five miles out, the sailors, wearing their heavy boots and usual clothing, jumped overboard into the sea. A ship's boat was promptly lowered by order of the captain, but was swamped by the heavy seas, and the two men were left struggling in the water. A few minutes later a Point Duchene sailboat picked them up. So far as known, there were no reasons for the daring act. The ship is in good condition, and the men were well treated. They were liable to a year's imprisonment for the first desertion, however, and the expenses involved by the captain in capturing them would have been deducted from their salaries.

Chemong Park Marked by Gaiety of Summer Season

Two Dances Held on Saturday Night, One at the Hotel and One at the Pavilion—Many Guests at the Cottages—Fishing is Good.

August promises to be a very gay and enjoyable month at Chemong Park and many outings are being planned by the cottagers for the coming weeks. Each cottage has its quota of guests and many are coming and going daily. The boating is especially enjoyable as there has been hardly a day this season when one could not go on the water. Mr. Pope, who is most popular with the cottagers, has a fine lot of skiffs and canoes for rental and they are in great demand.

The fishing has not been so good during the past week although an occasional large catch is reported.

The pavilion was the scene of a merry gathering of the younger people on Saturday and an enjoyable dance was held. Those who kindly supplied them music during the evening were Misses Amy Hill, Winnifred Dobbin, Hazel Dean and Miss Hart, of Toronto.

Many of the cottagers will attend the regatta being held at Sturgeon Point on next Friday, Aug. 18th, and also the regatta at Stony Lake on the following Monday. The steamer Ogemah is being chartered for both days and an excursion will be run to both places. The return fare from Chemong in each case will be 15c.

Chemong Park will hold their regatta on Aug. 17th, and already there is promise of many entries in the different events. A competent committee is in charge of all arrangements and it is sure to be a success.

Mr. and Mrs. Mossom Boyd with their son, Mr. M. A. G. Boyd, and P. Hamilton, who are returning from England, were guests at the hotel on Sunday. Mr. M. A. G. Boyd has been attending Oxford and is home for a vacation. The Ogemah came up from Bobcaygeon for the party during the afternoon.

A jolly camp in the park is the "Sawers Camp," the members being K. K. McCollum, H. G. McCollum and Frank Sawers.

A dance was held in the ball room of the hotel on Saturday evening and was attended by the guests and many of the cottagers, there being about seventy-five present. The music, which was most satisfactory, was furnished by Mr. Whittaker, Toronto and Mr. Turner, of Bridgenorth.

One of the pleasantest events of the season at Stony Lake was the birthday reunion held by Mr. and Mrs John Gownlock, and which some of the Chemong residents attended. It was a reunion of the brothers and sisters of the host and hostess and was a most successful affair in every way. Some of those who were present were Mr and Mrs. Galloway, of Winnipeg Mr and Mrs. James Muir, of Toronto. Mr and Mrs. George Gownlock, Mr. James and Miss Lillie Gownlock, Mr and Mrs. Walter Gownlock and Mrs. Watson, of Saskatchewan, Mr. and Mrs. Hopwood, of Chemong, were also guests. An elaborate supper was served, and speeches and songs given. One particularly enjoyable number was the German band, and it was most mirth provoking. Those who took part had been thoroughly drilled for the occasion by Mr. James Gownlock, and their effort was very heartily applauded.

Miss Ada Whaley and Miss Gardiner, of Toronto, were the guests of Miss Ada Mumma on Saturday.

Miss Irene Brignall, of Belleville, is the guest of Mrs. Alex. Elliott.

Mr. and Mrs. Lee, of Montreal, who have been the guests of Mrs. Hopwood, have returned home.

Mr. and Mrs. Dobbin and family are occupying Mrs. Archer's cottage for the rest of the season.

Mr and Mrs. James Long are in their new cottage, which when finished will be one of the finest in the park.

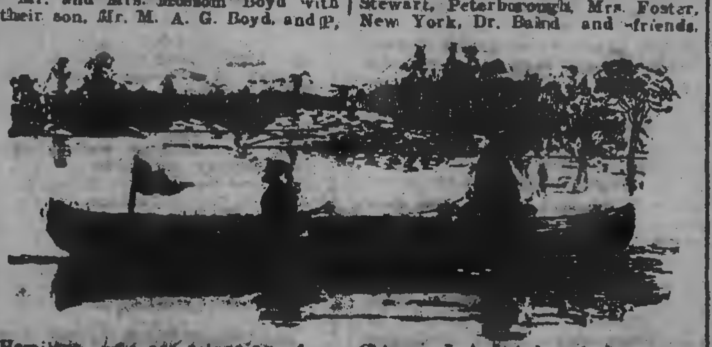
Miss Ruby Clegg is a guest of Dr. and Mrs. Poole.

The following is a list of the registrations at the hotel during the week:—

Mrs. W. J. De Lee, Rochester, Miss Heal, Mr. and Mrs. Trill, Rochester, Miss Culver, Simcoe, W. E. Hillhouse, W. E. Wasson, H. E. Stenson, W. A. Wescott, R. L. Allison, A. H. Mulhern, Peterborough, J. Hagerman, Port Hope, James Conway, Port Hope, Miss Ella Ray, Toronto, Frank Sawers, Peterborough, Miss L. Dunkley, Miss M. Dunkley, Picton, A. W. Dunkley, Picton, Dr. D. C. Miller and Verna Galley, Pittsburg, Mrs. J. Bowen, Mrs. D. R. Barrie, Miss Laptinkoff, Toronto, E. Peele, Toronto, Charles Whittaker, Toronto, J. L. Ferguson, Chicago, K. K. McCallum, H. G. McCallum, Frank Sawers, Mossom Boyd and wife, M. A. G. Boyd, P. Hamilton, Bobcaygeon, Richard Nichols, E. J. Hamilton, Peterborough.

Rev. Dr. Langfeldt held communion service on Sunday morning at the residence of Mr. and Mrs. D. Hughes Charles. It was largely attended by the cottagers.

This morning Mr. Percy Langford while trolling just out from his cottage, caught a large lunge. Mr. Langford is known as the "lucky fisherman" of the park, for hardly a day passes without his landing one or more of those coveted fish, maskinonge.



ON CIVIC HOLIDAY

Written by the Review's Poet.

My dear readers, if you're shouting
For a really first-class outing,
If you're longing for a respite,
  From the everlasting grind.
Just remember that next Monday
Is a rest day or a fun day,
And the printers have a pause,
  They would have you bear in mind,

They've arranged a big excursion
Best affording [illegible] diversion,
And they've chartered the Otonabee
  For classic Idyl Wyld.
When the steamboat whistle's blowing,
All the wise ones will be going
And to say they look for pleasure,
  Is expressing it quite mild.

Are you going? Need I ask it?
Just you fill a big lunch basket.
And enjoy the trip and programme
  And exciting game of ball.
Put the date down in your diary,
And you'll find upon enquiry,
That the printers' annual picnic
  Is the daddy of them all.

Rather Serious Charges Against Four Juveniles

Police court proceedings today were confined to four juvenile offenders.

A quartette of bad boys were on the warpath on Saturday and as a result appeared before the bench with tearful eyes.

City Treasurer Adams presided in the absence of Police Magistrate D. W. Dumble and City Clerk C. Armstrong. It was Mr. Adams' first time on the bench—since he left school.

Two boys about twelve years of age were charged with stealing some fruit from a Hunter street fruit store on Saturday. They pleaded guilty.

Another pair of about the same age were charged with stealing a horse from a local stable, hitching it to a buggy that was in the yard of a blacksmith shop and driving around the city for several hours. They also pleaded guilty.

One of the latter pair also pleaded guilty to stealing some money about $2, from a Peterborough gentleman.

The quartette were all remanded until Friday.

The crime among the juvenile population of the city is on the increase and although the magistrate has been lenient with young offenders in the past, it is likely that an example will be made one of these days.

WRECK NEAR GRIMSBY.

Flaw In Rail Throws Freight Train Off Track.

Grimsby, Aug. 5.—A flaw in one of the rails was the cause of a bad wreck on the G.T.R., about a half a mile west of the station, early yesterday morning.

Thirteen freight cars were derailed and considerably smashed up, completely tying up traffic both ways for the entire day and a good part of the night.

Five laden box cars were completely demolished, and it was found necessary to drag them to the sides of the track and burn them. About half their contents were saved, however, and two cars containing premium prizes, in the shape of fancy furniture and a large consignmentment of mail orders from the Larken Soap Co. of Buffalo, bonded through to Maine. One car was filled with watermelons, one with bananas, and one with hams, destined for Toronto. The damage to this stock was about 50 per cent.

The damage to rolling stock was estimated by a Hamilton official at $6,000.

The only casualty reported was the loss of two teeth by a brakeman.

The wreck occurred at 6.30 a.m. The train was westbound, drawing 39 loaded cars, and running a few minutes behind time. The engine and nine cars got over the break safely, but the rest of the train was either ditched or splintered into a heap.

The auxiliaries from Hamilton and Niagara Falls, and three detached engines worked from 9 a. m. until nearly midnight before the line was again clear for traffic.

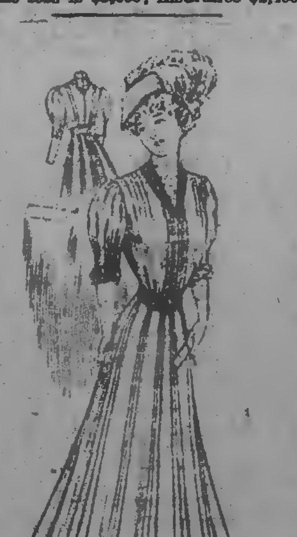
Rescues Son From Flames.

Sarnia, Aug. 5.—Fire at 3 o'clock Saturday morning destroyed the frame building occupied by James Joss, plumber.

P. C. Jones broke in the door, awakened the family and helped them make their escape. After Mr. and Mrs. Joss, Miss Ethel and Ormond got out of the building it was found that Robert, the youngest son, was missing. Mr. Joss went back into the burning building, groped his way through the dense smoke and found the lad in bed. He picked him up and carried him out with difficulty.

The loss is $5,000; insurance $2,400.



6934, 6933.—A TRIM GOWN FOR GENERAL WEAR.

Particular women appreciate the trimness of a costume perhaps more than any other feature. It is the effect of the whole which counts in one's appearance and the artist in dress recognizes good taste here before anything else. The gown shown is especially attractive for afternoon or morning wear, for paying calls or wearing to church. The waist has its tucks becomingly placed in front and back and sleeve. A chemisette of lace or contrasting material lends a pretty touch at the neck.

Two Patterns, 6934—6 Sizes. 32 to 42 inches bust measure. 6933—7 sizes 20 to 32 inches waist.

The price of these patterns is 20c, but either will be sent upon receipt of 10c. [illegible]

TORONTO MAKES ANOTHER KICK

Hog Town Sports Do Not Like the Management of the C.L.A.

The Toronto sports have another kick coming. When the boys in Hogtown can't do anything else they can kick. The following is how the Sunday World attacks the President of the C.L.A. and the referee he appointed for Young Toronto-Peterborough game to-day.:

"The action of President Harry S. Cameron Friday night is unparalleled in the history of the C.L.A. That a man, a member of a club interested in a protest, should appoint his own judicial committee, members who had a week previous sided in with Beaverton will go down in the history of the C.L.A. as a joke.

True secretary Hall was only asked to notify these members—Krausman, Wright, Kelly and Kit Irvine. However, Secretary Hall has always notified the Toronto men. Why? Because the members have the right to sit on an any protests, and also their presence there does not cost the C.L.A. one iota.

Naturally, when President Cameron exploded his bomb shell Friday night the Toronto members and second Vice-President Tommy Doyle were thunder-struck—and justly so. These members represent the wish of the C.L.A. convention, and to be barred from voting on the protest by a freak idea of the president was an insult. However, every man is held accountable for his doings, and the C.L.A. as a whole will decide President Cameron's action at their convention next Good Friday.

The members who President Cameron selected on Friday night had, however, switched around from the previous Friday with the result Marrin was suspended and the Beaverton-Young Toronto game ordered to be replayed in Newmarket Aug. 8. Curran the other party in the protest, was allowed to play by the committee, but not by the rule book. It's about time the rule book was swallowed.

Ald. Wright, of Hamilton, who entered the fold for the first time this season made the following motion in regard to the protest: 'That Marrin be suspended and the game be allowed to stand.' Now, how can a player be suspended for being a professional and the game protested allowed to stand? Such foolishness! Really Mr. Wright's idea of the rule book must be very limited.

The Young Torontos play a league game in Peterborough Monday and the writer was informed by the worthy president Friday night that Dobbin, goalkeeper of the Beaverton team, was the referee. Things like this are too open, and it is to be hoped President Cameron will change his mind and send a disinterested party, say Donald Hall of Oshawa. Dobbin may be a first class referee, but his home is in Peterborough, and as a member of the Beaverton team it looks very much like a case of 'getting even.'"

Strathconas Won From the Lillies

On Saturday Afternoon at Riverside Park—Score Was 16-8

An interesting game of baseball was played Saturday afternoon at Riverside Park, and was witnessed by a large number of enthusiasts. The Strathconas and Lillies were the contestants. The game resulted in a win for the Straths by the score of 16 runs to 8. Pilling was in the box part of the game for the Lillies, and was afterwards replaced by B. Dusty. The winners had little difficulty in striking either of them, while the losers found it hard to make connections with Belleghem, who never pitched better ball than on Saturday.

Mr. W. Wareham umpired the game satisfactorily. The teams were;—

Lillies—Hillier c, Pilling p, Price 1b, Crowe 2b, B Dusty ss., Foley 3b, McGill lf., W Dusty cf, Simmons rf.

Strathconas—Wilson c, Belleghem p., King 1b, Weatherstone 2b, Kendry ss, Curtis 3b, Rogan lf, Tobin cf, Allison, rf.

A Canadian Club has been organized at Moose Jaw with W. B. Willoughby as president.

Cobourg Walloped Right in Their Own Backyard

Score Was 16—8 and the Home Team's Imported Pitcher Was Hammered all Over the Lot—Peterboro' Players Fatten Their Batting Averages—Story of the Game.

What the Peterborough baseball artists did to the Cobourg nine on Saturday afternoon was a shame—a beastly shame. And it was right in Cobourg's own backyard too. It was a Midland League game and the score was 16 to 8. It was a cruel touch and Davie Kerr's tears are falling thick and fast, and why wouldn't they? Didn't the Cobourg management import a high salaried pitcher from somewhere across Lake Ontario and wasn't he hammered all over Donegan Park by the Peterborough slab handlers? And everyone was there with the hickory on Saturday. It wouldn't have been so bad for Cobourg to import a twirler, but they tried to keep up the bluff by parading him as Downs, who pitched for Cobourg 'steen years ago. It has been learned that the southpaw who did the mound duty for the lake town in their last two games is from Boise, Idaho, and possesses the name of Phelan. He was visiting in Rochester when he was picked up by Cobourg and appeared on the Midland League diamond possessed of a big reputation and a ready smile. But the reputation has taken wings and the smile vanished Saturday afternoon at Donegan Park, when the visiting weilders of the pump-handle started to knock every ball he sent over the plate away to the tall alfalfa, and far beyond the reach of the Cobourg fielders. The Peterborough aggregation touched him up for eighteen hits, which included a three baser and four that were good for two sacks. They started to connect right in the first innings, then dropped off for a round or two but finished in a manner that made sick the hearts of the Cobourg supporters. Along in the seventh innings they were shouting for McKinnon to go into the box, but Mac didn't go and the American sidewheeler stayed on the job and got his, got it in chunks that meant one, two or three bases every time he sent a ball over. It was an awful slaughter and a bitter disappointment to the backers of the home team.

Those who saw the game at Riverside Park a week ago Saturday, when Phelan was on the firing line for Cobourg, may wonder how the Peterborough nine hammered him so freely on their second meeting. Phelan pitched good ball at Riverside that day and made no mistake, but apparently he had all kinds of horseshoes with him. The locals hit him freely but couldn't get the ball out of reach of the glue-fingered Cobourg fielders. But at Cobourg it was different. The visitors had confidence that they could hit Phelan and hit him they did, and placed the ball just where they wanted it too. Before the game was over they had hammered the imported pitcher like an Irish cook might do unto a Hamburg steak, and that's going some, and then some.

Corney Burns was in the box for Peterborough and pitched a good game. With the exception of one innings when things went wrong he was always master of the situation, having six strikeouts to his credit while he was only touched for eight safeties, and that Cobourg team are hard hitters. The Peterborough twirler, however, had almost too much speed for his control, and walked four men to first, and sent two on dead balls and these proved somewhat costly. Every man on the Peterborough team played fine ball. Only four errors were chalked up against them, while Cobourg had eight misplays. The boys fielded in great style, and their work on the bases, with one or two exceptions, was fast and well judged. It was their work with the stick that won the game, however, and the summary which appears later on will show the manner in which they went after Phelan. Harry Burridge felt bad because of his poor batting against Cobourg at Riverside, and went out with the hickory determined to fatten up his average. And he did it in great style, being credited with a single, two two baggers and one three baser. Burns was also there with the hickory, in fact everybody hammered the pellet till it was lopsided.

The Peterborough team left home on the 8.30 train Saturday morning, and had a pleasant outing. The return trip was made by means of a 'bus from Cobourg to Gore's Landing, where they caught the steamer Otonabee, the management of which kindly arranged to hold the boat there until the 'bus from Cobourg arrived. The players arrived about 7.30 and only caused the steamer a short delay.

The game was played at Donegan Park and was witnessed by about six hundred persons. The Cobourg supporters, from a five-year-old kid up to the gray-haired fan, rooted for their favorites with a vengeance. Especially did they make a great racket in the first part of the game but towards the finish, when the home team were being put to rout, the Cobourg yells subsided, and the cheering of the Peterborough supporters was heard. Port Hope sent a big delegation over to see the game and they showed their deep and perpetual love for their eastern neighbor by shouting themselves hoarse for Peterborough. Thanks, boys, it was much appreciated. There must have been nearly a hundred from Port Hope at the game.

Weekes, of Bowmanville, was umpire and gave good satisfaction. There was very little kicking on his decisions, and if there were a few that left room for dispute, one team fared no better than the other.

Cobourg kept in the lead until the end of the fifth innings when the score was 6—4. Then the balloon went up. Peterborough took three in the sixth, while Cobourg were blanked, and from that on they were never headed, and kept piling up the score. Cobourg had three men on bases in the second with no one out. Then the Peterborough pitcher pulled himself together and two batters went out without a run coming in. Two strikes were called on the third batsman but he smashed out the next ball sent over and started the scoring. Four runs came in before the side was retired.

The home run credited to T. Burns would not have been more than a two baser under ordinary conditions. The ball got lost in the tall grass near the fence and Burns made the circuit before it was found:—

Following is the summary:—

ON THE SIDE

Well done boys.

Now for Port Hope.

And then the championship.

Phelan will not come back again.

Dick Turpin struck out twice on Saturday.

Burns, of Rochester, Cobourg's third baseman, is a dandy.

Connors made one of the prettiest catches of the day, scooping up the ball from his toes.

"Shorty" Burridge was there with the willow, alright, alright.

Cheatham had hard luck with his hitting. He pounded the ball every time.

The long grass in the Cobourg outfield made it difficult for the fielders.

Chris. Graham was put down and out for a few minutes by colliding with the fence in front of the grand stand while trying to get a fly. (The fence is too near the diamond.)

It was a hard blow for Cobourg. They expected an easy victory but received an awful drubbing instead.

The locals will practice every night this week. They realize what is ahead of them next Saturday at Port Hope.

The Cobourg fans thought Burns was Quinlan and called him "Prunes" throughout the game.

Blake Crawford was as pleased over Peterborough's win as a boy with a new red waggon. Too bad that his aggregation will have to get trimmed on Saturday.

Oh we are timely hitters,
And good base runners too.
We've forgot more about the gol durn game
Than your team ever knew.
Wait till you see us hitting.
Watch how we make them fly,
If you think that you can beat us,
Why don't you try, why don't you try.

The above parody is one of the victory songs of the Peterborough team and they can tear it off in great shape.

Prince Edward County canning factories have just been submitted to a rigid examination.

FOR THE HOSTESS.

Piazza Teas Are Popular and May Be Ornamental.

Now that the warm days are at hand a very enjoyable form of afternoon entertainment is the piazza tea. Let your own circle of friends know that upon a certain afternoon of the week you will be glad to receive them and that a cup of tea and a "bite" may be expected and see how generally your invitation will be accepted.

It is no longer merely a cup of tea and a slice of thin bread and butter that may be expected between 4 and 5:30 o'clock. Jam has been added to the list, and often hot Scotch scones and English muffins. Beside the tea table proper there stands usually a sort of rack table, pyramidal in shape and having three shelves, one above the other and round like plates. Each one is then covered with attractive china holding some fascinating biscuit or cake. Jam of one or two kinds is suggested in between them, and after the hostess has ascertained which jam and biscuit her guest prefers she spreads it for him herself before passing it on a small plate. This little attention appears very gracious.

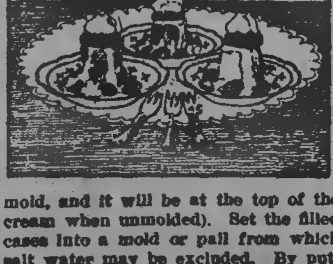
Among the biscuits those of "health food" reputation are often found, and the jam is spread over them to add to their somewhat questionable tastiness. Other hostesses have fine, small flat wafers of whole wheat covered with chocolate in their own kitchens before serving. They are then above reproach to pass with tea. The biscuit itself is digestible, the chocolate tasty and nourishing. Biscuits covered with cheese, on the contrary, while highly agreeable to the taste, are avoided by those hypercareful about their diet.

Sliced lemon, which is preferred in general to cream or milk with afternoon tea, has also a little extra trimming. From two to three cloves are stuck in the soft part of each slice with the object of giving an extra flavor to the tea. It is desirable, however, to test the brand of tea with the cloves before serving it to friends, as some blends of tea are affected much more agreeably by the addition of cloves than others. Again, sliced limes are served instead of lemon with delicately flavored teas. By many they are liked exceedingly, while others regard the innovation leniently as one of the season's novelties.

When cake appears at afternoon tea, the fashion rages for a rich poundcake, showing through it many large raisins. Europeans invariably refer to it as "American plum cake" and regard it as a specialty of this country. In entertaining foreigners, therefore, it is perhaps the most acceptable cake to offer.

Strawberry Ice Cream Panache.

The term panache is given to a preparation made up of two kinds or more of the principal article, in this case ice cream and whipped cream. This dish might also be called individual strawberry charlotte glace, the ice cream being molded with lady fingers. To prepare this dish, cut lady fingers in halves crosswise; set five pieces or more into a paper case, then fill the case with ice cream to the top of the lady fingers (put the rounded end of the lady fingers at the bottom of the mold, and it will be at the top of the cream when unmolded). Set the filled cases into a mold or pail from which salt water may be excluded. By putting a paper between two or more layers of cases can be put into one mold. Cover carefully and pack in equal measures of ice and salt. In about an hour unmold the cases on to small plates. Have ready (for eight) a cup of cream, half a teaspoonful of vanilla and three level tablespoonfuls of sugar, beaten firm. Pipe a little cream on to the top of each mold of ice cream. On this set a macaroon and pipe a little cream above it. Also pipe cream around the base of the ice and decorate the cream with whole strawberries or slices of strawberries.



Joseph Martin will not run in Vancouver against W. J. Bowser.

The Midland League Standing

The situation in the Midland League is now at an interesting stage. The three teams are all in the running, although Peterborough, next to Port Hope, has the best chance. The locals have to win their next two games to tie with Port Hope for first place. Peterborough plays in Port Hope next Saturday and if they win and also defeat Cobourg here the following Saturday they will have completed the season with 8 wins and four losses. If Port Hope is defeated next Saturday they will also have have won 8 and lost 4 games. Cobourg's chances of remaining in the running depend upon Peterborough winning in Port Hope on Saturday. If the blue and white lose then Port Hope has the championship no matter how the Peterborough-Cobourg game results the following week end. If Peterborough wins from Port Hope and Cobourg can defeat the locals at Riverside the following Saturday Cobourg will then have 8 wins and four losses and will be tied with Port Hope, while Peterborough will be down and out.

Can Peterborough defeat Port Hope on Saturday? There seems no reason why the locals should not take Blake Crawford's aggregation into camp and they'll do it with a share of the luck. The boys are now playing fine ball and should finish the season on top. A big crowd of rooters is wanted to go to Port Hope on Saturday.

The standing of the league is as follows:—

	Won	Lost	P.Ct.
Port Hope	8	3	727
Cobourg	7	4	636
Peterborough	6	4	600

Peterboro' Man Gets the Honors

H. Cyril Hill Does Great Playing at Toronto

H. Cyril Hill, of Peterborough carried off the honors on the Canadian Cricket team against the American eleven in the international match, which commenced at Rosedale, Toronto yesterday afternoon. The visitors scored 207 runs for their innings, while the Canadians finished with 120 runs and Hill was responsible for 57 of these.

The Toronto papers speak highly of Hill's playing. The World says;

"Hill, the first man in, played steady, forceful cricket, and it was he alone who saved the side from utter collapse. With six wickets down for 31 the Canadians' case seemed well nigh hopeless, but fortunately, with Hill at the wicket till the end, the tail wagged merrily and the last four batsman succeeded in carrying the score to the satisfactory total, all things considered, of 120. There was something distinctly exciting in the way the tail players rose to the occasion, and pulled the Canadians somewhat out of their dilemma. Wookey largely helped to save the situation, as while he and Hill were still partners, the score was taken to 55, Wookey succumbing to a fast straight ball from Pelton. Hill, who now was firmly set, continued to help the score along and reached his fifty with Slather as his partner."

The Mail & Empire says;

"The batting honors of the day easily belong to Hill, who played patiently throughout the Canadians' venture, for nearly half the total, giving only one chance, and that a hard one in the slips after he reached the half century."

Improvements On Trent Canal

Steps Cut in Concrete Wall to Allow Canoeists to Land —Other Work in Progress

The work on the Trent Canal in the way of repairs and improvements is going steadily on. In the immediate neighborhood of the city several jobs are in progress, or have been completed, and the public, as well as the shipping interests, have been benefitted. The dredge Emmerson, which was making a new channel in the river near Danger Point, has for the past few days been engaged in deepening the harbor at Gore's Landing, so that the larger boats may enter and leave without the slightest interference.

Another force of men are engaged at Hall's Landing, putting in a new dock. Hall's Landing is situated on Rice Lake at the end of the road that runs south from Benafort to the lake.

CANOEISTS HELPED.

For a long time the owners of canoes and skiffs have made complaints about the condition of the landing at the Peterborough locks. After the dam was built it was impossible to reach the canoe slide with any degree of safety, and the canoeists have waged a war against the canal officials ever since. The place was undoubtedly a dangerous one, but it has been somewhat improved. The end of the concrete wall at the south end of the locks has been cut away, forming steps up to the top, and a hand railing has been placed along side. This enables the canoe men to come up the canal channel to the steps and there land and either carry the canoe over or tow it around to the side. The improvement will be appreciated by the canoe men.

WEDDING BELLS

FINLAY—BULLER

A quiet but pretty wedding was solemnized last evening at 9.20 o'clock at the Charlotte street Methodist parsonage when Miss Ethel Buller, eldest daughter of the late Jos. Buller, 381 Aylmer street, was united in marriage to Mr. Wesley Finlay, of this city. The ceremony was performed by Rev. H. M. Manning The bride was becomingly gowned in white duchess satin with white chiffon hat to match. The bride and groom were unattended. Many beautiful and costly presents were received by the bride, testifying to the high esteem in which she is held by a wide circle of friends. From the employees of the Peterborough Lock Co., where the bride had worked for the past twelve years she received a china dinner and tea set, a beautiful oak hall rack and a parlor table.

Mr. and Mrs. Finlay will reside on Dalhousie street.

Smoke Caused Alarm at Roys

Fire Could Not be Located But the Place Was Full of Smoke

Just before twelve o'clock noon today, Mr. R. M. Roy, the well known photographer, and his staff, received a big scare. Some one went into the public reception room and found it black with smoke. An alarm was at once given and the entire staff rushed to where it was supposed a fire was burning. The smoke was seemingly coming up through the floor and it smelled strongly of paper burning. An alarm was telephoned to the fire hall and the department arrived in a hurry. The funny part of it was that while the studio was filled with smoke, the location of the fire could not be ascertained. No one had burned paper in the studio and other occupants of the building claimed that they had no fire about their premises. Gradually the smoke cleared away and the firemen returned to the hall with the mystery unsolved.

Alexis Deroches, who escaped from Hamilton Asylum, was caught near Penetang.

Trouble is you don't assimilate your food, consequently the body is poorly nourished. The blood is thin, lacks those red corpuscles that denote health.

You can only prevent a total collapse by building up all the powers of the body with Ferrozone, which will surely make you well. Ferrozone creates tremendous appetite, increases the power of digestion, and insures perfect assimilation. Everything you eat is at once converted into nourishment.

FERROZONE makes rich, pure blood, a surplus of energy, new life for the nerves and all over-strained organs. Robust health will glow on the cheeks, jovial spirits, increased weight, and a clear, active brain will evidence a few of the benefits that follow Ferrozone.

GAINED 15 POUNDS.

Mr. H. A. Thurston, of 228 Vermont St. E., Indianapolis, Restored by Ferrozone.

"A year ago I took the grippe. I was as weak as a child. I was no longer able to eat. My blood was thin. My cheeks were white and hollow. Doctors gave me all kinds of medicine, but none of them brought me strength. My friends said I was wasting away with some slow disease, and I bade them good-bye. Then I heard of the wonderful Ferrozone. After three days it gave me an appetite. I gained strength and became cheerful. Under Ferrozone I improved steadily. I am well to-day. I weigh fifteen pounds heavier than ever before, and feel like a new man.
(Signed) "H. A. THURSTON."

The effect of Ferrozone is instant, yet permanent. For upbuilding and invigorating the listless and depressed it has no equal. It's the concentrated nourishment in Ferrozone that makes it so beneficial. We guarantee it contains no opiates, no alcohol, nothing but the most strengthening qualities known in medicine. Won't you use Ferrozone; it will surely make you well.

BUILD UP WITH FERROZONE!

Ferrozone Makes the Weak Strong—the Sick Well.

Germany is Highly Pleased; Government Makes Statement

Entirely Satisfied With Terms of Russo-British Entente.

Meeting of Kaiser and Czar Comes at Opportune Moment — Agreement With Great Britain Will Not Affect Their Traditional Friendship—Sovereigns Witness Naval Manoeuvres—Czar Decorates Officers.

Berlin, Aug. 6.—The Russian Foreign Minister, M. Iswolsky, communicated to Chancellor von Buelow on Saturday, the terms of the Russo-British agreement.

The German Government has indicated its entire satisfaction, nothing therein being regarded as detrimental to German interests.

The agreement almost altogether concerns the status quo in Asia, especially in Persia.

True to Tradition.

St. Petersburg, Aug. 6.—Public opinion here, while impressed with the ceremoniousness of the Swinemunde meeting, to which the unfrequency of Emperor Nicholas' visits abroad adds interest, nevertheless attaches importance thereto only as affecting the progress of the Anglo-Russian negotiations, which will soon come to a close.

The choice of the time for the interview, just preceding the conclusion of the Anglo-Russian accord, taken as a demonstration of fact that the traditional friendship of the Russian and German courts, remain intact and has not been affected by the newer friendships.

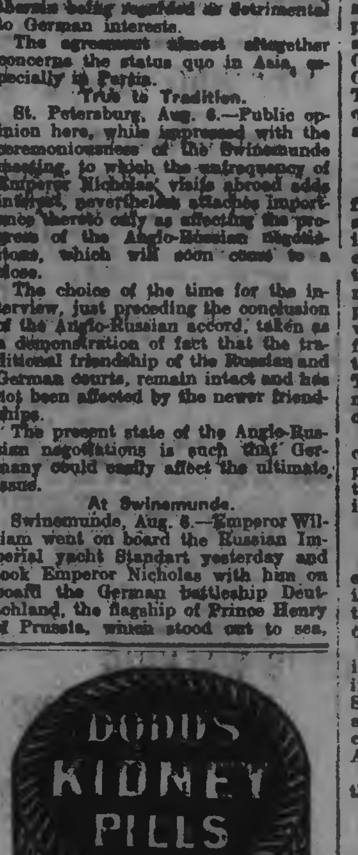
The present state of the Anglo-Russian negotiations is such that Germany could easily affect the ultimate issue.

At Swinemunde.

Swinemunde, Aug. 6.—Emperor William went on board the Russian Imperial yacht Standart yesterday and took Emperor Nicholas with him on board the German battleship Deutschland, the flagship of Prince Henry of Prussia, which stood out to sea, followed by 30 warships, battleships and cruisers, to take part in a series of manoeuvres.

Emperor William conducted divine service on board the royal yacht Hohenzollern Sunday morning. Emperor Nicholas was present. At noon Emperor William, with Prince von Buelow, the Imperial chancellor, and his suite, attended a special service and had luncheon aboard the Russian royal yacht Standart. During the afternoon the party witnessed races between launches and cutters from the warships. The two Emperors presented the prizes to the victorious crews.

Prince Henry of Prussia, commander of the German fleet, gave a dinner aboard the battleship Deutschland in the evening to the Emperors and their suites. Emperor Nicholas presented Prince von Buelow with his portrait in enamel, set with brilliants and conferred the Alexander Nevsky Order on Herr von Tschirsky, the German War Minister, Admiral von Tirpitz, Gen. Count Huelsen-Haeseler, chief of the German Military Cabinet, and Gen. von Schell.



Exciting New York Fire.

New York, Aug. 6.—A spectacular fire, which for a time threatened to spread to two large office buildings in which thousands of persons are employed, threw Lower Broadway into great excitement yesterday afternoon. The fire started in a five-storey paint shop on Fulton street. There was an explosion and great sheets of flames threatened the big buildings of the Western Union Telegraph Co. and The Evening Mail. Several of the women fainted, but they were carried out by their comrades.

Mounted police rode through the crowd, pressing back the excited people and making lanes through which the fleeing persons from the two building made their way to safety.

Merchantmen Warriors.

The Hague, Aug. 6.—A special secret committee has rejected the British proposition that the transformation of merchantmen into warships on the high seas shall be forbidden.

A majority of nine votes was given in support of the British view, these including Italy, Japan and the United States. The minority consisting of seven votes, supporting the right of conversion, included Russia, France, Austria and Germany.

As a unanimous vote was required the proposition was lost.

Railway President Arrested.

New York, Aug. 6.—Ralph Peters, president of the Long Island Railroad, who with General Manager McCrea, was held responsible by a coroner's jury for the deaths of Dr. Gallagher and Miss Madigan when an automobile collided with a Long Island Railroad train at St. Alban's crossing, was arrested yesterday at Jamaica and held in $10,000 bail for the grand jury.

LYNCH LAW IN NEW YORK.

Police Have Hard Time in Saving Suspect From Mob.

New York, Aug. 6.—The fact that twice Sunday mob vengeance held sway and lynching was narrowly averted, has added to the seriousness of the situation of this city, caused by the series of crimes in which women and young girls are the victims.

The mob attacks reveal a state of public exasperation, approaching frenzy, which, it is feared, may lead to serious disorder.

Prompt action by the police alone saved the two men attacked on Sunday from summary justice and probably, in the case of George Kaspar, a Russian bookbinder, around whose neck a mob had tied a rope, when the police reached the scene in force.

It is noteworthy that an old man who was attacked, Louis Coneonela, was innocent of any attempt at crime, and indicates how readily a mistake can be made in time of public agitation of excitement. A little girl on the street was slapped by a boy acquaintance, who ran when she began to cry. A man started after the boy, and others joined in the chase. Coneonela distanced the rest a few yards and when the boy disappeared down the alley the man was mistaken by the crowd for the offender and was terribly kicked and beaten.

The police are bending every effort to give adequate police protection, and 1,000 men in plain clothes have been scattered about the city, particularly in the congested quarters, the scene of most of the assaults.

The first organized body to take up the question is the Central Federated Union, which has appointed a committee to call on the mayor with a demand that he take action that will put a stop upon attacks on children. It was stated that if the city authorities do not quickly stop the crimes, Governor Hughes will be appealed to.

Late Sunday night the police received news of shot or attack. It occurred in the suburb of Richefold Hill. Jennie Smith, 22 years old, was attacked by two men on her way home. Her screams brought assistance, and one of the assailants was captured.

The arraignment of two Italians yesterday in a Brooklyn court disclosed another attempt made Sunday night to assault a young woman. The two assailants were nearly lynched by a mob, which was finally driven off by the police. The Italians were overpowering Miss Sadie Hasenflug and her fiance, when the girl's screams brought a crowd, which gave chase to the men.

Cases of assault and missing children are to have precedence over other cases in the police department.

WOMAN CHOKED; ESCORT DYING

Shocking Crime in Outskirts of Dayton, Ohio, on Sunday.

Dayton, Ohio, Aug. 6.—Abe Gordon, a traveling salesman of this city, was shot and probably fatally wounded, and his companion, Anna Markowitz, assaulted and choked to death Sunday night, near this city. The murderer escaped and no arrests have been made.

Jacob C. Howitz and Markowitz, brothers, and Bertha, a sister, called at police headquarters yesterday to enquire about the crime, and their actions resulted in their arrest. The brothers admitted they followed Gordon, who is also known as Cohan, to Lakeside Park, as the family objected to his keeping company with either of the Markowitz sisters, but they pleaded ignorance of the shocking crime.

Gordon was walking with Anna and Bertha Markowitz when the crime occurred. What happened has up to this time not been clearly developed.

The story of Bertha, when she rushed breathless and terror-stricken to the Soldiers' Home, was that while her sister, young Gordon and herself were strolling along a secluded path a highwayman slipped unheard behind Gordon and struck him with a black-jack. Gordon, she says, turned about, and as he did so the highwayman shot him in the stomach.

As Gordon fell she says the man made a rush for either herself or her sister, and she ran, screaming, from the scene.

Shoots Man; Jumps Six Stories.

New York, Aug. 6.—Frank Gertinger, 27 years of age, an electrician, was shot and killed in East 83rd street by Teresa Stein, 37 years old, married, who then jumped from the sixth storey window to the street. She was taken to the Presbyterian Hospital, a prisoner.

Pangs of Jealousy.

Kingston, N.Y., Aug. 6.—Fred Apright of Ulster Heights, N.Y., Sunday night shot Miss Flora Wright and then committed suicide. He was a suitor of Miss Wright, but imagined he had a rival. Miss Wright will recover.

Strangles Two Babes.

Baltimore, Md., Aug. 6.—While insane, Mrs. Christine Nenadal, aged 26 years, yesterday strangled her two small children, Mary, aged 2 years, and Yaroslaw, aged 1 year and 3 months. She is under arrest.

Goes to Asylum.

Paris, Aug. 6.—Leon Maille, the naval reservist, who fired two revolver shots at President Fallières on the streets of Paris, July 14, was yesterday declared to be insane and was sent to an asylum.

An Alderman In Trouble.

Edmonton, Alta., Aug. 6.—Judge Scott, who has been investigating charges of improper conduct against Ald. McCauley, has made his report to council. The alderman will likely be asked to resign.

The Manager Of the B. & A.

By VAUGHAN KESTER

Copyright, 1901, by Harper & Brothers

A roar of laughter greeted this sally.

"That may be," retorted Oakley hotly, "but Antioch has been getting its share of his money too. Don't forget that. There's not a storekeeper in this audience whose bank account will not show in hard American dollars what General Cornish does for Antioch when Antioch is willing to let him do for it. But, granted that what you have said is true, who can best afford to meet the present situation, General Cornish or these men? On whom does the hardship fall heavier, on them or on him?"

"That was not the spirit which prevailed at Bunker Hill and Lexington! No, thank God; our fathers did not stop to count the cost, and we have our battles today just as vital to the cause of humanity, and I for one would rather see the strong arm of labor wither in its socket than submit to wrong or injustice!"

Oakley choked down his disgust and moved toward the door. There were applause and one or two cat calls. Not heeding them, he made his way from the building. He had reached the street when a detaining hand was placed upon his arm. He turned savagely, but it proved to be only Turner Joyce, who stepped to his side, with a cheerful "Good evening, Mr. Oakley. They seem to be having a very gay time in there, don't they?"

"Have you been in?" demanded Oakley grimly.

"I? Oh, no! I have just been taking a picture home?"

"Well," said Oakley, "I have just been making a fool of myself. I hope that is something you are never guilty of, Mr. Joyce." Joyce laughed and tucked his hand through his companion's arm.

"Doesn't every one do that occasionally?" he asked.

Dan shook off his bitterness. Recently he had been seeing a great deal of the little artist and his wife, who were about the only friends he or his father had left in Antioch. They walked on in silence. Joyce was too tactful to ask any questions concerning his friend's affairs, so he ventured an impersonal criticism on Kenyon, with the modest diffidence of a man who knows he is going counter to public sentiment.

"Neither Ruth nor I had any curiosity to hear him speak tonight. I heard him when he was here last. It may be my bringing up, but I do like things that are not altogether rotten, and I'm afraid I count him as sort of decayed." Then he added, "I suppose everybody was at the rink tonight?"

"The place was packed."

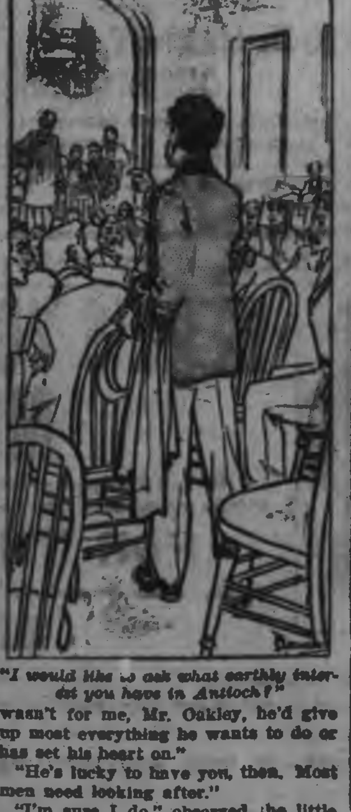
"It promises to be a lively campaign, I believe, but I take very little interest in politics. My own concerns occupy most of my time. Won't you come in, Mr. Oakley?" for they had reached his gate.

On the little side porch which opened off the kitchen they found Ruth. She rose with a pleased air of animation when she saw who was with her husband. Oakley had lived up to his reputation as a patron of the arts. He had not forgotten, in spite of his anxieties, a promise made Joyce months before, and at that very moment safely bestowed in Mrs. Joyce's possession were two formidable looking strips of heavy pink paper, which guaranteed the passage of the holder to New York and return.

"I hope this confounded strike is not going to interfere with you, Mr. Joyce," said Oakley as he seated himself. He had discovered that they liked to talk about their own plans and hopes, and the trip east was the chief of these. Already he had considered it with them from every conceivable point of view.

"It is aggravating, for, of course, if people haven't money they can't very well afford to have pictures painted. But Ruth is managing splendidly. I really don't think it will make any special difference."

"I am determined Turner shall not miss this opportunity. I think if it wasn't for me, Mr. Oakley, he'd give up most everything he wants to do or has set his heart on."



"I would like to ask what earthly interest you have in Antioch?"

"He's lucky to have you, then. Most men need looking after."

"I'm sure I do," observed the little artist, with an amendable meekness. He was keenly alive to his own shortcomings. "I'd never get any sort of prices for my work if she didn't take a hand in the bargaining."

"Some one has to be mercenary," said Ruth apologetically. "It's all very well to go around with your head in the clouds, but it doesn't pay."

"No, it doesn't pay," agreed Dan.

There was a long pause, which a cricket improved to make itself heard above the sweep of the night wind through the treetops. Then Ruth said: "I saw Miss Emory today. She asked about you."

Mrs. Joyce and her husband had taken a passionate interest in Oakley's love affair and divined the utter wreck of his hopes.

"Did she? I saw her at the rink, too, but of course not to speak with."

Turner Joyce trod gently but encouragingly on his wife's foot. He felt that Oakley would be none the worse for a little cheer, and he had unbounded faith in his wife's delicacy and tact. She was just the person for such a message.

"She seemed—that is, I gathered from what she said, and it wasn't so much what she said as what she didn't say"—

Dan laughed outright, and Joyce joined in with a panic stricken chuckle. Ruth was making as bad a botch of the business as he could have made.

"I am not at all sensitive," said Dan, with sudden candor. "I have admired her immensely; I do still, for the matter of that."

"Then why don't you go there?"

"I can't, Mrs. Joyce. You know why."

"But I think she looks at it differently now."

Oakley shook his head.

"No, she doesn't. There's just one way she can look at it."

"Women are always changing their minds," persisted Ruth. It occurred to her that Constance had been at her worst in her relation with Oakley. If she cared a scrap for him, why hadn't she stood by him when he needed it most? The little artist blinked tenderly at his wife. He was lost in admiration at her courage. He would not have dared to give their friend this comfort.

The conversation languished. They heard the strains of the band when the meeting at the rink broke up and the voices of the people on the street, and then there was silence again.

CHAPTER XVI.

THE hot days dragged on. Dan and his father moved down to the shops. Two cots were placed in the pattern room, where they slept and where Roger Oakley spent most of his time reading his Bible or in brooding over the situation. Their meals were brought to them from the hotel. It was not that Dan suspected the men of any sinister intentions, but he felt it was just as well that they should understand the utter futility of any lawlessness, and, besides, his father was much happier in the solitude of the empty shops than he could have been elsewhere in Antioch. All day long he followed McClintock about, helping with such odd jobs as were necessary to keep the machinery in perfect order. He was completely crushed and broken in spirit. He had aged too.

At the office Dan saw only Holt and McClintock. Sick of Kerr's presence and exasperated at his evident sympathy for the strikers—a sympathy he was at no pains to conceal—he had laid him off, a step that was tantamount to dismissal. Miss Walton was absent on her vacation, which he extended from week to week. It was maddening to him to have her around with nothing to do, for he and Holt found it difficult to keep decently busy themselves now the shops had closed.

Holloway, the vice president of the road, visited Antioch just once during the early days of the strike. He approved—being of an approving disposition—of all Oakley had done and then went back home to Chicago, after telling him not to yield a single point in the fight.

"We've got to starve 'em into submission," said this genial soul. "There's nothing like an empty stomach to sap a man's courage, especially when he's got a houseful of hungry, squalling brats. I don't know but what you'd better arrange to get in foreigners. Americans are too independent."

But Oakley was opposed to this. "The men will be glad enough to accept the new scale of wages a little later, and the lesson won't be wasted on them."

To be continued.

HAYWOOD RETURNS HOME.

Receives an Ovation From Many Thousands of People at Denver.

Denver, Colo., Aug. 6.—The celebration tendered William Haywood, who recently was acquitted of connection with the murder of ex-Governor Steunenberg of Idaho, on his return here from Boise Sunday night, was considerably curtailed by the lateness of the hour.

Plans for a great gathering of persons at the station to be followed by an open-air meeting, were abandoned, and, instead, a committee of 100 labor unionists was on hand to welcome him. A crowd of several thousand persons, despite the lateness of the hour, was also on hand.

When Haywood stepped from the train, supporting his invalid wife, a great cheer went up from the crowd. A rush for the gates was made, and the police were obliged to use force before the gates could be opened. A space less than three feet wide was opened.

As Haywood walked up this file, hundreds of hands were stretched towards him, but his solicitude for his wife, caused him to resist the desire to grasp the many hands extended. Continued cheering greeted him, and his face was all smiles.

When Haywood saw his wife seated in a carriage he stood on the rear seat of the open carriage and waved his hat at the cheers. The crowd joined with him and for several minutes the roar of cheers continued. Half a hundred men started to unhitch the horses and attach a rope so that they could drag the conveyance up the street. Haywood requested that they forego this expression of regard, and they desisted. It took several minutes to clear the streets. Then the horses pulling Haywood's carriage started away at a brisk trot.

MR. BOURASSA MOBBED

Angry Crowd Prevent Member For Labelle Making Speech.

Meeting at Quebec Broken Up—Shower of Stones Fell on Hustings—Mob Led Charivari — Several Arrests Made by Police—Speakers Retire Amid Volley of Missiles—Fifteen Hundred Were Present.

Quebec, Aug. 6.—Mr. Henri Bourassa, the member for Labelle, was announced to deliver an address on provincial politics at a meeting last night in St. Roch, but failed to get much of a hearing. The meeting was held on the Jacques Cartier market square, and from 1,000 to 1,500 people were present. Mr. Bourassa was accompanied by Mr. Armand Lavergne and others. From the first it was evident that trouble was brewing. Mr. Lavergne, who spoke first, was frequently interrupted, and a few missiles were thrown. Mr. Bourassa when he rose to speak was greeted by a section of the crowd with derisive cheers, and his remarks were almost drowned by singing and noise. A number of missiles were also thrown. Finally some semblance of order was restored, and he went on with his remarks, going into such provincial questions as education, colonization and public lands, mines, etc. Then the storm broke out again. The noise, shouting and singing continued with intensified force, and stones, eggs and other missiles again began to fly. Several of those in the speaker's stand were hit. Finding it impossible to continue his remarks, Mr. Bourassa and his friends retired, and the meeting came to a close.

During the uproar the police made a half-dozen arrests of parties in the crowd.

SERIOUS AT BELFAST.

Efforts Made to Settle the Strike Are Unavailing.

Belfast, Aug. 6.—The strike situation here is again grave.

The efforts made to settle the carters' dispute have failed and all negotiations on the subject have been broken off.

The carters declare they will fight to a finish.

The coalmen's dispute has again broken out involving two important firms. Police who were protecting wagons yesterday were stoned by millworkers.

Further transfers of members of the Irish constabulary have been effected.

Russ General Murdered.

Piatigorsk, Caucasus, Aug. 6.—Gen. Karakozoff, ex-governor-general of Odessa, was shot and instantly killed in the centre of the town yesterday morning. The assassins escaped. While Gen. Karakozoff was governor-general of Odessa he took severe measures to repress disturbances. He was succeeded by Gen. Kaulbars in Oct. 24, 1905.

Was Tired of Life.

Fredericton, N.B., Aug. 6.—With the excuse that he was "tired of life," Hezekiah Estabrooks, one of the oldest residents of Marysville, was found yesterday morning with his throat cut in three places.

He is 87 years old and a prominent man. His wife died several years ago and lately he has been melancholy.

Thos. N. Doutney Will Lecture

On Non-abusive Temperance—Education Not Coercion is His System

Thos. N. Doutney ,for over twenty five years well and favorably known in Canada and the United States as a non-political, non-sectarian and non-abusive temperance lecturer and worker, is in the city. This spring and summer he has held most successful meetings in Kingston and other sections of Ontario. In fact he has lectured and worked in all the leading cities and larger towns of Canada and the United States, though this is his first visit to Peterborough. Mr. Doutney hopes to lecture here in the near future, if he can make arrangements to do so. He has ideas of his own. He is strongly opposed to prohibition and local option. He says neither one is expedient or practical and that public sentiment by usage and actual practice is against it. He claims the only reason why liquor is sold is because there is a demand for it. He believes in education not coercion, and that Gospel temperance is the only road to success in these lines. Mr. Doutney argues if temperance work was separated from politics, that it would be a great success, and that if the temperance people would make friends with hotel bar owners, brewers, distillers and liquor dealers, and co-operate with them to better conditions, that it would work wonders for temperance respect for law, and further, that such a union of forces would quickly do away with dives and the lower order of bar rooms. Mr. Doutney claims that the traffic is no more responsible for the making of drunkards than is the butcher for gluttony. "Don't abuse those engaged in the traffic, or anyone else, for that matter Win all transgressors to right doing," says Mr. Doutney. "I know the distillers brewers, liquor dealers and hotel bar owners are a generous set of men. They never refuse help for any benevolent or charitable purpose. They are always approached for help. There are some engaged in the business to whom licenses never should have been given. Co-operation with the general traffic on the part of temperance workers will surely remedy that defect. I never go anywhere to create discord. I simply want, as a means of promoting temperance and being fair with the liquor traffic, to present both sides of the question, in an honest, fair and unbiased manner. All my lectures, talks and work are entirely free. I leave myself in the hands of the public for my expenses."

Mr. Doutney's father was a journalist and many years ago was on the editorial staff of the Montreal Gazette and other leading papers in Montreal and the Province of Quebec

NEW PAVILION WAS OPENED

Important Event Last Evening at Crowe's Landing

The handsome new pavilion at Crowe's Landing, built by the Upper Stony Lake Cottagers' Association, was formally opened last evening under most auspicious circumstances. The affair took the form of a concert, at which a number of speeches and a musical programme were given. The concert was followed by a delightful hop. The attendance was very large, and not only included the upper lake cottagers, but a great many were present from all points on the lake. Mr. J. R. Stratton's launch, the "Alberta," brought about thirty people up, and several more launches from lower Stony Lake brought their share of passengers.

Mr John Davidson, of Norwood, officiated in the capacity of chairman, and in his opening remarks welcomed those present, and especially those from Lower Stony Lake.

The following was the musical programme given;—

Vocal Solo—Miss Duffield.
Vocal Solo—Mrs. J. Davidson.
Vocal Solo—Mr. Roxboro.
Instrumental Solo—Miss Mitchell.

Miss Gould acted as accompaniste for the evening.

During the evening short addresses were given by Messrs John Finlay, Norwood; J. R. Stratton and R. J. Wench, and by Mr. Robins, who is the oldest settler in the vicinity of Crowe's Landing.

After the concert a couple of hours were pleasantly spent in dancing.

Children's Aid Society Accept City's Offer for a New Shelter

Officers Were Authorized to Enter into an Agreement Wite the City to Spend Certain Money on Repairs—Mr. and Mrs. Henry Will Continue in Charge of the Children.

A special meeting of the Children's Aid Society was held yesterday afternoon in the City Council Chamber for the purpose of receiving the report of the special committee, appointed to consider the question of acquiring a shelter. Those present were Messrs. J. H. Burnham, E. L. Goodwill, George Cochrane, G. I. Roszel, John Butcher, Rev Dr. Langfeldt, Mayor McWilliams, County Magistrate Edmison, Father McColl, Peter Campbell, Rev. J. G. Potter ,Mrs. Birdsall, and Mrs. Best. The president, Mr. J. H. Burnham, was in the chair.

The Special Committee met first, and the following report was prepared, to be presented to the Society for ratification:—

The committee appointed at the special general meeting of the officers and Board of Management of the Children's Aid Society ,held on the 17th day of July, 1907, recommend that the offer of the City Council, as conferred in by the City Trust, Trust, granting to the Society as a nominal rental for a term of twenty-one years, the old Hilliard house and part of the grounds adjacent hereto, that the agreement on the part of the Children's Aid Society's officers that a certain sum be spent in the required permanent improvements, be accepted.

When the above report was presented to the Society it was moved by Mr Matthews, and seconded by Rev. Father McColl, that the report of the committee appointed to consider the question of acquiring a shelter be adopted, and that the officers of the Society be empowered to continue negotiations and have all the necessary powers to enter into a lease and make contracts for the improvements of the premises, and that the special committee be discharged. —Carried.

Mr. Henry, caretaker of the Shelter, was asked if he would still retain his position after the Society went into their new quarters. He expressed himself as willing to keep the position, if the Society could arrange with the Board of Education to give him the position of caretaker of the North Ward School, and the present caretaker of the North Ward school exchange with Mr. Henry for the South Ward school. Mr. Baker, of the North Ward school, resides in the south end ,and it is understood that he is willing to make the change.

Kawartha Lake Regattas Bigger and Better Than Ever

Sturgeon Point on Thursday—Stony Lake on Civic Holiday and Chemong Park on Thursday Aug 15—Splendid Programmes Have Been Prepared.

Everyone is looking forward with pleasure to the three big regattas on the Kawartha Lakes. These events are the greatest features in the sporting life of the great chain of beautiful lakes. Scores of boat owners and hundreds of cottagers, and tourists talk of the regattas and the merits of the different boats, and the sailors for weeks before the appointed day and when the day arrives there is great excitement from one end of the lakes to the other. Excursions are run from all directions and everyone who can get in a boat at all turns out.

This year is no exception, in fact the interest is a little keener, if anything. The Sturgeon Point regatta comes first. The great day at that popular resort is Thursday, August 8th. Stony Lake is Monday, August 12th, Peterborough's Civic Holiday, and there will be a very large contingent go up from the city. Chemong Park comes last, on Thursday, August 15th.

All the committees in charge of the regattas have arranged very attractive programmes. There will be dinghy races, canoe races, skiff races, tug-of-war in canoes, etc. There will be lots of sport and everyone will have a good time. The Chemong Cottagers' Association and Yacht Club will run an excursion to both the Sturgeon Point and Stony Lake regattas from the park per steamer Ogemah. Special arrangements have been made for 'busses to leave Peterborough in time to connect with the steamer at Chemong. Full particulars can be had at Bruce Lee & Co's livery barn.

More Stormy Weather in Store Extends from the 10th to 14th

Poor Prospects for the Civic Holiday and Peterborough Races on the 12th to 14th—Possibility of Frost in Northern Districts Last Week in August.

A reactionary storm period is central on the 5th, 6th and 7th, on and about which days may be expected a return of storm conditions. The warmth will increase, the barometer will fall and cloudiness will grow into decided areas of storminess and precipitation. A regular storm period extends from the 10th to the 14th. It is central on the 12th and will come to a crisis centrally between east and west extremes of the country on Tuesday and Wednesday the 13th and 14th. If you are far west you will get your storm a day or two earlier you who are far to the east will read of the storms before they reach you.

A reactionary storm period is central on the 17th, 18th and 19th. As this period begins it will grow much warmer, first in the west the barometer will fall and reactionary storms of rain, wind and thunder will pass eastwardly across the country, reaching their culminating stages on and touching the 18th and 19th. A regular storm period covers in perturbing power the 21st to the 26th. During this period the moon passes in perigree on the 21st, full on the 23rd and the celestial equator which is central in September, will also effect storm and weather conditions at this period. This period may also be put down as decided seismic" period, centering on the 23rd and covering the whole period. The telegraph will report seismic shakes in widely different parts of our planet. The barometer will also give timely indications of active inland storms between the 22nd and 26th. In case of low barometric conditions in the south northerly winds and high barometer will follow inland storms from the northwest making frosts more than a possibility in northern sections during the last week in Aug.

Port Hope After The Grand Trunk

Town Council Passed Strong Resolution to the Attorney General of Ontario

Port Hope, Aug. 5.—At the regular meeting of the town council tonight, the following resolution was passed, after very little discussion, the majority of the members being in accord with the movement, which was carried unanimously;—

"Whereas, as a recent decision of the railway commission, the Grand Trunk Railway has been ordered to supply the general public with a third class passage between Toronto and Montreal at two cents per mile, as provided for in their charter.

"And whereas the people of this country contributed largely by subsidies and otherwise in the construction of railways;

"And, whereas, by the enforcement of this order immediate relief will be afforded the people;

"It is therefore moved by Reeve McLean, seconded by Deputy-Reeve Long, that this council humbly petition the Minister of Justice, Minister of Railways and the Attorney-General of the Province of Ontario to compel the Grand Trunk Railway to observe the conditions of their charter, thereby affording a substantial relief to the people of this country, and that the clerk be instructed to forward a copy of this resolution to the above named Ministers."

The reduction in the first-class return fare from Port Hope to Toronto to a three cent a mile basis, secured by the former order of the railway commission, saves the people of Port Hope 30 cents a trip.

At Varennes Miss Eileen Hingston, only daughter of the late Sir William Hingston, and Mr. Shirley Davidson, son of Mr. Justice Davidson, went out for a sail. Some hours afterward the empty boat was found and the young people are feared to have been drowned.

Lindsay People Want Trains Labled and Praise Mayor McWilliams

The Lindsay Post says;

Mayor McWilliams, of Peterborough is moving in a very desirable direction, regarding the train service. It is not a matter of enormous importance; if it were, it would be quickly attended to. It is one of those multitudinous minor matters that cause the continuous irritatoin that makes life such a strain and destroys the nervous system. Trains are not labelled as they should be, and the consequence is that a vast amount of unnecessary uncertainty prevails, and very frequently mistakes are made. Mistakes would occurr with far greater frequency were it not that the travelling public, knowing danger, are, as a rule, ready to warn those less well informed. This state should not exist; the railway companies should have their trains so labelled that there could be no mistake, and no uncertainty. It would not be a costly undertaking to have a board on the side of a car stating the destination of the train. At junctional points and large stations, it is most necessary to have these labels. A traveller leaving Bobcaygeon would not need a label on the train, for there are but two leaving each day, but at Burketon Junction the labelled car is very much needed, for the person who seldom travels, is not to be expected to know which is east or west, and naturally takes the first train that comes in. If the trains on the main line were labelled Toronto or Montreal, there would be no danger of a Peterborough passenger being landed in Toronto. Grand Trunk trains at Lindsay, and Blackwater need labelling, in fact there is no reason why every train should not carry a board indicating its destination, and the matter might well be brought before the railway commission and made general throughout the province.

STOCK MARKET QUOTATIONS

New York, Aug. 6.—Developments this morning showed a pressure of long stock and liquidation was allowed to run its course. There is an impression that some further necessity selling was taking place, although this is hard to confirm, as usual. The market showed a withdraw of support, as it did yesterday afternoon. The raiding, therefore, was successful. Severe declines were forced in Union Pac., Smelters, Amal. Copper and Reading particularly and the general market suffered quite severely from liquidation and short selling. The closing was heavy.

Are Spending Too Much Money

Montreal Banker Says People are Buying too Many Cigars and Pianos

Montreal, Aug. 5.—The people of Canada are spending too much money on cigars and pianos. They spend too much and are not saving enough" This formed part of the reply made today by Mr. James Elliott, general manager of Molsons Bank, when asked for an expression of opinion on the present financial stringency.

"What will relieve the situation?"

"Well, a good crop."

"Is the crop likely to be good?"

"Yes; our reports are such as to indicate that it will be well up to the average. It has fallen off in some places and increased in others, but, on the whole, it will be of good average."

Chief Johnston On His Holidays

Has a Party of Scugog Indians Fishing at Pleasant Point

Dave Elliott, a Scugog Lake Indian and a number of his tribesmen, passed through town this morning to join Chief Johnston at Pleasant Point. The [illegible] number of Scugog island [illegible] have congregated, and are engaged in fishing operations. The law forbids fishing in Scugog lake or river above the locks, and the red men respect the close season.

Elliott was the dusky tribesman who recently was in search of some scientific instrument which could locate buried gold. A legend of the Scugog Island tribe tells of a chest of treasure captured from the Americans during the war of 1812, over which a civil war was fought, the tribe being almost annihilated. The survivors, so the tale relates, buried the chest to prevent further dissensions. Like the hunters of Captain Kidd's lost treasure, the copper-skinned aborigines, think they will come across the chest some day.—Lindsay Post.

IS INCOMPLETE

To the Editor of the Review.

Sir,—Notwithstanding the extra judicial opinion of the learned Medical Health Officer, the Board of Health has seen fit to publish the results of the milk tests. We have been favored with the percentages of the butter fat and nothing more. What perticularly concerns the public is the adulteration, which may be present, notwithstanding the presence of butter fat. The absence of butter fat is of minor importance than the presence of deleterious ingredients. In fine the test is incomplete and does not safeguard the public.

Was Disorderly After Midnight

Woman Paid $10 and Costs and Three Men Paid $2 and Costs

The city coffers were considerably enriched as a result of this morning's police court, and $27.25 was placed in the treasury. City Treasurer Frank Adams was again on the bench, in the absence of Police Magistrate Dumble. A case of disorderly conduct was the chief item on the programme

Mrs. Shearer was charged with being disorderly last evening. She pleaded not guilty.

P.C Newhall was called. He stated that shortly after midnight Mrs. Shearer and another lady with a man, were driving along King street, and there were about eight men hanging on the back of the rig. The prisoner was almost drunk, and was shouting and yelling. The rig stopped several times to allow the other fellows to get on. The prisoner has a bad reputation, said the policeman, and nearly every night is seen driving with several men. Last night she resisted the police and she used indecent language.

Mrs. Shearer did not go into the box, but stated that she had lived here seven years. During the policeman's evidence she exclaimed, "I am decent and respectable, and no one can say that I am not."

"You are fined ten dollars and costs amounting to $13.75, to be paid forthwith or 60 days in gaol," said the presiding magistrate.

Mrs. Shearer had the necessary, and paid the fine, and was allowed her freedom.

Mick Lucano, an Italian, was one of the fellows riding with the two women. He also boards with Mrs. Shearer. When called to answer a charge of disorderly conduct he pleaded not guilty. But policeman Newhall was put in the box to give evidence. Lucano was fined $2, which was paid.

Two other men were fined $2 and costs, amounting to $3.75, for being disorderly, and were given ten days to pay it in.

For several days past a gang of men have been engaged on the Peterborough Lock Works property, building a concrete wall along the east side of the creek, which runs through there. The wall will run the entire length of the property, and after finished will be covered over and in the near future, it is expected, that another building will be added to the Company's large plant, and will be placed over the creek.

Young Torontos Defeated Peterborough in Overtime

Hard Fought Game at Riverside Pard Results in Favor of Visitors, 5—4—Score Was Even at End of Fourth Quarter—An Interesting Contest.

It took nearly twenty minutes of overtime to decide the winners of the Peterborough-Young Torontos C L.A. game at Riverside Park yesterday afternoon. With the score four all at the finish of the last quarter it was decided to play two five-minute periods, one each way, to break the tie. Five minutes was played and then the teams played five minutes more without result. The Young Torontos shot one by Backus just at the close of the last period, but the time keepers' whistle had blown and the game was not allowed. The visitors thought they should have been credited with it but the whistle had blown fully twenty seconds before the game was scored and it could not count. Then it was agreed to play ten minutes more, five each way, and both teams dug in at a great pace. The first five were unproductive of anything in the scoring line, but in the second period the visitors notched a goal and the game was theirs. It was a great finish and the excitement ran high among the spectators. Each goal was attacked repeatedly but both defences were strong, and the assailants were beaten off until the winning goal was notched.

It was the best game seen here this season and was witnessed by about 500 spectators. The locals should have won on the play, but the home did not seem effective against the strong defence of the visitors and from a spectator's viewpoint, it looked as if many opportunities to score were lost through failure to handle the ball properly at the critical moment. The local defence was all to the good but they had a busy afternoon, the Toronto home playing a dashing game, working a fine combination and missing no chances. The visitors were fleeter of foot than the Peterborough team as a whole, and travelled at a great pace throughout. The two goal keepers, Mitchell and Bachus both distinguished themselves, making many fine stops, some of them almost phenomenal. All the local team played well and are to be congratulated on the splendid game they put up. At times they played Jimmy Murphy's fine trained bunch off their feet, and were it not for the great work of the opposing defence, would have run up a big score. Dillon, Morgan, Derocher, McCabe and Mein played a fine defence game, and it was hard luck that they were beaten out. Morgan played brilliant lacrosse and along with McCabe frequently went down the field and helped out the home. Meagher, McGrath and Robertson covered a lot of ground around centre field, while Glover, Lynch and Best worked harder near the net.

Woods, the husky point man of the visitors, had a lacrosse stick almost as big as a half grown tree, and he used it in great shape, too. He picked out all kinds of hot shots and broke up repeated rushes. Brennan was also much in the limelight on the defence field. Lowes was perhaps the pick of the home, although all were good and worked together in fine style. "Dinny" Dobbin of Toronto, goalkeeper of the Beaverton Checkers, and incidentally an old Peterborough boy, was referee and gave satisfaction to both teams. The game was not rough, although there were a couple of injuries sustained. Mitchell received a crack on the head that necessitated some bandaging, while Crocker had his mouth hurt so severely in the last quarter that he had to retire for the rest of the game. Best going off to even up.

Lowes scored the first game for the visitors in eight minutes while McGrath was off for having slashed Mitchell. Murphy took the next in two minutes and than the home team scored, Lynch batting the ball into the net on a nice pass from Glover. Morgan went off for five minutes and Woods followed suit for slashing Glover. Lowes scored another for the visitors just before the close of the quarter.

The visitors took another one in the second period, Morrison doing the trick. Then Peterborough came back with another one, Best scoring on a pass from Morgan.

In the third quarter Peterborough scored another one, Best beating out Mitchell on a pass from McCabe. Meagher was off for five minutes.

Just after the fourth quarter started Lynch went off for five minutes for slashing and after his return Morgan scored on a pass from Best. This made the tally four all and the best lacrosse of the day was then played. Brennan got five minutes for hitting Robertson and then Crocker was hurt and had to retire for the rest of the game. Lynch was judged responsible for the injury and went off for the rest of the game. Best was dropped to even up for Crocker's absence and Peterborough finished the game ten men against eleven. The last part of the game, the extra time, has already been described. Lowes scored the winning goal in about eighteen minutes of overtime. Mitchell and Morgan enjoyed a five minutes' rest during this period. It was a great finish and victory might have rested with either teams.

A CRITICAL PERIOD

INTELLIGENT WOMEN PREPARE

Dangers and Pain of This Critical Period Avoided by the Use of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

How many women realize that the most critical period in a woman's existence is the change of life, and that the anxiety felt by women as this time draws near is not without reason?

If her system is in a deranged condition, or she is predisposed to apoplexy of any organ, it is at this time likely to become active and, with a host of nervous irritations, make life a burden.

At this time, also, cancers and tumors are more liable to begin their destructive work. Such warning symptoms as a sense of suffocation, hot flashes, dizziness, headache, dread of impending evil, sounds in the ears, timidity, palpitation of the heart, sparks before the eyes, irregularities, constipation, variable appetite, weakness and inquietude are promptly heeded by intelligent women who are approaching the period of life when woman's great change may be expected.

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is the world's greatest remedy for women at this trying period.

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound invigorates and strengthens the female organism, and builds up the weakened nervous system as no other medicine can.

Madame Louis Belleau of 17 Ramsay St., Quebec, Que., writes:

Dear Mrs. Pinkham:

"Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound assisted me to pass the change of life with but very little sickness and pain, and I am pleased to give it my endorsement, for I feel that it is the medicine which every woman should take. I am the mother of three children, and when I reached the age of fifty naturally my health was none too good, and I feel sure that if I had not taken your Vegetable Compound I should not have passed the climax safely. I took it off and on for two years and now find that I am in splendid health and strength and feel younger and better than I did ten years ago. Much praise to your medicine, and may all suffering women learn of its value."

For special advice regarding this important period, women are invited to write to Mrs. Pinkham, Lynn, Mass. She is a daughter-in-law of Lydia E. Pinkham and for twenty-five years has been advising sick women free of charge. Her advice is free and always helpful to ailing women.

VILLAGERS MASSACRED

Turkish Troops Cross Frontier and Destroy Mavanch.

Seventy-Eight People Killed—Mostly Women and Children — Victims Nearly All Christians — Artillery Was Used—Large City Threatened by Cavalry—May Appeal to Great Britain to Stop Raid.

Teheran, Persia, Aug. 6.—The incursions of Turkish troops across the northwest frontier of Persia, which for some time has been in abeyance, have broken out.

A serious riot has occurred near Urumiah, 6,000 Turkish troops, with artillery, having crossed the frontier and destroyed Mavanch. Seventy-eight villagers, of whom 60 were women and children, mostly Christians, were killed.

Subsequently the Turks drove a small force of Persian troops from a nearby camp and installed themselves in it.

A large body of Persian cavalry subsequently joined the Turkish invaders and the combined force is said to be threatening Urumiah, a centre of missionary activity, which has a population estimated at between 30,000 and 50,000 persons, including many Christians.

It is considered probable that Russia and Great Britain will be appealed to to bring pressure to bear upon Turkey in order to stop the raid.

READY TO BOMBARD.

French Cruiser Has Casablanca Covered by Its Guns.

Tangier, Aug. 6.—The latest advices from Casablanca say that most of the hostile Moorish tribesmen surrounding the town have retired after a bloody fight with the natives inside.

Signals have been arranged by which the French cruiser Galilée will bombard the native quarter of Casablanca in the event of a renewal of the attacks on Europeans.

The French cruiser Duchayla has gone to Masagan, off the coast of Morocco, in answer to the appeals of Europeans there.

The expeditionary force to be sent to Morocco by the French Government will consist of two battalions of Algerian sharpshooters, and a battalion of the foreign legion, making a total of 2,400 infantry; two batteries of artillery, a detachment of 300 light cavalry and half a squadron of Spanish Algerian cavalry in the French service.

EXHIBITION BUILDINGS BURNED

Grand Stand at Ottawa Entirely Destroyed by Fire.

Ottawa, Aug. 6.—The grand stand and several of the Exhibition buildings were totally destroyed by fire last night. Athletic sports had been held in the afternoon, and it is presumed that someone left the lighted stub of a cigar on the stand.

The stand, the central experimental farm building, the C.P.R. offices, the ticket office, and, in fact, all the frame structures, went up. The loss will be about $60,000.

Hawk's Mills Destroyed.

Toronto, Aug. 6.—Fire last night destroyed Hawk's lumber mills on Patton road, and, together with the buildings, most all the lumber in the yard was burned.

The alarm was given about 10.15, and at that time the whole structure was a mass of flames. The brigade answered promptly, and the men got to work quickly, but the fire had already made too much progress.

Two steamers answered the call, but only one was used, and the pressure did not seem to be very good.

The total loss on the building will amount to about $6,000, with no insurance.

The origin of the fire is unknown, but it is thought to be incendiary.

Furniture Trust Dissolves.

Chicago, Aug. 6.—United States District Judge Landis yesterday ordered the dissolution of the Church and School Furniture Trust, recently punished by fines amounting to $43,000, for admitted violation of the anti-trust laws.

The court entered a decree making permanent injunctions previously issued against the companies that were fined, restraining them from further trust agreements or conspiracies to monopolize and restrain trade in violation of the law.

CANOE IS FOUND EMPTY.

River Claims Two Lives—Daughter of Sir W. Hingston Drowned.

Montreal, Aug. 6.—There was mourning in the city yesterday when word at an early hour was received from Varennes, a few miles down the river, to the effect that Shirley Davidson, a son of Justice Davidson of the Superior Court, aged 23 years, and Miss Eileen Hingston, only daughter of the late Sir William Hingston, aged 24 years, had been drowned while sailing on the St. Lawrence near the Varennes Islands.

No one saw the accident and, strange to say, when the boat was discovered drifting about at 6 o'clock yesterday morning, she was quite upright and no water of any consequence was in the bottom.

When last seen there appeared to be a dead calm and the supposition is that Miss Hingston, who was sitting aft, must have suddenly fallen overboard and her companion, who was an expert yachtsman and an excellent swimmer, no doubt jumped in to save the lady. As the current is probably six miles an hour, both were swept away to their tragic death.

The Montreal harbor commissioners have sent down dragging apparatus and dragging parties are working up and down the river, and the hope is still expressed that the bodies will be found before they drift at great length.

Royalty at Sham Fight.

Cowes, Isle of Wight, Aug. 6.—King Edward, Queen Alexandra, the Prince of Wales and other members of the royal family yesterday went on board the Dreadnought and sailed for Sandown Bay, to witness a sham attack on the battleship by the submarine boats and target practice with her big guns.

The manoeuvres were carried out as nearly as possible under battle conditions. During the target practice one gun made 19 hits out of 21 shots, which so delighted the King that he sent for the gunner and decorated him on the spot.

The royal party returned to Cowes yesterday morning.

Boyish "Dare" Cost a Life.

New York, Aug. 6.—Suspended in a network of electric wires 70 feet in the air, beside the trestle of a trolley line in Hoboken, N.J., a 12-year-old boy was shocked and burned to death last night, while several hundred persons looked on helplessly.

Two chums of the boy had dared him to climb the trestle and rob a bird's nest under the iron girders. When he had reached the top he waved his hand, which came in contact with a live wire.

Litho Designers Lose Strike.

New York, Aug. 6.—The struggle of the Lithographic Artists, Engravers' and Designers' League, with the National Association of Employing Lithographers, which began in August, 1906, has been ended as a result of the abandonment of the fight by the union. The trouble had its origin in the posting of open shop notices.

Labor Conditions are Booming Peterborough is a Busy Place

Teamsters and Cement Mixers Got Increase in Wages—Plasterers Ask for $3.25 per Day—Trades are all Busy and Factories are Rushed.

The Labor Gazette for July contains the following news from Peterborough:—

For general employment of all kinds no month this year has exceeded June. Every person who wanted work could get it. The tourist season was commencing, and from present indications will exceed that of any previous year. The dredging of the river is being carried on, and the city is taking the dredging to fill in the water edge. Stone, concrete, excavation and brick work is being pushed on the new armories, Collegiate Institute and North Ward schools. The Bell Telephone Company has awarded contracts for the erection of a new exchange building to be completed this year. The city is laying many miles of sidewalks and sewers. The building trades and all shops were very busy. Transportation both by rail and water was never better; hundreds of cords of wood were being brought into the city from the country districts in scows by the Trent canal. Wholesale and retain trade was very active. The Ackerman strike remained unchanged. Teamsters wages ranged from $3.25 to $3.65 per day; cement mixers, from $1.60 to $1.75. Plasterers are asking for an increase from $3.00 to $3.25. The Peterborough Canoe Manufacturing Company was very busy building canoes and steam launches, shipping consignments to New Ontario, Western Canada and the United States. The George Matthews Company is making extensive alterations, and is building an addition to its plant. The Ontario Coal Company is building a new siding into its plant.

The new furniture factory recently erected has already a number of orders on hand. The Colonial Weaving Company which has been in business here for some years, requires larger quarters as its business is growing very rapidly. This Company is asking the city for a free site and fixed assessment, and intends to build a factory 60 by 200 feet, costing $12,200; also to employ 60 instead of 40 hands, as heretofore. Repairs in three stores costing about $6,000 are under way. Permits have been issued for the building of over 150 houses, besides others for premises costing between $200,000 and $300,000. Peterborough has a per capita manufacturing output of $7.33, the best showing of any industrial centre in Canada.

Agriculture—Summer fallowing and the planting of root crops were in progress. A considerable quantity of oats were marketed at 53 to 55 cents a bushel; eggs brought 17 to 18 cents per dozen ,and butter 26 to 28 cents per lb. Florists were very busy.

Fishing ,lumbering and manufacturing.—These industries were very active.

An orchestra from the city has been procured and excellent music will be provided. The annual meeting of the association will be held on Friday afternoon, August 16th, at Juniper Island, at 3.30 o'clock.

The past week at the lakes has been an exceedingly stormy one and high winds have been blowing every day. The cottagers have been kept on their own islands as they were afraid to venture out in the strong winds. Only launches and sailing boats were seen on the lakes and especially the latter, which were seen in large numbers.

The number of people at Juniper Island Saturday evening was the largest that has gathered there this season and the dancing was kept up until eleven o'clock and then all the launches, skiffs and canoes that were on the wharf were filled and were soon gliding over the water to their respective cotages.

SUNDAY SERVICE.

The usual service in the pavilion Sunday morning was attended by an exceedingly large number of people The crowd was so great that many were forced to sit on the steps and on the rocks. Rev. Mr. Wallace, pastor of a Baptist church in Toronto, preached at this service, and Mr. Quarantine, of Toronto, who is holidaying at the lakes sang a solo. In the evening a song service was held at Mr. Harry Stock's, at which there was a large attendance. Rev. Mr. Bingham, of Toronto, gave an address and Mr. Jas. Acton led the singing.

On Friday evening Miss Alberta Gooding entertained a large number of her young friends at the lakes. Mr. Stratton's launch, the "Alberta," called around to the cottages for the guests and they were taken to the pavilion where a pleasant hour or two was spent in dancing. After this the guests returned to "Stratormond-on the lake," where supper was partaken of, after which the "Alberta" took the guests to their respective homes.

On Friday afternoon a number of young men stopping at the Victoria house, were out in a gasoline launch and when about opposite Juniper island the engine broke down and about eight of the occupants were seen trying to paddle the craft back to the landing.

The night boat on Saturday had the largest crowd of the season on board and a great many spent the week end at the lakes. The Lakefield train Saturday evening was quite late and the boats were considerably delayed.

Accidently one of the canoes upset, throwing a camera, two rafts and some lady's fancy work into the lake. It was up to someone to go in after the camera and one of the gentlemen of the party, who happens to be a scribe on an evening contemporary, jumped in and in recovering the goods had a narrow escape from going over the rapids. He also received a good ducking, but needless to say his action was very much appreciated by the young lady.

An Excellent "Ad" for the Picnic

Dog With Printers' Picnic Cards Tied to His Tail Caused Excitment

Until explanations were made yesterday there was grave danger that serious charges would be made against the officers of Peterborough Typographical Union No. 248. It was alleged that they were taking inhumane efforts to advertise the big printers' picnic at Idyl Wyld on Monday next as well as disturbing the quiet of the Sabbath in doing so.

Sunday night about 9.30 o'clock persons on George street were surprised to see a yellow dog tearing down the centre of that thoroughfare at a gait that would make Corney Burns' base running look slow. Attached to the tail of the canine were two of the pasteboard cards which have been issued as advertising matter for the printers' picnic. The dog's tail was sticking out straight behind and the cards streamed out behind that, and as they twisted around, the spectators could just get flying glimpses of the words "Printers Picnic" and "Idyl Wyld, August 12th."

At first it was alleged that the officers of the local typographical union had taken this method of advertising the picnic, but it has since developed that the tying of the cards to the dog's tail was the work of some boys.

DIRECTIONS FOR SENDING IN ALARMS

A Key for the Alarm Box will be found hanging in a small box, with glass front, adjoining the Alarm Box. Break the glass, remove the Key, and open the Box; pull the lever down, when the Alarm is at once transmitted to the Fire Hall, Pumping Station, and residences of the Firemen. Do not attempt to remove the Key from Box, as this can only be done by the use of a small Relieving Key.

HOW ALARMS ARE SOUNDED

The number of the Ward from which the Alarm is sent in is always sounded on the bell, which also constitutes the first number of the Box nearest to the fire, and when an Alarm is sounded, the Ward number is given first, then a pause, and then the remaining numbers of the Box.

The Teams are Now Training

Great Baseball Assured for the Printers' Picnic

The members of the Examiner baseball team who will meet the Review nine at the Printers' picnic, August 12th, are now in active training. Mahoney, who will do the twirling for the Grits, is rubbing his arm daily with sewing machine oil and hopes to have it as limber as a crowbar, before the date of the game. Hutchison, who will do the receiving, is having a four by four basket, made at the Peterborough Canoe Company and will use it instead of his hands for connecting with the hot ones that Mahoney is expected to send over.

The rest of the team are dieting on cement blocks, sprinkled with sand, and hope to be able to "eat 'em alive" on Civic Holiday.

The Review team will be the strongest that has ever represented this great elucidator of the public, and moulder of opinion. The game promises to be the event of the picnic, although there will be so many good things that it is hard to say what will be best.

FOOTBALLERS TO PRACTICE

All the members of the senior and intermediate Quaker football teams are asked to turn out for a practice at the exhibition grounds tonight at 6.45. An exhibition game has been arranged with Warkworth, to be played on the grounds of the latter club on Saturday evening of this week. As it is necessary that a strong eleven be taken to Warkworth, it is desirable that as many as possible turn out for the practice.

Another practice will be held on Thursday evening.

BASEBALL

PRACTICE TO-NIGHT.

The Peterborough baseball team will practice to-night at the Riverside Park and every night for the balance of the week. All the players are earnestly requested to be at these practices to get in good condition for Saturday's game with Port Hope. The boys with good practice are confident of pulling out a victory.

Mysterious Drowning Of Montreal Couple

Miss Eileen Hingston and Mr. Shirley. Davidson Lose Their Lives

Montreal, Aug. 5.—Citizens of Montreal were shocked to-day when the news reached the city of the drowning of two of her popular young people at Varennes, a resort twelve miles below here.

Miss Eileen Hingston, only daughter of the late Sir Wm. Hingston, and Mr. Shirley Davidson, son of J. G. Davidson, were the victims of a drowning accident that is somewhat of a mystery.

Mr. Davidson, a sailor of skill and courage, an exceptionally good swimmer, and Miss Hingston, also a good swimmer, went sailing yesteray in a skiff off the Hingston home at Varennes. The wind, light and steady at first, diminished to a calm. There was no sudden rise, no squalls swept up, yet both were drowned. The skiff was found half filled with water, but afloat, the sail bent, and the paddles in their places.

Bell Telephone Co.'s New Office

Material is Arriving for the Underground Work.

The bricklayers are progressing favorably with the brick work on the new office for the Bell Telephone Co., and the building is now well under way.

The material for the underground work is beginning to arrive, and it will not be long before the construction gang will get started. Alongside the new office is piled a lot of bent pipe, which will be used for carrying the cables from the underground conduits to the poles.

Golden Wedding Was Celebrated

Omemee, Aug. 5.—Mr. and Mrs. John McCrea celebrated their golden wedding here today by giving a garden party at which there were over two hundred invited guests. A special train from Toronto brought a party of over fifty. Congratulations were received by telegram from Winnipeg, New York, Toronto, Peterborough, Stouffville, Little Britain and a Marconigram from the steamship Lusitania.

NOTES OF THE DAY

Fire at Ste. Therese, Que., on Saturday destroyed the Forget Hotel and the Dominion Furniture Co.'s factory. The loss will total upwards of $100,000.

Five persons were killed near Bordeaux, France, in a collision between a racing and a touring car. The former was competing for the Criterion Cup. Owing to the accident the race was stopped by the Government.

The situation at Springhill, N.S., where the coal miners are on strike, continues grave. The mines are the chief industry of the district, and the effect on business is now being felt.

Two Professional Races at Chemong Yacht Club Regatta

Prizes Offered by Committee in Charge of the Peterborough Regatta Last Year—Contributors to the Fund Desired This Action—Prizes are $15 and $10.

It will be remembered that last year a sum of money was raised by subscription for the purpose of holding a regatta on the Otonabee River below Peterborough. Various unforseen difficulties arose which prevented the carrying out of proposition and the money has been lying in the Bank of Ottawa to the credit of the committee. It has now been decided that the wishes of the majority of the subscribers to this fund will be best met by offering it as prizes at the Chemong regatta to be held on August 15th.

The committee, after due consideration has decided to donate the money as follows;

Professional single canoe race, open to the province, 1-2 mile—1st $15, 2nd $10.

Exclusive Indian canoe race, single, 1-2 mile—1st $15, 2nd $10.

The Chemong regatta promises this year to be a great success. Every effort is being put forth by the association and the additional prizes offered by the Peterborough citizens will undoubtedly create a strong interest in the city. It is expected that a big crowd will go out to the picturesque park a week from Thursday to see the fun.

The amount of money offered for the professional race and the Indian race should attract many expert paddlers and the races will create a lot of interest.

SOME TIMELY HINTS

To the Editor of the Review.

Sir,—In your Saturday issue you complain that our Council have done nothing this year in bringing new industries to our city. Have they not secured three seething, sissing, smelling peanut roasting machines, which have been installed upon our new granolithic sidewalks, not only as an ornament, but as an impediment and nuisance to the neighborhood and to pedestrians. They were more successful than their predecessors who tried hard to get a glue factory, but failed in the attempt. With a penchant for mal-odorous industries of this kind how can we hope to attract a desirable class of citizens to take up their abode amongst us? Nor is there the least attempt at making this city attractive for excursionists. Jackson park should be supplied with sufficient tables and seats to accommodate the largest excursions, as well as swings and other concomitants that go to make up a well regulated park. Hot water should be supplied for making tea, yes, and ice water for drinking. Our large police force should meet excursionists at the station and give directions and information.

Yours, etc.,

ORNATE.

Peterborough, Aug. 5th. 1907.

Susan Richards Again a Prisoner

Taken into Custody This Morning—Drunk and Disorderly

"The cat came back because it couldn't stay away," is an old saying, and it seems to apply rather forcibly to Mrs Richards, whose appearances in police court are legion, and if her sojourns at the police station in the future are as frequent, she will have become almost a fixture at this resting place, which has become so popular with all inebriates.

Mrs Richards was again taken into custody this morning, and it was just a little over a week ago, that she got out of gaol after serving a term for disorderly conduct. This morning she was raising a disturbance at the corner of Hunter and Aylmer streets, and the police were 'phoned for. When arrested a good sized flask half full of whiskey was taken from her, and with which she was loth to part. After having been given her quarters at the station, she kept asking for her little dog. She has been having a big time yesterday and today, but still, was at a loss to know why she was locked up. The old dame took her arrest good naturedly, at least, but after a few minutes in her cell, she started to cry, and howled so loud that she could be heard blocks away.

Sam Prior has been arrested at Wolsely, Sask., in connection with the murder of Essie Moor near there [illegible]

Ships of Two Large Nations Used Their Heavy Guns

French and Spanish Warships Bombard Moroccan Port.

Many Tribesmen Killed or Wounded—Shore Forts Return Fire on Ships—Seven French Sailors Wounded—Troops Hurrying to the Scene—Battery Reduced to Ruins—Fighting in the Streets.

Tangier, Aug. 7.—The French cruiser Galilee was bombarding the Moorish quarter of Casablanca and the neighborhood of the city when the last steamer, which has just arrived here, left that port.

According to a semi-official account the commander of the Galilee asked for permission to land a guard of sailors to protect the French consulate, which was granted, but while the guard was proceeding to the consulate they were fired upon in the streets, and six bluejackets and an ensign were wounded.

The French cleared the streets at the point of the bayonet, killing many of the Moors. On arriving at the consulate the guard signalled news of the incident to the Galilee and the French ship notified the Spanish cruiser, which landed a guard for the consulate of Spain.

The warship then bombarded the Arab quarter of Casablanca. The Casablanca battery fired two blank shots when the Du Chayla was entering the bay and the cruiser replied, destroying part of the battery, the Moorish gunners retiring.

The European part of the city was not touched.

The Du Chayla then shelled the beach, where a number of Kabyles had assembled, killing many of them. The cruiser also shelled the outskirts of Casablanca, where groups of Moors were seen.

The French ships at Casablanca are the Galilee, Du Chayla, and Forbin, and the Spanish cruiser Don Alvaro de Bazan.

Another Version.

London, Aug. 7.—A special despatch received here from Tangier yesterday describing the bombardment of Casablanca says the French cruiser Du Chayla, and the Spanish gunboat Don Alvaro de Bazan participated with the Galilee in the bombardment of the villages surrounding Casablanca, which were destroyed by the fire of the warships. During the bombardment large reinforcements of tribesmen came up and many of them were killed or wounded.

The Casablanca battery joined in the firing on the foreign warships, whereupon the guns of the French and Spanish cruisers were turned on the battery, which soon caused the Moorish commander to send a messenger to the French admiral requesting his pardon. This was refused and the admiral sent a peremptory order to the Moorish commander to surrender himself to the French consul.

According to another special despatch from Tangier about 150 Moors are reported to have been killed in town, battery and villages around Casablanca, during the bombardment of the foreign warships. The Casablanca battery was reduced to ruins by the warships' shells.

SIX KILLED, MANY HURT

Derailed Freight Train "Side Swipes" Express.

Accident Occurred Near Kittanning—Engine Thrown Off Track — Four Cars Entirely Wrecked — Train Was Rounding Curve at High Speed — Eighteen Were Seriously Injured—Mail Car Jumps Track.

Pittsburg, Aug. 7.—The Titusville Express, southbound, on the Buffalo & Allegheny division of the Pennsylvania Railroad was wrecked near Kelley's station, two miles from Kittanning, Pa., about 11.30 o'clock yesterday by being "side-swiped" by a freight car that had broken away from a northbound freight train.

The engine was derailed, and two baggage cars, a smoker and passenger car wrecked. At least six persons are dead and about 18 injured.

The train on leaving Kittanning was behind time and it is stated that it was running at a high rate of speed.

The accident occurred at a sharp curve of the road, which prevented the engineer from seeing any considerable distance ahead of him. In some manner a big freight car that had formed part of a freight train, northbound, had broken away from this train and had landed some distance from the northbound track and projecting over the southbound track.

The express as it rounded the curve was side-swiped by this car, which derailed the engine and wrecked the four cars.

The train is usually a popular one, but yesterday morning it was unusually well-filled, as it carried a delegation from the First M. E. Church, Kittanning, and for a visit of inspection to a neighboring church.

One of the most pathetic features of the wreck was the tragedy in the Huff family. The father, Alonzo Huff, at the time the accident happened, was walking up and down the platform at Kiskiminetas Junction, where he had arranged to board the train and meet his wife and family. As a result of the wreck, his wife and son are dead, and his three daughters are among the seriously injured. When words of the tragedy reached Huff he collapsed.

Immediately upon receipt of the news of the accident, nine physicians were sent from Kittanning on a special train.

Scores of other persons rendered efficient aid in extricating the injured from the wreckage. These were carried to nearby houses, where first aid was given by the physicians until arrangements had been made for their removal to the General Hospital at Kittanning.

Cars Derailed; No One Killed.

Dallas, Texas, Aug. 7.—"The cannonball" train on the Texas and Pacific Railroad went into a ditch four miles east of this city yesterday. The mail car jumped the track and was dragged one thousand yards before the train was stopped. All the cars left the track except the diner, sleeper and engine. No one was killed. Five persons were injured.

All of the derailed cars were filled with passengers.

Gored to Death By a Bull.

Kingston, Aug. 7.—Yesterday morning Thomas Shannon, a farmer living at Ida Hill, was gored to death by a thoroughbred Holstein bull. He was about 55 years of age.

The bull is a four-year-old and when Shannon noticed it was getting sulky he told his brother he should shut it up. About 6 o'clock Thomas went with the dog to drive the bull away. Nobody saw the animal attack him, but from the distance he was picked up, from where his hat and knife were found, it must have thrown him 40 feet.

When found the unfortunate man was on the ground and the dog keeping the animal from further attacking him.

Big Problem for Canada.

Australia Increases Tariff.

Ottawa, Aug. 7.—J. S. Larke, the Canadian trade agent in Australia, reports that the Commonwealth will establish iron and steel bounties with a view to encouraging home industries.

The Manager Of the B. & A.

By VAUGHAN KESTER

Copyright, 1901, by Harper & Brothers

"Yes, I know, but the question is, do we want 'em? I wish Cornish was here. I think he'd advise some radical move. He's all fight."

Oakley, however, was devoutly thankful that the general was in England, where he hoped he would stay. He had no wish to see the men ruined. A wholesome lesson would suffice. He was much relieved when the time arrived to escort Holloway to his train.

All this while the Herald continued its attacks, but Dan no longer minded them. Nothing Ryder could say could augment his unpopularity. It had reached its finality. He never guessed that, indirectly at least, Constance Emory was responsible for by far the greater part of Ryder's present bitterness. She objected to his partisanship of the men, and this only served to increase his verbal intemperance; but, in spite of the antagonism of their views, they remained friends. Constance was willing to endure much from Ryder that she would have resented from any one else. She liked him, and she was sorry for him; he seemed unhappy, and she imagined he suffered as she herself suffered and from the same cause. There was still another motive for her forbearance which, perhaps, she did not realize. The strike and Oakley had become a mania with the editor, and from him she was able to learn what Dan was doing.

The unpopularity of his son was a source of infinite grief to Roger Oakley, the more so as he took the burden of it on his own shoulders. He brooded over it until presently he decided that he would have a talk with Ryder and explain matters to him and ask him to discontinue his abuse of Dan. There was a streak in the old convict's mind which was hardly sane, for no man spends the best years of his life in prison and comes out as clear headed as he goes in.

As he pottered about the shops with McClintock he meditated on his project. He was sure if he could show Ryder where he was wrong and unfair he would hasten to make amends. It never occurred to him that Ryder had merely followed in the wake of public opinion, giving it definite expression.

One evening—and he chose the hour when he knew Antioch would be at supper and the streets deserted—he stole from the shops without telling Dan where he was going, as he had a shrewd idea that he would put a veto on his scheme did he know of it.

With all his courage his pace slackened as he approached the Herald office. He possessed unbounded respect for print and still greater respect for the man who spoke in print.

The door stood open, and he looked in over the top of his steel bowed spectacles. The office was dark and shadowy, but from an inner room, where the presses stood, a light shone. While he hesitated the half grown boy who was Griff's chief assistant came from the office. Roger Oakley placed a hand on his shoulder.

"Is Mr. Ryder in, sonny?" he asked.

"Yes, he's in the back room, where you see the light."

"Thank you."

He found Ryder busy making up by the light of a single dingy lamp, for the Herald went to press in the morning. Griff gave a start of surprise when he saw who his visitor was. Then he said sharply, "Well, sir, what can I do for you?"

It was the first time the old convict and the editor had met, and Roger Oakley, peering over his spectacles, studied Ryder's face in his usual slow fashion. At last he said, "I hope I am not intruding, Mr. Ryder, for I'd like to speak with you."

"Then be quick about it," snapped Griff. "Don't you see I'm busy?"

With the utmost deliberation the old convict took from his pocket a large red and yellow bandanna handkerchief. Then he removed his hat and wiped his face and neck with elaborate thoroughness. When he finally spoke he dropped his voice to an impressive whisper. "I don't think you understand Dannie, Mr. Ryder, or the reasons for the trouble down at the shops."

"Don't I? Well, I'll be charmed to hear your explanation." And he put down the rule with which he had been measuring one of the printed columns on the table before him.

Without being asked Roger Oakley seated himself in a chair by the door. He placed his hat and handkerchief on a corner of the table and took off his spectacles, which he put into their case. Ryder watched him with curious interest.

"I knew we could settle this, Mr. Ryder," said he, with friendly simplicity. "You've been unfair to my son. That was because you did not understand. When you do I am certain you will do what you can to make right the wrong you have done him."

A vicious, sinister smile wreathed Ryder's lips. He nodded. "Go on."

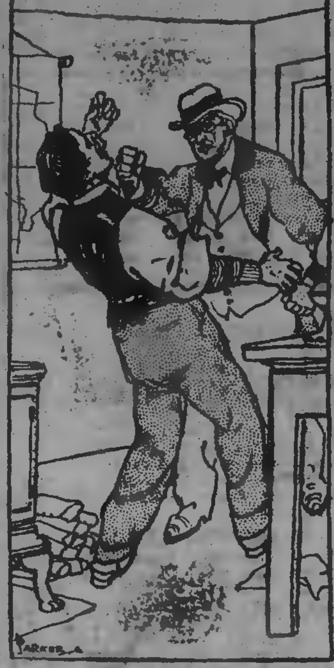
"Dannie's done nothing to you to make you wish to hurt him, for you are hurting him. He doesn't admit it, but I know."

"I hope so," said Ryder tersely. "I should hate to think my energy had been entirely wasted."

A look of pained surprise crossed Roger Oakley's face. He was quite shocked at the un-Christian feeling Griff was displaying. "No, you don't mean that!" he made haste to say. "You can't mean it."

"Can't I?" cynically.

Roger Oakley stole a glance from under his thick, bushy eyebrows at the editor. He wondered if an apt quotation from the Scriptures would be of any assistance. The moral logic with which he had intended to overwhelm him had somehow gone astray. He presented the singular spectacle of a man who was in the wrong and who knew he was in the wrong and was yet determined to persist in it.



Ryder staggered back.

"There's something I'll tell you that I haven't told any one else." He glanced again at Ryder to see the effect of the proposed confidence, and again the latter nodded for him to go on.

"I am going away. I haven't told my son yet, but I've got it all planned, and when I am gone you won't have any reason to hate Dannie, will you?"

"That's an admirable idea, Mr. Oakley, and if Dannie, as you call him, has half your good sense he'll follow your example."

"No; he can't leave. He must stay. He's the manager of the road," with evident pride. "He's got to stay, but I'll go. Won't that do just as well?" a little anxiously, for he could not fathom the look on Ryder's dark face. Ryder only gave him a smile in answer, and he continued hurriedly:

"You see, the trouble's been about me and my working in the shops. If I hadn't come here there'd have been no strike. As for Dannie, he's made a man of himself. You don't know and I don't know how hard he's worked and how faithful he's been. What I've done mustn't reflect on him. It all happened when he was a little boy—so high," extending his hand.

"Mr. Oakley," said Ryder coldly and insultingly, "I propose, if I can, to make this town too hot to hold your son, and I am grateful to you for the unconscious compliment you have paid me by this visit."

"Dannie don't know I came," quickly.

"No, I don't suppose he does. I take it it was an inspiration of your own."

Roger Oakley had risen from his seat.

"What's Dannie ever done to you?" he asked, with just the least perceptible tremor in his tones.

Ryder shrugged his shoulders. "We don't need him in Antioch."

The old man mastered his wrath and said gently:

"You can't afford to be unfair, Mr. Ryder. No one can afford to be unfair. You are too young a man to persevere in what you know to be wrong."

BIG BLAZE AT TORONTO.

Steamer Shamrock and Ferry Building Destroyed.

Toronto, Aug. 7.—A disastrous conflagration broke out early yesterday morning, resulting in the partial destruction of the wharves and offices of the Toronto Ferry Co. at the foot of Bay street, the partial demolition of the Turbine Co.'s building, which lies next, and the burning of the ferry boat Shamrock.

The steamer Turbinia, which was lying moored at the wharf east of the burning buildings, had a narrow escape also. The crew, by strenuous exertions, were enable to get steam up and move out into the bay in time to escape the flames.

The total loss caused by the fire will be about $25,000, distributed as follows: Shamrock, with fittings, wiring, etc., $20,000; waiting-rooms and wharf, $4,000. The insurance was: Shamrock, $10,000; waiting-rooms, wharf, etc., $12,000.

New York, Aug. 7.—A party of visitors touring the city in a sight-seeing automobile was mobbed by a crowd of several hundred persons yesterday when the machine carrying the sight-seers accidentally ran over and killed a boy on the east side.

The sightseers were observing tenement life in the foreign populated district when a little Italian boy, Tony Pasqueratti, taking a surreptitious ride on the automobile, fell beneath the wheels and was crushed to death.

A crowd gathered and rained showers of stones and bottles upon the sightseers, who fled from the machine. The crowd then tried to burn the machine, but was prevented by the arrival of police reinforcements.

B. N. A. Act Amended.

London, Aug. 7.—(C.A.P.)—The bill to amend the British North America Act in relation to provincial subsidies as finally amended, has passed the House of Commons.

There appears to have been some difficulty over the bill. The Imperial authorities omitted from their draft all reference to the "final and unalterable" feature of the scheme. This created the impression that it was the intention of the British Government to leave the matter open to further agitation by the provinces, particularly by British Columbia.

The Canadian ministers in England strongly objected to the bill in this form, and in consequence of their representations respecting the necessity for the recognition of the "final and unalterable" purpose of the arrangement the whole address of the Canadian Parliament, including the words in question, was made part of the bill in the form of a schedule.

The Manager Of the B. & A.

By VAUGHAN KESTER

Copyright, 1901, by Harper & Brothers

"Yes, I know, but the question is, do we want 'em? I wish Cornish was here. I think he'd advise some radical move. He's all fight."

Oakley, however, was devoutly thankful that the general was in England, where he hoped he would stay. He had no wish to see the men ruined. A wholesome lesson would suffice. He was much relieved when the time arrived to escort Holloway to his train.

All this while the Herald continued its attacks, but Dan no longer minded them. Nothing Ryder could say could augment his unpopularity. It had reached its finality. He never guessed that, indirectly at least, Constance Emory was responsible for by far the greater part of Ryder's present bitterness. She objected to his partisanship of the men, and this only served to increase his verbal intemperance; but, in spite of the antagonism of their views, they remained friends. Constance was willing to endure much from Ryder that she would have resented from any one else. She liked him, and she was sorry for him; he seemed unhappy, and she imagined he suffered as she herself suffered and from the same cause. There was still another motive for her forbearance which, perhaps, she did not realise. The strike and Oakley had become a mania with the editor, and from him she was able to learn what Dan was doing.

The unpopularity of his son was a source of infinite grief to Roger Oakley, the more so as he took the burden of it on his own shoulders. He brooded over it until presently he decided that he would have a talk with Ryder and explain matters to him and ask him to discontinue his abuse of Dan. There was a streak in the old convict's mind which was hardly sane, for no man spends the best years of his life in prison and comes out as clear headed as he goes in.

As he pottered about the shops with McClintock he meditated on his project. He was sure if he could show Ryder where he was wrong and unfair he would hasten to make amends. It never occurred to him that Ryder had merely followed in the wake of public opinion, giving it definite expression.

BIG BLAZE AT TORONTO.

Steamer Shamrock and Ferry Building Destroyed.

Toronto, Aug. 7.—A disastrous conflagration broke out early yesterday morning, resulting in the partial destruction of the wharves and offices of the Toronto Ferry Co. at the foot of Bay street, the partial demolition of the Turbine Co.'s building, which lies next, and the burning of the ferry boat Shamrock.

The steamer Turbinia, which was lying moored at the wharf east of the burning buildings, had a narrow escape also. The crew, by strenuous exertions, were enable to get steam up and move out into the bay in time to escape the flames.

The total loss caused by the fire will be about $25,000, distributed as follows: Shamrock, with fittings, wiring, etc., $20,000; waiting-rooms and wharf, $4,000. The insurance was: Shamrock, $10,000; waiting-rooms, wharf, etc., $12,000.

STONED THE RUBBERNECKS.

Crowd Mobbed Tourists Whose Auto Killed a Boy.

New York, Aug. 7.—A party of visitors touring the city in a sight-seeing automobile was mobbed by a crowd of several hundred persons yesterday when the machine carrying the sightseers accidentally ran over and killed a boy on the east side.

The sightseers were observing tenement life in the foreign populated district when a little Italian boy, Tony Pasqueratti, taking a surreptitious ride on the automobile, fell beneath the wheels and was crushed to death.

A crowd gathered and rained showers of stones and bottles upon the sightseers, who fled from the machine. The crowd then tried to burn the machine, but was prevented by the arrival of police reinforcements.

B. N. A. Act Amended.

London, Aug. 7.—(C.A.P.)—The bill to amend the British North America Act in relation to provincial subsidies as finally amended, has passed the House of Commons.

There appears to have been some difficulty over the bill. The Imperial authorities omitted from their draft all reference to the "final and unalterable" feature of the scheme. This created the impression that it was the intention of the British Government to leave the matter open to further agitation by the provinces, particularly by British Columbia.

The Canadian ministers in England strongly objected to the bill in this form, and in consequence of their representations respecting the necessity for the recognition of the "final and unalterable" purpose of the arrangement the whole address of the Canadian Parliament, including the words in question, was made part of the bill in the form of a schedule.

Buffalo, N.Y., Aug. 7.—Frederick Burton of Toronto, had an exciting struggle with a pickpocket yesterday morning at Main and Court streets.

The most important point in Fire Insurance is the selection of a Company which offers absolute security. Experience in the recent conflagrations in Baltimore, Toronto and San Francisco shows that English and Scottish Companies stood the severe strain of these appalling losses better than any other, and proves that they are among the leading Companies of the world.

St. Peter's Choir Had an Outing

Vocalists and Altar Boys Picnicked at Keene

The annual outing of the choir and altar boys of St. Peter's Cathedral took place yesterday and proved as enjoyable as in past years. The steamer Rainbow had been chartered for the occasion and carried the party to Keene, where a delightful little picnic was held. Rev. Father McColl and Rev. Dr. O'Brien accompanied the excursionists and by their presence added much to the success of the event. Incidentally it was Rev Father McColl who entertained the choir and altar boys to their outing and it is unnecessary to say that they deeply appreciate his kindness.

A sail around Rice Lake was included in the day's programme and added much to the pleasure of the picnicers. The Rainbow arrived at Peterborough about eight o'clock.

OBITUARY

MRS. J. A. FOWLER

General regret will be felt at the death of Agnes Hugan, wife of Mr. John A. Fowler, of North Monaghan, which took place last night, August 6th, at ten o'clock.

Mrs. Fowler was in her seventy-second year, and had enjoyed fairly good health up till four weeks ago, when she showed signs of failing. Although every attention had been given, she sank rapidly and passed away very peacefully last night, surrounded by her most devoted husband and family.

Mrs. Fowler was born in Roxboroughshire, Scotland, seventy-two years ago, and was married on Jan. 18th, 1858. Their children are Mrs. A C. Thompson, of Brandon, Man., who is here at present; Andrew, deceased; Robert, James, Mrs. Harry Webber, George, Kate, and E. Bruce Fowler.

Mrs. Fowler was also a very kind mother to three step-children, William Fowler, of Pembina, Sask. and John and Helen, both deceased, and also mourning the loss of a grandmother, who brought them up from childhood, are Willie and Ella White.

Mrs. Fowler was most highly esteemed by all who knew her, and was spoken of as an excellent woman. She was a very faithful member of St. Andrew's church.

In referring to Mrs. Fowler's life the pastor of St. Andrew's church speaks in words of the highest esteem She was a mother in Israel—always happy at the progress and expansion of her church and ever ready to take her share in whatever was required. She was also an ideal Christian mother, so kindly and tender in her home, so unselfish and generous, so exemplary in all her domestic relationships. She was also a true Christian woman, with a strong and abiding trust in her Saviour, that was even manifest in her practical Christian character, ever loving and personally concerned in all that made for righteousness. With many experiences that would have disturbed many, she always took all incidents with a calm composure, and in her ripened Christian life, obeyed the summons to her eternal rest.

The funeral will take place from the family residence, Gravel Road, North Monaghan, tomorrow, Thursday, at 2 p.m., and proceed to Little Lake cemetery.

Peterborough Lock Will be Enlarged by the Government

Within the Next Year or Two—Then a Proper Canoe Slide Will be Built—In the Meantime Slight Improvements Will be Made.

It was stated last night and was reported on the streets today, that in the near future the Dominion Government intends rebuilding the Peterborough locks. It is stated that they will be made 110 feet long and considerably wider so that more boats may be accommodated in it at once, and save lockage. This was the excuse given by Mr. R. R. Hall, M.P., to the canoe men for not having the necessary work at the locks done to make it safe for small boats to navigate.

A meeting of prominent canoe men and Mr. Hall and the Superintendent of the canal, Mr. J. H. McClellan, was held at the locks. It was thought by the canal officials that the new steps at the end of the concrete pier would overcome the difficulty, but it happens that such is not the case. The only thing to do is to remove the rocks and stones so that a canoe may be paddled up against the current with two persons in and not strike bottom. This, the superintendent of the canal claimed, would cost several thousand dollars, but others state that such an estimate is ridiculous.

However it is reported that the member of Parliament has promised to have the stones removed, so that the approach to the slide will be improved, and the slide will also be altered. This, it is thought, will make it better for the canoe men until such time as the lock is rebuilt, when a proper approach will be made.

Local Astronomer Knows What is Happening Alright

Rev. Dr. Marsh, of Springville, called up the Review this morning and asked if an earthquake shock had been reported. Upon being informed by the newspaper man that there had been no word received as to any seismic disturbance, the doctor remarked that it was strange as his astronomical transit had been affected yesterday by what he considered must have been a 'quake. The transit is an instrument used for recording the time by the sun and yesterday afternoon Dr. Marsh noticed that it was slightly out. He communicated with Montreal and he found that the transit was about twenty seconds out.

It has since turned out that there was an earthquake yesterday and that Dr. Marsh was right again. The following despatches received today, show how such is the case;

"Santiago De Chile, Aug. 7.—An earthquake shock was felt yesterday at Valparaiso.

REGISTERED AT TRIEST

"Triest, Austria-Hungary, Aug. 6.—The instruments in the Marine Observatory recorded heavy earthquake shocks this morning, about 6,500 miles distant. The beginning of the disturbance was registered at 7.52.26 o'clock, the maximum shock was reported at 8.08.51 and the movement ceased at 8.36.59."

This is another case which shows that Dr. Marsh is a wide-awake astronomer and knows what is happening in the astronomical world. The Toronto papers make no mention of the shock having been recorded there.

The Hardest Piece of Sewer Construction Yet Undertaken

Workmen Meeting With Great Difficulty in Digging Trench on Downie Street—Quicksand and Big Boulders Have Been Struck.

Great difficulty is being met with in the construction of the sewer on Downie street between London and Smith streets. A staff of men are engaged on the work under the foremanship of Mr. N. Neary, but they are having a hard time in making reasonable progress. They have struck quicksand at a depth of a few feet and unless every precaution is taken the trench fills in almost as rapidly as it is dug out. To make matters worse there are large boulders in the quicksand and in digging these out and keeping the banks from caving in the men are having a hard time. Another difficulty that has to be contended with is water in the trenches. It oozes, or rather runs, out of the quicksand and fills up the bottom of the excavation, greatly hampering the workmen.

Work on the sewer was commenced at London street and is being proceeded with towards the north. It is feared that great difficulty will be experienced at the corner of Downie and Smith streets as the land there is much lower than further south on the street and there will no doubt be more water to contend with.

It is stated that this is going to be one of the hardest pieces of sewer construction ever undertaken by the city. It is even more difficult than the Romaine street sewer about which so much has been heard and said.

Typhoid Fever Outbreak Is Reported at Stoney Lake

Nine Cases Said to Have Developed—Seven Cases Taken to Nicholls Hospital the Past Week—Serious Outlook.

An outbreak of typhoid fever is reported from Stony Lake summer resorts. Some of those who came down this morning stated that there were nine cases now at the lake, and all of them were traced to a little creek, which is supposed to be pure spring water, but which runs along the surface for some distance, without any protection from the cows which pasture in the neighborhood.

Enquiry at Nicholls Hospital brought forth the information that there were seven cases which have been brought in within the past week One was from Apsley, some from Stony Lake, and some from the city.

Miss Edgar, teacher in Sanderson School, Smith township, was taken to the hospital Sunday night. Mr. Lawrence McClennan and Mr. [illegible] Fraser, who were holidaying up the lakes, are both down with typhoid. So far as can be ascertained there are no cases which have developed in the city.

Dr. Bell Returns From the North

Provincial Inspector Reports Sanitary Conditions Fairly Satisfactory

Toronto, August 7.—"Fairly satisfactory," is the verdict of Dr. R. W. Bell, inspector of the Provincial Board of Health, in reference to the sanitation of summer hotels in the Temagami district. The inspector visited Cobalt, Haileybury, Lake Temagami and the French River. On the latter stream a number of summer cottages have been erected. The sanitation of the town of Cobalt is none too good, but its people have been extremely lucky, for there has been, up to the present, no sickness. Dr. Bell has been giving instructions to the recently appointed sanitary inspectors of the district.

Campbellford's Big Celebration

A great programme of Highland games and Highland dancing has been arranged for the big Sons of Scotland demonstration at Campbellford on August 14th, a week from today. Earl Grey has sent from Sydney, N.S., a greeting to the Ottawa old boys, now in the capital.

Many People at Chemong Park

Large Number Drove Out Last Evening—Dance Held in the Pavilion

Chemong Park is more popular than ever this season and this beautiful spot presents a very lively appearance at the present time. It seems to be the popular thing now for parties from the city to drive out in the evening and have a sail on the lake and a dance in the pavilion before returning home. Last evening several from the city went out. The afternoon bus also was very crowded. Mr. Pope, proprietor of the boat house at Chemong had all his boats out last evening and they are always in great demand these nights.

Mr. L. M. Hayes had a big bonfire in front of his cottage last evening and a large number gathered around it and sang.

A delightful hop was also held in the pavilion at which there were a large number of those who enjoy the dance. Excellent music was provided by several young ladies.

Miss F. Gardiner, of Toronto, who has been the guest of Miss Ada Mimms, at Chemong has returned home.

Wm. Hamilton Co. Option Expires

If Not Taken up by Mr. Hall Tonight—May be Put on the Market

The Wm Hamilton Manufacturing Co. will likely come into public prominence once more. It is understood that the option secured by Mr. R. R. Hall, M.P., expires tonight, unless he succeeds in taking it. The price mentioned in the option was in the neighborhood of $125,000, and Mr. Hall is away today, presumably in connection with this matter.

If the option is not taken up, the Trusts & Guarantee Co., which has been managing the concern since it passed into their hands, will likely place it on the market for sale. What effect this will have upon the industry is not known, but it will be hoped that the works will not close and that a deal will soon be put through so that the men will continue to work and will not have to leave the city.

Two Cent Piece Made From Nickel

Will be Issued at Ottawa When New Mint is Opened

"When the Royal Mint begins operations in Ottawa in November or December, a feature of the inauguration will be the issue of a new currency token, in the form of a penny piece of the value of two cents. This will probably be coined from nickel. Canada has the largest deposits of nickel that are to be found anywhere, but it has never been made use of in coinage here, though the United States and some other countries use it in their coinage. By its use in the coinage of the proposed penny piece the objection of bulk, which has been raised against the copper penny, will be met.

BATTY TIME ON WATER STREET

Four Young Men Chased Midnight Callers for Two Hours and Killed Four

One household on Water street, not far from Victoria Park, had a batty time for a couple of hours last night. Had anyone been passing at the time, it would have been a reasonable supposition that all the people were batty too. The house in which the excitement occurred has four prominent young men living in it, besides the members of the family.

The story, as related by one of the boys, was that about one o'clock the household was awakened from a peaceful slumber by a flapping of wings and an unnatural breeze in the rooms. The young men all jumped out of bed, armed themselves with pillows, canes, umbrellas, etc. turned on the lights and prepared to fight to a finish any foe which dared disturb their slumbers. Upon investigation it was found that a family of bats had made their way into the house through the open bedroom windows and were having a happy time. The boys in their evening gowns and gaily colored pajamas pranced about the rooms, swinging their weapons and shooing the midnight callers in tones that could be distinguished on George street. The battle waged for two hours when the attacking forces gave in. The casualties were four dead bats, two wounded, and the others retreated in disorder. The four victims were divided among the victors, one to each and after breakfast this morning a formal burial took place in the back yard.

To Walk From Peterborough To Bailieboro in Six Hours

David Hartley of East City Will Attempt the Feat on Civic Holiday—Will Leave Corner of George and Hunter Streets at One O'clock.

One of the events of Peterborough's civic holiday, the result of which will be awaited with much interest, and an affair over which there is considerable discussion on the streets at the present time, will be a long distance walk.

Peterborough has a long distance walker in the person of Mr. David Hartley, who resides on Robinson street, East City, and Mr Hartley has undertaken to walk to Bailieboro and return, a distance of thirty-four miles, in six hours. This remarkable feat, he states, will be performed next Monday, leaving the corner of Hunter and George streets at one o'clock. It will be remembered that some time ago this local pedestrian offered to walk from the Oriental Hotel to the King Edward Hotel, Toronto, and return, a distance of 180 miles, in 45 hours. This walk would be fifty miles more than Reynolds, of Port Hope, had to go and which he failed to accomplish in 36 hours. That is, Mr Hartley claimed that he could walk the extra fifty miles in nine hours. The reason why Mr. Hartley did not undertake the walk was on account of there being no persons who offered to back him or give him any encouragement whatever. But nevertheless, the walk on Monday is going to take place for a side bet of $15. Mr. Hartley feels confident that he will accomplish this feat. Insidentally, this will not be the first time that he has undertaken a long walk. He is a painter by trade and a man between forty and fifty years of age. He has been in training now for the past two weeks, and on two occasions has taken long tramps to test his powers of endurance, and in both cases has covered a considerable distance in remarkably good time.

A week ago Sunday this veteran in the walking line covered twenty miles in four hours. He left his home on Robinson street punctually at five minutes to two in the afternoon going to Lakefield on the west side of the river, and he returned on the east side. He did not stop at Lakefield, but kept up his walk and was back at his house exactly at five minutes to six. Twenty miles in four hours is pretty good walking. This morning Mr Hartley had another little practice. He left his house at 10 o'clock and walked out to Chemong and walked back again, and was here before twelve o'clock. Mr. Hartley went out there to see about a job, and remained there about half an hour, so he did the fourteen miles in considerably less than two hours. On both these walks Mr Hartley was not dressed for walking, but had on his ordinary working clothes.

Mr Hartley is confident of accomplishing the 34 miles in six hours on Monday, and it is to be hoped that the citizens will take an interest in his enterprise and give him all necessary assistance

Cottages May Be Built Along the Otonabee River

Campers Along the Winding Stream Are So Well Pleased with the Location That They Will Build Permanent Homes.

A trip on the Otonabee rive from the Otonabee boathouse for two or three miles down stream is an interesting event after dark at the present time. All along the river on either shore the lights of the campers gleam and give a very pretty effect to the shore line once night has fallen. There are nearly fifty different camps between the boathouse and the T.A.S. park and the campers declare that they could ask for nothing better. They prefer the green banks of the Otonabee to the charms of Rice lake or the cottage homes along the northern chain of waters. There are many more campers along the Otonabee this year than last season and the principal reason for the popularity of the river shore as a camping ground is said to be its proximity to the city. For those who have to work in town during the day it is an ideal place as it can be reached so readily.

It is reported that next year will see several cottages erected along the shore of the Otonabee as those who are camping there are charmed with the location. They say that along the banks of the winding river they get all the benefits of Stony lake or Chemong without the expense or inconvenience of travelling ten or twenty miles from the city. There are many beautiful sites for cotages along the river and it is understood that several neat summer homes will go up next year. It is understood that lots can be secured at reasonable figures from the farmers who own the land along the river.

Lindsay Fur-Smuggling Case Simon Marshall Was Arrested

The Escaped Patient from Barrie Hospital Has Been Taken in Charge—Owing to Illness He Was Allowed Out on $1000 Bail.

Lindsay, Aug. 6.—Simon Marshall, whose name has been mentioned in connection with the alleged smuggling of beaver skins from Algonquin Park, by way of Lindsay, was formally placed under arrest on Saturday evening by Chief Vincent. Marshall is the man who left the Barrie hospital suddenly last week. The Lindsay police have known of his whereabouts and were only waiting for such time as he was in fit health to bring him here before County Magistrate Moore. On Saturday evening Marshall came to Lindsay and was taken in charge. Owing to the serious illness of the prisoner he was allowed out on $1,000 bail $500 of his own surety and $250 each by Robert Naylor and Andrew Marshall.

The accused will appear before the County Magistrate at Lindsay police court on Tuesday, August 13th. It is said that there are nine or ten witnesses subpoenaed in connection with the case.

Sensation at Port Perry; A Skeleton is Unearthed

Port Perry is all excitement at present over the recent finding of a skeleton of a man who disappeared some thirty years ago. The skull of the skeleton was badly crushed. Men were excavating around the foundations of the former Crandell house when they came upon the ghastly remains.

As the story is told by an old resident, the skeleton is supposed to be that of a rich Jew, who resided in the neighborhood. One day this individual was missed, his horse and rig were found at a distance from the spot. No trace of his whereabouts could be found, and the incident remained shrouded in mystery. Suspicion was rife at the time but no one was implicated.

The skeleton unearthed may or may not be that of the supposed murdered man, but the find is creating a good deal of interest in that little hamlet.

Excursion Was Very Successful

Held Yesterday Under the Auspices of Mark St. Ladies' Aid Society

One of the most successful excursions that has been held this summer up the lakes was that which took place yesterday under the auspices of the Ladies' Aid of Mark street church.

About 300 persons boarded the steamer Otonabee at the Wolfe-st., wharf yesterday morning and the trip was made over the lift lock and up the canal to Lakefield, and then around the lakes. A stop was made at Mount Julian for dinner, after which the excursionists went to Burleigh, and on the return trip called at several places of interest along the lake. The committee in charge of the excursion are highly pleased with the result and speak in complimentary terms of the kind treatment and attention the excursonists received from the boat employees.

FOUNTAIN WAS OUT OF ORDER

Citizens Disappointed at Central Park

The drinking fountain in Central Park was out of business again last night. Scores of citizens stopped to get a drink, but found that the cup was gone and that there was no water in the "fountain." A citizen suggests that if it is found impossible to keep the fountain in working order, notice to this effect should be given and a sign bearing the information posted in a conspicious place so that people would not stop and try to get a drink. He suggests that a good sign would be "This is a drinking fountain—in name only."

Peterborough or Port Hope?

Saturday's Contest Will Practically Decide Midland League Championship

Will it be Peterborough or Port Hope on Saturday? The championship of the Midland league practically hinges on the game and as a consequence great interest centres in the contest. If Peterborough loses its practically goodbye the championship for this year whereas if the locals win they have a good chance of bein the kandy kids when the season is over. Peterborough has to win the game to remain in the running and it is needless to say that the boys will put forth their greatest endeavor. The team had a good practice at Riverside park last night and every man showed fine form. They are batting well and are working with more snap than at any time this season.

The great Surphlies will do the twirling for Port Hope while Flaherty or Quinlan will be on the firing line for Peterborough.

BASEBALL

TOMMY BULGER'S INJURY.

Cobourg, Aug. 6.—Tommy Bulger, Cobourg's star ball player, who was hit on the head by a pitched ball at Peterborough, a week ago last Saturday and put out of business, is still confined to the house and suffering much pain. He will be out of the game for the balance of he season, and his services will be greatly missed, as he was the best run-getter on the team. Bulger met with the same mishap at Port Hope several years ago.

APPLES ARE A LATE CROP

Local Fruit Dealers Cannot Secure Good Ones

Apples are a late crop this year and local fruit men do not expect to have any good ones in for a couple of weeks yet. Last season at this time the early varieties of apples were ripe, but so far this year, the seeds have not commenced to turn. It is reported that the apple trees are well loaded and that there will be plenty of apples on the market once they are ripe. Meanwhile the small boy is devouring as many apples as he can lay his hands on.

TWO FIRES AT WELLAND

Road Roller Bursts Gas Main Causing Bad Explosion.

Firebox Ignites Escaping Gas—Flames Leap Eighty Feet With Terrific Roar—Engineer Horribly Burned—Methodist Church Destroyed—Fireman Badly Hurt by Falling Cornice—Loss Estimated at $15,000.

Welland, Aug. 7.—An unusual accident occurred yesterday afternoon at 5.30 when the town's heavy road roller burst a gas main, an eight-inch pipe leading from the Crowland gas fields.

The gas ignited from the firebox of the roller, and the roar of the flames, which reached eighty feet in the air, could be heard for miles. William Phillips, the engineer, was blown from the cab of the roller and horribly burned. He was taken to a nearby house, and it was found that the flesh was coming from his hands, his face was seared and all his hair removed from his head. The machine, which cost $3,500, is a total wreck.

Nothing could be done to put out the fire until the gas was turned off an hour later at Air Line, three miles distant. The town was cut off from a gas supply last night.

At 7 o'clock the Methodist Church burst into flames, presumably from a spark from the burning cab of the road roller. The town firemen and the brigade from the Plymouth Cordage Co. could do nothing to check the fire, and the whole building was consumed. The loss is $15,000. It was the finest church property in Welland. The insurance is $5,000. The church took fire two months ago and had been under repairs to the extent of $2,000. A pipe organ had just been installed, and the reopening services were held only last Sunday with sermons by the Rev. Dr. A. L. Gee of Brantford, president of the Hamilton conference, and a former pastor here.

Nothing stands now but the bare walls.

Grant Ryan, a fireman, was struck by a falling cornic and badly hurt. He was taken unconscious to Cowper's Hospital.

Highly Desirable.

The Hague, Aug. 7.—The question of limitation of armaments, brought before the Peace Conference by Great Britain, has been definitely solved, the British representatives agreeing to modify the proposition in accordance with the desire of Germany.

The modified proposition, instead of urging the limitation of armaments says that such a limitation is "highly desirable."

This will be unanimously accepted.

Fire at Lansdowne.

Brockville, Aug. 7.—Early yesterday morning fire in the Merrill Block, Lansdowne, threatened the whole village. It originated somehow in Mrs. F. H. Wolfe's millinery store, and spread to A. R. Latimer's general store, and Frank Rateour's shoe store. A brick wall proved fireproof, and the flames were confined to these buildings, which, with contents, were destroyed.

Urgency for Preference.

London, Aug. 7.—(C.A.P.)—In Sydney the president of the Chamber of Trade at the annual meeting said the foreign Governments had become partners and their merchants were so undermining British trade that similar action was therefore necessary on the part of our Governments, hence the urgency for preference.

Fire at Ottawa.

Ottawa, Aug. 7.—A row of six brick houses in a new terrace at the corner of First avenue and the Government driveway, was destroyed by fire early yesterday morning. The loss is $12,000.

MURDER IN FRANCE.

Body of Woman Cut to Pieces Found in Trunk.

Marseilles, France, Aug. 7.—A trunk belonging to a man and woman who arrived here yesterday from Monte Carlo, attracted the attention of the baggagemaster, who caused it to be opened. It was found to contain the body of a woman, cut to pieces. The man and woman owning the trunk were arrested. They had assumed that it had been forwarded to London.

The couple, who are middle-aged, and gave the names of Mr. and Mrs. Gold, residents of Monte Carlo, denied that they committed any crime, and informed the examining magistrate that they only knew the victim slightly.

While the latter was at their home, the Villa Menesimy, on Sunday last, Mr. and Mrs. Gold added, the woman's lover arrived there and blew out her brains. The Golds, fearing they would be compromised, tried to get rid of the corpse.

The head and feet were in the Golds' valise and the rest of the body was in the trunk.

The autopsy seemed to upset the story told by the Golds. It was shown that the murdered woman was seized from behind and held while she was stabbed to death. A commission has been sent to Monte Carlo to investigate the crime.

Bad Accident at Detroit.

Detroit, Aug. 6.—Three men were badly injured, one fatally, by a freight elevator in the big Ferry seed house, falling from the fourth storey to the basement, yesterday. The man believed to be fatally hurt is John Flockton, 59 years of age, who came here from Hamilton, Ont., four months ago, and has been living with his son. He had been in the employ of the firm one month. His wife and three daughters still live in Hamilton.

The accident was caused by the breaking of the elevator cable. The latter was inspected only last Saturday and pronounced in good condition.

Establish Freight Zones.

New York, Aug. 7.—For the first time in their history the railroads have made a direct proposition to establish freight zones, with the tentative agreement to deliver freight at New York from each of these zones within a given time—say ten days from Buffalo, twenty from Chicago and thirty from Minneapolis.

In sewing up a wound after an operation for necrosis, Dr. Taylor pierced his thumb with the needle. The poison entered the blood.

Killed Moose Out of Season.

St. John, N.B., Aug. 7.—Two Americans were heavily fined for slaughtering moose out of season.

Hail Destroys Crops.

Reston, Man., Aug. 7.—The worst hailstorm in the history of this locality, stripping a district about thirty miles long and eight miles wide, occurred Monday night.

Not a spear of grain was left in its track, the destruction being most complete.

Hail, in shape varying from the size of a small marble to a pigeon egg in size, fell until the ground was white.

The windows in the houses of the town, unless protected by wire screens, suffered severely.

Garden stuffs were battered into the ground.

In addition to damage done by the hail, the electric storm accompanying it killed a number of horses and cattle, full particulars of which are not yet confirmed.

Chairman Eyres of the Board of Health Replies to a Correspondent

To the Editor of the Review.

Sir.—I observe your correspondent "Analysis" complaining re report of milk tests, as published in the city press.

Let "Analysis" read the closing paragraph of said report, which is as follows:

"A fact worthy of note in connection with the tests is the fact that in none of the samples was there any trace of injurious chemicals, such as formaldehyde, salicylic acid or borates."

If, in future tests, injurious matter is found in the milk, it will be attended to according to law, without fear or favor.

I am satisfied the Board will endorse the above. If the Board of Health has any duty to perform, it certainly is to guard the health of the citizens of the city of Peterborough to the utmost of their ability.

Yours, etc.,
WM. EYRES,
Chairman Board of Health

THE MYSTERY OF THAT "FIRE"

Correspondent Explains Where the Smoke Came From

To the Editor of the Review.

Sir.—You express surprise in your issue of yesterday at the mystery surrounding the smoke in Mr. Roy's studio, without location of the fire being ascertained. Why this is occurring every day in other places as well. The smoke comes from the much complained of obnoxious custom of burning paper, etc. in back yards. In some places it burns up quickly, and as quickly goes out, making a lot of smoke which blows into the adjoining rooms at this time of the year, when windows and doors are open. I have seen four fires at the one time in the yard adjoining Mr. Roy's studio. In other cases as well, it was only by presence of mind that the fire brigade was not called out. We have a bylaw against such a nuisance and we have a large force of paid policemen to enforce the laws, and yet we are suffering and running great risk as if anarchy reigned.

Yours, etc.,

SALVATION ARMY BAND

The following communication has been handed the Review by Mr. R. J. Todd and is printed, not however, that it meets in anyway the views of this journal:—

Editor Review.—Much is being said of late about the music of the Salvation Army band. As for myself a common citizen and lover of music, although not capable of blowing a horn on the streets, and perhaps are capable of judging the quality of music, I appreciate the music of the Army band; their zeal in using their talents, and the success they are attaining. It is quite agreeable to their praying and playing on the street corners, or any other part of the city so long as it pleases, and does not annoy, nor disturb other citizens who may desirous of worshipping God in a more quite way.

We are told that music is harmony expressed, whether by human voice, horn timbrel or organ. Now, sir, I want to tell you and the public as well as the Salvation Army that when I sat in our church last Sunday morning, at 11 o'clock, endeavoring to bring my thought into harmony with the Divine principle being, even absolute harmony, by listening to a piece of sacred music sounding from our organ, and the Salvation Army came along beating drums and blowing horns in full volume bringing out the tune of a lively piece of music. I would say lively enough for Finigan's wake. I was at a loss to know where the music part came in. Imagine yourself a warm summer morning in a church with windows open the organist playing sacred music, a strong brass band playing lively airs, the sounds vibrating and mingling together, with the shaking of glass in the windows from the thumps of the big drum, then try and say we are listening to music.

This is a description of what occured last Sunday. I went to the door to ascertain the disturbance, but found none. Just the ordinary procession with a brass band, carrying a flag of loyalty. British fair play, equal rights to all. This may be law, but I don't think it is Gospel.

If our city officials have sold the right of the city, to the Salvation Army, or any other body, to make as much noise as they please at any time and in any place, then we shall abide by the law, and endure, "Suffer it to be so now," Jesus.

However, I would like to say, in all kindness to those professing to be believers in the Lord Jesus Christ and who may at any time find it necessary under their modes and forms to parade the streets, that I am convinced that if Jesus were here leading a parade He would apply the 'Golden Rule' in passing where others were worshipping.

Even though they differed from His way on many points, He would recognize some good in them. It is said of Him Jesus, once when travelling He saw beside the road a decomposed form of a dog, and instead of complaining of the nasty appearance or of the disagreeable odor, He said, 'What beautiful white teeth,' recognizing the good.

In conclusion while we appreciate music, even by the Salvation Army band, and recognize the much good the Army has done, and is still doing, and wish them God speed in their work, we shall hope not to have to listen to such a conglomeration of sounds for a good while again.

Thanking you for space in which to throw off some of the discordant sense - the opposite of music.

Sincerely yours,
R. J. TODD.

Jackson Park Is Very Popular

The band was playing at Jackson Park last evening, and it, with the pleasant night was accountable for the large crowds going to this popular pleasure resort last evening. Every outgoing car until 9 o'clock was packed. The band gave an excellent programme of popular numbers, and the moving pictures that are being shown this week are well worth seeing. They include an "Inexperienced chauffeur," "The Spys," "The Bad Man," and several other interesting and exciting sets of pictures. There were a number of picnic parties at the park yesterday, and it was remarked that the attendance at the park on an evening was never as large before this season as it was last night. The people apparently are glad to get out to the park after their hard day's work, and parents with their families go out every evening to the park. They enjoy the moving pictures, and the band concert also is a great drawing crowd.

Fifty Thousand Pieces for Peterboro' Lumber Co.—Another Drive Coming

The second drive of logs for the Peterborough Lumber Company, which has come down this season were safely landed at the mills yesterday. There were 50,000 pieces in the drive and took several days to come down the river, but the last piece is inside the booms. The Co. has one more drive, probably one of the largest which has come down this season. There are 80,000 pieces in it, and it is now on its way and should be here in a few days.

Peterborough Creek Might Be Walled in by Individuals

Stream of Water Running Through Heart of the City Occupies Many Acres of Valuable Land—Engineer Once Recommended Diverting the Creek West.

Peterborough's creek, or whatever name that stream of water which runs through the heart of the city is called, was the subject of an interesting discussion last night. It was brought up by some one referring to the work being done by the Peterborough Lock works in building a concrete wall along the course of the street through their property.

One man said that it was too bad that so much valuable land should be let go to waste in the very centre of the city. There are over a hundred acres of land which should be covered with houses or business places which are now of no use to anybody, the bed of the creek is not even ornamental.

The city engineer, said an old resident, advocated about 17 or 18 years ago, diverting the stream from Jackson Park and carrying it down the western part of the city, near the boundary. His scheme was to build a regular canal and have it empty into the river instead of the Little Lake. At that time the property could have been purchased for very little money the work would not have been very expensive and there would have only been six bridges to keep up instead of fifteen as at present. But no one seemed to take hold of the scheme and it was allowed to drop.

The only thing to do now, said the first party, is to build concrete walls all along both sides of the creek through the city and build over them. The property for the most part is private and would have to be cribbed by the individuals interested. The city is making permanent bridges over the creek where it crosses the streets and that is all the city can be expected to do. The scheme would be an expensive one, but there is a great deal of property that would be well worth the money expended.

The only other way out of it, said the old resident, would be for the property owners interested to form a syndicate and purchase the property in the west end for the purpose of carrying out the engineer's idea. If they did that then all the land in the centre of the city would be reclaimed and should be worth far more than the property that would have to be bought. The engineer's scheme, as far as I can remember, was an excellent one and had it been carried out the city to-day would have had a piece of work that would have been a great credit and an attractive resort. He proposed that the canal be constructed and a boulevard built on each bank and to have planted trees all the way along the course. By this time the trees would have been of good size and the boulevard one of the most attractive walks in the whole Dominion. It was an opportunity lost and the longer it is delayed the more it will cost and less likely will the work be carried out.

Agreed to Tap the River Bank; Two Pipes North of King Street

No More Trouble Expected From Filling in of Water Front—Government, C.P.R., Cereal Co. and the City all Pay a Share—Mr. Rogers' Rights Will be Preserved.

A settlement, or at least an understanding, was arrived at between the five parties interested in the filling in of the water front along the west bank of the Otonabee river last night. A special session was held at the city hall, when the following were present:—Mayor McWilliams and City Solicitor E. H. D. Hall; J. G. Sing, of Toronto, representing the Dominion Government; H. C. Grubb, C.P.R. engineer, and W. H. Moore, C.P.R. solicitor; W. H. Meldrum and R. R. Hall, representing the Peterborough Cereal Co., and J. Z. Rogers, and his solicitor, R. E. Wood.

The case is one that is familiar to most people. Mr. Rogers has certain rights on the water front, which he claimed had been interfered with when the C.P.R., the Peterborough Cereal Company, the City Council and the Dominion Government blocked the passage of the water by filling in the C.P.R. tressel and the land each side of it. This prevented a flow of water past Mr. Rogers' boat houses and docks, and left the water at that place practically dead. He applied for a pipe to be laid from the tressel through the entire length of the property. This meant a very large expenditure, and the parties interested at once endeavored to find another means of accomplishing the same purpose at less cost.

It was suggested that the embankment on which the C.P.R. tracks are laid be tapped, and this met with the approval of Mr. Rogers, and the meeting last night was for the purpose of having this settled.

The party visited the water front, and after considering it for some time it was agreed that the Government cut a passage through the embankment it recently made, and that two three-foot pipes be put under the C.P.R. tracks at a point to be designated and carried to a point south of King street where the water will empty into Mr. Rogers' turning basin and cause a current, sufficient, it is claimed, to prevent any accumulation of dead water. The C.P.R., the Peterborough Cereal Co., and the city are each to pay one-third of the cost.

A memorial is now being prepared for submission to the railway commission, and as soon as its sanction is secured the work will be proceeded with.

This is a great bargain for the city, and the cost will be comparatively small. Had the first idea, viz., run a pipe from the C.P.R. tressel down, been carried out, the city would have had a very large bill to pay.

At the meeting a suggestion was made that a twelve-inch pipe be run from the creek down the south side of King street to empty into the turning basin. This would have cost more, but it would certainly have given more current than the scheme adopted.

British Journalists to Visit Peterboro' on Return from West

Mayor McWilliams Will Endeavor to Induce Them to See the Lift Lock and Machine Telephone Plant—Would be Good Thing for the City.

During the past two weeks a party of British journalists have been making a tour of Canada. They were sent out by some of the largest and most influential newspapers in Great Britain for the purpose of becoming intimately and personally acquainted with conditions in Canada. At the present time all eyes in England are centred on the Dominion, and some of the millions of English capitalists are being invested here, and many more are to come.

Already several important points have been visited, and a few days ago the party left for Winnipeg, Edmonton and British Columbia. They will return to Ontario in about ten days, coming from Port Arthur to Toronto by boat, on or about the 16th of this month.

His Worship Mayor McWilliams yesterday afternoon held a consultation with Ald. R. H. Leary, who will be Acting Mayor, in reference to having the Britishers call on Peterborough. The party are guests of Sir Thomas Shaughnessy, and are travelling by the C.P.R. His Worship will therefore communicate with the C.P.R. officials, extending an invitation, and will do all that is possible to induce the visitors to come. It is most desirable that they should see this city, as it is British capital that Peterborough is particularly anxious to have invested in manufacturing concerns, and a better and easier way to get the men of money interested in this city is by good reports in the British newspapers.

The two most important features to be seen in Peterborough will be the Lift Lock and the apparatus of the Canadian Machine Telephone Co., the only one in use in the Dominion. The matter of the reception and entertainment will be one of the duties of the Acting Mayor, as Mayor McWilliams will be away until about the 18th. One form of entertainment was a trip over the big lift lock and then up to No. 5 dam, where luncheon will be served, returning to the city during the afternoon some time. It was also suggested that a banquet be tendered in the evening, but the programme will not be arranged until the newspaper men consent to come.

Gilmour Street Is Now All Ready

Board of Works Can do Road Work and Build Sidewalks Any Time

The people on Gilmour street are now expecting the Board of Works to do great things for them. The street is built up solidly from Park street to the boundary. The houses are all of a good class and pay heavy taxes. The water, the sewer and the gas are all down; the lawns in most cases are in splendid shape, and those not yet fixed up are in front of houses just completed, and the owners will have them levelled, seeded or sodded this fall, and most of the sidewalk is down.

What is wanted is granolithic walk on the south side of the street from its present terminal to the boundary. This has been decided upon by the Board of Works, and should be done this summer or early fall, as for some distance there is no walk at all and no crossing over the road. The people are, therefore, in a very bad shape in wet weather.

Then the roadway is in a very poor condition. There are little hills and miniature valleys from one end to the other. The Board of Works intends, it is understood, putting the road in good repair. There is two great advantages to this street, viz., what repairs are made will not be distrubed with waterworks, sewers or gas, and it is a narrow street and easily put into shape. If a good job is done now it will not have to be touched again for years. When these improvements are made Gilmour street will be one of the prettiest and most substantial residential streets in the city.

Robt. Park, of Chatham, school inspector of West Kent, is dead, aged 55.

Miss Thompson, of Lachlan, Ont. who has been visiting friends in Lakefield, left on Monday last for a round of visits to friends at Stony Lake.

NEW HOUSES

Messrs. Kilbourn and Baptie Bros. are erecting four dwelling houses on the old mill property lately purchased from Mr. Thos Darcy, These will supply, to a certain extent, a long felt want in the matter of housing. from which Lakefield has long been suffering.

Miss Helen Montizambert, of Port Hope, Miss Phyllis Plummer, of Stratford and Miss Winnie Palmer, of Peterborough, who have been guests of Mr. and Mrs. DelaFosse at Stony Lake, returned home on Friday last.

NO CRICKET GAME

A challenge from cricketers in Port Hope to play a team of Lakefield cricketers at the former place on Wednesday has had to be refused owing to the short notice given in regard to the date. This is much to be regretted as Lakefield cricketers have pleasant memories of Port Hope hospitality and would have been glad to have had another match and renewed old associations.

Rev A. W. Mackenzie returned home last Friday after a few days in Toronto, spent in visiting his brother, Prof. Michael Mackenzie.

Mr. Geo. Guillet passed through Lakefield on Monday on his way to his home in Cobourg. Mr. Guillet has been one of the lucky fishers of Stony Lake this season, in which respect he scarcely takes second place to his cousin, that ardent old sportsman, Mr. Levi Payne.

Miss M. Owen and Miss Sylva Strickland returned to Lakefield on Saturday last after a short sojourn in Toronto.

CHICKEN THIEVES

Chicken thieves are beginning their depredations again. Several losses have already been reported. It is high time that a detective was put on the track of the young scamps who perform these depredations that a salutary example may be made of them

Mr. Hugh Lewis, of the Traders' Bank staff, is spending his holidays at Loon Lake.

Mrs Hebert, of Midland, and Miss Wastell, of Bournemouth, Eng., a former resident of Lakefield, were visitors in the village last week.

Miss Minnie Rubidge, of Toronto, and Miss Florence Rubidge, of Peterborough, paid a short visit to Mr and Mrs. Drayton last week.

PICNIC NEAR SPRINGVILLE

Presbyterians of That Place Have a Jolly Outing

The annual picnic of the Sunday school of the Springville Presbyterian church was held yesterday afternoon in Bowles' grove, about a mile north of Springville. There were races, swings, a tug-of-war and numerous other attractions that made the day a merry one and in addition, of course, there were plenty of good things to eat. A large number were in attendance and voted the picnic a great success.

LOCAL BAND IS HONORED

Given Two Days Engagement at Toronto Exhibition

A signal recognition of the merits of the 57th Regiment band, of this city, is the fact that they have been given a two days' engagement at the Toronto exhibition. In former years they were only engaged for one day, and this year the other provincial bands have only been given a one-day engagement, and that is all they have been hired for this fall, with the exception of the Peterborough band. Bandmaster Gliddon and his musicians will play at the exhibition on Friday and Saturday, August 30th and 31st, giving two concerts each day. The engagement is for thirty men.

Presented With Handsome Gifts

Miss Mabel Curtis Honored by Her Fellow Employees

Last evening Miss Mabel Curtis, stenographer in Mr. A. W. Cressman's dry goods establishment, was made the recipient of a presentation and address from the employees of the store. A handsome suit case and pearl crescent pin with an address were sent to Miss Curtis' home. Miss Cutis leaves on the 20th of this month for Hazeltown, B.C., where she will engage in missionary work under Rev. Dr. Winch, who was sent out there by the Missionary Society of the Methodist church. Miss Curtis was taken by surprise, but desires to express her appreciation of the kindness of the employees and their handsome gifts. The many friends of Miss Curtis will wish her every success in the good work she is undertaking in the cause of missions.

Late Boat and Special Train

Splendid Arrangements Made for Stony Lake Regatta

Arrangements have been made to have a special boat leave the Juniper island pavilion, Stony Lake, at 12 o'clock Monday night and to connect with a special G.T.R. train at Lakefield for Peterborough. This will give the people from Peterborough who attend the Stony Lake regatta and remain for the dance, to arrive home in good time. The action of the committee in arranging for the late boat and special boat will no doubt be greatly appreciated.

There will be another session of Parliament this fall; the dissolution rumor is denied.

"PE-RU-NA WORKED WONDERS"
Says a Well-Known Canadian.

MR. P. BRIEN.

Mr. P. Brien, Accountant, residing at 28 Third street, Limoilou, Quebec, writes:

"The fatigues entailed by my duties as accountant began to weaken my system about a year ago. I felt that I would not long be able to withstand the severe strain upon my nerves, as, a thing unknown to me before, I would long for office hours to be over in order to rest.

"I gradually grew weaker and a few months later my sight was impaired. I then broke down completely and was obliged to take my bed. I was also suffering from palpitation of the heart.

"After a few weeks' treatment by a local physician, I was in the same critical condition, and as the doctor held out no great prospects for me, I decided to experiment on myself.

"I took several remedies advertised as tonics, but did not derive any benefit.

"Peruna was then given a trial, and before I had taken it a week I felt my condition improving. After a few weeks more had elapsed, during which time I followed the directions carefully, my shattered nervous system became firmer, my sight stronger and I hoped to be out soon again.

"My expectations were realized, for in three weeks I assumed my duties as accountant at the office.

"Peruna certainly worked wonders on my system, and for persons run-down from overwork, I believe it is the most efficacious tonic."

Assistant War Correspondent Recommends Pe-ru-na.

Mr. H. B. Manley, assistant War Correspondent during the War in China, care "Black and White," 688 Craig St., Montreal, Canada, writes:

"When a man travels in extremely hot or cold climates, he realizes how valuable a friend he has if he carries a bottle of Peruna.

"I know of no article in my traveling outfit which I have learned to praise higher.

"If you are suffering with the extreme heat. Peruna restores you, or if you are afflicted with a cold, la grippe or bronchitis, Peruna restores you in a short time.

"Or if you suffer with sleeplessness or if your appetite is poor, again Peruna acts as a good, true friend and is the tonic needed.

"I have tried it for months and am only too glad to acknowledge it as a true, loyal standby in times of trouble. I do not hesitate to recommend it to all."

For free medical advice, address Dr. S. B. Hartman, President of the Hartman Sanitarium, Columbus, Ohio.

Pe-ru-na Is a Systemic Catarrh Remedy, Especially Adapted to Cases of Nervous Prostration, Caused By Overwork, Mental Strain Or Extreme Summer Heat.

IN latitudes where warm weather is of long continuance, the inhabitants become more or less accustomed to it.

In Temperate Zones, however, where the change from winter to summer is great, the system is sometimes poorly prepared to meet the exigencies of hot weather. This is the cause of much sickness.

Stomach catarrh, indigestion and dyspepsia are not among the least of summer ailments.

INDIGESTION CAUSES WEAKNESS.

When the digestion is disturbed, the assimilation is also affected, and as a result the body does not receive the nourishment it should. Lassitude, weakness, brain fag, loss of flesh and nervous prostration are the natural results.

What is needed is a remedy that will restore the digestive organs to their normal condition.

Such a remedy has been found in Peruna. It has proven itself of priceless value in thousands of cases of this kind.

Its action has been seemingly miraculous in restoring some patients who had given up all hope of recovery.

PE-RU-NA'S BENEFICIAL EFFECT.

But there is nothing strange about Peruna's action. It simply tones up the mucous membranes of the organs involved. restoring them to their normal conditions and leaving Nature to perform her duties unhindered.

That person who has sound, healthy mucous membranes lining the entire digestive tract is well-guarded against the usual summer ailments.

Peruna is the means whereby to attain this most desirable condition.

If you suffer from any of the above-mentioned symptoms, try a bottle of Peruna.

One bottle of this remedy is sufficient to convince any one of its merit as a safe and reliable remedy for all catarrhal conditions.

We have many letters of gratitude received from persons who have experienced its benefits.

These testimonials are proof to us that Peruna has not failed in the mission for which it was intended, that of relieving suffering and restoring health.

Muskrats Swam River With Young Ones on Their Backs

Frightened From Their Haunts Along the Otonabee by the Workmen Who Are Filling Up the Shore With Dumpings.

Persons who happened to be in the vicinity of the Otonabee river where the low lying land along the shore is being filled in near Rogers' boathouse were spectators of a somewhat rare and interesting sight. At this point the river bank is covered with small willows which grow very thickly and it appears provided a fine place for homes for muskrats, which are quite numerous along the stream in that locality.

When the teamsters commenced dumping loads of earth among the willows yesterday they disturbed the muskrats and an interesting scene was the result. The rats took to the water, carrying their young with them. When they reached the water the young ones climbed on the old rats' backs and were carried across the river to a place of safety on the other shore. It was a unique sight to see the old ones swimming with the little fellows on their backs and the workmen and others who were in the vicinity greatly enjoyed the spectacle. Every little while a rat would take to the river and swim across, frightened from their usual haunts by the dumping of the earth and the voices of the workmen.

It is not likely that the rats will return to their old homes as the willows are being covered up by the dumpings and the low shore line built up.

An Exciting Experience of A Harvey Street Resident

Summoned Forth at Night to Find Two Women in Terrified State at His Door—The Sequel.

If a certain gentleman resident on Harvey street had lived in the days of King Arthur he would surely have been one of the knights who sat at the Round Table. For be it known that the said gentleman is a hero, who, on a recent occasion, faced, on behalf of the fair sex, terrors which, perhaps, you or I would not face. It's not every man who would go out boldly at the dead of night and risk—but there, we're getting a little ahead of our story.

It happened on Sunday night. The hero of our story, having been to church twice, was in a peaceful frame of mind. He thought, perhaps, the evening sermon had been a little too long, but on the whole, it had been a peaceful, happy day. The rest of the family had retired, and the master of the household, having wound up the clock, mounted the staircase on his way to bed. He undressed calmly, and then, as Bryant so beautifully says,

"Wrapped the drapery of his couch about him,
And lay down to pleasant dreams."

He was just sinking off to sleep, and the last indignant thought in connection with the milk tests was fast fading from his mind, when:

"Help!"

"Save us!"

"Wee-e-e!" rang out upon the stilly night.

At the same time there was an insistent pounding upon the front door, and our hero realized that something was doing, and he personally, was due for an appearance somewhere near the centre of the stage.

Hastily drawing on his unmentionables our hero tore for the hallway. By actual count (he has the scars to show for it) he stubbed his toes just eleven times while on the voyage to the front door.

All the while the loud, staccato screams were splitting the peaceful atmosphere into fragments. With his heart in his mouth the Harvey street man tore the door open, hardly knowing what he expected to see. Buckets of blood on the sidewalk would not have surprised him.

The door opened, and there, in a prayerful attitude stood two ladies.

"Save us!" they cried; "in pity's name save us!"

"With great pleasure," said the Harvey street man, holding as much as possible behind the door, "but what are the particulars of this tragedy; are you being cut into mincemeat, or, just plain Hamburg steak?"

"Save us!" again cried the ladies, in chorus, "Oh! look there!"

With his eyes bulging out he looked.

About twenty yards away, in the shadows, lurked a small black and white animal, eyes glowing brightly.

The ladies crowded into the house, charitably crowding the man out in company with what they believed to be—a skunk.

Here was dilemma! The Harvey street man could not run, for the ladies were looking at him; he did not want to capture the wild animal alive, and had very little use for it dead.

Finally he commenced to skirmish round to see if he could not drive it away.

List! another sound breaks the stillness

"Meauw."

The Harvey street man heard it. He went and gathered the little animal up in his arms.

It was a kitten.

Let us draw a veil over the last act of this drama.

Band tonight at Jackson Park.

HOW YOU GET CONSUMPTION.

Most "lungers" allowed their power of resistance to fall very low. Favorable conditions were provided for the development of the baccilli. Consumption was the result.

But in a healthy body Consumption can't take root. The most potent health-maker is Ferrozone. Take it regularly and you needn't fear tuberculosis.

FERROZONE

Supplies exactly what the man verging on Consumption needs. It forms rich, nutritious blood, strengthens the nerves, puts vim and endurance into every organ of the body.

For the tired, weak—anyone in poor health—Ferrozone is worth its weight in gold. Avoid substitutes!

Price 50c per box or six for $2.50, at all dealers, or by mail from N. C. Polson & Co., Kingston, Ont., and Hartford, Conn., U.S.A.

The Sultan Must Hurry Up; The French Make Demands

France Demands That Promised Reforms Be Carried Out.

Strained Situation In Morocco—Shells Did Deadly Work at Casablanca—Three Hundred Moors Were Killed or Wounded—One French Sailor Injured — Course Adopted Generally Approved.

Tangier, Aug. 8.—Upon the demand of the French charge d'affaires, Mohammed Torres, the representative of the Sultan here, has reiterated the instructions he had previously issued to assure the safety of the Europeans at Tangier and elsewhere.

The French steamer Amatole, which brought the news of the bombardment of Casablanca, has been requisitioned by the French charge d'affaires, who will use her as a despatch boat.

A guard to protect the French consulate will immediately be landed at Rambat.

The French charge d'affaires has made these formal demands on the Moroccan Government:

First—That the Moroccan authorities at Casablanca place themselves under the orders of the commander of the French forces.

Second—That the security of the French citizens at Fez and other places in the interior be guaranteed.

Third—That the Moroccan authorities hasten the reparation for the murder of Dr. Mauchamp.

Fourth—That the Moroccan authorities expedite the preparations for the application of the reforms agreed upon by the Algeciras convention.

Minister of War Gabbes has doubled the night guards here, has disarmed the soldiers belonging to the tribes around Casablanca, and has forbidden the guards on the outskirts of Tangier to allow any European to leave the city.

The French cruisers Galilee and Duchayla continue to fire on and disperse the Moorish horsemen who approach Casablanca.

Will Organize Police.

Paris, Aug. 8.—The note communicated by the French Government to the signatories of the Algeciras convention.

The note also expressly states that a police force for Casablanca and its vicinity will be organized in concert with Spain and adds that any future measures necessitated by the situation will be communicated to the powers.

Official advices estimate the number of Moors killed or wounded during Sunday's bombardment of Casablanca at 300. One French sailor was seriously wounded.

Journalistic Approval.

The newspapers are unanimous in expressing approval of the course pursued at Casablanca and call especial attention to the fact that the native quarter was bombarded with the approval of the military commander.

The Petit Republique says: Only exemplary punishment can bring the Kabyles to more reasonable and more humane sentiments. It is sad to think that shells are necessary to convey the message of civilization, but when dealing with barbarians this is the only way.

SCHOOL BOOK PRICES.

Reduction Which Now Applies to Readers.

Toronto, Aug. 8.—Hon. Dr. Pyne, Minister of Education, announces that owing to the report of the Text Book Commission having been only recently received, and the fact that several text books on one subject are on the authorized list, the difficulties consequently connected with agreements and copyrights, and the necessity for giving due notice to the trade, the Department has not yet been able to secure what it would consider sufficiently adequate reductions in the prices of the books now authorized for the high schools and public schools, except, as has been announced, in the case of the Ontario readers. These are now obtainable at the new prices, as follows:

First Reader, Part I., five cents.
First Reader, Part II., seven cents.
Second Reader, nine cents.
Third Reader, thirteen cents.
Fourth Reader, fifteen cents.

The publisher selling to any purchaser for use in Ontario shall allow the following discounts:

(a) On one or more copies of any book, 25 per cent. off the prescribed retail price.

(b) On quantities of the value of $250 and upwards at retail prices (the said purchase being made of any quantity of any or all of the said books, and in any proportion the purchaser may desire), 25 per cent. off the prescribed retail price, and an extra ten per cent. thereafter.

Early in October next, the contents and prices of the list of books now in use in the schools will be revised, and arrangements made for the publication of such text-books as may be required.

Semi-Centennial Celebration Has Auspicious Beginning.

Galt, Aug. 8.—The success of the home-comers' festival and semi-centennial seems assured with its first day. Several thousand visitors were in town yesterday and the streets were gay with decorations.

An immense gathering in Dickson Park yesterday morning witnessed the formal commencement of the celebration. Hon. James Young, honorary president of the celebration committee, read an address, in which he recalled his own recollections of the memorable 12th of May, 1857, when the foundation-stone of the town hall was laid.

This address was followed by short speeches by Hon. Vice-President His Worship the Mayor, Dr. Adam Thomson; Chairman J. P. Jaffray, Vice-Chairman ex-Mayor Dr. Radford, the clergymen of the town and others.

In the afternoon the ball game attracted 10,000 people. Sports and various entertainments were also in full swing.

Last night the joy was unconfined.

NEARLY DROWNS IN FREEZER.

Little Lad, Peering After Ice Cream, Terribly Trapped.

Cressona, Aug. 8.—A child's legs sticking out of an ice cream freezer almost froze the blood of a Cressona, Pa., man. Toppled head first in the freezer, full of water, the three-year-old son of M. L. Runkle was pulled out after two minutes, apparently dead; but was resuscitated in a remarkable manner.

The little boy fell into the freezer while leaning over, and, as his head was immersed, he could give no outcry.

A visitor saw the little legs, but the boy's face was blue, and there was no signs of pulse or respiration when rescued. The father, after two hours' work, brought the boy back to consciousness.

COBALT LOCAL DERAILED.

Tender Swung Engine Off the Track —Nobody Hurt.

Cobalt, Aug. 8.—An engine of the T. & N. O. Railway, with the tender, was derailed yesterday morning on the first curve south of Gillies' depot.

The train, which is the 8.30 Cobalt local, was going south, and the derailment was due to the engine running with her tender in front, and was too light to hold the rails when turning the sharp curve at a high rate of speed. No one was hurt, but both engine and tender were rather badly damaged, the tracks of the tender being jerked off.

The track for 40 yards was so badly torn up that a temporary switch had to be constructed to allow the through trains to pass. The morning trains were delayed a couple of hours.

The Manager Of the B. & A.

By VAUGHAN KESTER

Copyright, 1901, by Harper & Brothers

To maintain his composure required a great effort. In the riotous days of his youth he had concluded most arguments in which he had become involved with his fists. Aged and broken, his religion overlay his still vigorous physical strength but thinly, as a veneer. He squared his massive shoulders and stood erect, like a man in his prime, and glowered heavily on the editor.

"I trust you have always been able to make right your guiding star," retorted Ryder jeeringly. The anger instantly faded from the old convict's face. He was recalled to himself.

Ordinarily—that is, in the presence of others—Ryder would have felt bound to treat Roger Oakley with the deference due to his years. Alone, as they were, he was restrained by no such obligation. He was in an ugly mood, and he proceeded to give it rein.

"I wish you'd mind your own business," he said suddenly. "What do you mean by coming here to tell me what I ought to do? If you want to know, I'll tell you what I'm going to do. I am going to hound you and that precious son of yours out of this part of the country."

The old man straightened up again as Ryder spoke. The restraint of years dropped from him in a twinkling. He told him he was a scoundrel, and he prefaced it with an oath, a slip he did not notice in his excitement.

"Hey! What's that?"

"You're a scoundrel!" repeated Roger Oakley, white with rage. He took a step around the table and came nearer the editor. "I don't know but what I ought to break every bone in your body! You are trying to ruin my son!" He hit the table a mighty blow with his clinched fist and, thrusting his head forward, glared into Ryder's face.

"You have turned his friends against him. Why, he ain't got none left any more. They have all gone over to the other side. And you done it, you done it, and it's got to stop!"

Ryder had been taken aback for the moment by Roger Oakley's fierce anger, which vibrated in his voice and flashed in his dark, sunken eyes.

"Get out of here!" he shouted, losing control of himself. "Get out or I'll kick you out!"

"When I'm ready to go I'll leave," retorted the old man calmly, "and that will be when I've said my say."

"You'll go now." And he shoved him in the direction of the door. The shove was almost a blow, and as it fell on his broad chest Roger Oakley gave a hoarse, inarticulate cry and struck out with his heavy hand. Ryder staggered back, caught at the end of the table as he plunged past it and fell his length upon the floor. The breath whistled sharply from the old man's lips. "There," he muttered, "you'll keep your hands off!"

Ryder did not speak or move. All was hushed and still in the room. Suddenly a nervous chill seized the old convict. He shook from head to heel.

"I didn't mean to hit you," he said, speaking to the prostrate figure at his feet. "Here, let me help you."

He stooped and felt around on the floor until he found Ryder's hand. He released it instantly to take the lamp from the table. Then he knelt beside the editor. In the corner where the latter lay stood a rusty wood stove. In his fall Griff's head had struck against it.

The lamp shook in Roger Oakley's hand like a leaf in a gale. Ryder's eyes were open and seemed to look into his own with a mute reproach. For the rest he lay quite limp, his head twisted to one side. The old man felt of his heart. One or two minutes elapsed. His bearing was one of feverish intensity. He heard three men loiter by on the street and the sound of their footfalls die off in the distance, but Ryder's heart had ceased to beat. Fully convinced of this, he returned the lamp to the table and, sitting down in the chair by the door, covered his face with his hands and sobbed aloud.

Over and over he murmured: "I've killed him, I've killed him! Poor boy, poor boy! I didn't go to do it!"

Presently he got up and made a second examination. The man was dead past every doubt. His first impulse was to surrender himself to the town marshal, as he had done once before under similar circumstances.

Then he thought of Dan.

No; he must escape, and perhaps it would never be known who had killed Ryder. His death might even be attributed to an accident. In his excitement he forgot the boy he had met at the door. That incident had passed entirely from his mind, and he did not remember the meeting until days afterward.

He had been utterly indifferent to his own danger, but now he extinguished the lamp and made his way cautiously into the outer room and peered into the street. As he crouched in the darkness by the door he heard the town bell strike the hour. He counted the strokes. It was 8 o'clock. An instant later and he was hurrying down the street, fleeing from the ghastly horror of the white, upturned face and the eyes, with their look of mute reproach.

When he reached the railroad track at the foot of Main street he paused irresolutely.

"If I could see Dannie once more, just once more!" he muttered under his breath, but he crossed the tracks with a single longing look turned toward the shops, a black blur in the night a thousand yards distant.

Main street became a dusty country road south of the tracks. He left it at this point and skirted a cornfield, going in the direction of the creek.

At the shops Dan had waited supper for his father until half past 7, when he decided he must have gone uptown, probably to the Joyces'. So he had eaten his supper alone. Then he drew his chair in front of an open window and lighted his pipe. It was very hot in the office, and by and by he carried his lamp into the pattern room, where he and his father slept. He arranged their two cots, blew out the light, which seemed to add to the heat, partly undressed and lay down. He heard the town bell strike 8 and then the half hour. Shortly after this he must have fallen asleep, for all at once he awoke with a start. From off in the night a confusion of sounds reached him. The town bell was ringing the alarm. At first he thought it was a fire, but there was no light in the sky, and the bell rang on and on.

He got up and put on his coat and hat and started out.

It was six blocks to the Herald office, and as he neared it he could distinguish a group of excited, half dressed men and women where they clustered on the sidewalk before the building. A carriage was standing in the street.

He elbowed into the crowd unnoticed and unrecognized. A small boy who had climbed into the low boughs of a maple tree now shouted in a perfect frenzy of excitement: "Hi, they're bringing him out! Jimmy Smith's got him by the legs!"

At the same moment Chris Berry appeared in the doorway. The crowd stood on tiptoe, breathless, tense and waiting.

"Drive up a little closer, Tom," Berry called to the man in the carriage. Then he stepped to one side, and two men pushed past him carrying the body of Ryder between them. The crowd gave a groan.

CHAPTER XVII.

RYDER'S murder furnished Antioch with a sensation the like of which it had not known in many a day. It was one long, breathless shudder, ramified with contingent horrors.

Dippy Ellsworth remembered that when he drove up in his cart on the night of the tragedy to light the street lamp which stood on the corner by the Herald office his horse had balked and refused to go near the curb. It was generally conceded that the sagacious brute smelled blood. Dippy himself said he would not sell that horse for $1,000, and it was admitted on all sides that such an animal possessed a value hard to reckon in mere dollars and cents.

Three men recalled that they had passed the Herald office and noticed that the door stood open. Within twenty-four hours they were hearing groans and within a week cries for help, but they were not encouraged.

Of course the real hero was Bob Bennett, Ryder's assistant, who had discovered the body when he went back to the office at half past 8 to close the forms. His account of the finding of Ryder dead on the floor was an exceedingly grizzly narrative, delightfully conducive of the shivers. He had been the quietest of youths, but two weeks after the murder he left for Chicago. He said there might be those who could stand it, but Antioch was too slow for him.

Not less remarkable was Ryder's posthumous fame. Men who had never known him in life now spoke of him with trembling voices and every outward evidence of the sincerest sorrow. It was as if they had sustained a personal loss, for his championship of the strike had given him a great popularity, and his murder, growing out of this championship, as all preferred to believe, made his death seem a species of martyrdom.

Indeed, the mere fact that he had been murdered would have been sufficient to make him popular at any time. He had supplied Antioch with a glorious sensation. It was something to talk over and discuss and shudder at, and the town was grateful and happy with the deep, calm joy of a perfect emotion.

It determined to give him a funeral which should be creditable alike to the cause for which he had died and to the manner of his death.

Meanwhile Dan had been arrested, examined and set at liberty again in the face of the prevailing sentiment that he should be held. No one doubted—he himself least of all—that Roger Oakley had killed Ryder. Bob Bennett recalled their meeting as he left the office to go home for supper on the night of the murder, and a red and yellow bandanna handkerchief was found under the table, which Dan identified as having belonged to his father.

Kenyon came to Antioch and made his re-election almost certain by the offer of a reward of $500 for the arrest and conviction of the murderer. This stimulated a wonderful measure of activity. Parties of men and boys were soon scouring the woods and fields in quest of the old convict.

The day preceding that of the funeral a dusty countryman on a hard ridden plow horse dashed into town with the news that a man who answered perfectly to the description of Roger Oakley had been seen the night before twenty-six miles north of Antioch, at a place called Barrow's Sawmills, where he had stopped at a store and made a number of purchases. Then he had struck off through the woods. It was also learned that he had eaten his breakfast the morning after the murder at a farmhouse midway between Antioch and Barrow's Sawmills. The farmer's wife had at his request put up a lunch for him. Later in the day a man at work in a field had seen and spoken with him.

There was neither railroad, telegraph nor telephone at Barrow's Sawmills, and the fugitive had evidently considered it safe to venture into the place, trusting that he was ahead of the news of his crime. It was on the edge of a sparsely settled district, and to the north of it was the unbroken wilderness stretching away to the lakes and the Wisconsin line.

MARTIAL LAW IN BELFAST.

Soldiers Take Possession of Streets Carrying Ball Cartridges.

Belfast, Ireland, Aug. 8.—Troops took possession of the streets of Belfast yesterday morning and strong guards were posted at custom house square and other centres.

Thousands of citizens watched with mixed feelings, the inauguration of military control of the city as a result of the strikes and insubordination of the police.

The soldiers will carry ball cartridges, and there are some fears that this practical placing of the city under martial law may precipitate a crisis.

The plan is to have the soldiers perform police duty in order to enable forces of constabulary to be told off to protect the conveyance of merchandise to and from the docks.

The city has been divided into five divisions, each under control of a battalion of infantry.

The city is quiet. The strike pickets turned out as usual yesterday morning, but they were inactive.

The day passed in absolute quietude. The effect of the presence of the troops on the business streets of the city was most excellent. Some of the mills and factories that had closed were re-opened and others announce that they will re-open to-day.

More goods have been moved from the docks than on any day since the dockers' strike began, and it is apparent that the strike of the carters will collapse speedily.

MUST GET A LICENSE.

U. S. Fishermen Get Same Privileges as Britishers.

Washington, Aug. 8.—The State Department yesterday received a communication from Ambassador Bryce in connection with the seizure and release last spring in the Gulf of St. Lawrence of the American fishing schooner Alert, engaged in trap net fishing.

The ambassador says that the action of the Canadian authorities in that case was taken solely with a view to the preservation of the fisheries and no question of nationality was involved.

In order to prevent further friction instructions have been sent to the local authorities not to interfere with trap nets set by American fishermen in cases where a license would not be refused to a British fisherman even though the special license has not already been taken out.

The ambassador says that the Dominion Government hopes that American fishermen will be requested to apply for license and not proceed to fish without them inasmuch as they will be issued on the same conditions as to British fishermen.

The State Department regards this outcome as most satisfactory and is gratified at the attitude of the Dominion authorities.

Susan Richard Got One Year

In Mercer Reformatory—Has Appeared Several Times in Police Court

One year in the Mercer reformatory at Toronto, was the sentence Susan Richards received in the police court this morning from City Treasurer Frank Adams, who occupied the seat on the bench in the absence of His Worship Magistrate Dumble. Susan was charged with disturbing the peace on Tuesday night on Harvey street. She pleaded guilty. "I will never touch liquor again if you let me go," she pleaded.

"That is your story every time said His Worship, and you have appeared here on several occasions." You will be well treated up in Toronto, and you will be away from drink."

Mrs. Richards asked if she might go home and get her things and she was given permission to in company with P.C. McDonald. Since she finished her last term in gaol she has been drunk every day and she has become a public nuisance. She goes around begging from house to house and the other day was trying to pawn off her husband's new shoes for whiskey.

Her husband went in to see her after the court was over. He remarked that that was a pretty stiff sentence. He also said that he was going to get right out of town and would return to Goderich where he came from.

Wheelmen in Bad Collision

Run into Each Other on George Street With Bad Effect to One of Them

A badly demolished bicycle and a young man with considerable skin peeled off—these were two of the features of a collision between two wheelmen on George street his forenoon. The accident happened in front of Neill's shoe store and attracted considerable attention. One of the young men was riding north and the other was going south when in some manner they collided. The result was disastrous to one of them. The front wheel of his bicycle was smashed beyond repair and the rider was thrown violently and received some painful bruises, which he had attended to at a nearby drug store. The other wheel and rider escaped without injury.

Discovery of Iron Pyrites Made Near Village of Madoc

Two Veins Found 11½ Feet Wide and 12 Feet Wide—Medina Mine Will be Running Full Blast in a Couple of Weeks—Blairton Iron Mines.

A prominent mining man called the other evening and informed the Review that he had paid a recent visit to the Deloro and Blairton mines. At Deloro they are getting in shape for the treatment of Cobalt ores. They are rushing their buildings to completion and have installed a new electric plant.

At the Blairton iron mine, which is owned by the Pearce Co. men are engaged boring and sinking test pits. It is their intention to thoroughly test the property, and from present indications it is almost an assured fact that these mines will soon be in operation again.

At the present time there seems to be a boom in iron. Four or five experts have been in this vicinity recently looking for this mineral for to supply Canadian and United States furnaces. Several options have been taken on iron properties in the neighborhood.

THE MEDINA COPPER MINE.

Mr. Cole Saunders, managing director of the Eldorado Copper mine was in town for a few days last week, in company with Mr. Wilson, of Rochester. These two gentlemen have been up to the mines, and, we are informed, it is their intention to develop this mine to its fullest capacity. New capital has been added, and with this to enthuse the excellent working plant already installed there, we expect to hear of the Medina mine running full blast in the course of a couple of weeks.

DISCOVERY OF IRON PYRITES

A good discovery of iron pyrites has been made by Mr. Stephen Wellington, who has had a gang of men prospecting on his lot for the past six weeks. There are two veins of high-grade pyrites, one being 11 ft. 8 in. wide, which will get wider as the shaft is being sunk. There are two defined walls of black schist, also a thin selvage of talc on the walls. The other vein is six feet wide. The ore will run 52 per cent. sulphur. The property is five miles from Madoc village and one and a half miles from the B.Q. R. This property will be a valuable one owing to the high percentage of sulphur it carries, and mine being high and dry.—North Hastings Review.

G.T.R. Employee Met Death In Yards at Cobourg To-day

Man Named Hodgins From Port Hope Killed While Helping in Shunting Trains in the Yard at Cobourg

Special to the Review.

Cobourg, Aug. 8.—William Hodgson for many years a Grand Trunk conductor, was killed here this morning by being run over by the caboose of his freight train. Mr. Hodgson was one of the best known and most popular Grand Trunk employees of this district.

Visitors in the city from Cobourg today brought news of a shocking fatality at that town this morning. A man named Hodgins, who resides at Port Hope, was killed while working in the railway yard at Cobourg. Hodgins was an employee of the G.T.R. and held the position of yardman. The same staff is employed to work in the yards and do the shunting in the yards both at Port Hope and Cobourg and the unfortunate man was working in the yard at Cobourg this morning when he met his death. While assisting in doing some shunting he slipped and fell on the track and was run over by the engine, death being almost instantaneous.

The body was taken to Port Hope where the deceased was well known and highly respected. He was well liked among the railway men and they learned of his tragic death with deep regret.

Information regarding Hodgins' death was also received at the local G.T.R. station today.

Samples of Water from Creek Sent to Toronto for Analysis

If Typhoid Germs are Found the Spring Will Not be Used—Local Medical Health Officer Says the Water is Pure.

A well known gentleman from Stony Lake was in the city this morning and while he admitted that there were several cases of typhoid fever developed at the lakes, he said he did not think there was any cause for alarm. It is generally reported that the cases were due to the one spring, although there is a difference of opinion. However, samples of the water have been sent to Toronto and it is expected that a report will be received in a day or two. While some do not think the typhoid germs are in the spring water, if the report is unfavorable the spring will be closed at once. Precautions will be taken to remove anything from the lake resorts which might be a source of typhoid fever.

M.H.O. TALKS.

The Review endeavored to locate Sanitary Inspector Ball yesterday and to-day, but up to the time of going to press he could not be found. It is therefore impossible to say whether he intends taking any action in the matter or not.

Medical Health Officer Dr. Bingham was asked if he intended to do anything and he replied, "What can be done?" He did not believe that there was any typhoid fever germs in the spring referred to. Several years ago he drank some water from the spring and creek and says it was the best in the world. It came right out of the ground and could not possibly be polluted.

The venerable medical health officer forgot that the water from the creek runs some distance in the open before it reaches the place where some people drink, and he also forgot that conditions have changed considerably since he took a drink several years ago.

First Shipment of Carnations To Australia Was a Failure

Were Too Long on the Way—Delayed Two Weeks in Custom House—Plants Were Not Old Enough—A Second Shipment Has Been Ordered.

Those who are interested in flower culture will be glad to hear that Mr. Potter, of Jordan Bros., greenhouse, has heard from his friend in Australia in regard to the shipment of carnation plants made several months ago. This was the first shipment ever sent out from Canada. They were packed by the Dale Estate and exceptional care was taken with them. But the plants were so long on the journey and delayed so long at the customs in Australia that all life was extinct. Mr. C. W. Robinson, of Parkside, Adelaide, South Australia, is game and he has ordered another shipment. This time older plants will be sent. A portion of Mr. Robinson's letter is as follows:

Parkside, South Australia.
July 1st, 1907.

Your letter of May 26th received and I was waiting in great hopes for the carnation plants. I did not hear of them until June 4th, after they had been in the customs house four days. Then I had great trouble in getting them as no invoice had arrived ahead of them, and the customs officers refused to release them without a guarantee from a bank, which is very hard to get here unless one is known personally to the banker. However, I managed that part of it and after I got the plants they had to go to the Agriculture department to be fumigated, so that they were not delivered to my place until June 13th, two weeks after their arrival.

The freight charges alone were £4 7s 9p, which is outrageous to charge for such a package. Agency fees brought the cost up to £4.15.9., and my personal expenses made a total of £5.5.

I would not have cared if they had cost me double that sum had I even got one plant of each variety. But I am sorry to say that every root was completely perished. It was very disappointing and especially so as the Dale Estate, who did the packing, took exceptional care with them.

I will tell you where a mistake was made. Mr. J. Biggs here imports carnations, and he has them kept on this side until they are well rooted, say 6 months old, and he has been very successful with them.

I intend to send again by this mail asking the Dale Estate if they would save me a couple of plants of each variety selected before, until they are hard in the wood, as the very sappy plants will not carry. This is a little expensive, but it is not a matter of how much I will make. I am going to go in for cross fertilization to see if in our sunny climate I can raise some good carnations. There is nothing here worth having from a florists point of view.

Developement of Wyndigo Mine to Go Ahead at Once

Those Interested in the Proposition Held a Meeting Last Night at Which Mr. Pfau, Mining Engineer of Kenora Reported.

An important meeting of those interested in the Wynidgo mine, which is located near Kenora, was held last evening, at which considerable business was transacted. Among those present was Mr. Fred Pfau, of Kenora, mining engineer, who has been investigating the mine for the Peterborough gentlemen who are behind the enterprise. Mr. Pfau is an expert on mining matters and the members of the company, which has been organized, are highly pleased that they have his services at their disposal.

Mr. Pfau reported last night that after a careful investigation, he was convinced that the Wyndigo mine was a good proposition and if properly worked would pay well on the investment.

The matter was fully discussed by those present and it was decided to go ahead with the work of developing the mine at once. Borings will be made under the supervision of Mr Pfau and no time will be lost in proceeding.

Those interested in the mine believe that they have a good thing and intend staying with it.

The Wyndigo Mine is in the Lake of the Woods district, a short distance from Kenora. Gold of unusual richness has been mined there.

The Difference in Milk Tests Explained by Competent Judge

Standard of Milk Sold in the City is Very High—Many Causes, Such as Flies, Irregular Hours of Milking, Result in Variance in Per Centage of Butter Fat,

For the past few days considerable has been said and written in reference to the milk tests recently published. To the majority of people the wide difference in the quality of the milk as appeared in the report is a matter for consideration and investigation. But to those who are acquainted with the dairy business it is very simple.

Below will be found a letter from a gentleman well known to nearly every citizen, and to practically every farmer in the district as one of the best qualified dairymen in eastern Ontario. This gentleman takes the pains to point out a few facts concerning milk, which will be of benefit to the public generally, as at present there appears to be a misunderstanding in some quarters;—

To the Editor of the Review.

Sir,—For fear of a misunderstanding by the public in reference to variation of milk tested from the city delivery, would like to say that to anyone who has experience in testing milk taken from one milking only, these variations are not extreme, and may be caused by cows being milked at irregular periods, irritated by flies and heat, or being excited from any cause. Cows have been known to vary between morning and evening milkings from 2 to 6 per cent., while a composite sample taken for a week or more would show a good average. 3.5 is too high a standard to expect from herds for the first half of their milking period, say from April to Sept. 1st; 3.2 is a good average. As the cows advance in milking period 3.5 may be expected.

Professional Tramp Visited City After an Eight Day Walk

Arrived From Port Huron Tuesday Night—Rested Wednesday and Then Started for Smith's Falls—Has Tramped for Many Years—Was Old, Ragged and Dirty.

Sam Martin, the "Notorious Tramp," as he calls himself, was in Peterborough Tuesday night and all day yesterday, and was most likely noticed by a good many persons who took him for one of the sons of rest. Professional tramps are not so common nowadays as several years ago, but there are yet a few of the old ones travelling along from town to town, who live off the people and who sleep wherever night overtakes them.

A man with shaggy black hair and with long whiskers of the same shade and quite shabbily dressed in a thin light grey coat and black trousers; a shirt that looked as if it never saw water; heavy, dusty covered boots and no socks, and his legs completely covered with dirt, sat dozing in one of the back alleyways of the city yesterday afternoon, away from the "maddening crowd," where everything was quiet. This is the man that prides himself on being the "Notorious Tramp."

"What are you doing lying there?" he was asked. "Just trying to sleep off a little booze," was the answer. At first he said he had a home in Toronto, but afterwards said he had been tramping the country for a great many years. "I came here Tuesday night from Port Huron, having walked every step of the way. Talk about your long distance walking," said the tramp, "but none of them comes up to me." He was eight days in coming here, but he always slept wherever night overtook him, and got his meals from farmers and others along the route. He said that he had slept on the outskirts on Tuesday night and then came into the city yesterday morning. "I haven't had anything to eat for two days, but if I have a glass of whiskey, then I am content," said the poor unfortunate. "I also have a little money, but not very much."

He said he was sixty-nine years of age and was a market gardener when he worked. He had two sons, but was alone in the world, and was content with the life he was leading. He was on his way to Smith's Falls and set out on the tramp for that burg last evening. He stated that he was not afraid of being locked up, and had been told several times yesterday by the local police to "move on." He had served terms in gaol several times, but for nothing else than vagrancy." "Why don't you go to the poor house?" he was asked.

"They won't take me in," came the reply, "but I won't live very much longer, as I have had a pretty rough life." There was a tone of regret and sorrow expressed in these words that evoked pity and sympathy from those conversing with this poor unfortunate, who evidently had fallen a prey to the demon drink.

Peterborough's Industrial Exhibition a Big Attraction

Cheap Rates on the Railways—Great Display of Poultry and Live Stock—Good Horse Races and Special Attractions—Big Crowd is Assured.

The time of the fall fairs is drawing near and so far there is none that have such a promising outlook as the Peterborough Industrial, which will be held on Thursday, Friday and Saturday, Sept. 26, 27 and 28. The officers and directors are all working hard and they are receiving very encouraging reports from all sections. Many applications for prize lists have been received and a great many new exhibitors have signified their intention of entering the competition. Keep the dates in mind and let everyone talk about the Peterborough fair from now until it is over.

The large lithograph posters advertising the Peterborough Industrial Exhibition are now being posted on the bill boards all over the district. Every nook and corner in the four counties will be, in a few days, covered with bills.

Secretary F. J. A. Hall is now busy arranging cheap rates on the railways for the fair on Sept. 26, 27 and 28, and it is likely tickets will be good over Sunday. In that case those having friends at a distance can have them visit the city for several days and also see the fair. There will be no cheap rates out of the city on those dates.

Anyone who has not yet received a prize list of Peterborough's big show can do so by applying to the President of the Association either personally or by calling at his office, [illegible] at Leary's feed store and implement warerooms, Water street.

The horse races at the fair this year will be the best ever held here. They are in charge of a good strong committee. There will be four events, two Friday and two Saturday afternoons. The track will be in splendid condition and the heats should be very fast.

The association is putting up several hundred dollars this year for special attractions to be given in front of the grand stand. Arrangements have been completed with a New York syndicate and the performers will be first-class. In addition to this feature the band of the 57th regiment will be present Friday and Saturday afternoons and probably Saturday morning as well, so that there will be lots of good music. The 57th band is one of the best in the province and will play two days at the Toronto exhibition.

There is a challenge cup for the football championship of the county to be competed for if any team cares to put in a claim for it. Last year it was won by the Quakers and is still in their possession and they are willing to defend it against all comers. A lot of interest was taken in the game last year and it would be a good drawing card. Norwood or Keene or some other outside town should put in a claim for the silverware.

One of the largest and most interesting exhibits at the fair will be the poultry. From year to year the class of birds has been improved while the number of entries has increased to a remarkable extent. Many inquiries have been made from both local and outside breeders and there is every indication that the exhibit will be an exceptionally large one.

A very great compliment to the association was paid by the department of Agriculture. The department wrote for a copy of the prize list which was printed at the Review office, and after it had been examined the secretary received a letter congratulating the society upon the neat appearance of the list and its general get up. It is one of the best in the province, while the amount of prizes and number of classes equals any outside Toronto, London and Ottawa.

When figuring on the Peterborough Industrial Fair do not forget that Mr. Wm. Yelland's dog race will be worth the price of admission alone. Last year this event proved a source of great fun for everyone. Mr. Yelland is again offering prizes for the race and the conditions will be the same as before.

THANKSGIVING OCTOBER 31st

Will Probably be the Date Although Those Wanting Monday Will be Heard

Ottawa, Aug. 7.—According to present plans thanksgiving day will be held this year on October 31, the last Thursday of that month.

The Commercial Travellers' Association, however, with headquarters at Toronto, Montreal and Winnipeg, have made representation to the Secretary of State, that the anniversary should be changed to a Monday, so as to allow many persons an opportunity of taking part in the many reunions, who are not able to do so when the celebration takes place in the middle of a week.

The Secretary of State has been assured also that Monday would be a much better day from the point of view of the bank clerks, and of all others who could reach their homes for a week-end celebration, but the week-end celebration is just what the Government is anxious to avoid in the observance of Thanksgiving.

The day is set apart as a holiday, not for the special encouragement of feast-making and of sports, but as a day of national rejoicing in the continued blessings of Providence upon Canada as a people and upon Canadians individually. Whether, therefore the change to Monday will be granted is rather doubtful, but at all events the travellers have the Government's promise that they will be heard before anything is definitely decided.

MOTHER WOUNDED BY BABY

Swinging a stick at his play, the little son of Mrs. L. Webster, 519 Seigneur street, Montreal, struck his mother a blow over the eye, inflicting a nasty gash. Inflammation followed, and the wound looked very ugly, when a box of Zam-Buk was obtained. "The pain was soothed almost instantly the balm was put on," says Mrs. Webster, "and healing commenced. In four or five days the wound was closed, the inflammation gone, and there was only a faint red line, showing where the gash had been. Even this mark is now gone. Zam-Buk is such a wonderful healer it should be in every home where there are children."

Zam-Buk is made from concentrated herbal essences and suits the tenderest skin. Cures eruptions, heat spots, ulcers, ringworm, eczema, piles chafed places, sore feet. It takes the pain from a sting or burn, cools sunburn patches, and makes red, rough skin smooth and velvety. Excellent for children's tender skin.

All stores and druggists, fifty cents a box, or Zam-Buk Co., Toronto. for price. Three for a dollar twenty-five.

Mr. John Hannah Broke Both Arms

Was Shingling Roof of a Barn in Bancroft and Fell Off

Bancroft, Aug. 7.—Mr. John Hannah, of Bancroft, met with a serious accident yesterday morning. He was shingling a barn for Mr. Thos. Tice, Egan Creek, when he slipped and fell to the ground, a distance of about 10 feet. He alighted on a pile of stones and broke both arms, one above the elbow and the other between the elbow and the wrist. The fracture of the right arm is a very serious one. He was brought to his home here, where his injuries were attended to. Dr. Embury, who helped to reduce the fracture, does not think he will ever have any use of the left arm.

REVIEW LETTER BOX

NO BON FIRE

To the Editor of the Review.

Dear Sir,—In reply to "Anti-smoke" I would like to say that the smoke which caused the alarm at our studio on Tuesday last did not come from any fire in the back yard. It was confined entirely to our reception room and it is an impossibility for it to reach that room without also filling our sky-light room and office. The trouble is being investigated beneath our floor.

Very truly yours,
FRED L. ROY.

WHY THE DIFFERENCE

To the Editor of the Review.

Sir,—Your paper of yesterday contains a letter from Mr. Eyres in which he attempts to show the sufficiency of the late milk test, but he does not account for, or even refer to, the wide discrepancy shown, in the different samples. For instance how does he account for the difference between the one that contains two per cent. of butter fat, and another that contains three times that much or six per cent.? He would leave us to infer that the difference is made up of harmless water. If so, are the Board of Health and City Council going to put the seal of approval on such conduct, or what do they propose doing?

Yours etc.

MODERN LADY GODIVA

Representation of Historic Event Given in Coventry.

Actress Takes Star Part—Wore Fleshings and Draperies—Was Centre of Pageant Witnessed by Crowds—Many Clergy Leave the City—Rider Complains of Superfluous Clothing—Traversed Six Miles.

Coventry, Eng., Aug. 8.—Mounted on a white palfrey and decorously clothed in masses of hair, pink fleshings and clouds of gauze, a modern Lady Godiva yesterday morning gave a representation of the historic ride through the city streets.

Coventry has been Lady Godiva mad for months. When a revival of the procession, last witnessed in 1887, was first mooted there were many who desired a strict adherence to tradition even to the nudity of Lady Godiva, but the anti-nudists succeeded in effecting a compromise, and a vaudeville actress, whose specialty is to display herself in groups of living statuary, was engaged to represent the historic benefactor of Coventry. The actress, who is said to have complained that she could make half a dozen summer frocks out of the gauze she was compelled to wear, took an hour and a half to arrange her trailing hair and long draperies, and then a special committee had to approve of her costume before Lady Godiva was permitted to take her place in the pageant. Many of the local clergy who had been preaching against the fleshlings as being suggestive of nudity left the city temporarily, but most of the people of the country and eighty to one hundred thousand from the outside had a sight of Lady Godiva as she traversed the six miles and of the splendid pageant of which she was the central figure.

The Legend of Coventry.

Lady Godiva, who flourished about the middle of the eleventh century, was the wife of Leofric, Earl of Chester. She was a woman of great beauty and the benefactoress of many churches and monasteries. According to the legend, Lady Godiva begged her husband to relieve Coventry of a burdensome tax, and he consented to do so on the condition that she should ride naked through the market place. This she did, covered only by her long hair, and thus won relief for the people. According to some versions of the story the people were commanded to keep within their houses while Lady Godiva passed, and only one man, "Peeping Tom," disobeyed, and he was miraculously stricken with blindness.

ARMAMENTS KEEP THE PEACE.

Admiral Beresford Says That to Disarm Would Mean War.

Liverpool, Aug. 8.—The British Channel fleet, consisting of 17 battleships and cruisers, commanded by Admiral Lord Charles Beresford, have arrived to participate in the celebration of the septennary of the foundation of Liverpool.

Replying to an address of the mayor and corporation, Admiral Beresford, referring to the proposals for a reduction of armaments, said he sympathized with the ideals of the peace society, but if armaments were reduced it was absolutely certain that this country would soon be involved in war.

All implements of war were deplorable, but they kept peace, and the British fleet should be so strong that anybody violating peace should be immediately annihilated.

Irish Tenants Bill Passed.

London, Aug. 8.—After a long and uninteresting debate in which the leaders of the opposition indicated their intention of amending the measure in committee, the evicted Irish tenants' bill passed its second reading in the House of Lords.

A dramatic incident of the debate was the appearance of Lord Clanricarde, the most hated landlord in Ireland.

With bent and shrunken frame, outstretched shrivelled fingers, and in a voice now shrill, now husky with passion, he denounced the bill in unmeasured terms as the "apotheosis of robbery."

In the midst of his diatribe the aged earl occasionally took a phial from his pocket and sipped the contents.

Every member of the House turned to watch the speaker, but his speech was received in chilly silence.

Deliberately Wrecked.

Winchester, Va., Aug. 8.—An automobile in which Miss May Bushnell, 25 years of age, was riding with Jacquelin Hardesty was wrecked Tuesday night. Miss Bushnell had her skull fractured and died soon afterwards. Hardesty had observed several large stones piled in the road, evidently by wreckers. These were avoided. A few moment later the machine dashed into a large log placed over the entire roadway.

Doctor's Quick Surgery.

Ottawa, Aug. 8.—At Aylmer, Que., Tuesday evening John Smith was watching a ball in the air while sucking a big candy.

The candy slipped down the lad's throat, and he was choking to death when a doctor promptly made an incision in the neck and took it out.

The lad will be little the worse in a few days.

Tragedy In Alps.

Berne, Switzerland, Aug. 8.—An automobile containing Heinrich Conried, New York, while touring Lake Murich, ran down and instantly killed an almost deaf peasant near Lachon. Hundreds of villagers threatened Herr Conried and his party.

Three Die In Auto Accident.

Milwaukee, Aug. 8.—Two men were killed, one man fatally injured and a fourth slightly hurt early yesterday when an automobile was ditched at Brookfield Corners.

The car shortage in the Crow's Nest country points to another fuel famine in the west this winter.

Hay is a Light Crop at Norwood

And Farmers are Getting Big Prices—Other Notes of Interest

Norwood, Aug., 6.—Mr. Bert Lloyd, clerk in Mr. Robt. Stewart's drug store, is spending his holidays at his home in Rawdon township.

Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Bork are spending this week at Stony Lake.

Mr Jeddy Thomson, who has been running a bakery business here for the past two or three months, has disposed of his business and accepted a position at Rodney, Elgin Co.

Messrs J. Finlay & Son's hub and wheel factory was closed down last week to give the men their annual holidays.

Mr. and Mrs. El. Emery visited the later's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Hobbla, Oak Lake, last week.

Mr. Fred Fry spent the week at Belmont Lake the guest of Mr. Noah King. Fred reports fishing good and brought back several beauties of the finny tribe to distribute among his friends.

Mr. and Mrs. J. Alf. Finlay and family are at Stony Lake enjoying a short respite from business and household cares.

Mr. and Mrs. A. J. Fitzgerald have returned to their home in Tweed after enjoying a few holidays at Stony Lake.

Mr. S. Swan has sold his property north of the village to Mr. Vanderburg, of Havelock.

Mr. John Juniac spent his holidays at Yarker, his former home.

The contractors are busily engaged with a large staff of men laying the cement walks on different streets of the village. They expect to finish the work next week.

IMPROVEMENTS TO CHURCH

The Methodist church property has been greatly improved during the past couple of weeks. Cement walks and steps have been substituted for the old wooden ones leading to the main entrances and the Sunday school. A cement base on the north and south sides of the lot has been erected which will be topped with an artistic fence. The grounds have been levelled and graded and altogether the improvements add greatly to the appearance and also the value of the church property.

The improvements on the town hall are being pushed rapidly forward. Already the basement is completed and is ready for the brick work.

The regular meeting of the Board of Education will be held next Monday evening.

Messrs. Finlay & Son's factory has been closed for a couple of days this week on account of a broken shaft.

Miss Mabel E. Laing is visiting firends in Peterborough.

Mr. Will Foster is visiting his parents, Mr. and Mrs. David Foster, here.

Hay in this vicinity is generally a poor crop. Prices are very high. Farmers hardly know what to ask for the article. $14 and $15 is readily got for hay drawn from the field. Other crops are also rather light. The straw is going to be short, but the grain will be good. The yield of grain per acre will be generally up to the average. Peas are a better crop than for several years past, fruit is plentiful. Raspberries are coming in in abundance. The garden variety are selling at two boxes for 25c. Huckleberries are reported almost a failure, caused by the very dry weather. They are selling here for $1.25 a pail. The highest price for years.

Load after load of pickers pass through here almost every day for the plains, but they came back with discouraging reports of the crop.

PETERBOROUGH RAG AND METAL COMPANY

Two Boys Upset From Canoe In Chemong Lake Last Night

They Were Rescued in Good Time—Auto Buss May Soon be Running Again—'Busses Having a Busy Season—Personals and Other Notes of Interest.

Chemong Park, Aug. 8.—Old-timers may refer to the palmy days of old, when Chemong had a railway line connecting it with the city, when excursions were run here every week during the summer and when the pine-crowned heights overlooking Chemong Lake constituted Peterborough's most popular summer resort. Those days are gone, however, and we of the present day must look on things as they are at present. There may have been a time when Chemong Park was more popular than at present, but it has not been in recent years. If you ask the cottagers who have summered at Chemong for the past ten years or more which has been the most popular season during that time, they will answer without hesitation, "Why, this year, of course." And others say so, too. There may have been times when the place was gayer, when there were more dances and social functions, but there has not been a season in recent years when the cottages were so well filled, when the hotel had so many guests, and when so many new homes were erected or are in course of erection. Residents of Chemong point with pride to the fact that there is not an empty cottage in the park, and to the fact that many handsome summer homes are being erected. And they are glad as a result. They have visions of Chemong being the most popular summer resort in the vicinity of Peterborough, and with a larger summer population per area than any other holiday spot in the district.

A Shady Nook

A BUSY YEAR.

A gentleman closely connected in the management of the 'bus service between Peterborough and Chemong informed a Review representative yesterday that they had done a greater business this year than ever before. And the gentleman referred to has been engaged in the business of conveying people between Peterborough and Chemong for the past five years. The number of passengers is much greater than last year, nearly every 'bus going out from the city being filled. And the same is true when they are returning. The 'bus man's statement is worth something. He knows what he is talking about.

A Popular Pastime at Chemong Park

THE AUTO 'BUS.

"What's happened the big auto 'bus?" is a question which is asked frequently at Chemong, and the enquiry is natural. The Review is informed by one who knows that the task of climbing the steep hills between the city and Chemong was too much for the big car, and it is temporarily out of business. But there are prospects that it will soon be in commission again. One of the experts of the company in Buffalo from whom the machine was purchased, is coming over to look over the car and find out what is wrong. It is stated that the motive power was not sufficient to drive the big 'bus, and that a change will have to be made in this respect. At any rate, there are prospects that the auto 'bus will soon be making its usual trips along the Chemong road.

Healthful Exercise

FOR NEXT YEAR

The Review learns that next year a big tally-ho, drawn by a four-in-hand, will be on the Chemong-Peterboro route for the summer. This would no doubt prove a popular mode of travel and give a good return to the persons behind the enterprise.

UPSET IN THE LAKE.

Two boys, Bruce Cullen and Gordon Nicholls had a somewhat narrow escape from drowning last evening. They were out in a canoe watching some trial races, when one of them stood up in the end of the boat and the frail craft upset. The youths were thrown out into the lake, but fortunately both of them could swim well, and they kept a float and were pulled out by some boys who were near them in another canoe. If they had not been able to swim they would have been in a bad predicament. Both boys took the accident quite cooly, and never even lost the gum they were chewing when they took the unexpected bath.

Overlooking the Lake

CHEMONG REGATTA

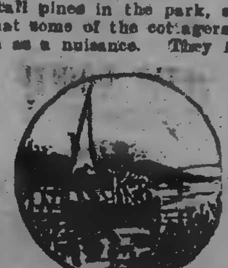
Great interest centres in the Chemong regatta, which is to be held on Thursday, August 15th. It is the sole topic of conversation among a certain element of the population, and already the prospects of the different competitors who are entering, and of the sailing craft and launches are being discussed. Trial races are being held on the lake every evening, and judging by the speed shown by some of the canoeists, there is going to be some great racing. A fine programme has been arranged, and the entries promise to be more numerous than ever before. The usual hop will be held in the evening.

EXCURSION TO STURGEON.

The steamer "Ogemah" run an excursion from Chemong to Sturgeon Point today and carried a large number of Chemong cottagers to the Point regatta. The boat left the Chemong wharf at nine o'clock and carried a large number of passengers.

CAWS FOR COMPLAINT.

Crows are quite numerous among the tall pines in the park, so much so that some of the cottagers regard them as a nuisance. They keep up their shrill "caw-caws" from the break of morning until well on in the forenoon, and to those who enjoy a late sleep and are in a position to take it, their noise is not at all agreeable. Early risers, however, do not need alarm clocks, as the crows make enough noise "to waken the dead," as some one has expressed it.



A BAD DOG.

There is one dog at the park that has got himself down in the good graces of the housewives who are summering there. This canine (he is of the hound variety) is styled a great thief, and appears to take special delight in purloining bits of choice beefsteak, ham, etc. It is even said that the dog is able to open refrigerators, the majority of which are located on the verandahs of the houses.

An endeavor is being made to have a dance at the pavilion every Saturday night. The floor is in fine shape and an excellent piano is now at the service of the cottagers. Neither the floor or the piano should be allowed to remain idle.

CHOIR PICNICKED.

The choir of St. Andrew's church, Peterborough, are picnicking at Chemong this afternoon. They took advantage of the Thursday half holiday to have their annual outing. A most enjoyable time was spent.

HOTEL GUESTS AND NEWS

The following guests are registered at the hotel during this week:—Mr. and Mrs. Baird, Toronto; Alex. Jared, Montreal; Fred Stevens, Toronto; A. R. Montizambert, Lindsay; W. C. Montizambert, St. Mary's Ont.; Charles A. Barlew, Peterborough; E V Finney, Miss M. Y Wormonth; W. Rudkins, Peterborough.

The guests at the hotel had a camp fire and story telling contest on Monday evening as a farewell to a number of guests from Rochester and Buffalo, who were leaving the next day.

Mr Whittaker, of Toronto, is one of the most popular guests at the hotel, and is much in demand, as he plays the violin and piano very well and is also a very pleasing vocalist. He leaves tomorrow, and will be greatly missed.

Two large parties are expected from New York and Rochester, at the hotel tomorrow evening.

ANOTHER UPSET

Two young fellows had very narrow escape from drowning yesterday afternoon in Chemong Lake. The lake was very rough as a high wind was blowing, making it rather risky for small boats. They were in a small canoe with double sails and with an extra heavy gust of wind, the canoe tipped. A number of people who were watching from the shore were fearful lest the boys should not be able to right the canoe again, but they succeeded after some time. It looked rather bad for a while, but a couple of boats were ready at the shore in case assistance was needed.

POTATO ROAST

The young people of the "Annex" were the guests of Kenneth and Nick Halpine and David Bull, at a "potato roast" on Tuesday evening. It was much enjoyed by the twenty or more present and wound up with a sing and a dance at Mr. Bull's cottage.

PERSONAL NEWS

LADY FISHERS SUCCESSFUL

Euchre Party in Pavilion—Many Guests at Viamede This Week

The Excelsior Quartette was the main feature of most of the pavilion entertainments last week. It was composed of Misses Diemer and Margaret Reynolds, Messrs. Highbee and McLean. Unfortunately, owing to Miss Reynolds' departure it is now a trio. The quartette rendered high class music in a most acceptable manner, the voices blending very well. An excursion to Lovesick is being planned for Friday if the day is fair. Messrs. Anderson's gramaphone has proved a great attraction, and always is surrounded by a crowd of listeners.

In addition to the usual service last Sunday a song service was held at 8 o'clock, led by Mr. W. C. McLean. Mr. A. D. Fraser, of Rochester, offered prayer, and Miss O'Hara, of New York, and Mr. McLean kindly consented to sing sacred solos. The service was so enjoyable that it is to be a weekly affair.

Guests at Viamede—J R Quinn, Toronto; Miss Harriet Diemer, Rochester, N.Y.; Mr and Mrs A D Fraser, Rochester, N.Y.; Miss Mattie E Tice, Lockport, N.Y.; Mrs A E Coulthard, Mrs R R Hall, Mrs B Gardiner, Mr John Anderson, Mr Stuart Anderson, Miss Margaret Anderson, Peterborough; Mrs P H Sims, Toronto; Miss Bella Sims, Toronto; Miss Ena L Grange, Lockport, N.Y.; Mr A H Synder, Waterloo, Ont.; Mrs W B Smith, Miss Clara Smith, A H Worthington, Toronto; Miss G Waddell, Port Hope; Miss M Mitchell, Mr Harry Mitchell, Port Hope; P H Sims, Miss Mildred Moore, Miss Laura Lowry, Mr J Ross Stewart, W C Gall, Toronto; Mrs Tweed, Tweed, Ont.; Miss Anna Mather, Tweed, Ont.; Mr Wilfrid McLean, Port Hope; Mr Horatio Strange, Mr L H Pierson, Miss Emma Cochrane, Miss Emma Ellwanger, Mrs G M Neel, Miss Caroline Trimble, Rochester.

EUCHRE PARTY

On Saturday evening the fourth euchre party of the season was held in the pavilion. The prizes were won by Miss Harris, Miss Paneckner, Miss Frances Reynolds and Mr P H Sims. After the euchre a Virginia reel was danced, which was led by Mrs. Crisfield and Mr. McLean. It proved to be a most enjoyable evening, and everyone wishes to repeat the pleasure.

BIG FISH.

On Tuesday Miss Irene Bell, of Toronto, caught an eight pound 'lunge. The ladies seem to be the most successful fishers this month, as this is the second large fish brought in by a lady within a week.

Hail Destroys 240 Sq. Miles of Grain

Terrible Destruction of Grain Reported From Manitoba

Reaton, Man., Aug. 7.—The worst hailstorm in the history of this locality, stripping a district about 30 miles long and eight miles wide, occurred Monday night.

Not a spear of grain was left in its track, the destruction being most complete.

Hail, in shape, varying from the size of a small marble to a pigeon egg fell until the ground was white.

The windows in the houses of the town, unless protected by wire screens, suffered severely.

Garden stuffs were battered into the ground.

In addition to damage done by the hail, the electric storm accompanying it killed a number of horses and cattle

Blossoms and Apples on Tree

Growing in Mr. A. H. Peck's Yard—Curosity Left at Review Office

A curiosity was left at this office today in the shape of a branch from an apple tree with both green fruit and blossoms on it. It is seldom that fruit and blossoms are found at this season of the year, although sometimes they are seen in the fall when the fruit is ripe. The branch left at the Review was taken from a tree growing in Mr. A. H. Peck's yard on Mark street.

Stony Lake Regatta Will be Big Attraction Civic Holiday

In Addition to Splendid Programme of Races the Dance in the Juniper Island Pavilion at Night Will Attract Many—Special Boat and Train After the Dance.

One of the big attractions for the people on Civic Holiday will be the Stony Lake regatta at Juniper Island. The committee in charge have gone to no end of trouble to make the thing a huge success and in addition have made excellent provision for the accommodation of the hundreds of citizens who it is expected will attend. In addition to the fine programme of races there will be a dance in the pavilion in the evening for which an orchestra from the city will furnish music. The dance takes the place of the usual concert and was decided upon as the majority of the young people prefer to dance rather than sit still and listen to a concert, no matter how good. The weather is usually too oppressive for quietness while the heat is not felt so much when one is moving about.

The young people are delighted with the change, and in addition to practically the entire population of Stony Lake being present, there will be several hundred from the city and surrounding towns, and a gay time is anticipated.

For the benefit of those who wish to attend the regatta from Peterborough and Lakefield the committee has arranged for the steamer to make a special trip at midnight from Juniper Island to Lakefield, when a special train will run down to Peterborough, landing the excursionists in the city in good time. This is a new feature and no doubt a much larger crowd will go up.

Special Train to Port Hope For Saturday's Big Game

There will be doings in Port Hope on Saturday, and big doings at that. The Peterborough baseball team meets the Port Hope nine in a Midland league game and as Manager Johnson's aggregation have to win to remain in the running they will certainly travel a few to come out with the long end of the score. Blake Crawford is strengthening his team for the game and promises to face the Peterborough swatsmiths with the strongest aggregation that ever represented Port Hope and incidentally it may be stated that the locals will have their strongest team and will make the homesters step some.

But that's not all. The Peterborough club has arranged to run an excursion to Port Hope on Saturday and are offering the remarkably low rate of 80c, return. A special train will leave the G.T.R. station at two o'clock and returning will leave Port Hope at 7.30 in the evening. This will give everybody time to have supper at Port Hope and to knock around the town for a while. Judging from the great interest that is being taken in this game a monster crowd will accompany the team. Although late in getting in the league the local boys have been putting up a splendid fight and if they can beat Port Hope on Saturday have an excellent chance of winning out. The team had another practice last night and every man is in good shape. They are prepared to put up the game of their lives.

Come along on Saturday and root for Peterborough.

6924.—A SMART STYLE FOR A PLAIN SHIRT WAIST.

An entirely plain shirt waist can embody quite as much style as the most elaborate one, the lines and finish deciding its quality. Here is shown a blouse of the simplest yet expressive of no small degree of modishness and good taste. It is built on mannish lines, the front closing under the plait and having long or shorter sleeves. A trig pocket is usually pleasing upon a shirt waist of this type, but it is especially so this year when Dame Fashion demands pockets wherever possible. Such a waist may be made in any seasonable material, being equally suitable to tub fabrics, cloth, worsteds and silks. For the medium size 3 1-2 yards of material 27 inches wide are needed.

6249.—6 sizes, 32 to 42 inches bust measure.

The price of this pattern is 10c.

How Big 'Lunge Met its Death

Found Floating on Lake With Phantom Minnow in its Mouth

Ernie Brownscombe while fishing at Stony Lake a few days ago, was somewhat surprised to see a lunge floating on top of the water. He paddled over to where it was and found that the big fish was dead. In its mouth was a large phantom minnow with several hooks attached, the kind used by many fishermen. The lunge had apparently grasped the wooden minnow in its mouth and in struggling to get away broke the line. However, the fish could not have been able to get the bait out of its mouth and death resulted. The lunge was an unusually large one.

Many Young Ladies Will Take Final Vows on Thursday

Reception of Novices into the Sisterhood of St. Joseph Will Take Place at the Mount on Thursday of Next Week.

On Thursday of next week Mount St. Joseph will be the scene of an interesting ceremony, when the annual reception of novices into the Sisterhood of St. Joseph will take place There are over a dozen young ladies who will take their final vows and renounce forever the gaiety of the world and will devote themselves to religious and philanthropic work They have been living at Mt. St. Joseph as novitiates, preparing themselves for the solemn obligation they are about to take. The number who will make their final vows next Thursday, is about the same as in former years, in fact the number is a little larger than the average.

The Sisters are now holding their annual retreat, the special preacher for the occasion being Rev. Father Keelan, of Saratoga Springs, N.Y. Father Keelan will also preach at the annual reception on Thursday of next week.

The "taking of the veil" is always a most interesting event and is attended by a large number of persons It is a day of great significance and solemnity to those entering the Sisterhood, as the obligation means renouncing the world forever.

CHARGE WAS DISMISSED

A local hotelkeeper was charged in the police court this morning with selling liquor after hours on July 24. Mr J. Haverson, K.C., of Toronto, appeared for the defendant, and owing to Crown Attorney R. E. Wood being slightly indisposed, Mr. E. H. D. Hall, city solicitor, conducted the prosecution. Three witnesses were examined, but there was no evidence to make a conviction and the case was dismissed.

Dr. Hodgetts in City To-day

Dr. Hodgetts, secretary of the Provincial Board of Health, is in the city today on business in connection with his position. It is understood that his chief reason in coming to Peterborough was to ascertain how the regulations for the prevention of the waters of the northern lakes and Otonabee river are being observed.

More Troops Are Landed; Exciting Times Continue

Street Fighting Still Continues at Casablanca.

Jewish Quarter Sacked—City Full of Dead Moors—Shops Are Pillaged—State Bank Robbed of $15,000—Buildings Set on Fire—Europeans Guarded by Bluejackets — Custom House Looted.

Tangier, Aug. 9.—French sailors are guarding the British consulate at Casablanca, where the consular agents of the United States, Germany, Austria-Hungary and Sweden have sought refuge. The Italian and Portuguese consuls are at the French consulate. A minaret, from which a heavy, sustained fire was directed against the French consulate, was demolished by the guns of the French ships at the request of the Moroccan authorities.

The European shops were pillaged, but no Europeans were killed.

The state bank agency at Casablanca has been robbed of about $15,000, but no details of the robbery have been made public.

The French consulate was attacked by Moors during the night of Aug. 5. One bluejacket of the guard was killed and three were badly wounded.

The custom house at Casablanca was looted by natives on Tuesday and many other buildings were set on fire and destroyed.

A French gunboat, the Cassini, which was detached from the northern squadron, now proceeding to Casablanca, was communicated with by wireless telegraphy and arrived here yesterday. She will await the orders of the French charge d'affaires, pending the arrival of the armored cruiser Jeanne d'Arc, as the French officials here consider it is not safe to be without a warship at their disposal.

The Spanish torpedo cruiser Destructor has arrived at this port. The Marabout Sidi Malouf, one of the principal Moors of Casablanca, has requested to be allowed to go on board a warship.

City Full of Dead Moors.

Tangier, Aug. 9.—The French warships Wednesday landed 2,000 additional men at Casablanca, where street fighting continues, judging from the desultory firing heard day and night by those on the ships anchored off the town.

The Jewish quarter of Cassablanca has been attacked. Many persons were massacred in the streets. The city is said to be full of dead Moors and the Moorish quarter is in ruins, having been set on fire by the shells from the big guns from the cruisers. All the stores are closed and much hunger and distress prevails among the poor.

The foreign consuls have ordered the stores to be reopened and have established a special tariff for foodstuffs, designed to mitigate the sufferings of the poor.

The Europeans, who were all safe either on board ships or at the consulates, are guarded by bluejackets. The warships continue to drop an occasional shell into groups of Kabyles on the beach, in order to prevent them from approaching the town.

A despatch from Rabat says that the Kabyles have given the Government a fortnight in which to withdraw the French controller of customs. Refusing, they will attack the town. The effervescence among the tribesmen about Tangier is creating some apprehension and an attack may be made on the city.

The action of Mohammed El Torres, representative of the Sultan, in imprisoning the natives who had expressed anti-French sentiments, has produced a good impression among the Europeans here.

Sharpshooters Go to Front.

Algiers, Aug. 9.—The steamer Oasis, having 300 sharpshooters and two mountain batteries on board, sailed for Morocco yesterday. Capt. De Rigoin and Lieut. Riech, who have been designated for duty with the International Moroccan police, were on board.

French Have Heavy Task.

Paris, Aug. 9.—In spite of the firm intention of the French Government to keep within the terms of the Algeciras convention in its dealings with Morocco, the French press clearly foresees that France, unless the situation rapidly improves, has entered upon a long and heavy task.

The newspapers express the opinion that France, upon which the chief burden in restoring security in the disturbed country will fall, may be forced to occupy in turn all the Moroccan ports, and then probably be compelled to undertake a punitive expedition to Fez, after which it would be impossible to withdraw, as was the case with the British in Egypt.

As the British bombardment of Alexandria enhanced the prestige of Great Britain in Egypt, so it is argued the French bombardment of Casablanca will have a similar effect in Morocco. An expedition to Fez, the newspapers point out, would, like the British victory at Tel El Kebir, complete the parallel.

BALLOONS IN WARFARE.

Britain at The Hague Conference Opposes Their Use.

The Hague, Aug. 9.—The question of projectiles thrown from balloons has served to show that whereas in 1899, the idea was treated with contempt, to-day the seriousness of the possibilities of practical results are keenly appreciated.

An Italian proposition that steerable balloons must be in the hands of military experts, chosen as the best, received 21 votes, and was referred to the editing committee.

England opposed the idea of aerial warfare. By dominating on the sea she is supreme in one direction, but if warfare in the air be added it might easily be possible that she would dominate in only one of the three elements.

A number of Armenian agitators have arrived to memorialize the delegates.

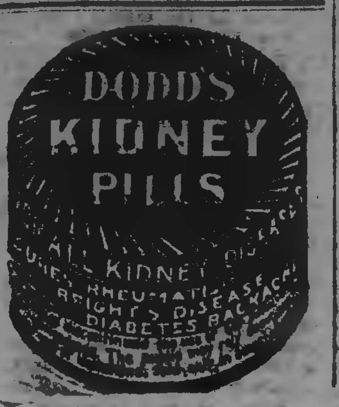
Collision Near Portland.

Portland, Ore., Aug. 9.—The Portland and San Francisco liner, City of Panama, en route from Portland with a full list of passengers, collided yesterday and sank the steamer Alliance, from Coo's Bay for Portland, with passengers and freight. The collision occurred in a fog near the mouth of Williamette River. The passengers of the Alliance were brought to Portland.

Barn Consumed.

Brockville, Aug. 9.—The barns and other outbuildings of John Ferguson of the Township of Wolsford were struck by lightning and destroyed with fifteen loads of hay and several farming implements. Insurance $1,000. Loss in excess.

The trial trip of an air ship, made by R. Murton at Krugerville, near Stettler, Alta., will be made this week.



GUELPH MASHER WANTED.

Claimed to Have Taken Horse and Rig to Elope.

Guelph, Aug. 9.—There is a warrant issued for the arrest of the man Ed. Hornbustle, who eloped on Monday evening with Mrs. Streeter, a fair-haired woman of about 35 years, who left her husband and four children, the eldest only seven years old. The warrant for the arrest is not, however, in connection with the elopement, as the woman's husband refuses to take action, but is on a charge of horse-stealing.

Mrs. Streeter, having hired from Smith's livery at 8 o'clock on Wednesday morning a horse and rig, picked Hornbustle up on the outskirts of the city and they disappeared.

NOT LIABLE FOR EXPENSE.

Hon. Dr. Pyne Removing Objections in Ottawa Situation.

Ottawa, Aug. 9.—Hon. Dr. Pyne, Minister of Education, has notified the separate school board of Ottawa that it will not be liable for any expense in the maintenance of the bi-lingual normal school to be established here.

There will also be separate classes for males and females.

This will overcome the objections which led to the withdrawal of the Christian Brothers from Ottawa.

Half Thousand Japs Deported.

San Francisco, Aug. 9.—Five hundred and six Japanese, the largest number ever deported from this coast, left on the steamer Manchuria for the Orient yesterday.

The deportations consist of Japanese caught stealing over the Mexican border into the United States.

Standard Oil Seeks Appeal.

Chicago, Aug. 9.—Attorneys for the Standard Oil Co. of Indiana, which was recently fined $29,240,000 in the United States district court yesterday presented to Judge Landis a motion seeking an appeal in the case.

The hearing of the motion was set for 11 o'clock to-day.

All Quiet in Belfast.

Belfast, Ireland, Aug. 9.—The dispute in the coal trade here has been settled, and work was resumed yesterday. The troops again took possession of the streets yesterday; the factories are re-opening and the normal conditions of business are gradually returning.

Fire at Ste. Therese, Que., on Saturday destroyed the Forget Hotel and the Dominion Furniture Co.'s factory. The loss will total upwards of $100,000.

Exporters.

Not many exporters were offered. One load was sold by Crawford & Hunnisett at $5.25, and one lot of three, weighing 1200 pounds, was sold by James Corbett at $5.25; export bulls sold at $4 to $4.50 per cwt.

Stockers and Feeders.

H. Murby reports not so many of this class offered this week, especially the common and medium kind, altho there were plenty to fill the demand, which at this time of the year is never very large. Below are quotations:

Best feeders, 1000 to 1100 lbs., $3.75 to $4.00; medium feeders, 1000 to 1100 lbs., $3.50 to $4; best feeders, 900 to 1000 lbs., $3.40 to $3.75; medium feeders, 900 to 1000 lbs., $3 to $3.50; best stockers, 700 to 900 lbs., $3 to $3.40; medium stockers, 700 to 800 lbs., $2.60 to $3; common stockers, 500 to 700 lbs., $2 to $2.50.

Milch Cows.

Trade in milkers and springers was fairly good for the right kind, such as is pictured on the farm page of to-day, but common to medium cows are slow sale. One dealer who had several cows of the common kind held them for a week and then had to sell at a loss. Prices ranged from $35 to $65, but only one was reported at the latter price. The bulk of the best cows sold at $40 to $50 each.

Veal Calves.

Receipts were large, over 3000. Export sheep were firmer at $4.50 to $4.85; bucks, $3.50 to $4 per cwt. Lambs, of which there was a large number and many of poor quality, sold at lower quotations, or an average of ½c per lb. See the different prices quoted below.

MARRIAGE LAW IS VALID.

Attorney-General Foy Explains the Amendment of Legislature.

Toronto, Aug. 9.—Attorney-General Foy yesterday made a statement to the press in reply to a despatch from Ottawa to the effect that the amendment to the marriage act passed at the last session of the Legislature is unconstitutional.

A few days ago Ellen Fasken originated an action in the courts to have her marriage with Henry Parr of Elora declared invalid on the ground that both are minors, and were married without the consent of their parents, basing her claim to a dissolution of the union on the Ontario amendment.

Mr. Foy states:

"Before the young girl, who is seeking relief in the Ontario High Courts, commenced action she obtained the opinion of two eminent counsel that the act was within the jurisdiction of the province. If the act purported to give power to the court to annul a marriage, it would be ultra vires, as the Dominion Parliament alone has jurisdiction under the B. N. A. Act as to the solemnization of marriages. The provincial act does not deal with divorce or annulment of a marriage, but only treats of the case where a form of marriage is gone through between two persons under the lawful age, without consent required by law, and where no valid marriage was effected or entered into. The act does not purport to give the court power to annul a marriage, but only to find (if the fact be so) that a valid marriage has not been entered into or effected, and to so declare.

"When this act was before the Ontario Legislature it was foreseen that some one hunting for flaws might possibly throw a doubt on the jurisdiction of the Ontario Legislature, and in order to remove any possible question it was suggested that a similar act should be passed by the Dominion Parliament, as a matter of precaution.

"The correspondent is mistaken in saying the bill introduced into the Dominion Parliament last session was at the request of the Provincial Government. There was no request but merely a suggestion to those interested in the legislation of a similar act were passed at Ottawa there would be no room for any one of the flaw-hunters to suggest a shadow of a doubt as to the sufficiency of the legislation."

The Manager Of the B. & A.

By VAUGHAN KESTER

Copyright, 1901, by Harper & Brothers

The morning of the funeral an extra edition of the Herald was issued, which contained a glowing account of Ryder's life and achievements. It was an open secret that it was from the gifted pen of Kenyon. This notable enterprise was one of the wonders of the day. Everybody wanted a Herald as a souvenir of the occasion, and nearly 500 copies were sold.

All that morning the country people in unheard of numbers flocked into town. As Clarence remarked to Spide, it was just like a circus day. The noon train from Buckhorn Junction arrived crowded to the doors, as did the 1 o'clock train from Harrison. Antioch had never known anything like it.

The funeral was at 2 o'clock from the little white frame Methodist church, but long before the appointed hour it was crowded to the verge of suffocation, and the anxious, waiting throng overflowed into the yard and street with never a hope of wedging into the building, much less securing seats.

A delegation of the strikers, the Young Men's Kenyon club, of which Ryder was a member, and a representative body of citizens escorted the remains to the church. These were the people he had jeered at, whose simple joys he had ridiculed and whose griefs he had made light of, but they would gladly have forgiven him his sarcasms even had they known of them. He had become a hero and a martyr.

Chris Berry and Cap Roberts were in charge of the arrangements. On the night of the murder the former had beaten his rival to the Herald office by exactly three minutes and had never left Ryder until he lay in the most costly casket in his shop.

It was admitted afterward by thoughtful men who were accustomed to weigh their opinions carefully that Mr. Williamson, the minister, had never delivered so moving an address or one that contained so obvious a moral. The drift of his remarks was that the death of their brilliant and distinguished fellow townsman should serve as a warning to all that there was no time like the present in which to prepare for the life everlasting. He assured his audience that each hour of existence should be devoted to consecration and silent testimony; otherwise, what did it avail? It was not enough that Ryder had thrown the weight of his personal influence and exceptional talents on the side of sound morality and civic usefulness. And as he soared on from point to point his hearers soared with him, and when he rounded in on each well tried climax they rounded in with him. He never failed them once. They always knew what he was going to say before it was said and were ready for the thrill when the thrill was due. It might have seemed that Mr. Williamson was paid a salary merely to make an uncertain hereafter yet more uncomfortable and uncertain, but Antioch took its religion hot, with a shiver and a threat of blue flame.

When Mr. Williamson sat down Mr. Kenyon rose. As a layman he could be entirely eulogistic. He was sure of the faith which through life had been the guiding star of the departed. He had seen it instanced by numerous acts of eminently Christian benevolence, and on those rare occasions when he had spoken of his hopes and fears he had, in spite of his shrinking modesty, shown that his standards of Christian duty were both lofty and consistent.

Here the Hon. Jeb Barrows, who had been dozing peacefully, awoke with a start and gazed with wide, bulging eyes at the speaker. He followed Mr. Kenyon, and, though he tried hard, he couldn't recall any expression of Ryder's, at the Red Star bar or elsewhere, which indicated that there was any spiritual uplift to his nature which he fed at secret altars; so he pictured the friend and citizen, and the dead fared well at his hands, perhaps better than he was conscious of, for he said no more than he believed.

Then came the prayer and hymn, to be succeeded by a heavy, solemn pause, and Mr. Williamson stepped to the front of the platform.

"All those who care to view the remains—and I presume there are many, here who will wish to look upon the face of our dead friend before it is conveyed to its final resting place—will please form in line at the rear of the edifice and advance quietly up the right aisle, passing across the church as quickly as possible and thence down the left aisle and on out through the door. This will prevent confusion and make it much pleasanter for all."

There was a rustle of skirts and the awkward shuffling of many feet as the congregation formed in line; then it filed slowly up the aisle to where Chris Berry stood, weazened and dry, with a vulture look on his face and a vulture touch to his hands that now and again picked at the flowers which were banked about the coffin.

The Emorys, partly out of regard for public sentiment, had attended the funeral, for, as the doctor said, they were the only real friends Griff had in the town. They had known and liked him when the rest of Antioch was dubiously critical of the newcomer, whose ways were not its ways.

When the congregation thronged up the aisle Constance, who had endured the long service, which to her was unspeakably grotesque and horrible, in shocked if silent rebellion slipped her hand into her mother's. "Take me away," she whispered brokenly, "or I shall cry out! Take me away!"

Mrs. Emory hesitated. It seemed a desertion of a trust to go and leave Griff to these strangers, who had been brought there by morbid curiosity. Constance guessed what was passing in her mind.

"Papa will remain if it is necessary."

Mrs. Emory touched the doctor on the shoulder. "We're going home, John; Constance doesn't feel well; but you stay."

When they reached the street the last vestige of Constance's self control vanished utterly. "Wasn't it awful!" she sobbed. "And his life had only just begun! And to be snuffed out like this, when there was everything to live for!"

Mrs. Emory, surprised at the sudden show of feeling, looked into her daughter's face. Constance understood the look.

"No, no! He was only a friend! He could never have been more than that. Poor, poor Griff!"

"I am glad for your sake, dearie," said Mrs. Emory gently.

"I wasn't very kind to him at the last, but I couldn't know—I couldn't know," she moaned.

She was not much given to these confidences even with her mother. Usually she never questioned the wisdom or righteousness of her own acts, and it was not her habit to put them to the test of a less generous judgment, but she was remembering her last meeting with Ryder. It had been the day before his death. He had told her that he loved her, and she had flared up, furious and resentful, with the dull, accusing ache of many days in her heart and a cruel readiness to make him suffer. She had tried to convince herself afterward that it was only his vanity that was hurt.

Then she thought of Oakley. She had been thinking of him all day, wondering where he was, if he had left Antioch, and not daring to ask. They were going up the path now toward the house, and she turned to her mother again.

"What do they say of Mr. Oakley—I mean Mr. Dan Oakley? I don't know why, but I'm more sorry for him than I am for Griff. He has so much to bear!"

"I heard your father say he was still here. I suppose he has to remain. He can't choose."

"What will be done with his father if he is captured? Will they"— She could not bring herself to finish the sentence.

"Goodness knows! I wouldn't worry about him," said Mrs. Emory in a tone of considerable asperity. "He made all the trouble, and I haven't a particle of patience with him!"

CHAPTER XVIII.

By 3 o'clock the saloons and stores, which had closed at noon, opened their doors, and Antioch emerged from the shadow of its funeral gloom.

By 4 o'clock a long procession of carriages and wagons was rumbling out of town. Those who had come from a distance were going home, but many lingered in the hope that the excitement was not all past.

An hour later a rumor reached Antioch that Roger Oakley had been captured. It spread about the streets like wildfire and penetrated to the stores and saloons. At first it was not believed.

Just who was responsible for the rumor no one knew, and no one cared, but soon the additional facts were being vouched for by a score of excited men that a search party from Barrow's Sawmills, which had been trailing the fugitive for two days, had effected his capture after a desperate fight in the northern woods and were bringing him to Antioch for identification. It was generally understood that if the prisoner proved to be Roger Oakley he would be spared the uncertainty of a trial. The threat was made openly that he would be strung up to the first convenient lamp post. As Mr. Britt remarked to a customer from Harrison for whom he was mixing a cocktail:

"It'd be a pity to keep a man of his years waiting; and what's the use of spending thousands of dollars for a conviction anyhow when everybody knows he done it?"

At this juncture Jim Brown, the sheriff, and Joe Weaver, the town marshal, were seen to cross the square with an air of importance and preoccupation. It was noted casually that the right hand coat pocket of each sagged suggestively. They disappeared into McElroy's livery stable. Fifty men and boys rushed precipitately in pursuit and were just in time to see the two officers pass out at the back of the stable and jump into a light road cart that stood in the alley. A moment later and they were whirling off uptown.

All previous doubt vanished instantly. It was agreed on all sides that they were probably acting on private information and had gone to bring in the prisoner. So strong was this conviction that a number of young men whose teams were hitched about the square promptly followed, and soon an anxious cavalcade emptied itself into the dusty country road.

Just beyond the corporation line the North street, as it was called, forked. Mr. Brown and his companion had taken the road which bore to the west and led straight to Barrow's Sawmills. Those who were first to reach the forks could still see the road cart a black dot in the distance.

The afternoon passed, and the dusk of evening came. Those of the townspeople who were still hanging about the square went home to supper. Unless a man could hire or borrow a horse there was not much temptation to start off on a wild goose chase, which, after all, might end only at Barrow's Sawmills.

Fortunately for him, Dan Oakley had gone to Chicago that morning, intending to see Holloway and resign. In view of what had happened it was impossible for him to remain in Antioch, nor could General Cornish expect him to.

Milton McClintock was at supper with his family when Mrs. Stapleton, who lived next door, broke in upon them without ceremony, crying excitedly,

"They've got him, and they're going to lynch him!"

Then she as suddenly disappeared. McClintock from where he sat, holding a piece of bread within an inch of his lips and his mouth wide open to receive it, could see her through the window, her gray hair disheveled and tossed about her face, running from house to house, a gaunt rumor in flapping calico skirts.

He sprang to his feet when he saw her vanish around the corner of Lou Bentick's house across the way. "You keep the children in, Mary," he said sharply. "Don't let them into the street." And, snatching up his hat and coat, he made for the door, but his wife was there ahead of him and threw her arms about his neck.

"For God's sake, Milt, stay with the boys and me!" she ejaculated. "You don't know what may happen!"

Outside they heard the trampling of many feet coming nearer and nearer. They listened breathlessly.

"You don't know what may happen!" she repeated.

"Yes, I do, and they mustn't do it!" unclasping her hands. "Jim will be needing help." The sheriff was his wife's brother. "He's promised me he'd hang the old man himself or no one else should."

There was silence now in the street. The crowd had swept past the house.

"But the town's full of strangers. You can't do anything, and Jim can't!"

"We can try. Look out for the children!"

And he was gone.

Mrs. McClintock turned to the boys, who were still at the table. "Go upstairs to your room and stay there until I tell you to come down," she commanded peremptorily. "There, don't bother me with questions!" For Joe, the youngest boy, was already whimpering. The other two, with white, scared faces, sat bolt upright in their chairs. Some danger threatened. They didn't know what this danger was, and their very ignorance added to their terror.

"Do what I say!" she cried. At this they left the table and marched toward the stairs. Joe found courage to say:

"Ain't you coming too? George's afraid." But his mother did not hear him. She was at the window closing the shutters. In the next yard she saw old Mrs. Smith, Mrs. Stapleton's mother, carrying her potted plants into the house and scolding in a shrill, querulous voice.

McClintock, pulling on his coat as he ran, hurried up the street past the little white frame Methodist church. The crowd had the start of him, and the town seemed deserted except for the women and children who were everywhere, at open doors and windows, some pallid and pitying, some ugly with the brutal excitement they had caught from brothers or husbands.

As he passed the Emorys' he heard his name called. He glanced around and saw the doctor standing on the porch with Mrs. Emory and Constance.

"Will you go with me, McClintock?" the physician cried. At the same moment the boy drove his team to the door. McClintock took the fence at a bound and ran up the drive.

"There's no time to lose," he panted. "But," with a sudden, sickening sense of helplessness, "I don't know that we can stop them."

"At least he will not be alone."

It was Constance who spoke. She was thinking of Oakley as struggling single handed to save his father from the howling, cursing rabble which had rushed up the street ten minutes before.

"No, he won't be alone," said McClintock, not understanding whom it was she meant. He climbed in beside the doctor.

"You haven't seen him?" the latter asked as he took the reins from the boy.

"Seen who?"

"Dan Oakley."

"He's on his way to Chicago. Went this morning."

"Thank God for that!" And he pulled in his horses to call back to Constance that Oakley had left Antioch. A look of instant relief came into her face. He turned again to McClintock.

"This is a bad business."

"Yes, we don't want no lynching, but it's lucky Oakley isn't here. I hadn't thought of what he'd do if he was."

"What a pity he ever sent for his father! But who could have foreseen this?" said the doctor sadly. McClintock shook his head.

"I can't believe the old man killed Ryder in cold blood. Why, he's as gentle as a lamb."

As they left the town off to the right in a field they saw a bareheaded woman racing after her two runaway sons, and then the distant shouts of men, mingled with the shrill cries of boys, reached their ears. The doctor shook out his reins and plied his whip.

"What if we are too late?" he said.

For answer McClintock swore. He was fearing that himself.

Two minutes later and they were up with the rear of the mob, where it straggled along on foot, sweating and dusty and hoarsely articulate. A little farther on and it was lost to sight in a thicketed dip of the road. Out of this black shadow buggy after buggy flashed to show in the red dusk that lay on the treeless hillside beyond. On the mob's either flank, but keeping well out of the reach of their elders, slunk and skulked the village urchins.

"Looks as if all Antioch was here tonight," commented McClintock grimly.

"So much the better for us. Surely they are not all gone mad," answered the doctor.

"I wouldn't give a button for his chances."

The doctor drove recklessly into the crowd, which scattered to the right and left.

McClintock, bending low, scanned the faces which were raised toward them.

"The whole township's here. I don't know one in ten," he said, straightening up.

"I wish I could manage to run over a few," muttered the doctor savagely.

As they neared the forks of the road Dr. Emory pulled in his horses. A heavy farm wagon blocked the way, and the driver was stolidly indifferent alike to his entreaties and to McClintock's threat to break his head for him if he didn't move on. They were still shouting at him when a savage cry swelled up from the throats of those in advance. The murderer was being brought in from the east road.

"The brutes!" muttered the doctor, and he turned helplessly to McClintock. "What are we going to do? What can we do?"

By way of answer McClintock stood up.

"I wish I could see Jim."

But Jim had taken the west road three hours before and was driving toward Barrow's Sawmills as fast as McElroy's best team could take him. When he reached there it was enough to make one's blood run cold to hear the good man curse.

"You wait here, doctor," cried McClintock. "You can't get past, and they seem to be coming this way now."

"Look out for yourself, Milt."

"Never fear for me."

He jumped down into the dusty, trampled road and foot by foot fought his way forward.

Chemong People Win at Sturgeon

Regatta at the Point Was a Success Although Sailing Races Had to be Called Off

Sturgeon Point regatta which took place yesterday proved very successful, the only disappointment being the lack of wind for the sailing races. The other events however, were keenly contested and provided a good days sport.

The Chemong Park Cottagers' Association excursion took up about 200, and proved a pleasant day's outing for all. The Chemong contingent captured prizes in three events, S. Knott taking first, and T. J. Conway second, in men's single canoe, and Misses Marion Denne and Ada Minns, second in ladies' tandem. The Chemong fleet of five dinghies and one sloop, which were towed up by the steamer Rob Roy, were unable to get into any contest on account of the lack of wind and returned a disappointed lot of sailor men.

The events completed up to leaving time of the Ogemah, were:—

Gasoline power boats.—1 J. Dixon, 2 J. Perrin.

Men's single canoe.—1 S. Knott, 2 T. J. Conway.

Ladies' tandem.—1 Miss Flavelle and Miss Knowlson; 2 Miss Denne and Miss Minns.

Swimming race.—1 W. Shaw, 2 E. Perrin.

Gunwale race.—1 E. Perrin, 2 Bruce Hopkins.

Boys' canoe.—1 Warner and Knowlson; 2 Flavelle and Knowlson.

Gasoline launch.—1 G. Harstone, 2 J. Perrin.

Gasoline 3 horse.—1 C. Squiers, 2 B. Hopkins.

Mixed tandem canoe.—1 Mr. Knowlson and Miss Knowlson, 2 G. Warner and Miss Flavelle.

Salvation Army Band Goes on Tour; Fourteen Concerts in Ten Days

Will be Thirty-five Strong—Leave Saturday Afternoon for Port Hope—Return a Week from Monday and Give a Concert Here—All for the Benefit of the Army Work—Musicians Give Their Time and Talents—Under the Charge of the Provincial Officer.

The Salvation Army band will leave on the baseball team's special train to Port Hope tomorrow afternoon at two o'clock. It will be the start of the band's ten day's outing and they will give the first concert in the lakeside town in the evening. The Salvation Army band has been selected by the provincial officer in Montreal, who has charge of Eastern Ontario and Quebec, to visit several towns and cities in this district for the purpose of aiding the local corps to arouse the people to a greater interest and sympathy in the work of the army and to show the people what a real Salvation Army can do. In the smaller places the Army has no band and the people think that all there is to work is the small handfull of soldiers who hold services on the street corners.

This is the first time the Peterborough band has been given a tour to any extent. They have several times been away for a week end or for a single evening, and to be thus selected is an honor to the band and a credit to the city. The band is thirty-five strong and every member is a musician. They give their services gratis to the Army and they are very faithful to their duties. Nearly every night they turn out in full strength. They work hard at their music and the result is that they have an organization which will compare favorably with any amateur band in the province. Their concerts have been greatly enjoyed by the people of this city and everyone is in hearty sympathy with the Army work here. Bandmaster J M. Greene, who has so successfully filled the position of leader, deserves great credit for his work. He is a first class musician and his services for many years have been gratis, as are also those of every member of the band.

Some time ago the matter of taking a tour around the country was spoken of and the members of the Army offered their services to the provincial officer if he needed them. Needless to say, the offer was quickly and gladly accepted, as the corps in the small towns are in need of assistance.

All the bandsmen, therefore, arranged to take their summer holidays about the same time and this is the way they will take their vacation. The provincial officer has full charge of the tour and guarantees all expenses. It is expected that the proceeds from the concerts will more than pay the expenses and the band will be given a percentage of the net receipts to assist their own work. Not a man will get a cent for himself.

WHERE THEY GO

While away the band will visit eight towns and render fourteen concerts, including one in Peterborough a week from Monday, when they return home. The programme mapped out is as follows;

Port Hope, Saturday night concert in the town hall.

Cobourg on Sunday; programme will be rendered in the afternoon and the rest of the day will be devoted to services.

Trenton on Monday, afternoon and evening concerts.

Picton on Tuesday, afternoon and evening concerts.

On Wednesday take the boat to Belleville, afternoon and evening concerts.

Campbellford on Thursday evening; concert.

Napanee on Friday evening; concert.

Tweed on Saturday evening; concert. Remain there over Sunday, and give concert Sunday afternoon.

Monday morning will arrive in Peterborough and render programme in evening in Army barracks on Simcoe street.

Employees Had Pleasant Outing

The employees' of Mr. Harry Adams ladies' ready-to-wear store, had a very pleasant outing yesterday afternoon. They took the trip to Gore's Landing on the steamer Monarch. The sail down the river and across Rice Lake was enjoyed very much and the landing was reached in time for tea. After spending an hour at this pretty pleasure spot, they started on the return trip, reaching home in good time. This is the first annual outing of this store, and Mr Adams' kind hospitality extended to his employees in this way, is an evidence of his kindly interest in their behalf.

Board of Health Held a Session

Gave Samuel Edwards Until May 1st to Connect His Terrace With the Sewer

A meeting of the Board of Health was held in the city clerk's office this morning when the following were present:—Chairman Wm. Eyres, Dr. McNulty, Dr. Burnham and Mayor McWilliams.

Mr. Samuel Edwards was present and asked the Board of Health not to insist that he connect his terrace on London street with the sewer at present. He was given until the 1st day of May next to carry out the instructions.

Chairman Wm. Eyres spoke very strongly against the motion going through giving Mr. Edwards an extension of time to put in his sewer connections. Mr. Eyres claimed that every house fronting on a street where there is a sewer should be connection will cost more than the house is worth.

Sanitary Inspector Ball was instructed to report to the Board all terraces not connected with the sewers which could be connected, and also on the condition of the premises in question.

The inspector called atention the fact that cardboard milk tickets were being used by the local milk men. This he did not think was sanitary, but the board did not think the matter of sufficient importance to take any action.

Biggest Fish Story Yet Told

Ald. Duncan Was Towed up the Rapids by Two Big Lunge

Stony Lake, Burleigh Falls, Chemong, Rice Lake and other summer resorts make their boast of the excellent fishing to be had in their neighborhood. There is no doubt that there are many good catches made but none of them can touch the Otonabee river passing through the city. Ald. Duncan, one of the best known and most enthusiastic fishermen in the city, tells of a most wonderful catch he made a day or two ago. It was the night that Mr. J. Harris McClellan, superintendent of the Trent Canal, was down at the Peterborough locks interviewing the canoe men in reference to improving the approach to the slide.

Ald. Duncan had been down the river a little way and was coming back to be present at the meeting. He, of course, had a trolling line out, and just as he began to paddle hard to get up the rapids, there was a tremendous tug on the line. The chairmn of the Board of Works knew what was up, and he skillfully played what he figured was a big 'lunge, until he got it around in front of the canoe heading up stream. Then he tightened the line, braced his feet, and the fish made a dash towards the dam. Ald. Duncan held fast, with the result that he was towed up the rapids. When he reached the slide he stopped the mad career of the' lunge, and in a minute or two he hulled in his line, to find that he had hooked two fine big fish which would each tip the scales at 20 pounds.

Ald. Duncan told the above story, and said that it was all done in sight of the Superintendent of the canal, the lockmaster and several other gentlemen who happened to be there.

Superintendent W. R. Tiffin of the northern division of the Grand Trunk, and his staff, passed through Peterborough yesterday en route to Lakefield, where an inspection was made of the work being done in the vicinity of the Cavandish Lumber company's mill. Considerable new track is being laid to replace that destroyed by the fire a few weeks ago. Mr. Tiffin travelled in his private car and returned to Allendale last night.

BROKE LINE AND GOT AWAY

Mrs. Dan Burritt Had Exciting Time With a 'Lunge at Chemong

Mrs Dan Burritt had an exciting experience while fishing in Chemong Lake yesterday afternoon. She hooked a big 'lunge, but unfortunately did not succeed in landing it, as it gave one powerful jerk and broke the line close up to the pole. The fish appeared to be an unusually big one, too big in fact to jump out of the water. It just came to the surface, but was too large to spring out of the water as 'lunge usually do when hooked.

Incidentally it might be mentioned that Mrs. Burritt holds the record of having captured the largest 'lunge ever captured by a lady in Chemong Lake. She once pulled in a 'lunge that weighed 27 1-2 pounds, and, needless to say, had an exciting time in landing it. This record will likely hold good for some tinem to come.

They Must Relieve Britain; Governor General's Statement

Earl Grey Again Reminds Canadians of Their Duty.

Navy Necessary to Bind Empire—Dominion Ought to Share Burden of Support—Cape Colony's Example—Mutual Sacrifice and Service—Eulogises New Postal Regulations—What Canada Has Done.

Halifax, N. S., Aug. 9.—At a largely attended Canadian Club luncheon here yesterday, His Excellency Earl Grey, Governor-General, made an important speech, referring to relations with the Mother Country. His speech evoked great enthusiasm and a cordial vote of thanks was moved by Archbishop McCarthy, seconded by Dr. Falconer of Toronto University.

Referring to the Colonial Conference, His Excellency expressed the hope that the blue book report of the proceedings of the conference might be printed in a cheaper form and be widely read.

Mutual sacrifice and service appeared to be the motto which animated the discussions of the conference. Along this noble road the United Kingdom led the way. It was recognised that if the Empire was to be held together a complete command of the sea was necessary, and that for this purpose the Imperial navy must be stronger than the combined forces of any other two powers. The Home Government, recognizing that the first pressing need of the self-governing dominions across the seas was to develop their resources, and to make themselves strong, had undertaken to provide, single-handed, for the whole of this defence, and to ensure the safety of the over-sea trade, until the time had come for the twenty millions of self-governing dominions of the King outside the United Kingdom to take up their share of what should be a common Imperial burden.

He felt proud to belong to that small portion of the British Empire which considered it a privilege to carry the whole burden of the naval defence of the Empire so long as they were able, and until Canada could relieve it of a share of the burden.

His Excellency referred to the patriotic example of the Cape Colony, which had deliberately paid $825,000 in order to enable British manufactures to secure a seven and one-half million dollar order for rolling stock, which, but for this action, would have gone to a foreign nation.

As an instance of Canada's sacrifice and service in the cause of empire, he referred to the new postal arrangements by which Canada secured to the people of the United Kingdom, as well as of Canada, the advantage of a cheap mail service, of which Canada paid the whole expense of collection and delivery over a continent the size of Europe. Canada further paid the whole cost of ocean transportation from Liverpool on the increasing mails and printed matter that the low postal rates were bringing into Canada, while England only paid the cost of collection and delivery over an area not larger than the Maritime Provinces.

Canada had again given a fine example of sacrifice and service in the vigor with which we had forced trade east and west, instead of north and south, against the laws of nature and geography, in the desire to throw trade into Great Britain.

AYTON MILLS WIPED OUT.

Extensive Plant Including Machinery and Stock, In Ashes.

Ayton, Aug. 9.—A disastrous fire occurred at Hampden, near Ayton, yesterday afternoon, when the extensive sawmill, shingle and lath mills owned and operated by the Miller & Seim firm, were wiped out by fire. Their entire stock of this season's cutting of lumber, lath and shingles is completely gone, including the three mills and machinery, with a total loss of $7,000. The fire originated by a spark from the shingle mill. Every effort was made to prevent its spreading, but owing to the extremely dry season the fire spread and consumed the entire plant. A high wind was blowing, ad this carried the fire into the fields, which quickly consumed the dry crops, and the farmers in that vicinity had hard work in saving their barns and houses. Miller & Seim intend rebuilding at once. The loss is partially covered by insurance.

LOSS BY WATER $50,000.

Tank Bursts and Montreal Grocer's Store Is Flooded.

Montreal, Aug. 9.—A huge water tank on top of the building occupied by Herman Wolff & Co., McGill street, wholesale grocer, burst yesterday morning, and water flooded the entire establishment. The tank itself, when about half empty, toppled over across a lane and crashed into the Tamilkande Tea Co.'s building and made a big hole in the roof.

The Wolff Co.'s loss is about $50,000, and the Tea Company's $1,000.

Boy Hangs on Tree.

Brockville, Aug. 9.—In some unaccountable manner, Earl, the 11-year-old son of Charles Spaulding, residing near Rice in the Field Settlement, accidentally hanged himself.

It is thought he was endeavoring to perform tricks on a swing which he had in an apple tree near the house, where he was found hanging by his mother. Just how long he had been in that position is not known. All efforts to resuscitate him were unsuccessful.

Moved Just In Time.

Brockville, Aug. 9.—Fred Loomis, who lives with James Baker in Dexter, made a lucky move between 4 and 5 o'clock Wednesday morning when he concluded it was time for him to get out of bed and go downstairs. A few minutes later Loomis' bed was splintered by lightning. The house was struck, a small portion of the roof torn off, and the rafters and attic floor shattered.

Ambergris.

Ambergris is worth at present 33 5s. an ounce. Last year there was used about £120,000 worth of this peculiar substance in the manufacture of perfumes. It is a fatty substance of an ashy gray color with red or yellow streaks in it and is found floating on the sea or taken by whale fishers from the carcass of the sperm whale. Much is also picked up on the shores of the Bahamas. It is generally agreed that ambergris is secreted by the sperm whale as the result of a disease. It is chiefly bought by scent makers, but is also valuable as a constituent of certain medicines.—London Standard.

The War Airship.

It is a sweet dream, but it will never come true. Humanity will forbid. The week after the empyrean warship is constructed, the Saturday Evening Post thinks, the powers will meet at The Hague and agree that nothing more harmful than pamphlets shall be dropped from the flying monster.

FIREMEN STOOD GUARD.

Helped Citizens to Defeat Purpose of Railway Company.

St. Catharines, Aug. 9.—Wednesday night, when the waterworks men at Thorold knocked off work everything was ready to lay the water pipes under the Niagara, St. Catharines & Toronto Electric Railway Co.'s trestle, which runs through the town.

The company raised no objection to the pipes going under the trestle, but some time after midnight one of their cars, loaded with pig iron and other heavy stuff was sent up the line and the open trench was filled up.

When the town authorities heard of it, an hour or two later, the mayor called out the firemen, and while the firemen stood on guard with their engine at full steam and ready hose to thwart any interference from the railway company, willing citizens cleared away the debris.

A guard was kept all night, and at 7 o'clock yesterday morning the work of laying the pipes under the trestle was gone on with.

The railway company and the Thorold authorities have not been on very good terms, and this is supposed to account for the company's strange actions.

DESERTED IN PARIS.

Young Ottawa Woman's Honeymoon Is Disastrous.

Ottawa, Aug. 9.—A young bride returned to Ottawa this week from Paris to tell the story of a shattered romance.

On June 27 Miss L. Mavant was married to the interpreter of the Dominion Immigration Department, who had been in Ottawa some ten years, while she herself is the daughter of a Government employe. The bridal couple proceeded to Europe by the Parisian and all was well until Paris was reached. Here the bridegroom, who said he was an Austrian, Rodgers by name, behaved strangely and did not send the luggage to the hotel, leaving it at the depot.

After five days he left the hotel, saying he had to see Lord Rothschild, and has not since been seen by his wife.

Stranded in Paris the girl had to apply to the Dominion representative, Hon. Mr. Fabre, for assistance.

PRIEST SHOOTS TWO MEN.

Enters Pittsburg Hotel and Fires on Proprietors Without Warning.

Pittsburg, Aug. 9.—Ludwig Sceigel, said to be an unattached Polish priest of Chicago, walked into a south side hotel in Carson street early yesterday and without warning, it is said, whipped out a revolver and opened fire upon the two proprietors, twin brothers, named Steven and Andrew Etarzynski.

Both men were fatally wounded. Steven died within an hour, and the physicians say Andrew cannot recover. Sceigel maintains a sullen silence, and nothing can be learned from either of his alleged victims. When Sceigel came here ten days ago he went to a hotel, accompanied by a woman whom he introduced as his housekeeper. They secured an apartment of two rooms. The woman, who gave her name as Francisca Sprock, is held as a suspicious person. Sceigel, it is said, had been drinking heavily.

BLAZE AT NORTH BAY.

Town Has Hard Experience Fighting Flames.

North Bay, Aug. 9.—Another serious fire broke out at 10 o'clock last night in a building until recently occupied by Cole & Co. as a planning mill in the heart of the residential section. Since vacated by Cole & Co., who recently moved into a new building, the structure was occupied by Louis Smith as a storehouse.

In the building where the fire originated was stored a large quantity of farming machinery, the property of Thomas Lowell, agent, some of which was saved. The barn of John Ostrum was destroyed.

The mill building, owned by Louis Smith, William McIlvenny's house, James Lindsay's barns and John Ostrum's stable were burned to the ground. Most of the household effects of the Labrosse family were saved. The loss will total $5,000; partly covered by insurance.

Foot Severed by Engine.

St. Catharines, Aug. 9.—A young Englishman, Thomas Bambridge, Mimico, was seriously injured by being struck by a G. T. R. engine in Merritton yards shortly after 12 o'clock yesterday. He was switching an engine and running ahead, when he slipped in front of the engine, with the result that his foot was severed and some deep wounds inflicted on his head. He is at the General and Marine Hospital, where he is in a precarious condition, his recovery being doubtful.

Peoria, Ill., Aug. 9.—Reports say that in Western Peoria County and Eastern Knox County the corn crop has been devastated. Hailstones the size of hen eggs left 25,000 acres of corn barren waste. Thousands of window panes were broken.

NEW YORK'S DIVES.

The Lookout Man's Trick When the Police Show Themselves.

Some of the dives about New York that are under the ban of the police have ingenious contrivances for warning occupants and patrons of the approach of a "bull" or any other suspected person. By the way, these places are never referred to in the vernacular as "dives" or "joints," for the vocabulary of the inventors of slang changes as quickly as a word comes into general use, so a suspected place is now always referred to as a "dump."

Warning of the approach of a policeman or detective is given by means of an electric buzzer. Formerly the push button connected with the buzzer was concealed under the edge of the bar in front or behind a water pipe. This device, however, was discovered by the police, who thereafter on entering a suspected place kept a close watch on the barkeeper and gave him no chance to press the button.

Then came the prong device. This consisted of two small metal prongs projecting from the edge of the wall. When a man suspected to be a limb of the law entered the door, the barkeeper carelessly placed a coin across the two prongs, thus making a circuit and causing the buzzer to sound in the rear.

This device was discovered, too, so now a lookout is stationed outside the door of a dive. He apparently is a lounger, but he scans closely by a quick glance the face of every person who enters. If a man doesn't look all right the lookout presses his foot, which has a copper plate nailed to the surface of the cellar doorway outside. This makes the circuit and causes the buzzer to get busy, so that by the time the "bull" throws open the door the occupants who are wanted by the police have had time to make their escape and those who remain are seated at tables harmlessly drinking beer or engaged in a friendly game of penuchle or whist. Everything is apparently "on the level," and the "bull" is forced to withdraw without having been able to obtain any evidence.—New York Press.

The Ladybug.

"For the farmers Mother Goose has probably done as much as any of the agricultural scientists," was the remarkable statement made recently by Henry Griscon Parsons, who, as professor of horticulture, is conducting a course in school gardening at the New York university summer school. "No," he replied, "I am not poking fun at or belittling the biochemic experts and their wonderful discoveries. But do you know the part played in agriculture by the ladybug? The ladybug lives to eat the aphis, or plant louse, which is so destructive to plants. And did you ever see a child kill one of these aphis eating friends of farming? I never did. If a ladybug lights on a child's hand, what does he do? Why he says, 'Ladybug, ladybug, fly away home,' and gently starts the insect on its way. Mother Goose has taught the child to be kind to the ladybug, and as a result, instead of being killed, these little creatures are cherished and allowed to do their beneficent work."

THE AUSTRALIAN TARIFF

New Budget Regarded as Triumph For Preference.

Averages Five Per Cent. In Favor of Great Britain—Duties on Iron—Rebate on Machine Parts—Free Traders Call It Sham Preference—Hostile Criticism Aroused — Premier Deakin Absent From the House.

London, Aug. 9.—(C.A.P.)—At Sydney, Australia, the new budget expounded by Sir W. Lyne is regarded by protectionists as a triumph for preference, while free traders call it a sham preference. At present a close analysis of the tariff is impossible, but there is approximately an average of 5 per cent. in favor of Great Britain. Premier Deakin was absent from the House through illness.

Cook (opposition leader) analyzed the preference lengthily and said:

"It is a tariff set up against Britain as well as the foreigner. There is no trace in this highly prohibitory tariff of a sacrifice, which Chamberlain said is the basis of empire.

"The tariff raises duties on all the principal Australian manufactures. It embraces an elaborate scheme of duties on iron, subject to the passage of the iron bonus bill.

"There is no preference on large agricultural machinery, but on hundreds of machine parts Britain receives special consideration.

The new duties are estimated to produce £800,000 annually.

Bills extending protection to the consumer are promised later.

The Melbourne Age (Protectionist) says that many doubt the wisdom of the preference, seeing that the English Government unequivocally, even contemptuously, rejected the principle of the Imperial Conference, and says it is doubtful whether it consists with our dignity or prudence to offer a gift which the recipient treats with levity.

Another estimate of the British preference makes it average 11 1-2 per cent., or an annual value of £1,200,000.

TRAGEDY AT BEAUCE.

Man Cut to Pieces In Quarrel—Victim Dying.

Quebec, Aug. 9.—Another tragedy has been enacted in Beauce, as the result of which a man named Cyrille Vachon lies at death's door. The scene of the tragedy was St. Evariste, Beauce, and the man accused of the act of violence is Napoleon Lessar, formerly of St. Evariste. It appears that bad blood existed between the two men and a quarrel ensued. The victim who was horribly injured received about a dozen knife wounds. Vachon comes from St. Romaine de Windsor. Vachon now refuses to lodge a complaint against the other and the people of the district are displeased. The Attorney-General's Department may be appealed to.

Struck by Lightning.

Port Hope, Aug. 9.—During a severe electric storm which passed over this district, Reuben L. Boughen, a farmer, aged 23 years, and living near Canton, about four miles north of Port Hope, was struck by lightning and instantly killed while standing in a stable doorway.

What is a Backache?

IT IS NATURE'S WARNING TO WOMEN

Diseases of Woman's Organism Cured and Consequent Pain Stopped by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

"It seems as though my back would break." Women utter these words over and over again, but continue to drag along and suffer with aches in the small of the back, pain low down in the side, "bearing-down" pains, nervousness and no ambition for any task.

Mrs. Albert Mann

They do not realise that the back is the mainspring of woman's organism, and quickly indicates by aching a diseased condition of the female organs or kidneys, and that the aches and pains will continue until the cause is removed.

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has been for many years the one and only effective remedy in such cases. It speedily cures female organs and kidney disorders and restores the female organs to a healthy condition.

Dear Mrs. Pinkham :—

"I suffered a long time with female trouble, having intense pains in the back and abdomen and very sick headaches every month. I was tired and nervous all the time and life looked very dreary to me and I had no desire to live until I began to take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and to get some relief. My recovery was slow but it was sure, and I never regretted the money spent for the Compound as it brought me back to good health.

"It seems to be a medicine especially adapted to the ills of our sex and I am glad to say a good word for it."—Mrs. Albert Mann, 154 Gore Vale Ave., Toronto, Ont.

No other person can give such helpful advice to women who are sick as can Mrs. Pinkham, daughter-in-law of Lydia E. Pinkham. Her address is Lynn, Mass., and her advice free.

St. Andrew's Choir Had Fine Outing

Delightful Time at Chemong Park Last Evening

Last evening, a most enjoyable event took place, when St. Andrew's choir were the participants. The choir gathered at St. Andrew's church at about five o'clock, and, having engaged a 'bus, drove to Chemong Park to the cottage of their organist, Mrs McClelland, where a most delightful time was spent. After tea some went to the lake and took boats, while others went on exploring expeditions around the park. Later all met at the house, and amny solos and choruses were sung. After singing "God Save the King" and "Auld Lang Syne," and giving their thanks to the kind host and hostess, the choir started for home. The weather was so fine that every one appreciated the outing and judged it a complete success.

Big Excursion To Gores Landing

Woman's Auxiliary of St. Luke's Church Had Successful Outing

Over one hundred persons took in the excursion of the W.A. of St. Luke's church to Gore's Landing yesterday afternoon on the steamer Monarch. The outing was a success in every way, and as a result the Woman's Auxiliary will have a good sum to start their work on in the autumn. The delightful sail down the river and across Rice Lake was much enjoyed and Gore's Landing was reached shortly after five o'clock. Tea was partaken of an hour was spent seeing the sights of this popular resort. The return trip was made in about three hours, and the Peterborough wharf was reached shortly after ten o'clock.

Mr. Harry Adams took the employees of his store down on this trip, and, needless to say, they appreciated his kindness very much. This is the first excursion St. Luke's W.A. has ever held, and the results were very encouraging.

School Books Now are Cheaper

An Announcement Made by the Minister of Education

A Toronto despatch says:—

The era of cheaper school text-books has dawned.

Compare the following prices for the Ontario Readers;—

	Old price.	New price.
First Reader, Part I......	10c	5c
First Reader, Part II...	15c	7c
Second Reader...	20c	9c
Third Reader...	30c	13c
Fourth Reader... ...	40c	15c
Total......	$1.15	49c

The official announcement of these reductions were made yesterday by Hon. Dr. Pyne, Minister of Education.

For several reasons the Department of Education has not yet been able to secure what it would consider adequate reductions in the prices of the books now authorised for use in the High and Public Schools, except in the case of the readers. The reasons for the delay, as announced by the Minister, are found in the facts that the report of the Text Book Commission has been received only recently; that several books on one subject are on the authorised list; the difficulties consequently connected with agreements and copyrights, and the necessity for giving due notice to the trade.

The Minister has, however, decreed as follows;—

The publisher selling to any purchaser for use in Ontario shall allow the following discounts;—

(a) On one or more copies of any book, 25 per cent off the prescribed retail price.

(b) On quantities of the value of $250 and upwards at retail prices (the said purchase being made of any quantity of any or all of the said books and in any proportion the purchaser may desire), 25 per cent. off the prescribed retail price, and an extra 10 per cent. thereafter.

Early in October next the contents and prices of the list of books now in use in the schools will be revised and arrangements made for the publication of such text-books as may be required.

The "Sailor Boy" brand of canned goods are the best that are put up. They never fail to please. Try a few cans.

Higher Railing Is Badly Needed

On Footpath on Hunter Street Bridge—It is Possible for a Person to Fall Over

The railing along the foot path on the Hunter street bridge is coming in for a little criticism at present. One of the prominent residents of Ashburnham, and with a city official, both of whom cross the bridge many times, stated that the railing is much too low. It should be several inches higher, as at present it is dangerous, especially is this so in the winter, when there are several inches of snow on the walk. It would be quite possible for anyone to fall over, especially if they were intoxicated. One of the gentlemen expressed the opinion that the unfortunate fellow who was found in the river last winter did not commit suicide, but, under the influence of liquor, he lost his balance and fell over. This is merely the opinion of one man, but it goes to show that such a thing is possible. Both gentlemen thought the Council should take action this summer, and have an addition put on the railing before the snow comes again.

Patterson vs. Graham Race

In Front of Oriental Hotel—O'Connor vs. Adamson at Fair Grounds

A matched race was arranged between Mr. Frank O'Connor and Mr. Price Adamson after many days discussion. Both men are employed at the Canadian General Electric and both had the idea that they knew a thing or two about running. Both are young men, but are tall and well built and are short distance runners. It was the great interest being taken in foot races lately, that started the two going.

Adamson was confident that he could beat O'Connor and agreed to give him a three yard start in a hundred yard dash. The latter accepted and a purse was hung up for the runner. The date was set for last night at the exhibition park. At the appointed time fully two hundred spectators gathered at the race track and great interest was taken in the race.

The first heat O'Connor who is at least 50 pounds the heavier, was given a three yards start and won easily by five yards, amid the applause of his many supporters.

The second heat under the same conditions went to O'Connor by three yards, and he took the purse from Price.

It was a great race from the spectators point of view, and another one or two would attract a big crowd.

OLD MAN VS. YOUNG.

A very exciting hundred yard dash took place in front of the Oriental hotel which was very amusing to the spectators until the old man fell. The contestants were Mr. George Graham, the genial proprietor of the hotel and Mr. Dave Paterson, a well-known and popular clerk in Lock's fur store. They with several others were standing in front of the hotel when Mr. Graham challenged the young man to run a hundred yards. The prize was to be a good clear Havana nickle cigar. Patterson was not to be dared and they got in line and started. They made great time until near the end of the race when the old man fell after crowding Patterson against the fence, although he claims he slipped on the walk which was wet. In his unepected and rapid descent his knee came in contact with the hard surface of the pavement and he had to be assisted back to the hotel, and lost the race and the nickel cigar as well. Mr. Graham says that he can beat his younger opponent and as soon as he gets in shape again he will give him another race, or will go on the track with him during the Peterborough exhibition.

Patterson says he will met Mr. Graham any time and give him two yards start for $5 or $25.

Praise for the Street Railway

Cobourg School Teacher Says Local Employees are Most Obliging He Ever Met

One of the most complimentary remarks paid the street railway in a long time was that of one of the high school teachers who was in the city yesterday with the excursion from Cobourg. He remarked to one of the leading gentleman in the city that he was very pleasantly surprised at the excellent arrangements the street railway company had made for the accommodation of the visitors. Every attention was given them and they put in a most pleasant day. "The conductors and motormen," he added "are the most obliging I ever met. Nothing seems to be any trouble to them. They courteously answered all questions and gave us lots of valuable information."

Such words coming from an outsider are very pleasant and should make not only the company feel proud, but every person in the city. It is so often that one hears complaints about the street car service and so many have suggestions to make to the management which would greatly improve the system, that when a good word is spoken the company and the employees should get the credit.

New Source of Water Supply

For House of Refuge—County Council is Meeting in Lakefield To-day

Special to the Review.

Lakefield, Aug. 9.—The County Council is meeting today at the House of Refuge, Lakefield, for the purpose of considering the water supply. It has been found that the roof surface does not catch sufficient water for washing purposes, and the cistern has gone dry. The well also has proved disappointing. It fluctuates to such an extent that some times there are seven feet of water in it, and in a short time it is dry. Altogether the system is unsatisfactory.

Those in charge of the House of Refuge held a consultation a few days ago, and considered that it would be better to change the source of supply, and before taking action it was felt that the whole Council should be considered.

There is an excellent spring on the farm just across the road, which has never yet been known to fail. It is there that the water will likely be got. This will mean that it will have to be pumped a distance of 500 feet, but the supply will be reliable. An estimate places the extra cost at about $500, bringing the total cost of the water system up to about $1,000.

FASTEST GAME OF THE SEASON

Big Crowd Will Accompany Baseball Team to Port Hope To-morrow

Everybody's going to Port Hope tomorrow to see the Midland League game between Peterborough and the home team. It will easily be the best game of the season, and the fact that the locals have to win to remain in the running will necessitate them putting forth their strongest endeavor to win. A strong team is being taken down, and as Port Hope has strengthened for the occasion, the fastest kind of ball should be played.

A special train will leave the G.T.R. station at two o'clock, and returning will leave Port Hope at 7.30 o'clock. The fare is only 80 cents return, and a big crowd is going. Everybody should turn out and accompany the team.

4229.—A PRACTICAL FROCK FOR PLAYTIME.

The play dress holds a place of its own in the regime of the wardrobe. one does not always want to dress a child in overalls or rompers when she is playing about the house or yard. Here is a dress which answers the same purpose and yet looks well enough for anyone to see, being all in one piece and belted or not as desired. It is intended to be worn with petticoats or bloomers, the later being made of the material of the dress. Two box plaits appear in front and back the closing being effected at the front under the left box plait. Small box plaits at the wrist retain the fulness of the sleeve. The dress may be made of chambray, crash, madras or percale, as well as any of the durable cloths. For the medium size 2 1-8 yards of 44 inch material are wanted.

Destruction of Grand Stand and Experimental Farm Building Will Not Interfere With Fair

Ottawa, Aug. 9.—We desire to inform you that the fire which destroyed the grand stand at our exhibition grounds, and also the Experimental farm building and damaged the ladies' building, will not affect the Fair, Sept. 13th to 21st. Street Leading to Wharf Should be in Better Shape

Many Complaints Heard About the Dust Nuisance and Absence of a Sidewalk on Wolfe Street Between George Street and the River.

Many complaints have been made of late regarding the condition of Wolfe street between George street and the wharf on the Otonabee river. There is no sidewalk on this bit of thoroughfare and the water carts never visit it with the result that when there is a few days of dry weather the street is covered with several inches of dust. The captains of the different steamboats that call at the Wolfe street wharf, are complaining bitterly about the dust nuisance and also complain that a sidewalk should be built from George-st. to the wharf. One of the steamship men informed the Review last night that as much as $1000 worth of goods is taken on board the steamers at this wharf some Saturdays, being purchased almost entirely by farmers and their wives who come in on the boats from the lower Otonabee and Rice Lake districts. These people have to tramp through the dust to reach George street and as the express waggons take many parcels to the wharf a great dust is raised when they drive down Wolfe street to the river. Not only is the dust annoying, but it damages the goods in many cases and reduces their value to the purchaser.

This trade is worth something to the merchants of the city and should be protected. It would be an easy mater to have this portion of Wolfe street sprinkled once a day and especially on Saturday morning before the boats land their passengers. A sidewalk could also be built at small expense and would be a great convenience, not only to shoppers from the country, but to the people of the city as well. It is only a natural requisite to have a good road to the principal wharf in the city. This matter should be attended to by those on whom the responsibility rests.

Screams of Frightened Woman Caused Great Alarm

Excitement Reigned on Robinson Street, East City, One Night This Week—The Man With the Wooden Leg.

Great excitement reigned on Concession street, East City, one night this week, the screams of a woman bringing the people out of their houses to see what the matter was. It was well on in the evening, and the lady's shouts and screams caused great excitement until the cause of her alarm became known.

It appears that a young lady, in company with a little girl, were on their way home, walking south along Robinson street when the lady stepped upon some object that was lying on the sidewalk. She stopped and stooped down to see what it was (it was quite dark at the time), and was startled to find that the object was nothing less than a man's wooden leg. Lying beside the sidewalk was the owner of the wooden appendage, but he was dead to the world. He was stretched out in such a manner that the wooden leg extended across the sidewalk, and it was no wonder that the ladies were frightened. They thought that the man was dead, but an investigation by those who had gathered proved that he was knocked out by too much booze. The fellow has been staying at a house in East City for several days and was drinking heavily. The "peg-cop" has since left the city, as the people with whom he was staying would not stand for his constant tippling.

Law is Breeding Criminals, So Says Magistrate Dumble

Corporal Punishment Should be Given to Bad Boys—Long List of Juvenile Cases in the Police Court

Magistrate Dumble was back again in his place on the bench at the police court this morning, and almost the whole proceedings were in connection with juvenile cases. It is amazing the number of boys that have been arraigned in police court during the past two months. The younger generation are evidently going to the bad without anyone putting out a hand to save them.

This morning there were no less than eight boys, who were under the age of twelve years, charged with stealing, and all of them with the exception of two have appeared on two previous occasions on similar charges. Every time they appear they are allowed to go with a warning and some good advice, and, apparently as far as the boys are concerned, it goes in one ear and out of the other. This morning, in one case, two of the lads were remanded till Friday; in the meantime they are allowed out. The others were discharged.

His Worship Magistrate Dumble has called attention time after time to the fact that a public whipping post should be established, and the policemen should have the power to whip these incorrigible boys, but the law does not allow it. "The law is breeding criminals," said his Worship "and there is a great deficiency in it. There is no way of punishing them. There is no use fining them and they cannot be put in jail. Putting them in the shelter is not a sufficient punishment."

The first juvenile case this morning was four young lads, two of them brothers, who were charged with stealing about $4.50 from the store of John Hill at the corner of Charlotte and George streets on Sunday last. Mr. Gordon appeared for them and they all pleaded guilty. Through an open window they gained admittance. They spent the money buying their dinner and tea and ice cream at a local restaurant. The two brothers in the case have been previously implicated on charges of theft. The other two lads were allowed to go, but as to these two brothers, his Worship reserved judgment for a week to see how they got along. Their father was present and he was ordered to give them a good whipping. "Get a strap and cut it into thongs and give them a good smarting," said His Worship. "It should be done calmly and not in a passion and if this medicine is administered a little oftener they will be better boys. They should be properly trained at home and not given all their own way."

Then there was another incorrigible who stole two dollars from Frost's store. He was sent out to get the bill changed and never returned, but went to Port Hope last Saturday. His father paid the money. The lad was taken to the Shelter. He soon got tired of it and ran away to Ennismore but became discontented there also and returned home. He was given some good advice, his father promising to whip him and he was allowed to go.

STOLE A HORSE AND RIG

But there was also a charge against this lad, along with another, of stealing a horse and rig. They went to a stable, got a horse and then got Mr. Adam Hall's delivery rig and drove around town. When they got tired of doing this, they tied the horse to a post on Aylmer street and left it standing there. In this case judgment was reserved until Friday.

STOLE SOME FRUIT

Two nicely dressed boys were charged with stealing fruit from Minicolo Bors. and pleaded guilty. It being their first offence they were allowed to go, promising to never do it again.

LINDSAY TEAM MET DEFEAT

Lillies Won From the Maybees at Nicholl's Oval Yesterday

The Lindsay "Maybees" aggregation came to the city yesterday and played the return game with the Lillies, of the Intermediate League. They again went down to defeat, and by the somewhat large score of 16 runs to 5. As the score would indicate, the contest was rather one sided and everything went the home team's way. The "Maybees" failed to connect with the twirling of Belleghem, who excelled in the pitcher's box. Starr, who pitched for the Lindsay aggregation, was batted freely, but twirled a good game. The home pitcher only had one more "strike out" to his credit than Starr. Belleghem got excellent support in the field, and few errors were chalked down to the homesters, while several costly fumbles were made by the visitors. Belleghem and Wilson, the battery for the Lillies, are the best of any in the intermediate teams, and the fielders yesterday also did good work. Starr was knocked all over the field. Foley made a home run off him, the only one of the day, and several two-baggers were also made. The "Maybees" made several costly errors, and to this fact the visitors owe their defeat. The homesters all had their share of runs, and Belleghem brought in four of them. The visitors failed to score until the third session, when they brought in three, and then did not score again until the eighth and ninth, when they brought in one in each innings. Cunningham, Anderson and Stewart did the scoring for the losers.

Mr Harry Burridge officiated as umpire in a very satisfactory manner.

The teams were;—

Maybees—Cunningham 3b, Flurey cf, E Hopkins lf, Touchburn ss, Gray 2b, Starr p, Anderson c, Fee 1b, Stewart rf, Lillies—Belleghem p, Wilson c, Price 1b, Graham 2b. Curtis 3b, Kendry ss, Simmons lf, Foley cf, Dunsford rf.

The score by innings was as follows;—

Peterborough—351001420.—16
Lindsay—003000011—5

The Lindsay boys were good sports and took their defeat good naturedly.

PORT HOPERS STOLE A MARCH

Landed Crack Second Baseman Peterboro' Wanted

Realizing that the Peterborough team was weak around second base, Manager Johnson got his hooks out for a man to hold down that position in the game against Port Hope Saturday. Jimmy O'Hearn, of Toronto, one of the best second basemen in Canada outside of the Eastern League, was the man wanted for the job, but when the local management tried to secure him they found that Port Hope had beat them out and secured Jimmy for Saturday's game against the Petes. O'Hearn has been at Port Hope all week and is said to be showing up well in practice with Blake Crawford's aggregation. He is a dandy at second base and is also a heavy wielder of the hickory.

Manager Johnston, however, has not been sleeping with such a critical game ahead of the team and it is whispered will spring a surprise on the Port Hopers to-morrow. The southerners seem determined to win to-morrow, but they will have to go their prettiest to down the Peterborough aggregation. Quinlan will do the twirling for Peterborough and is in fine form.

All Ready for the Big Game

Great Doings on the Tapes for the Printers' Picnic

The baseball nines of the Review and Examiner completed their training last night for the big game at the Printers picnic at Idyl Wyld on Monday, Civic holiday. As "Josh" Craig is taking his annual bath at Stony lake on Monday he will not be found on the Grit aggregation, which fact will no doubt be received with moans of anguish by about twenty-three young ladies. The great Hutchinson will wear the catcher's mask and with him as a side atraction will have the big bear—that he captured at Janetville. The Examiner team have been dieting on boiler plate for ten days and claim to be as fit for a hard game as Manager Paxman is for the role of an angel, and that's going some.

Review team will be selected Monday at 2.30 p.m., from the following players to represent this great journal;—Burridge, Capt., Burns, Thompson, Handley, Wilson, Dillon, Franks, Begley, MacRae, Kilgour and Cook.

4229.—A PRACTICAL COAT FOR A GIRL.

An odd coat is perhaps more necessary to the small girl than to older persons as she is not so likely to own a suit and must have something of medium weight for the whole year around. Here is sketched a coat of a little more than hip length which realizes the best of the present modes and is not beyond home making. The seams may be lapped and stitched or bound with a narrow braid, while the collar may be of the material or velvet. The coat is box shape and very natty, requiring 1 1-2 yards of 54 inch material in the medium size.

4229.—Sizes 4, 6, 8, 10, 12 years.

The price of this pattern is 10c.

Leave your order and 10 cents at the REVIEW OFFICE and pattern will be sent you by mail.

A Useful Gown

The loose, comfortable gown which slips on easily and requires no elaborate fastening to close it is an invaluable possession in the feminine wardrobe. Such a one as [illegible] and made in a washable silk or Japanese cloth it will prove wonderfully useful and becoming. The broad sailor collar and loose flowing sleeves suggest freedom from restraint and are quite in keeping with the purpose of the garment. For use as a bathrobe or negligee it is invaluable. For the medium size 7 yards of 36 inch material are needed.

Inspector Ball To Stony Lake

Will See That No Pollution is Being Put into the Lake—Typhoid Not Infectious

Typhoid fever is not considered an infectious disease by the medical authorities on the local Board of Health. Yesterday morning when the reported outbreak of the fever at Stony Lake was mentioned, the doctors made the above statement. Nevertheless they considered it advisable for the Board of Health to take every precaution to see that the city's water supply is not in any way polluted.

The Board of Health of Peterborough has no authority to enter upon private property around Stony Lake. But if the inspector discovers any creek, stream or drain emptying into the lake, which contains typhoid germs, he has authority to have it stopped. With that object in view Sanitary Inspector Ball determined to visit Stony Lake and investigate the stream, which enters into the lake from which it is claimed the fever was taken. If he finds anything suspicious or improper, he will then be at liberty to take action.

Inspector Ball has received instructions from the Water Commissioners to make an examination of the waters above the intake pipe at the pump house, and to particularly investigate the points where there is typhoid fever, for the purpose of preventing any typhoid germs entering the water of the lakes about the city. Mr. Ball is to-day arranging with Mr. R. M. Roy for the use of his steam yacht the Rob Roy, for making the examination. He will make a round trip of the lakes.

New Docks on The Trent Canal

Improvements of Benefit to the City—Traffic is Increasing Rapidly

The dredge Emmerson, has completed, or nearly so, the work at Gore's Landing. Both outside and inside the dock, the channel has been dredged to a depth of nine feet, making this one of the best docks on the Trent canal. Boats can go in behind the dock and load with grain and hogs, no matter how severe a storm may be raging, and there is a great quantity of grain and large numbers of hogs shipped from Northumberland county to Peterborough. The dredge will next come up the river to Smithson dock and dredge a small harbor, making it better for the boats to land. The material taken out will be thrown on the bank for the purpose of widening the approach to the dock, so that farmers can bring down their grain without any trouble. As soon as this work is done the dredge will return to Dangerfield, where it has been cutting a new channel for the purpose of straightening out the river and making navigation easier and safer.

The new dock at Hall's Landing, the end of the Bensfort road, will be finished early next week. It is fifty feet long and the farmers of South Monaghan will soon be using it for shipping grain and hogs to the city market. The new dock at Hale's bridge, started last week, will be ready for use early next week.

The new dock at Indian Village on Chemong Lake, has been finished. All these new docks are of benefit to the city of Peterborough. The better the shipping facilities are on the Trent Canal the more produce will be sent here instead of being sold to outside buyers and shipped to other centres. Every year the Trent Canal is of greater benefit to this city and the amount of traffic upon it is rapidly increasing. This fall promises to be a record breaker.

Some Residents of Ward 3 up in Arms Against Board of Health

For the Action Taken in Extending the Time for Compelling the Owner of the Old Carlisle Terrace to Connect with the Sewer.

What is behind it? is the question being asked by a number of residents living in the neighborhood of London street. Some residents of ward 3 are up in arms against the Board of Health. It seems, said one man, that in response to a petition the sewer was run down London street between George and Water streets. This was done for the purpose of enabling the owner of the terrace on the north-east corner of London and George street to connect with the sewer and relieve a state of affairs, not only condemned by the Sanitary Inspector, but by the residents in the neighborhood. Seven cess pools within a space of 90 feet has long been considered a menace to the health of the neighborhood, and undoubtedly had a depreciating effect upon the property adjoining. Strange to say, after promising to suppress this nuisance so that the owner of the terrace would be compelled to connect with the sewer. A small majority of the Board of Health decided to give until May next—nine months, to connect with the sewer. Such a manifest injustice and such an entire going back on the promise of the Board can only be accounted for on the ground that other terrace owners would be compelled by indignant neighbors to provide the ordinary decencies of civilization. The residents about the former Carlisle terrace have appealed to the Provincial Board of Health, and have sent in a strongly worded petition to the local Board of Health demanding immediate action. They also threaten to apply for a mandamus to compel the Board of Health to do its duty. A police court case for the suppression of a nuisance and a civic action for damages to property are also in the air. Mr. Eyres, chairman of the Board of Health, strongly condemns the Board's action.

When the neighbors appealed to the Medical Health Officer for action he said it would be all right as he would tell the people how to deoderise and disinfect the cess pools. There are no sinks evidently in connection with these houses as slops and dirty water are frequently thrown upon the adjoining property. Two of the neighbors attempted to investigate at close range the nuisance complained of, but as the air was filled with foul smells, they were compelled to retire. It looks as if the Board of Health would have to take some action.

THE BOARD'S SIDE

It might be stated on behalf of the Board of Health, that Mr. Edwards, the owner of the Carlisle terrace, appeared at the meeting yesterday morning and asked for the extension of time. He said that he had only recently purchased the terrace and could not at the present time stand the expenditure for putting in the necessary plumbing. He promised that if the Board gave him a little longer time he would have the sewer connections made and thereby prevent any further trouble.

Under the circumstances, the Board considered this a reasonable request and granted an extension until the 1st of May next.

Photograph Of the Comet

On Thursday morning last at 3 o'clock Rev. Dr. Marsh of Springville, took a successful photograph of the comet. The comet can be seen about three o'clock in the morning quite distinctly by the naked eye. It has a bright head and is several degrees long. It is situated directly east and about 25 degrees above the horizon.

French Camp Was Attacked: Moors Continue the Warfare

Six Thousand Horsemen Beaten Off After Sharp Fight.

Rebel Tribesmen Loot Juby—Many of Garrison Killed—Spanish Infantry Proceed to Morocco—Caid MacLean May Soon Be Free—Quiet Restored at Casablanca—Bravery of French Troops.

Casablanca, Aug. 10.—The Moors Thursday night renewed their attempt to invade Casablanca, but were repulsed with heavy losses by the fire of the warships. All the consulates here are now guarded by machine guns.

The total of the Moorish losses here is estimated at two thousand.

Paris, Aug. 10.—A message received here from Admiral Philibert, off Casablanca, Morocco, probably forwarded from his flagship by wireless telegraphy, and dated at 2 o'clock Thursday afternoon says:

"Gen. Drude's camp, outside Casablanca, was attacked to-day by 6,000 horsemen, who were vigorously beaten off."

Tangier, Aug. 10.—The town of Cape Juby, on the west coast of Africa, has been attacked and raided by the Aituyusa and Aitdjemal tribes. A number of the garrison were killed, and the remainder were made prisoners. The governor escaped in a boat to the fort on Fuerteventura Island, opposite Cape Juby. The rebel tribesmen completely looted Cape Juby.

The latest news from Rabat confirms previous reports, and is most disquieting. The tribesmen threaten to attack Rabat unless the French control of the customs is abolished, and all foreigners there are keeping strictly within their own quarters.

Hope for Sir Harry's Liberty.

A Moorish official here has just received a letter from the Governor of Tetuan, stating that Sir Harry MacLean is no longer in the custody of Raisuli, the chief of the Kmass tribe, having demanded and obtained permission that he be turned over to their custody. If this be true, there is little doubt that the captive soon will be liberated.

Quiet at Casablanca.

Tangier, Aug. 10.—Tranquility has been restored at Casablanca, and the fanatics and hostile tribesmen who invaded the city had been driven out when the French cruiser Forbin, which arrived here yesterday, left that port. All the Europeans and others who sought refuge on the steamers in the bay have returned to their homes. Much of the City of Casablanca is practically in ruins as a result of the bombardment, even the European quarter being extensively damaged, the warships having directed the fire of their guns on that part of Casablanca with the object of ending the extensive looting, in which the Moors were revelling. The bodies of those who were killed in the recent fighting have since been piled up in the streets, and are being buried as quickly as possible.

Four battalions of Spanish infantry, with rapid-fire guns, which have been stationed at Algeciras, near Gibraltar, have been ordered to proceed to Morocco.

In response to the urgent request of the British consulate, Mazagan, a short distance from the southwest of Casablanca, a steamer was yesterday despatched from here to that port.

2,000 French at Casablanca.

The Spanish cruiser Rio De La Plata, from Cadiz, has arrived at Casablanca to reinforce the international fleet. Casablanca is now in complete possession of the French and Spanish forces. Of the former about 2,000 are ashore, and others are ready to land at short notice should it be necessary for reinforcements.

French Were Decidedly Brave.

Paris, Aug. 10.—Gen. Drude reports that Casablanca has been in possession of the French expeditionary force since Wednesday night. He pays high tribute to the defence of the foreign consulates by the sailors, who had two officers wounded, two men killed and ten wounded.

The report of the French charge d'affaires at Tangier contains a graphic description of the heroic conduct of the first French landing party under the command of Ensign Ballande. Upon disembarking, the party was divided into squads, with fixed bayonets, and with Ballande in front with a trumpeter on one side and an interpreter on the other, they advanced to the water gate. As the party reached the walls the gates were slammed in their faces. Ballande cried: "Open the gates," and his demand was repeated in Arabic by the interpreter. A volley from the Moors was the reply. Before the Moors had time to lock the gate which would have left the party at the mercy of the fire from the ramparts, Ballande ordered his men to charge. As the gates yielded, Ballande's right hand was pierced by a bullet, which flattened against his sword hilt. The Moors retreated, but continued firing. At every corner the sailors were ambushed and met attacks on their front, flank and rear, but they moved on, keeping up their fire and killing scores of their assailants. A subaltern named Labaste received a bullet in his breast, but he continued at the head of his squad and under continual fire until the French consulate was reached, and while its defence was being arranged.

The charge d'affaires adds: "Many of the foreigners who witnessed the gallantry of our men were unable to restrain cries of admiration."

Missing Two Weeks.

Ottawa, Aug. 10.—Sandy Miles, a Hintonburg man, disappeared from his home two weeks ago.

Search for him has proved futile.

He has a wife and five young children. He was out of work and had been drinking.

Using Bombs in Persia.

Teheran, Aug. 10.—A bomb was exploded yesterday at the residence here of Ala Ed. Daouleh, ex-governor of Fars.

No serious damage was done.

Toronto Travel Taken.

Brantford, Aug. 10.—The man arrested Thursday evening as S. W. Smythe was tried in the Police Court yesterday. He pleaded guilty on two charges, obtaining money from Burns, a dry goods clerk, and at the Bank of Hamilton. The money received from both those places was found on him.

The prisoner represented himself as a traveler for S. F. McKinnon & Co. of Toronto, and through this means he obtained the money. He is not employed by that firm now. His case is remanded till next week that investigation may be made.

Counterfeit Bills at Rossland.

Rossland, B. C., Aug. 10.—For some time past a gang has been passing bad bills in this city. They are counterfeits, it is thought, of the bills issued many years since by the Merchants' and Planters' Bank of Georgia. About six weeks ago the gang passed two $20 bills, one in a hotel and another in the store of a merchant. At that time they made good their escape.

Emboldened by their success, the gang returned here and within the last few days passed the worthless bills on several parties.

Merchant Shot in Office.

Buffalo, N. Y., Aug. 10.—James H. Rodebaugh, a commission merchant, with an office in the Chamber of Commerce, was killed by a revolver shot in the office of the Niagara Mill and Elevator Co. yesterday afternoon. He was president of the Milling Co. Chas. H. Chase, secretary and treasurer of the Milling company, who was alone in the office with Rodebaugh at the time of the shooting, is in the custody of the police.

Irrevocable Says Blake.

London, Aug. 10.—(C. A. P.)—Hon. Edward Blake has written his constituents that his resignation is necessary and irrevocable. The Dublin Journal, while warmly regretting the decision, says that Blake will carry with him into retirement the affection and gratitude of the country he served so well.

The trial trip of an air ship, made by R. Murrah at Krugerville, near Stettler, Alta., will be made this week.

"BILL" MINER ESCAPES

Notorious Train Robber Breaks Jail in B. C.

Three Others Also Run Off at Same Time—Dug Hole Under Wall While Working in Brickyard — Scaled High Fence and Got Away—Guards Accused of Negligence—Miner Was Best Behaved Prisoner.

Vancouver, B. C., Aug. 10.—Bill Miner has escaped from Westminster penitentiary. The most notorious outlaw and train robber in America, the only man who ever held up a train in Canada, is now believed to be heading for the international boundary 15 miles distant from Westminster, if he has not already crossed it, on the fastest horse he could steal. His pals, Shorty Dunn, who is serving a life term, and Colquhoun, his Ontario confederate, in Kamloops train robbery in May, 1906, are not with him, not having had old Bill's opportunity to get away.

Three others escaped with Miner, but he will likely drop them, all being juniors in the game Miner plays. They are Clarke of Nanaimo, three years for forgery; W. J. Woods, Victoria, a like term; A. F. McCloskey, Vancouver, seven years, robbery. All had served a year of their term.

With these, Miner, working in the brickyard, had dug a hole under the wall, and had made their escape nearly an hour before it was discovered.

Ottawa, as well as every police centre in British Columbia and Washington State, were immediately wired, and every available officer in Westminster and Vancouver has been pressed into the chase.

Deputy Warden Bourke says the escape was due to negligence of guards.

Miner was the best behaved prisoner. Only a few weeks ago he joked about his home life to a mounted police officer, who had assisted in his memorable capture.

YOUTH BREAKS JAIL.

Escapes From Turnkey and Is Still at Large.

Cobourg, Aug. 10.—Norman J. G. Frame, the Toronto youth who was convicted of forgery and sentenced to four months' imprisonment for passing bogus cheques in Port Hope, escaped from the county jail here yesterday morning while in charge of the turnkey. Although the sheriff's officers and county constables are looking for him, he has so far evaded recapture.

The escaped prisoner is 18 years of age, height about 5 feet 8 inches, complexion dark, eyes blue, face smooth, and form slim.

He had been "doing the races" at the Woodbine, and resorting to devious devices to raise money for "sporty" purposes when he was arrested at Port Hope.

A warrant has been issued and a reward offered for his re-arrest.

YOUNG MAN SENT UP.

Harold Scott Goes for Trial for Stealing Livery Rig.

Bowmanville, Aug. 10.—Harold Scott, the young man from Newmarket who was arrested by Chief Jarvis Wednesday night on suspicion of having in his possession and offering the same for sale a driving mare, top buggy and complete driving outfit, appeared before William M. Horsey, police magistrate, yesterday.

After hearing the evidence of Thos. Mahoney of Bellhaven, who identified the property taken from Scott as his own, and that of other witnesses, Scott was sent to the county jail at Cobourg for trial on two charges. Scott gave his age as 15, but he is nearly 20 years of age, and took his committal with the nonchalance of an old offender. This is the seventeenth horse that Chief Jarvis has returned to owners since he came to this town.

ARSENIC IN PORRIDGE

Many Guests at Regina Restaurant Are Poisoned.

Chinese Rival Arrested — Alleged to Have Put Poison in Borrowed Oatmeal—Three Men Seriously Ill—Were Seized With Violent Pains After Taking Breakfast and May Not Recover.

Regina, Aug. 9.—A sensation was caused in the city yesterday by the news that a number of boarders at Steele's restaurant on Lorne street had been poisoned by a solution of arsenic in the porridge partaken of by them at breakfast. It appears that the proprietors of the restaurant lent a quantity of oatmeal on Thursday to the Chinese proprietor of the adjacent eating house. The oatmeal was duly returned and Steele used some of it to cook the morning meal. Mrs. Steele and eight or nine guests ate of the porridge and almost immediately afterwards were seized with severe internal pains accompanied by vomiting. Doctors Thompson and Meek were summoned and by natural means and stomach pumps the greater part of the food was ejected. Three of the sufferers, Harry Stewart, Cyrus Winters and John Fortune, were conveyed to Victoria Hospital, where their condition aroused grave anxiety. There is, however, some ground for hoping that all those attacked will recover.

Arsenic in the Meal.

The unused oatmeal was confiscated and a portion of it submitted to Dr. Charlton, Provincial Bacteriologist, who certified to the presence of arsenic. The Chinaman who returned the oatmeal, and generally known here as Mac, has been arrested. According to present arrangements he will be brought before Magistrate McCausland. A fact which, unless disproved, appears to weigh against him is that an invoice shows that he purchased two weeks ago a quantity of oatmeal, all of which had not been used. What valid reason he had to borrow oatmeal with a stock already in his possession remains a mystery.

OBJECT TO STRIKE-BREAKERS.

Telegraph Operators Refuse to Work With Them—General Strike.

Chicago, Aug. 10.—Since midnight, when 100 operators struck rather than work with strike-breakers at Los Angeles, there has been little doing in the Chicago office of the Western Union Telegraph Co. at Jackson boulevard and Clark street, or in the branch offices scattered throughout the city.

Only six wire chiefs and four veteran telegraph operators were left in the main Chicago offices when the union men, in answer to a whistle, rushed from the keys on the ninth and tenth floors and congregated in front of the building. The strike order issued by the executive board of the Chicago local union to the night operators applies also to day operators, thus affecting some 700 men employed in the main Chicago office during day hours.

There was no disorder, but fifty policemen were detailed to see that no crowds congregated about the western Union building, or the Board of Trade.

Postal Strike in Chicago.

Chicago, Aug. 10.—The operators in the office of the Postal Telegraph Co, have been called out.

Strike Throughout the West.

Salt Lake City, Aug. 10.—All Western Union operators walked out here at 1.30 p. m.

Kansas City, Mo., Aug. 10.—The entire force of the Western Union here, excepting chief operators, numbering about 150 employes, quit work yesterday afternoon. The Western Union men at the Board of Trade also went out.

Helena, Aug. 10.—The entire force of the local Western Union office went on strike yesterday, with the exception of the chief operator and his assistant. The strike was due to marking off an operator who declined to man the Chicago wire on the ground that Chicago was a non-union office.

New Orleans, Aug. 10.—All the New Orleans postal telegraphers, numbering about 60, left their wires last night.

Dallas, Texas, Aug. 10.—One hundred and five Western Union operators went on strike at 6.30 o'clock last night.

Fort Worth, Texas, Aug. 10.—All Western Union telegraphers in Fort Worth struck last night.

AUSTRALIA'S TARIFF.

The Free Traders in England Laugh at It.

London, Aug. 10.—(C. A. P.)—The average preference granted the Home Country by Australia is from 5 to 10 per cent. on the new tariff, which increases the duty from 20 to 45 per cent. and in some cases 100 per cent.

Free traders here laugh at it, while tariff reformers, on second thoughts, receive it with no great enthusiasm. As one tariff journal points out, the tariff must be modified extraordinarily before Australia can be considered as generous as Canada, adding that free traders should not be disappointed at the loss, since they pointblank refused the greater benefits at the Imperial Conference.

EVERY HOUSE DAMAGED.

Village in Saskatchewan Almost Destroyed by Tornado.

Moosejaw, Sask., Aug. 10.—A wide scope of country southwest was swept by a devastating tornado Thursday night. The town of Tuxford, 30 miles west, was the centre of disturbed district. Nearly every house in the village was destroyed or damaged. Many were hurt, but no fatalities have been reported. Grave fears are entertained for safety of many in adjacent rural districts where the cyclone was very severe. The chief disturbance passed over Tuxford for many miles, then swept around and again passed through the town. The people were terror-stricken.

WRECK OFF MAINE COAST.

Bound for Halifax the $100,000 Boat is Lost.

Rockland, Aug. 10.—The Norwegian steamer Preyedal, Capt. F. Frantsen, was wrecked early yesterday on Western Malcolm Ledges, about twenty miles from here, and is expected to be a total loss. She left Stockholm Springs at 7 o'clock Thursday night with two-thirds of a cargo of spool wood, valued at $35,000, for Glasgow, and was bound to Halifax, N.S., to complete her cargo wth lumber. The steamer is valued at $100,000, and is insured. The eighteen men in her crew remained aboard, and are in no danger.

Little Fellow Drowned.

Cornwall, Aug. 10.—Sandy Archie Scott, the nine-year-old son of William Scott of Alexandria, was drowned in the lake at that village on Wednesday. Young Scott, along with another little fellow, was in a boat when he fell over into five feet of water. The cries of his companion brought four men to the scene and they found the boy lying face downwards on the bottom and pulled him out, but it was too late to save his life.

Both Bodies Recovered.

Montreal, Aug. 10.—The bodies of Shirley Davidson and Miss Eileen Hingston, who were drowned while out sailing in a skiff on Sunday morning, were both found in the river yesterday morning. Mr. Davidson's body was found about four miles below Varennes, where the accident took place, while Miss Hingston's body had been washed down the river nearly eleven miles by the swift current.

Lumber Going Up.

Ottawa, Aug. 10.—Lumbermen here are of the opinion that lumber will advance in price. The expense of cutting is getting heavier year by year.

The cut will be about the same as last year.

RUNAWAY C. P. R. CAR.

Breaks Away From Engine and Crowd Narrowly Escape.

Toronto, Aug. 9.—Between 7 and 8 o'clock last night a number of persons had a miraculous escape from death or serious accident at the Brock avenue railway crossing, when a C. P. R. flatcar broke loose from a shunting engine and back down the incline over the crossing.

The car was loaded with rails and rapidly gained speed as it went along. One man in the crowd which at that time happened to be at the crossing noticed the runaway car just in time to signal the danger, and the people had no more than cleared the track when the runaway car dashed past.

A collision in the yards was only averted by the action of a brakeman, who jumped on the car and applied the brakes.

The car broke away at Toronto Junction, and as soon as the mishap was noticed a shunting engine tried to catch it, but the task was impossible and had it not been for the nerve of the brakeman, a bad accident would have no doubt resulted.

WATER FAMINE IN MONTREAL.

Pump Breaks Down and Third of the City's Supply Cut Off.

Montreal, Aug. 10.—One-third of Montreal's water supply will be cut off for five days by the breaking down of one of the big pumps at the pumping station yesterday morning.

This means that a certain section of the city will be without fire protection and without water for drinking and domestic purposes for the time mentioned.

A similar accident occurred a few months ago, and caused great inconvenience.

An investigation will be held.

Injured in Runaway.

Guelph, Aug. 10.—Lincoln Goldie of the Goldie Mining Co. met with a painful accident Thursday while driving with Alfred Watson to Elora. When about three miles from Elora the horse took fright and ran away. Both men jumped from the rig and both were injured. Watson, however, was only badly dazed, while Goldie is suffering from injuries to his back, the seriousness of which is not yet known.

Riot at Football Match.

Winnipeg, Aug. 10.—At the Caltic-United football match last night for the city championship a fight between a couple of the players developed into a riot, participated in by a hundred or more players. McDowell, one of the players, was seriously injured, also Sloan, the Uniteds goal tender, who had his arm cut. A woman went into hysterics, and the game had to be called off.

Farmer Suffers by Fire.

Brockville, Aug. 10.—R. R. Graham, a farmer living near South Mountain, suffered severely by fire recently. During a storm his stable was struck and two valuable horses killed. The barns, together with stables and outbuildings, were consumed; also much machinery, fifteen loads of hay and 100 bushels of oats. The loss is $3,000, with insurance of $800.

Big Fire in Garage.

New York, Aug. 10.—Fire in Mack Bros.'s big automobile garage, and repair shop in Atlantic avenue, Brooklyn, early yesterday, caused a loss of $100,000. Twenty-six automobiles were burned.

Many Were at Band Concert

Last night's band concert was attended by a large crowd of citizens, who were pleased beyond measure the excellent music provided. The programme was one of rare excellence, including as it did a number of the latest popular selections, as well as several old favorites. Bandmaster Glddon has his musicians in fine shape, and their playing leaves nothing to be desired.

The Rev. J. G. Potter will preach at both services in St. Andrew's to-morrow. Morning subject "Facing the future. Evening "The tragedies of Faith." The morning service partake of a memorial character.

TEN INDICTMENTS FOUND.

Judge Hazel Receives Them Against Standard Oil and Others.

Jamestown, N. Y., Aug. 10.—Judge Hazel in the Federal Court for the western district of New York received from the grand jury yesterday a partial report of the investigations which have been made of the Government's charges against the Standard Oil Co., the Vacuum Oil Co., the New York Central, and the Pennsylvania Railroads of giving and receiving special and illegal concessions on the shipments of oil from Olean to points in Vermont.

The report includes the presentation of two indictments against the Standard Oil Co., two against the Vacuum Oil Co., two against the New York Central and Pennsylvania jointly, and two against each of these railroads separately, a total of ten indictments. Of the two indictments against each corporation, one contains 188 counts, and the other 40 counts.

To Dissolve "Standard Oil."

St. Louis, Aug. 10.—The first testimony in the Government's St. Louis suit to dissolve the Standard Oil trust will be taken in the postoffice building at New York Sept. 3.

The testimony will mark the actual beginning of the Government's fight to overthrow the Standard and the 70 or more subsidiary corporations allied with it.

At this minute, with a fine of $29,240,000 hanging over its coffers the Standard Oil Co., either under that name or under the name of one or another of the dozens of companies owned by it, is under indictment in five federal districts—namely, Western New York, Western District of Louisiana, Eastern District of Missouri, Western District of Tennessee and Northern District of Illinois. There are only 15 indictments, but inasmuch as each count covers a separate offence, the trust is liable under the counts thus pending to fines amounting to $114,750,000, which is more than the capital stock of the parent corporation.

The indictments brought under state statutes, it is believed, run up into the hundreds.

COAL COMMISSION'S REPORT.

Alberta Miners May Benefit as Result of Enquiry.

Edmonton, Aug. 10.—The report of the Coal Commission has been placed in the hands of Hon. Mr. Cushing, Minister of Public Works. The commission has made no reference to the eight-hour law. The omission of a recommendation on this point is, in a measure, due to the fact that the Provincial Government has already promised this. The recommendations made by the report are:

Closer inspection of ventilation of smaller mines; erection of bath-houses at mines to be compulsory; minimum age of boys employed in mines to be 16 years; all necessary timber required for use of miners should be brought as near the working face as practicable, and in no case further away than nearest cross-cut to working face; the distance between first and second openings to a mine should not be more than one hundred feet; inspectors' reports should be posted at mine; the Government should make every effort to induce individuals and companies who are able to do so to keep supply of coal in hand and stored during the summer for use; compensation for injuries to be decided by special commission, from which there can be no appeal.

The coal shortage in some districts is caused by lack of sidings. The Legislature should compel the erection of licensing of warehouses which would enable agents and dealers to better finance the purchase and storage of coal during the slack season. The Legislature should compel the furnishing of cars to shippers in Alberta.

Reciprocal demurrage is also suggested.

Cheesemen Complain.

Listowel, Aug. 10.—At the cheese fair held yesterday ten factories boarded 1,705 boxes of cheese. For most of the lots the bidding stopped at 11 3-8c. In some cases factorymen asked 11 5-8c.

Some of the factorymen present complained bitterly about the accommodation given at the Listowel Station in shipping cheese. Long and unnecessary delays were caused by not placing cars. The officials refused absolutely to place cars on the cheese siding constructed for shipping cheese; the cars were shifted during loading, to the serious damage of boxes and to the great inconvenince of shippers, and there was a marked lack of courtesy on the part of the trainmen.

C. P. R. Heads for Sarnia.

Sarnia, Aug. 10.—That the C. P. R. is coming to Sarnia may be set down as an assured fact by Sarnians.

The line will be extended from London first and eventually also from Stratford. This would give the C. P. R. a fast through line from Central and Eastern Ontario to the west. A line of boats from Sarnia to Port Arthur would be put on and passengers and freight from all eastern points would be brought by way of Sarnia instead of being taken over the long haul by way of the north shore, which line is kept busy with the east-bound products of the northwest. A crossing of the river would also be established here and connections made with a line to Chicago.

Opium Dens Closed.

Canton, China, Aug. 10.—In accordance with the imperial decree recently issued all the opium dens in Canton were closed yesterday.

The new departure caused general rejoicing throughout the city, the streets were decorated and a number of processions, headed by bands of music, playing lively airs, marched through the main thoroughfares.

Advertising in Britain.

London, Aug. 10.—(C. A. P.)—Features of the Australian budget are $20,000 for advertising for immigrants in Britain, and $250,000, the usual contribution to the Imperial navy. A sum is also placed in the estimates to commence the establishment of a coastal defence navy.

Work Started Old Fire Hall

Contractor T. C. Irwin Will Superintend the Job—

Contractor T. C. Irwin, who was appointed by the engineering department to remodel the old fire hall, has started to work. Yesterday he made the necessary measurements and arranged for the material and to-day he commenced the actual work. It will be Tuesday, however, before very much is done, but after that it will be rushed. The alterations will provide for offices for all the city officials under the one roof and will do away with the city paying rent for offices.

WERE SEPARATED FOR NINE YEARS

Russian Will be Met Here by His Wife To-night.

There landed at Quebec last night a woman who came to Canada to join her husband, whom she has not seen for nine years, and who is now residing in Peterborough. Accompanying her are her two sons, one fourteen and the other nine years of age. The lady, who arrived safely at Quebec last night, is Mrs. Mandal, wife of one of the members of the firm of Mandal Bros., who have a junk shop at the corner of Charlotte and Bethune streets. The husband was a soldier in the Russian army, and had been absent from home five years when the Russian-Jap war broke out. His regiment was ordered to Japan, but Mandal had seen enough of Russian soldiering and he deserted, coming to America, first to New York and then to Peterborough, where he is now doing a good business, and is now able to bring his wife to Canada.

Mandal has never seen his nine year old son, as he left home with his regiment to which he was attached before the boy was born.

Mrs. Mandal and the two children are expected in Peterborough to-night, and, needless to say, the reunion will be a happy one.

Extending its Line From Bancroft to Maynooth—Soon be Opened

Bancroft, Aug. 9.—All summer a large staff of men have been engaged in extending the Central Ontario railway from Bancroft north, and it is now stated that the road will be open for passenger traffic from Bancroft to Maynooth after September 1st. Maynooth is the most northern village in the county, and those who have ever visited that part of our county will testify as to the beauties of the scenery in that district. It is said to be the nearest approach to the Highlands of Ontario that are at present accessible. It is a veritable hunter's and fisherman's paradise Bancroft north, and needless to say the opening of this road will be appreciated by sportsmen especially,

Contractors Handed Over New Transformer Building to Company

Description of Splendid Structure Added to the Canadian General Electric Company's Plant--Dominion Engineering and Construction Company Establish a Record, Completing Immense Building in Less Than a Year--Some Facts of Interest.

The massive new transformer building at the west portion of the Canadian General Electric Co's. grounds was last week handed by the contractors over to the C.G.E. Company.

The Dominion Engineering & Construction Co., of Montreal, were the contractors, and established a record, in that this immense structure was completed in less than a year.

THE NEW TRANSFORMER BUILDING

Excavation began on Aug. 10th, and the concreting proper at ground level was started on April 2nd of this year.

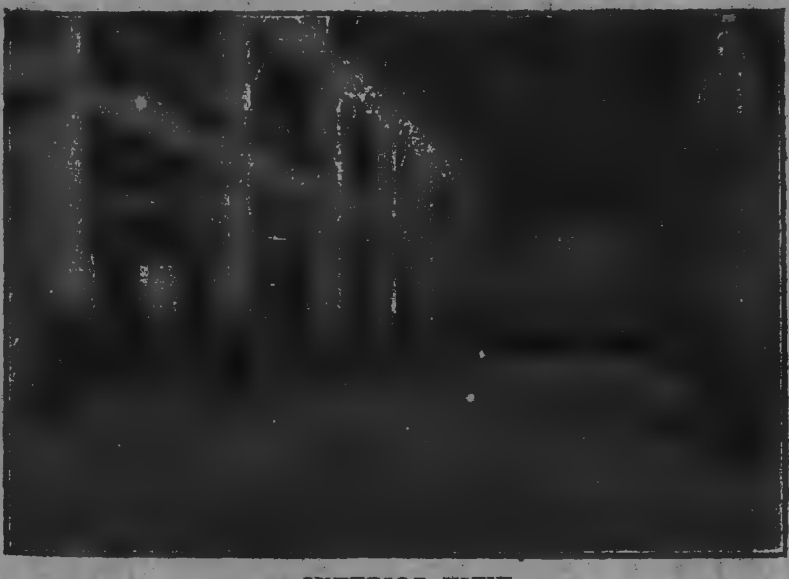
The new building will add materially to the capacity of the C.G.E. Co and is another splendid addition to that impressive structural pile which marks the location of Peterborough's largest industry—an industry which affords constant employment to over 1,000 hands.

Peterborough is indeed proud of the steady growth of the C.G.E. Company and its record of expansion and development since coming here from Sherbrooke some 19 years ago.

The transformer building—as it is called, is made entirely of concrete and steel and is the 3rd largest on the grounds. In dimensions it is 80 x 305 feet and 52 feet high. To the west is an addition 40 x 40 used as an annealing room, and at the south-east corner is another extension 10 x 60 feet containing the ovens for drying the transformer coils, the lavatories, etc.

The structure is entirely of concrete upon a steel frame, and is a model of excellence both as a re-inforced concrete building and as a special machine shop. The design is by the Dominion Engineering & Construction Company, under the direction of the Canadian General Electric Company.

The walls are all 14 inches thick to within six feet of the ground. The pilasters between the curtain walls add to the strength and massive appearance of the great edifice, and are 6 1-2 inches, by 2 1-2 feet, while curtain walls themselves are 7 1-2 inches. Some 400 feet of steel, and 4,500 barrels of cement were used in the construction of the building. The roof is a flat one, with 2x4 on edge, and a pitch of one in twelve. It is covered with Carey's patent roofing. The cost of the entire building and equipment will be about $200,000.



INTERIOR VIEW

THE STEEL WORK.

All the steel work for the structure was furnished by the Canada Foundry Company, of Toronto.

The steel work is very heavy, as it necessarily must be to accommodate a crane of such immense hoisting capacity as 50 tons. The steel work was erected under the direction of Mr. S. B. Edey, of the construction department of the Canada Foundry Co. Its erection was started on November 18th, and finished by Dec. 15th, 1906. The work was ably designed by Mr A R Leicester, C.E., chief constructional engineer of the Canada Foundry Co. The columns are 20 feet apart, the girders supporting the gallery are four feet in web, while the crane girders are 5 feet in web. The Canada Foundry Co turned out the various parts in admirable style.

Owing to the splendid shape in which the steel arrived and the way in which it fitted, there being practically no cutting, there , no delay The measurements had been so carefully made and the contract executed in such a faithful manner, that the rapidity with which the steel was erected during November and December last was little short of marvellous, considering the extremely cold and frosty weather.

CONCRETE WORK.

The cement was supplied by the Lakefield Portland Cement Co., and 3-8 inch steel rods placed horizontally with expansion joints at each pilaster. Thus the building cannot be effected by any atmospheric conditions.

In getting at the foundation of the building considerable difficulty was met with and the footings had to go very deep. As already stated, foundation work was begun about August 10th last year, and the winter season was made use of for erecting the steelwork.

Concreting proper at ground level was begun on April 2nd, and the roof was completed and the windows in by May 26th. This probably constitutes a record in Canada for such a gigantic steel and concrete structure.

The method of pouring the concrete into the walls was unique. All concrete was mixed on the ground by a Ransome mixer, fed by a small power derrick. After the steel frame work was all up, the concrete was elevated by hoists, to the roof, on which a scaffold was placed, and in this way the concrete was conveyed to any part of the building. The concrete was deposited in the forms by means of wooden chutes seven inches square leading down vertically from the roof to the wall. The work was completed in sections of four feet in height. As each section was filled with concrete the chute was cut off. There were two complete sets of forms for each section, which were used alternately in forming the walls.

The Company have also laid concreted walks on the north and east sides of the building, as well as to other buildings on the grounds.

LIGHTING IS GOOD.

There are 118 windows in the building, each about 10x 11, making the interior as light as day. All the windows are provided with Vokes dows are provided with Voakes nandy operating device for opening and closing so that a free circulation of air is enjoyed.

The floor is a substantial and durable one. On the ground are placed five inches of tar and concrete. On top of this is an inch of rough hemlock, then 2 inch tongue and groove hemlock, and over this maple 1 1-8 inches thick.

A track runs in half the length of the building from the north side, and also a track from east to west to connect with the machine shop.

A LARGE GALLERY.

Along the east side of the building is a gallery supported by heavy steel girders. This gallery extends the east half of the building lengthwise, and is 40x 305 feet, and here are located all the machines for winding the coils for the transformers. The gallery is 19 1-2 feet from the floor, and is reached by two steel stairways and a spiral stairway. The Otis-Fensom Elevator Co. has put in a large freight elevator.

The heavy electric crane that travels in tracks the full length of the west side of the building is a marvellous piece of mechanism. It is operated by controllers the same as an ordinary electric car, and has a hoisting capacity of 50 tons. There is also a smaller crane of about ten tons capacity.

The oil for use in the transformers is pumped by an electric pump through pipes, from a tank 600 feet away. The oil is returned to the tank, which has a capacity of 5,000 gallons, by means of gravity system. The tank is of steel set in a concrete chamber.

A SPLENDID JOB.

The Dominion Engineering & Construction Company have certainly completed an admirable job in record time. Mr. J. A. Beatty was the superintendent of the work, and Mr. Clarkson was the engineer representing the C.G.E. Co., the building being formally handed over to the C. G.E. Company last week. The structure is neat and attractive in appearance, notwithstanding its substantial, heavy, fire-proof construction. It is a credit in every way to the designer, the contractors and the Canadian General Electric Company. It will interest our readers to know that a local engineer is on the directorate of the Dominion Engineering & Construction Company, and that a former Peterborough engineer directs the construction operations.

Grand Trunk to Have New Scheme

It is Said That Conductors Will Not Collect Tickets

A short time ago Grand Trunk railway conductors were kept busy guessing how long they would hold their positions because of the action of some of their numbers who it was alleged had not done their full duty to the company and were dismissed. Now they are somewhat stirred up, says a Toronto despatch because of a proposition that will be introduced shortly which will take away from them the right to take up tickets. The new scheme is that auditors will travel on the trains and pick up all fares and tickets, the conductor's duty being simply to run the train. In other words, he will give the signal to go ahead and to stop. Many of the men resent this, while others say they are glad to be relieved of so much work.

D. Sutherland's Narrow Escape

Just Left a Mowing Machine as it Was Struck by Lightning

Monteagle, Aug. 9.—David Sutherland, of Monteagle, had a narrow escape on Wednesday of last week during the big storm that swept over this part of the country. He was at work in the field mowing hay, and when the storm was at its worst he stepped from the mower and started for a nearby tree for shelter. He had got only about ten feet away from the machine when it was struck by lightning and badly smashed, the bolt following the tongue and splitting it. Strange to say, the horses escaped without injury. It was a close call, and Mr. Sutherland has good reason to feel thankful that he is still in the land of the living.

Had Arm and Jaw Broken by Gasoline Engine Going Wrong

Norton Porter, Son of Hugh A. Porter, of This City, Victim of Serious Accident at Wolseley, Sask. About Ten Days Ago—Has Arrived Home.

Norton Porter, son of Hugh A. Porter, 267 King street, had a narrow escape from death at Wolseley, Sask., about ten days ago. He is now at his father's home in this city where he is slowly recovering from several injuries sustained in an accident of a somewhat peculiar nature. Accompanied by his father, who went west on being notified of his son's accident, Mr. Porter arrived home on Thursday night and although suffering considerable pain is making satisfactory progress towards recovery.

Mr. Porter is about 30 years of age and has been in the West for the last nine years. At the time he met with the accident he held an important position in a large wheat elevator at Wolseley, Sask., about three hundred miles west of Winnipeg. He was in charge of the large gasoline engine which furnished motive power for the elevator and had been employed in this position for a considerable time. While starting the engine about ten days ago, the crank used to start the fly wheel did not come off as it should have done after the wheel had given a quick turn and put in motion. It flew around quickly and struck Mr. Porter before he could step away. It hit him with great force, breaking one of his arms and fracturing his jaw in three places. Mr. Porter was not aware of the serious nature of his accident at the time it occurred. He closed down the engine and walked back to the hotel where he was boarding before he collapsed. The blood was streaming down his face as he walked to the hotel, but he was in a semi-unconscious condition and did not seem to know where he was until the landlord of the hotel spoke to him after he had reached his room. Then he came to for a moment but fainted away almost at once.

The injured man was taken to a hospital at Winnipeg where he had the fractures set and where he remained for a week. His father was sent for and went to Winnipeg and remained there with his son until Tuesday of this week, when they left for Peterborough arriving here Thursday evening.

Mr. Porter is recovering as rapidly as can be expected, but his arm and face are still very sore.

Strange to say, although he received such a terrific blow across the mouth no teeth were knocked out for which the injured man is exceedingly thankful. He has been in the West nine years and will return again as soon as he has recovered.

UP THE LAKES

A very large crowd left the city today and many more will leave this evening for Stony Lake to spend the week-end and Civic Holiday at the cottages and boarding houses. The great majority will remain over to see the big regatta on Monday.

OLD PIONEER PASSED AWAY

The first death at the County House of Refuge at Lakefield occurred on Wednesday last, when one of the oldest residents of the county of Peterborough passed away, in the person of Mrs. Phoebe Tomlinson, who lived for many years in the township of Dummer. The deceased was over ninety years of age, and her death was due to old age. She had been confined to her bed for four months, gradually sinking, and, although requiring constant care, she remained bright and cheerful until the end came. When the old lady died the superintendent at once notified Mr. R. N. Scott, chairman of the Board of Management, who immediately directed Mr. Bickell, of Lakefield, to take charge of the remains. She had been an inmate of the house since its inception, and was highly esteemed by her fellow inmates.

The funeral took place on Thursday from the House of Refuge, to the Lakefield cemetery. Rev. Mr. Bedford, of the Lakefield Methodist church, conducted the service, both at the house and at the grave.

THE HOUSE OF LORDS

SOME FACTS CONCERNING THE HOUSE OF BRITISH PEERS.

How It is Constituted—Peeresses In Their Own Right—Judicial Functions — Commons Alone Control Money Votes—"Black Rod" Keeps Order—Mace Left Outside—Quaint Ceremonies on Various Occasions.

At the present time when much is being said in regard to the "ending or mending" of the House of Lords, it may be interesting to recall some of the salient features of the Upper House in the British Parliament.

Full Assembly.

The House of Lords consists of the spiritual lords of England, the temporal peers of England, Great Britain, and the United Kingdom, and of representative peers of Scotland and Ireland.

The full Assembly consists of three Princes of the Blood Royal, two archbishops, twenty-two dukes, twenty-three marquesses, 124 earls, forty viscounts, twenty-four bishops, 336 barons, and sixteen Scottish and twenty-eight Irish representative peers, making a grand total of 618 peers. Of the 618, 347 are Conservatives, 125 are Unionists, ninety-one are Liberals, forty-five are independent or have no stated politics, and ten are minors.

In addition to these there are about 130 holders of titles of nobility who are not members of the House of Lords, their peerages being those of Scotland or Ireland only. There are also fifteen ladies who are peeresses in their own right, twelve of England and the United Kingdom and three of Scotland.
